On Tuesday evening, at Mr. Albert Bushell's benefit at the Gaiety, Birmingham, Mr. Nat Clifford and Mr. Hairy Wright, at a moment's notice, and without any rehearsal, went on the stage and played an impromptu sketch, which kept the audience in one scream of laughter for nine minutes. Mr. Albert Bushell afterwards presented Mr. Wright and Mr. Clifford with two bronze medals.

A special matinée, under distinguished patronage, was held at the Pavilion Theatre, Newcastle-on-Tyne, on Thursday afternoon, when the proceeds therefrom were devoted to Jewish charities. A stupendous programme, including all the pantomime favourites, had been arranged, and it is expected that a goodly sum will be handed over.

Mr. George Brooks, on the last night of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime Aladdin at the Victoria Theatre, Broughton, presented on behalf of the company four gentlemen's dressing-cases to Mr. Elliot, acting manager; to Mr. Mackenzie, stage manager; and to John W. Wilkinson and Charles Clemson, stage carpenters. To Mr. Lawrence he gave a silver cigarette-case.

The remains of the late Mr. Ralph Donkin Allen, an elder brother of Mr. Frank Allen, who died suddenly on Monday, were interred at Bishopwearmouth Cemetery on Thursday afternoon. The deceased was in the treasury department of the Theatre Royal, Sunderland, for a long period, having been connected with the theatre for many years, was well known and highly respected, his genial and kindly nature making friends everywhere. Until lately he was in the service of the River Wear Commissioners. He died in his seventieth year, after a long and useful career.

The cortège left the residence, 63, Borough-road, Sunderland, and the coffin, which was of polished oak, was suitably inscribed. The chief mourners present were Mr. Frank Allen (manager of Messrs. Moss and Thornton, Empires, Ltd., London, and brother of the deceased), Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Milburn, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rudland, Mr. Richard Thornton and Mr. Conroy (Newcastle), Mr. Thompson (manager of the Empire, South Shields), Mr. G. Tawse, Mr. J. Hemingway (manager of Theatre Royal), Mr. Douglas Ettrick (assistant manager), Messrs. Thomas Stubbs, Joseph Wright, W. Leadbitter, E. Laidlaw, G. Gay, G. Smith, J. Clark, E. Bennett, R. Laidlaw, E. Ablett, J. C. Frame, and R. Barkes. Mr. Charles E. Machin, managing director of the Avenue Theatre, was unavoidably absent. Wreaths were sent by Mr. Chas. E. Machin, the staff of the Avenue and Theatre Royal, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Milburn, Miss Maud Allen, Mrs. J. Lang (London), Mrs. Milburn (sister), Mr. Frank Allen (brother), and Mr. G. Tawse.

Mr. Bransby Williams, who is playing a principal comedy part in the pantomime at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, is handed nightly a huge stalk of bananas. This is the gift of Sir Alfred Jones, the great importer of the fruit, who was present on the night when Mr. Williams gagged about the banana. The young actor, who is re-engaged by Mr. F. W. Wyndham for pantomime, received a guinea from Mr. J. L. Toole for the Liverpool Theatrical Gala.

The theatrical sports promoted by Mr. Tom E. Murray at Edinburgh last week realised no less than £266, which was equally divided between five hospitals. Though all the artists in the different theatres gave their services, both theatrical and music hall charities were entirely ignored. This should not be. Mr. Murray should have stipulated at least for some recognition both of the Actors' and Music Hall Benevolent Funds.

During the first-house performance at the Hippodrome, Bury, Lancashire, on Monday night, an accident happened to one of the performers, named William Ara, a German, while taking part in the "Indian Pastimes" act so cleverly presented by the combination known as Ara, Zebra, and Vora. He climbed to the top of a tent, and another performer got across him, when they overbalanced, and he alighted on the back of his head, being rendered unconscious. He was taken to the infirmary in the horse ambulance, but on arrival he recovered consciousness, stood up, and said he was all right. He was not detained.

Mr. Fred Ramsdale, at the matinée on Tuesday at the Regent Theatre, Salford, had an extra turn with his new sketch The Squire's Daughter, which evoked a most enthusiastic welcome from the large house. The sketch is something after the style of The Lady Slavey, much abridged. The Squire's daughter, who is to marry Sir Lucas, a millionaire whom she has not seen, becomes a slavey. Sir Lucas, coming to see the lady, whom he does not know, persuades a burglar whom he has just caught to impersonate him, while he becomes the private secretary. Much fun is the result. The young couple fall in love, and everything ends satisfactorily.

Miss Millie Payne starts on the 5th prox. a tour until Christmas. She has secured two new comedy successes by Leighton and Everard, and will return to town at Christmas with all new songs.

Tmos. E. Finglis produced on Monday at the Regent, Salford, a new song entitled "Ma Little White Flower," written and composed by Percy Edgar. It proved an instantaneous success.

Mr. John Henry Cooke's benefit at the Royal Circus, Edinburgh, on the 16th inst., was a conspicuous success, hosts of the veteran manager's admirers crowding the house on the occasion. A pleasing feature of the programme was a pony show, in which there were a large number of entries, the display of so many beautiful animals making it difficult for the judges to award the prizes. The beneficiare, in one of those hearty, eloquent speeches for which he is famous, took the opportunity of returning his thanks to his patrons and the public for their kindness to him during the past season. He retired from the arena amidst deafening applause, again and again renewed.

Mr. Alfred Lester made such a big hit with his Hamlet skit last week at the Hipodrome, Southampton, that the management on Saturday last secured his services for a further stay of a week at the same hall.

Mr. Fred Curran has just entered into an agreement with Mr. Leo Fritz to act as his representative in the provinces, as Mr. Fritz is compelled to put in more of his time in town owing to the increase of his London business.

As a result of the deliberations of the conference of delegates from the principal societies of the music-hall profession, a Variety Artists' Federation has been formed. The delegates present at the last meeting of the conference, so it is reported by Mr. Harry Blake, each laid a certain sum on the table in the way of a subscription for membership. The Water Rats have given a donation amounting to three figures. The conference will continue to meet on Sundays.

Miss Vesta Victoria, who is paying her first visit to the United States, opened on Monday at Mr. Percy Williams's Colonial Theatre, New York, with terrific success. Miss Victoria's characters bear a cockney complexion certainly, but true comedy is cosmopolitan, and she possesses it.

Mr. Cecil Raleigh's sketch, The King's Minister, with John Lawson playing the Prime Minister, has, as we predicted, soon found its way to town. Mr. Lawson is producing it on Monday at the Empress, Brixton, were those managers who did not have the opportunity of witnessing it at Hounslow will be able to see it on a larger stage. The second scene in this intensely dramatic episode is perhaps the finest ever placed upon the music-hall stage, with its beautiful carving in white and gold. John Lawson has never been better suited with a part, and it must be confessed that he makes the most of his opportunities. Mrs. Lawson will repeat her admirable performance of the Prime Minister's daughter.

Mr. Walter George, who is one of the best men at the piano on the variety stage or concert platform, is producing two new songs, with the promising titles "The Chiffon Girl" and "The Bandstand Promenade," at the London Pavilion, on Monday evening. The composer, Mr. Herbert Oliver, was responsible for one of the chief successes of The Talk of the Town, the rattling song that was called "If I were Vanderbilt," and his latest melodies are equally "catchy." Mr. George, who is the manager of the Smart Set Entertainers, will be assisted at the London Pavilion by the ladies of that popular little company.

Mr. H. O. Clarey, whose lamented death on Monday is recorded in another column, had for the last six years mostly devoted his attention to the variety stage, whereon he appeared with Miss Kate Chard in the very successful farcical duologue known as The Covent Garden Ball. His latest engagement was at the Hippodrome, where he played the part of Professor Cranium in the original production of Mr. Arthur Shirley's go-as-you-please travestie, Among the Stars. Poor Clarey had to give up this engagement owing to illness, and knew when he left his comrades at the Hippodrome that he would never return. He succumbed to that distressing malady consumption of the throat. He was a genial, kind-hearted little chap, full of jocularity, and a universal favourite. He was buried at Kensal Green on Friday (yesterday).

The souvenir which Mr. Oswald Stoll will give away next week at the Coliseum to patrons taking tickets to the value of 3s. and upwards contains an account of an artist's dream after having visited the beautiful building in St. Martin's-lane. Each souvenir on the right-hand top corner is numbered, and each evening numbers are drawn and advertised in the theatrical column of the Daily Telegraph, which entitles persons holding such numbers to valuable prizes. Besides these daily gifts, special prizes will be given, of which the value will be of not less than £2. These prizes will be advertised from time to time, under the Coliseum advertisement, so that although the holder of a souvenir given, say, to-night may not find that his souvenir bears a lucky number, he yet has an inducement to retain the same, in the hope of winning one of these special prizes.

In order to fight the music pirates, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter have decided to reduce the wholesale price of the sixpenny "pops," and these can now be secured for 2¾d. a copy. Mr. David Day, in the course of an interview in a daily contemporary, said:—"Since the law will not protect us, we have to meet the pirates on their own ground and beat them. We sell to the trade at 16s. 100 copies, 15s. if 1,000 are ordered. That works out at less than 2d. a copy, so that the retailer can sell at 2¾d., or even 2½d. The music is issued at the nominal price of 6d., and the retailers can charge what they like up to 6d. Some of them ask 4d., some 3d., others even less. The composer gets 10 per cent. on the published price—the sixpence—which means nearly ¾d. per copy sold, whether offered to the public at 4d., 3d., or less. We pay composers the same rate per cent. on the old-style copies retailed at 1s. 4d."

Mr. Fred Day, who, as is well known, is managing Messrs. Francis and Day's New York establishment, secured on the 5th inst. for the firm a number of lyrics by Wallace Irwin, a writer whose verses have been for several years a prominent feature of the leading American weeklies and monthlies. They have been set to music by Henry Stanley Haskins, a composer of light melodies of more than average merit, and will be published both in America and England. A leading New York paper, in commenting on the matter, says: "It has remained for a firm of enterprising Englishmen to realise that in Wallace Irwin there is a possible Gilbert, and that this young man, whose rhymes would suggest that he is the master of any American or English writer of light lyrics, may be of invaluable aid in the building of future comic operas. . . . All which goes to show that there may be something new under the sun after all, and that American managers may possibly have a big start in the great international sleeping match, which has entries from most of the leading theatre concerns of Broadway."

Mr. James Weaver, a gentleman who has for many years occupied a prominent position as a musician in London, having been during his long career a conductor of no less than fifteen of the best theatre orchestras, is afflicted with failing sight, and unable to follow his profession. In these painful circumstances his many friends (Masonic and otherwise) have determined on getting up a benefit for him. This will take place at the Metropolitan on Thursday afternoon next, when Messrs. Arthur Roberts, Hayden Coffin, Little Tich, Mike Whallen, Albert Serpentello, Le Fre, Charles Coborn, Arthur Helmore (the original Private Secretary), Datas, Queen, and Le Brun; and Misses Amy Clevere, Madge McIntosh, Beatrice Fitzgerald, and a number of other entertainers will appear. Tickets for the matinée may be obtained of Mr. James W. Mathews, at the Duke of York's Theatre.

Miss Rose Hamilton, who is making her first appearance at the Duchess, Balham, this week, has made a big success with a new song by Lumbe and Mellor entitled "I'm curious to know."

A meeting of the London branch of the International Artists' League took place on Sunday at the Hôtel Provence, Leicester-square, at six p.m. There were twenty-five members present, the attendance including the President and the Hon. Sec. There were also two guests. A long and interesting discussion ensued with reference to the activity of the Legal Protection Society in England. An unofficial report of the conference of the four representative music-hall societies held at the offices of the M.H.A.R.A. during the last few weeks was furnished, and a long and animated debate followed. The official report was reserved till later.

Mr. H. E. Barnes has terminated his connection with the Macnaghten Vaudeville Circuit. He leaves for a tour in the States on Wednesday next.

Mr. Frank Macnaghten, the proprietor and director-general of the Macnaghten Vaudeville Circuit, leaves to-day for an extended tour round the world. His travelling companion is Mr. Alleyne Reynolds, the chairman of the North of England Theatre Company, Ltd. They will reach Paris to-night, and proceed from thence on Monday to Genoa (viâ the new tunnel). At Genoa they will embark on the Prinz Eitel Frederick, the famous floating palace of the Nord Deutscher Lloyd Steamship Company. Among the places to be visited are Naples, Port Said, Aden, Colombo, Penang, Singapore, Hong Kong, Shanghai, Yokohama, Tokio, and Honolulu.

Mr. Macnaghten intends to make an expedition into the little known regions of Japan, and will make an especial study of the mysterious caves of the interior, and he may be depended upon to secure for his extensive Circuit some weird and interesting native novelties from the Land of the Crysanthemum. The travellers are to visit the Court of the Mikado. After leaving Japan Mr. Macnaghten will extend his tour through California, and will do a little big-game shooting in the Rockies. A tour through the States will follow, and about June the globe-trotters will depart from New York by the Baltic for home.

Miss Daisy James, after a most successful engagement in Vienna, opened on Monday at the Hippodrome, Eastbourne, where she was most enthusiastically received, having to sing no less than seven songs. Miss James returns to town on March 5.

Miss Ida Rene, comedienne, and Mr. Arthur Prince, ventriloquist, having returned to town after a successful tour in the States, will make their reappearance on Monday at the London Pavilion, where a hearty welcome awaits them. The programme will be further strengthened by the return of Mr. W. E. Bates, the renowned American cornet soloist.

The C. Douglas Stuart testimonial was presented at the Hercules Tavern, Kennington-road, on Thursday last (by kind permission of Mr. Douglas White). There were present about forty artists, provincial agents, and representatives of the railway companies, including Mr. Hoyle, S.W.R., Mr. Simpson, G.W.R., and Mr. Barton, G.C.R. The presentation took the form of a well-filled purse of gold, and a silver cigarette-case, inscribed as follows:—"Presented to C. Douglas Stuart, Secretary of the M.H.A.R.A., Feb. 15, '06." A gold-mounted umbrella was given to Mrs. C. D. Stuart. Mr. Tom H. Branson, of Hastings, and the presentation committee, wish to thank the numerous artists, provincial agents, and gentlemen representing the various railways for their kindness in helping to make this well-deserved testimonial such a huge success.

Mr. Frederick Baugh, representing Mr. Frank Macnaghten, hearing that the Queen's, Poplar, is about to re-open, wishes to draw the attention of artists and agents to the fact that the barring clause will be strictly enforced. He does this in order to avoid unnecessary complications. At the Britannia, Hoxton, on Saturday night, 7,746 persons paid for admission.

The wife of Mr. J. Pardoe, of the Marvellous Pardoes, presented her husband on Feb. 14, with a pretty valentine in the form of a fine son. Mr. Pardoe thanks friends for numerous wires and congratulations.

Mr. Frank Lorenzi, of the combination known as the Sisters Phillips and Brothers Lorenzi, was taken seriously ill whilst performing at the Theatre, Eccles, on Saturday night last. He was carried to his lodgings, where he died on Sunday evening, Feb. 18. The deceased, some years ago, was known in conjunction with his father and sisters as the Lorenzi troupe of acrobats. He leaves a wife, Miss Rose Phillips, two sons, and a daughter to mourn his loss. He was buried on Friday (yesterday) at the Cemetery, Bolton.

Mr. George Burton, the well-known Yorkshire caterer, has secured the exclusive services of the Hamiltons, the comical cards, two burlesquers who have just arrived from "down under." They are booked with the reliable for his entire gala season.

Mendel, the wonderful blind pianist, is this week starring at the Empire Theatre, Leeds, where he has introduced for the first time on the variety stage a portion of Beethoven's Concerto No. 2, Op. 19, in the Rondo movement of which he is accompanied by the orchestra with great success. He has also another piece by a classical composer, which he will shortly introduce with orchestral accompaniment. That such performances of the great composers should be appreciated by music-hall audiences of the present day snows the improved taste of the public.

Mr. Charles Bertram will be installed Worshipful Master of the Lyric Lodge of Masons (3,016) this (Saturday) evening at the Imperial Restaurant. The Lyric is now two years old, and its present Master is Mr. J. Harrison, Past Grand Steward.

Mr. Chris Wordswork, who served for five years under Mr. Frank Macnaghten, in various places on that gentleman's vaudeville circuit, has resigned his position at the Surrey Theatre, to take up agency in conjunction with Mr. C. T. Smith, who is well known in the variety world.

Mr. Charles Windermere will produce a new comedy sketch, written by himself, and entitled Poor Pa! at the Standard on Saturday, March 3.

"Her Last Chance," a new society playlet partially founded by M. A. Curtois on Lord Tennyson's celebrated poem, "Lady Clare," was produced at the Canterbury on Monday by "The Players." The reception accorded it by a large audience was most appreciative, rounds of applause marking every situation, whilst at the conclusion "The Players" were twice called before the curtain. The plot proved most interesting. A Mrs. Warrener, who has a passion for gambling, has lost large sums to an unprincipled schemer, Prince Sergius, who seeks to mend his own fortune by an alliance with Mrs. Warrener's daughter Ella, who has a fortune in her own right. The mother, having staked everything, even to her jewels, is induced as a last resource to stake her daughter's hand against all her previous losses. Ella, however, has given her affections to Jack Vivian, her cousin, but, to save her mother from ruin, she consents to marry the prince. At the last moment, however, the mother's better feelings prevail, and she makes a disclosure which precludes her daughter from inheriting the fortune, and baffles the Prince. The curtain descends on a most touching finale, in which Jack agrees to protect both women.

Miss Violet Ellicott as Mrs. Warrener and Mr. George Unwin as Prince Sergius were most convincing and dramatic in their delineations of these two characters, and Miss Rose Temple (who appeared by kind permission of Mr. James Welch) as Ella and Mr. Fred Conyers as Jack Vivian were bright and entertaining in the lighter scenes, the lady rising fully to the dramatic opportunites provided for her in the episode of self-sacrifice. The playlet was magnificently dressed, the frocks being very effective.

By the courtesy of Mrs. Thos. Barrasford, who has kindly given the use of the Lyceum Theatre for the afternoon of March 14 next, Mr. Thomas Barrasford will give an extra turn matinée for those artists who are new to London. Communications with reference to applications to appear should be addressed to Richard Cass, 30, Maiden-lane, Strand.

Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co., the premier cinematographers, did wonders on Monday last. Their film of the opening of Parliament was exhibited on that evening at the Empire, Leicester-square, the Lyceum, the Holborn Empire, the Bedford, Camden Town, the Royal Albert, Canning Town, and at least four other suburban halls. Their film of King Christian's funeral was also exhibited at the Empire on Monday, and at Bradford.

Elgo films are not barred; that is why they fill the bill at the Palace, the Empire, the Coliseum, the Hippodrome, the Lyceum, Holborn Empire, and Middlesex. This is in the West End only. It is the same story in the suburbs and the provinces.

The search for unknown talent by the management of the Lyceum has developed in a somewhat curious groove. Mrs. Barrasford has often been attracted by the clever dancing of children in the London streets. She has therefore arranged a competition, to commence from Monday next, for the street dancers of London, and this will be divided in two sections—first for the children, and second for adults. The prizes offered are £3, £2, £1, for children; and £5, £3, £2, for adults.

Mr. C. St. John Denton is appearing at the Tivoli on Monday in a new turn, entitled "The Eight Rainbow Girls," supporting Miss Ethel Negretti, who has recently made a big success in pantomime at the Crown Theatre, Peckham.

The eighteenth annual theatrical gala was held in Liverpool on Tuesday, the weather being especially fine. Since this movement, which has for its object the benefiting of charitable and theatrical institutions, was inaugurated, over £10,000 has been realised, £600 alone being given last year. Thousands of people lined the streets on Tuesday, when the finest show yet seen marched to Goodison football ground. Scores of pantomime and variety artists took part in the proceedings, which were of the liveliest character. About 6000 spectators assembled at the grounds, and money was given very freely. Many of the tableaux were exceedingly pretty. The Royal Court Theatre artists arranged an effective picture of "The Doctor," and the Shakespeare Theatre people came out with one entitled "My Irish Molly." Several bands, including the famous one belonging to the Liverpool Police, were present, and played music; while the theatrical artists busied themselves in collecting money by numerous methods. A football team belonging to the Shakespeare, and another from the Royal Court Theatres, had a match for the Egerton Cup, resulting in the latter, who are the holders, retaining it. The tableaux, belonging to the Olympia, which was a device entitled "Butterfly," won the first prize; the Shakespeare carried off the second; and the Empire secured the third. A deal of fun was caused by a band of musicians in grotesque costumes, which had come all the way from Keighley, under arrangement with Mr. Lingford Carson, of the Queen's Theatre there, and the Queen's, Liverpool.

There are not many of the founders of the Liverpool Theatrical Gala, held on Tuesday last, remaining, among those with us being Mr. Tom Bush, proprietor of the well-known theatrical resort, the "Bee" Hotel; Mr. John Gaffney, manager of the Shakespeare Theatre, and Mr. Alf. Hemming, all of the first year, and Mr. Lewis Peake, the next earliest supporter. The late Mr. Albert Smith, the well-known commission agent, was the actual founder of the Gala, and in its first year the sum of £200 was raised on the ground now owned by the Liverpool Football Club, the money, without any deduction for expenses, being handed to the Stanley Hospital. Mr. Smith received a life-governorship of that institution for his efforts. Since that period over £10,000 has been raised, and last year alone £600 was divided among the following:—Stanley Hospital, Consumption Hospital, Actors' Benevolent Fund, Music Hall Artists' Fund, Actors' Orphanage, Musicians' Union, Liverpool Police Orphanage, Woolton Convalescent Home, training-ship Indefatigable, Samaritan Hospital for Women, Hospital for Women, Shaw-street, Liverpool, Southern Hospital, Birkenhead Borough Hospital, and the Liverpool Food and Betterment Association.

Birmingham, on Wednesday morning, the 14th inst., was the locale of as quaint a function as was ever witnessed in its midst—Ye Old English Theatrical Supper and Carousal, to wit, holden in ye vaults below Temple-street. Ancient costumes were de rigueur, and "vagabonds, roysterers, malaperts, and base pickthanks" were invited to "viands and stoups of liquor," accompanied by "harmony, jests, and merry quips and cranks." As this was for "ye enjoyment of all able-bodied yeomen," "shrews," it was notified, would not be entertained. Squires Lester Collingwood, A. W. Matcham, George Lashwood, Mark Sheridan, Albert Bushell, and Masters Harry Tate and Harrison Brockbank (ye founder of ye feast) were amongst a motley and picturesque crew, under the presidency and vice-presidency of Squires Harry Lewis and J. F. Graham respectively. The invitation, "Oyez! Oyez!!" with its quaint service of song, ushered in the "vittles," "soup o' sorts," a sheep roasted whole, a baron of beef, beef steak pie, and Christmas pudding with brandy sauce galore, washed down with nut-brown ale and punch. The organist and choir were in constant requisition, and nothing could have exceeded the quaintness of the scene.

The stocks were also in requisition, albeit Falstaff stoutly resisted his mentors, and absolutely refused to be placed in the stocks, when a properly constituted judge tried the recalcitrant, and, despite Advocate Edward Foster's forensic skill, he was ignominiously confined therein. The toast of the King was honoured with extraordinary fervour by the roysterers, and the whole thing was marked with music, mirth, and good temper. The white-washed walls of the vaults displayed the heraldic devices of the period suggested, the rapier, the bludgeon, and the blunderbuss, with ancient axes and spears, being conspicuous. On the side of the chairman stood a tripod and kettle, and at the top table a settle—used ordinarily for accommodating casks of liquor—was used for seating. All drank from the old-fashioned brown earthenware mug and the antiquated two-handled loving cup, and the old-time churchwarden clay pipe was general.

The company "sat long and late at the carousing board," making merry with song and jest, and it boots it not to state what time the party rose. The costumes were generally effective, Sir Charles Surface, Tony Lumpkin, Mother Hubbard, Captain Absolute, and old English gentlemen and a certain alchemist, together with monks and gallant musketeers, lending verisimilitude to the scene. Messrs. Harrison Brockbank (who will be ever remembered for his success in evolving and producing the notion), Harry Tate (who assisted him splendidly), A. W. Matcham, Lester Collingwood, Albert Bushell, Edward Foster, P. Elbourne, J. H. Whittaker, W. Barlow, Harry Calver, "Teddy" Ferris, Bert Wilson, J. Hubbard, Dr. Trout, Councillor Freeman, J. F. Graham, McEwen, George Lashwood, George Mozart, J. H. Cruise, Captain Wells, Philip Rodway, Harry Brayne, and many others, numbering upwards of a hundred, were prominent at the feast.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE ALHAMBRA.

The special feature of the Alhambra programme is, of course, ballet; but there are excellent variety items interspersed throughout the excellent entertainment presented at the older house in Leicester-square, under the direction of Mr. George Scott. Early in the evening come the Five Whiteleys, who dub their interlude an acrobatic potpourri. There is, first of all, some clever shoulder-balancing and somersaulting, and the droll of the troupe shows himself to be very dexterous with his feet by rapidly turning with them a long cylinder. This he does while lying prone on a high pedestal. The lady of the combination is a wonderful wire performer, and accomplishes some remarkable leaps over chairs on the thin filament of steel. She is also an intrepid acrobat, possessed of lissomeness and uncommon strength. Indeed, to call (Miss) Whiteley one of the "weaker sex" would be a misnomer, and she well deserves the special call that is given her at the conclusion of her exertions. A later addition to the fine bill is Sam Elton, "the man who made the Shah laugh," who is an old favourite in Leicester-square. Mr. Elton is really a fine acrobat, but he disguises the fact in a performance that is at once droll and ingenious. He pretends to be an inebriated reveller in a kitchen, with an insane desire to carry a very large number of plates, and a craving for dainty tarts, which he swallows wholesale. To describe exactly what Mr. Elton does would be an impossibility, but the reader may be assured that he keeps his audience laughing all the time. There is something irresistibly humorous in his antics, and how he escapes being seriously hurt is his own secret, for at the finish of his performance he allows the kitchen dresser and a number of plates to fall upon him. Furniture and china are smashed to melodramatic purpose in Mr. John Lawson's sketch Humanity. Mr. Elton has no tragic intent, and wholesale destruction aids his humorous purpose as an entertainer.

Miss Alice Dianda's zoological revue includes a number of monkeys, dogs, and cockatoos. The simians are quite accomplished gymnasts. One of them is a barrel jumper, another a globe-runner, and "foots" a large ball up and down an inclined plane. A third puts a small toy terrier through a clever performance. A capital feature of the turn is the performance on a roundabout by a number of monkeys. Miss Dianda has a special call every evening at the conclusion of a most interesting show. Miss Lalla Selbini, who, in spite of her Italian name, is quite English you know, performs a number of clever tricks on a cycle in a most elegant costume, which towards the end of her turn she entirely discards. The swimming dress in which she then appears discloses much of a very charming figure, and her final tricks display much cleverness. She is assisted by a smart youth of a chocolate tint, who will one day, no doubt, be a star humorist, for he already has excellent ideas of the true consituents of fun-making.

The Urbanora pictures are, as usual, splendid examples of what may be called the "cinematographic" art. Mr. Urban not only brings the world before us; as a matter of fact, he brings several worlds before us. The world of invention, the world of imagination, and the world of nature are at least three illustrated in his latest series of films. The launch of the new type cruiser, Natal, from Messrs. Vickers, Sons, and Maxim's shipyard at Barrow-in-Furness is a remarkably impressive function, and even more magnificently imposing is the launch of the Dreadnought by His Majesty the King at Portsmouth on Feb. 10. The steel leviathan glides smoothly down the "ways" into the water, and we gaze in wonder at the monster so cleverly designed for destructive warfare, and think of its possible destiny. The realm of natural wonders shown by Mr. Charles Urban reveals the story of the moth and the butterfly. The lepidoptera are shown in various stages, the illustrations including pictures of the great oak beauty emerging from the pupa, the poplar hawk caterpillar, the gipsy moth caterpillars, the August thorn caterpillars, the privet hawk caterpillar, the privet caterpillar feeding, the fagi caterpillar feeding, the fagi caterpillars fighting, and the red admiral butterfly emerging. All of them are most curious and interesting, and have an educational value.

Urbani and Son submit a turn distinguished by marvellous gymnastic grace and wonderful muscular strength. Both father and boy seem to be like the gentleman spoken of by Mrs. Malaprop—"as headstrong as an allegory on the banks of the Nile," for they do some wonderful head-to-head balancing. The youngster is a splendidly-trained athlete, and displays a most powerful muscular development in a curtained alcove of the stage à la Sandow. Mr. Herbert Clifton, the newest mimic, is very clever in his illustrations of the methods of the favourites of comic opera or musical play, and is especially happy in his singing of Miss Isabel Jay's song from The Cingalee, "My heart's at your feet." He also realises the broad Glasgow accent of Mr. Harry Lauder in that famous song "Stop your tickling, Jock." The two ballets, My Lady Nicotiné and Parisiana, are as popular and as attractive as ever.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Sensational sketches can always rely upon a good hearing at Canning Town, provided their interest is sustained throughout. The name of Mr. Fred G. Brooke is a name to conjure with in this part of the world, for here he is not only known as an acceptable actor, but also a producer of many popular playlets. This week he has treated Royal Albert audiences to his sketch A Lost Woman, written by himself and Miss Dora Deane. The plot has been dealt with before in this paper, and recapitulation is therefore unnecessary. The different scenes which act as a setting to the sketch are quite admirable of their kind. Mr. Fred G. Brooke distinguishes himself in the rôle of a detective, who assumes various disguises, and Miss Dora Deane pathetically portrays the character of an injured woman. The other parts are in capable hands.

There were a couple of extra turns on the night of our visit to Canning Town. Mr. David Buckingham was one, and he had a most pleasing item in his song and patter about two golden sovereigns. His "Racing" ditty went well, too. As he appears to be yet in the early twenties, and posesses distinct abilities as a comedian, one may venture to predict a fair success for him in the future. The other extra turn was Miss Susie Marney, whose Irish descriptive vocalism and scenes formed a delightful feature of the programme.

An agreeable portion of the evening's entertainment is furnished by the Sisters Bartholomew. They have three distinct scenes. One of the young ladies appears in a smart military uniform, and for the time being plays the part of an ardent lover, the sweetheart being her stage partner. Vivacious, indeed, are their actions during the singing of the song, "The pride of the regiment," the lines being rendered with a smartness and tunefulness that at once bring them into favour with the audience. Their other ditties, "The girl that he left behind" and "The sweetest girl that I know," are also given in capital style. Mr. Frank Zara indulges in short patter tales anent the mistakes of one Casey, an Irishman, and Mr. Zara's comical mannerisms and mode of speech create intense merriment in the house. Miss Katie Eplett dances daintily and sings in nice fashion; and Mr. Billy Binks, the coloured comedian, executes in his admirable way a sand and buck dance. The grotesque comedy act of Sandes and Vincent is fruitful in the direction of diverting sayings and doings, and the two artists, who work hard, make the act a very acceptable one. For rapid repartee, witticisms, amusing facial expressions, and movements, we can commend the Two Dewars, who can certainly claim to be up-to-date comedians, patterers, and dancers.

The Kendals (Kitty and Leonard) are uproariously funny with their musical comedy sketch, entitled Lord Gorton. A young lady and her mother are eagerly awaiting the expected visit of the gentleman whose name is given in the title. Lord Gorton is immensely wealthy, and the girl naturally enough is anxious to complete matrimonial negotiations at the earliest possible moment. A knock comes to the door, and in there enters a most cadaverous-looking individual, absurdly dressed, and made up to represent an "ole clo man." Having heard that Lord Gorton is an eccentric person, the girl and her mother conclude that this must be him, and they at once do everything to make him feel thoroughly at home. The antics of the collector of "cast-offs" are as ridiculous as they could well be, and they are irresistibly diverting. A number of daring performances on the trapeze form the work of the Alexandre Trio. To watch one of these athletes letting go his grip of the hands of one of his partners, then executing a somersault in mid-air, and finally catching hold, with wonderful precision and quickness, of the performer at the opposite side of the stage, is sufficient to cause one to hold one's breath. Kirk and Randall have an exceedingly amusing trifle in the duologue in which they submit a burlesque of a tragedy situation. The quaint costume and make-up of the alleged villain are in themselves something to laugh at, and the climax, which is the saving of the life of the heroine, in a scene charged with farcicalities, simply brings down the house. Miss Ruby Winstone is an engaging comedienne, who charms with her singing, and catches one's fancy with her dancing; and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope presents a series of interesting pictures of the animated picture order.

THE BEDFORD.

MR. B. P. LUCAS is always seeking for novelty wherewith to enrich his programmes, and he has found in Casey's Court a hilarious interlude that appeals distinctly to the sense of fun possessed by the Camden Town folk. The humour of the whole thing lies in the realisation of an up-to-date variety show according to the ideas of a street urchin. Mrs. Casey is a theatrical wardrobe dealer, and occupies the principal dwelling in the court—a typical London one—which forms a background for the show. A band of "hungryuns" with ten instruments form up in the centre of the stage, which is supposed to be divided into stalls, boxes, pit, and gallery—it is of course mostly make-believe—and the "turns" are contributed by youthful singers and dancers. Of course there is a coon contribution with a buck dance, which is full of spirit; and an amusing item is the skit on a ventriloquial performance. A concerted piece that affords much amusement is "Mary had a little lamb," and a much-appreciated number is the "Sweep Trio." Some amusing comic business is worked up between one of the court urchins and a young gentleman wearing superior raiment who goes to college, and Mrs. Casey, represented by a clever Irish comedian, whose name does not appear on the bill, is full of fun. Casey's Court should add to the brightness and brilliancy of any variety bill, and we anticipate for the sketch, which is acted by "the thirty Midget Mimes," a great success.

A fine melodramatic sketch comes at the end of the Bedford programme. It is entitled Dick Dare, M.P., and is played by Mr. Fred Maxwell and company. The hero, who gives his name to the playlet, has evidently been returned to the House in the Labour interest, and his philanthropic sentiments do him credit. It is his misfortune to have a foreign adventurer for his private secretary, named Jules Valérie, who is really Rafaël Valois, an escaped forçat who is wanted by the French police. Valérie or Valois is plotting to get hold of the plans of some fortifications in Dare's possession—we may suppose that Dick is either Secretary for War or Secretary to the Admiralty—and in his (Valérie's) scheme he has the aid of his mistress, Lucy, the twin-sister of Alice, who has plighted her troth to the earnest young politician. Lucy is so exactly like Alice that the villainess is easily mistaken for the virtuous girl, and when the former appears to Dick Dare, he is taken off his guard and chloroformed, as he thinks by the girl of his heart, who in a letter to him breaking off the engagement tells him that she no longer can deceive him. Lucy eventually repents; Alice is reinstated in the affections of Dick; and Jules Valérie is arrested through the action of an itinerant organ-grinder, who has been befriended by Dick. Mr. Fred Maxwell gives excellent emphasis to the enunciation of Dare's Liberal political sentiments; but when he says that the working classes invest their hard-earned savings in bogus companies he is taking too much advantage of melodramatic licence. The part of Dick is, however, thoroughly sympathetic, and Mr. Maxwell acts with fine fervour and elocutionary grace. Miss Lois Du Cane, who plays the dual part of Lucy and Alice, is happily able to differentiate by facial expression and voice between the two characters, and she displays great earnestness and considerable ability. As Alice Miss Du Cane looks extremely attractive in a pretty white dress.

The Two Bees are announced to give their popular mixture of "Quipps and Cramps." We protest that there is nothing "cramped" about their picture postcard interlude, which contains a really comical portrait of the King, who looks to be a Jewish gentleman of very benevolent aspect. Miss Amy Anderson has some clever people in her company of "aristocrats" in the coster scena; but some humorous dialogue is wanted to accompany the droll business. All the company work very hard to secure success, especially the acrobatic newspaper seller, who is a very fine tumbler. Salvino, a youngster, is quite a virtuoso on the saxophone, on which he gives an excellent rendering of the famous Irish ballad "Eileen Alannah." Mr. Billy Farrell is a clever coon with a fund of entertaining anecdote. He knows how to dance, too, does Billy, as he takes care to show us when he has sung an agreeable ditty in praise of "Stella"—no relation of the favourite companion of Dean Swift, bien entendu. The fire dance of La Roland, an opulent serpentine dancer, is cleverly realised, and she is also successful in her realisation of the Spirit of the Storm. On the night of our visit her act seemed to need more rehearsal to produce properly the effects desired. Others in the bill are Harry Rogerson, who may be counselled to immediately suppress his three-legged dance; Marie Reeve, a capital dancer; and the Sisters Belmont, successful in a clog dance. Mr. A. F. Lovesy was, we regret to say, somewhat indisposed on the night of our call.

SADLER'S WELLS.

Raymond's Bio-tableaux have got a "full show" this week at Sadler's Wells, and deservedly so. No less than four big sets of pictures on a programme of two-houses-a-night is something to boast of, especially when each of the series was of such a character as to retain the attention of the audience. Starting with an amusing photographic description of "Father's Holiday," we are treated to a magnificent film illustrating a performance on the stage by bears. Next, the adventures of an electioneering canvasser engage our observation; and, finally, we are told a highly-diverting story of a cycle run, in which a whole family take part, and which is, perhaps, the most comical of the lot. Turning from cinématograph pictures, we come to living pictures, as arranged by Mr. George Leyton in his military scena, Boys of the Chelsea School. In this scena, twenty-four smart-looking lads go through various exercises in a manner which speaks of excellent discipline and careful training. In their work the boys are assisted by a Balaclava veteran, Corporal Abbott, late of the 5th Dragoon Guards, aged seventy-six. This little military exhibition is a most attractive one. Miss Dora Martini is seen and admired in a neat display of gymnastics, her different feats being gracefully executed. Mr. Harry Maxim has a lot of comical things to say in his turn, and in his song about "They're just beginning to sprout" he shows us how eccentric he can be.

Mr. Arthur Elvey, the "up-to-date tipster," has a world of information to impart on the subject of racing He even goes so far as to inform the audience of the probable winners for the following day's principal "events," the "tips" being contained in a telegram addressed to Mr. Elvey at the theatre. He displays a great aptitude for applying the names of well-known horses to other uses. Mr. Elvey causes considerable merriment, and the act is certainly a novel one. A couple of clever entertainers come on in the persons of the Seddons, "the lady juggler and the lazy waiter." The lady affords evidence of undoubted ability in the juggling line, her tricks with balls, plates, and other articles being accomplished with rapidity and precision. Her gentleman partner is full of the spirit of absurdity, and his lively antics are extremely mirth-provoking.

Mr. Arthur Breton and his company appear in the sketch, A Trip to the Isle of Man. "Vivacity" is apparently the motto upon which this piece has been built up, and there is hardly a barren moment in the various scenes. Fun of the rollicking order prevails throughout. We have songs sung in the liveliest fashion, amusing situations, burlesque duologues, smart dances, and even acrobatics. Thus, there is Mr. James Mallam as the excitable lunatic, who frantically rushes about, brandishing forth a long butcher's knife; Mr. Arthur Gaston as the retired merchant, in anxious quest of husbands with well-filled pockets for his daughters; Mr. Arthur Breton as the exceedingly whimsical cheap tripper; and Miss Kitty Terris in the part of an absurd and somewhat ancient coquette. During the progress of the sketch several popular songs were rendered in delightful style, such, for instance, as "Hear the pipers calling," "I must sell out to-day" (sung by Mr. Arthur Gaston), and "Home to Jacksonville." The four scenes are adequately and beautifully mounted. Praise can be bestowed upon the Sisters MacGovern for their bathing-costume dance; and Lorne and Rene, for their musical duologue, "Capital and Labour." Coming once more to the single turns, Miss Edie Anderson enchants the audience with her sweet vocalism and dainty dancing; and the Lannons win golden opinions with their duets and pedestal dancing.

"IN THE CUPBOARD,"

A New Farcical Sketch, by Fritz Zorn,
Produced at Collins's Music Hall,
Islington Green,
on Monday, Feb. 19.

Mr. Gulper ..... MR. FRANK LESTER
Mrs. Gulper ..... MISS INA ROZANT
Bill ..... MR. FRED DOBELL
Gerald Tracey ..... Mr. Pat Malone
Rose ..... MISS MARY THORNE

Mr. Fritz Zorn, who is the author of the farcical comedy entitled The Designers, successfully produced at the Brixton Theatre last spring, has hit upon a happy idea in his new farcical sketch, the first performance of which was given at Collins's Music Hall on Monday evening, and the little piece was played to an accompaniment of merry laughter which augured well for a successful career. The scene represents the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gulper in Denmark Buildings, Walworth. When the curtain rises we discover Mrs. Gulper and her brother Bill, who has been seeking his sister's husband in vain. When that individual does appear, it is apparent that he has been imbibing freely, and Mrs. Gulper quickly sends him off to bed. Bill also retires. Next arrive Gerald Tracey and his sweetheart Rose. On their way to a fancy dress ball an accident has occurred to the vehicle they were travelling in, and Rose has sought the assistance of her old nurse, Mrs. Gulper. Her father is opposed to the match, and her object is to induce him to give his consent. Gerald is attired in the conventional Mephistophelian costume for the fancy dress ball, and as a temporary place of concealment, where also he can change into ordinary dress, he enters a large cupboard, the doors of which are then fastened. In this cupboard is also kept a bottle of whisky, which the drunken Gulper has already discovered and helped himself to in the absence of his wife. When the coast is again clear he re-enters only partly dressed. There is something wrong with the gas, and the room is in partial darkness. When the half-drunken man opens the cupboard he is horrified to discover a figure all in red, and presenting the appearance of the "gentleman from below." His terrified shouts bring his brother-in-law, Bill, upon the scene. When the latter hears the explanation he comes to the conclusion that Gulper is suffering from an attack of what he calls the "jim-jams," and, exploring the cupboard himself, also gets a terrible fright. When Mrs. Gulper returns, their story that there is a "red devil" concealed in the cupboard leads her to suppose that they have both been drinking. She throws open the cupboard doors, and Gerald Tracey is discovered inside, but dressed in his ordinary clothes, to the bewilderment of Gulper and Bill. Then Rose returns to announce that her father has at last given his consent to her marriage with Gerald.

Mr. Frank Lester, a comedian well known in musical comedy, gives a most amusing embodiment of Mr. Gulper, and Mr. Fred Dobell supplies a robust and natural rendering of Bill. Mr. Pat Malone plays well as Gerald Tracey, and Miss Mary Thorne, who has recently concluded a pantomime engagement as principal boy, was bright and pleasing as Rose, and Miss Ina Rozant was good as Mrs. Gulper.

THE DUCHESS.

Abnormal attractions are offered by Mr. Walter Gibbons at Balham this week, the most conspicuous figure in the programme being Princess Lucy, the Russian Fat Girl, who is asserted to be the largest and heaviest maiden in the world. Her age is given on the programme as seventeen, but the fair Lucy admits to only sixteen. The Princess, who towers high above her mother, was up to the age of three years of the usual infantile proportions, but began then to develop until she has attained the weight of 25st. Her chest is 63in. round, her waist 49in., her calves 23½in., and the upper part of her arm 21in.; but her feet are little larger than those of an ordinary person, being 9½in. only in length. Despite her massive size, the Princess is light on her feet, and trips quite airily about the stage, being afterwards prevailed upon to sing a song, in a soft, but tuneful voice, in praise of England. It is an interesting exhibition, and received a most cordial welcome.

The familiar features of Mr. Phil Ray arouse a ripple of merriment, which soon swells into a wave of laughter during his comic observations about every conceivable topic. The audience are taken wholly into the scheme of laughter-producing, and form a fertile field for the comedian, who allows no rest to the risibilities during his stay. Mirth is also the constant accompaniment of the turn supplied by Burke and MacVoy in a scena entitled Fun in a Saloon. The depredations of a tramp who makes himself at home in an hotel bar are very funny, but the skill of the acrobatic feats performed by his partner, who does some marvellous somersaults and handsprings, is nevertheless conspicuous. Loud applause at the end makes an encore inevitable, and brings forth a double pirouette somersault, the performer claiming that he is the only man in the world to do it without the aid of a spring board.

The ventriloquial performance of Mr. Rex Fox would be sufficient of itself to secure the warmest approval, but when it is combined with daring feats on the slack wire the enthusiasm is necessarily unbounded. The conversation which the expert wire-walker carries on with the figure on his back is genuinely funny, but when he discards the encumbrance, Mr. Fox gives an astonishing display of his powers of equilibrium, among which his standing with one foot on the wire, and with the other balancing a lighted lamp while he plays a melody on the mandoline is the most astounding. Miss Rose Hamilton is fitted with a couple of songs which employ to admirable advantage her versatility and comedy talents. Attractively attired, she sings of the experiences of "Shopping," in which the methods of the American, the Scotch lassie, and the coster lady are imitated with great skill. Miss Hamilton's second number takes a topical turn, references in the form of artfully-designed questions being made to the recent General Election and its results. The fair politician is quite without bias, and refers favourably and unfavourably to members of both the Government and the Opposition alike, many extra verses having to be added in response to hearty recalls.

One of the most appreciated items of the bill is the film of "The Train Wreckers" on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope. It depicts a thrilling story of the attempt to wreck a train in the backwoods of America, and the prevention of the crime by a young lady, who is afterwards caught by the vengeful gang, and placed on the line. The train is seen dashing along at full speed, but just as it approaches the spot, a young driver steps out on to the front of the engine and catches up the insensible form of the girl. It is a subject admirably conceived and vividly displayed. Valvero sketches pictures in chalk of battleships, a large cruiser appearing under his hand with marvellous rapidity. The same lightning methods are employed in his production of the great battle in the Korean Straits, which is portrayed within an enormous frame, and embellished by flashlights, gun shots, and red fire, which give a realistic impression of a fight at sea. Selbo is a neat and comprehensive juggler, even divesting himself of collar, coat, and tie in order to vary the articles in use. He is a deft manipulator of Indian clubs, his prowess securing loud approval, and his subsequent juggling with earthenware plates is quite sensational. Mr. George Collins exerts his drollery in the character of a lady; a funny few minutes may be spent in the company of Allis and Casatti; and Major Moss and Son are also in the liberal and well-assorted bill. Mr. George L. Wilson is the able and energetic manager; Mr. J. H. Watling is the acting-manager; and Mr. Chas. Longmaid ably leads the band.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

To slightly parody the words put into the mouth of Cardinal Richelieu by the first Lord Lytton, "In the vocabulary of Mr. Arthur J. Barclay there is no such word as fail." The truth of the assertion is to be found in the crowded houses that assemble nightly to enjoy the very liberal programme with which he entices his patrons this week, the enthusiasm with which the various items are received, and the all-round air of happiness and contentment that spreads from audience to stage, and from stage to audience.

One of the most thoroughly artistic novelties to which frequenters of the Palace have been treated for a considerable time is that given by Mr. C. Emlyn-Jones and his Emerald Ladies' Quartette. The four ladies, attired in handsome costumes, representing England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, are joined by Mr. Emlyn Jones himself, in the rich "habit" of the courtly eighteenth-century period. These five artists, whose voices "blend" as successfully as the beverages associated with the names to two of these countries, sing charming songs representative of each nationality. For England, we have the good old "Lasses and Lads," Ireland furnishes the ever-popular "Killarney," Scotland is heard in the tuneful "Loch Lomond"; while Wales supplies, in her native tongue, "The Bells of Aberdovey." The harmony of every one of these is delightful, each member of the little company being possessed of an excellent voice, trained to perfection. Mr. Emlyn-Jones's own contribution is an amusing ditty about a certain charming, but faithless, young widow he met in the train, and the whole winds up with a stirring chorus to the air of the "Soldier's Chorus" in Faust. Miss Winnie Deacon sings two songs with agreeable effect. The Four Olympian Stars, about whose performance there is little that can be described as classical or suggestive of Olympus, sing a short song, and then naturally take to what may be termed their native element—dancing. Their terpsichorean achievements are of the most astonishing nature, their high-kicking, "splitting," somersaulting, and catherine-wheeling being bewildering in the rapidity and dexterity with which all are executed. Lieut. Travis, one of the best exponents of the ventriloquial art on the stage, puts many quaintly amusing sayings into the mouths of his two puppets, and the manner in which he changes one of these from a girl to a Frenchman, and then into an old Chelsea Pensioner, is very adroit. His imitation of the cracked voice and racking cough of the latter is admirable. Loud laughter, thoroughly deserved, greets Mr. Laurie Wylie and his "mimicking mannikin," the singer giving life-like imitations of George Robey, Harry Lauder, Eugene Stratton, and other stars of the variety stage. Augustin and Hartley, gentleman and lady, give a barrel act which is aptly described on the programme as "marvellous." This their performance certainly is, the manner in which the jump into and out of barrels on the stage, on chairs, on the tops of tables, wholesale and in small numbers, is very clever, and rouses the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Rossetti, a charming young lady, makes the sweet sound of music creep in our ears through the medium of the violin, the 'cello, and a tiny instrument she describes as "the smallest violin in the world." With all she proves herself a skilful and sympathetic artist. Mr. Gus Garrick is greatly popular in a number of well-known songs, and is received at every performance with a demonstration that is only reserved for genuine favourites.

From the dramatic point of view the pièce de résistance of the programme is the clever and exhilarating sketch, entitled The Britisher, presented by Mr. Leonard Mortimer and his company. This is a well-told and capitally-constructed little play, dealing with an incident in the recent insurrection among the Philippines, in which, of course, the pluck and bravery of a true-born Britisher carry all before them, and prove that without assistance from the old country the army of the United States runs some risk of going to pot. Mr. Leonard Mortimer as Pensive Pete, the heroic Britisher, acts with great and well-sustained vigour. An excellent contrast to his manliness is given by the rascality of Lieut. Royston Stratton, as played by Mr. Ernest Wingfield. Mr. Weldon Atherstone gives a very satisfactory picture of Colonel Charlestown; Seymour Milford, a special correspondent for a London paper, is amusingly played by Mr. J. E. Leighton, but his opportunities for fun-making are not over-abundant; Miss Ida Clifford looks pretty, and plays unobtrusively as Rennie Milford; and Miss Edith Lewis is a handsome and spirited Donna Inez Marcelino. The "set" is very well painted and built, and the men's uniforms are handsome, and, doubtless, correct. Mr. John Grant, of the Palace, again shows the advantages to be received from good stage-management.

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

The annexed Memorial, agreed upon at a conference of delegates representing 10,000 artists, has been sent to us for publication. It has been addressed by the various societies therein named to the leading music-hall proprietors. Sir Edward Moss, Mr. Frank Allen (both of Moss' Empires), and Mr. J. L. Graydon (of the Middlesex and a director of the Palace Theatre), have written to say that they will put the matter before their various boards, and Mr. Tom Barrasford (of the Barrasford circuit), Mr. Frank Macnaghten (of the Macnaghten circuit), Mr. W. B. Broadhead (of the Broadhead enterprises), and Mr. Fred Willmot (who is connected with the Lyric Theatre of Varieties, the Paddington Palace, the Park Palace, and the Haymarket, Liverpool), have already expressed their willingness to adopt the arrangement suggested.

MEMORIAL FROM CONFERENCE OF DELEGATES representing
The Music Hall Artists' Railway Association,
The International Artists' Lodge,
The Terriers Association, and
The Grand Order of Water Rats.

"SIR,—Your Memorialists in conference assembled, consisting of delegates from the various music-hall societies, and representing nearly 10,000 artists, desire respectfully to call your attention to the operation of the barring clause in music-hall contracts, which, in its recently extended form, is inflicting a great amount of hardship on performers.

"Notwithstanding the vast increase in the popularity of music-hall entertainments (due, in some measure, your Memorialists submit, to the work of the artists themselves), and the great addition to the number of variety theatres, the position of the artist has suffered great deterioration.

"Whereas, a few years ago, artists were called upon to give only six or seven performances per week, they are now required under the 'two houses per night' system to play twice that number (and in some cases, unfortunately, matinées in addition), but, except in a very few instances, they have had to give these twelve, thirteen, fourteen, or fifteen performances for the same salary they received for six or seven hitherto. To these altered conditions they have submitted in the interests of the proprietors; but now the provisions of the barring clause are being so rigorously enforced as to inflict a great additional hardship and heavy financial loss on artists who are out of work, by preventing them accepting contracts when engagements are offered.

"Your Memorialists do not deny that a limited barring clause may be necessary for the protection of proprietors, nor do they ask for anything unreasonable or unfair; but they maintain it is not equitable that an artist should be prevented from performing within many miles of a town for eighteen months or two years from the time of signing a contract, or until its fulfilment.

"Cases have been brought to the notice of your Memorialists where artists have been reduced to absolute want as a consequence of being prevented from accepting sorely-needed immediate dates because they already held a contract some ten, twelve, or eighteen months ahead in the particular town or its vicinity for which the immediate engagements were offered.

"Your Memorialists beg, therefore, that in all existing and future contracts you will be content with a barring clause of five miles and six months in the case of provincial halls, and of one mile and three months in the case of London and suburban halls.

"In conclusion, your Memorialists would respectfully point out that they only ask on behalf of their brother and sister artists to be allowed to pursue their calling untrammeled by undue interference with the rights of free labour; and they venture to assert that by granting their request, within the limits herein stated, you will, without injury to the enterprises you so ably control, do an act of justice to a body of men and women who have ever shown their willingness to meet your wishes, and so consolidate that cordial good feeling which has hitherto existed between proprietors and artists."

A HIPPODROME MYSTERY.

An interesting novelty was introduced into the Hippodrome programme on Monday evening in the form of a mysterious performance, which was strongly suggestive of the magic doings of Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant at St. George's Hall. The mystery was called "Menetekel," and the working of the new show was in the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Konorah. Suspended over the stage by cords was seen a large drawing-board, attached to which were sheets of white paper. Close by was a small table, on which were a number of black balls, about the size of those used in the game of tennis. The lady having picked up one of the balls with a pair of pincers, places it on the board, to which it adheres. She then commands the ball to write the word "Menetekel," which it proceeds to do, travelling slowly over the paper, and forming the word in a somewhat shaky hand-writing. The balls, it should be explained, have been prepared by being coated with some kind of glutinous ink. Mr. Konorah next invites any one amongst the audience to whisper to him a word or write it on a piece of paper; and on Monday evening the words Hamburg, Bristol, Rose, Faust, were faithfully reproduced to the amazement of the audience, who were permitted to examine the sheet of paper torn from the board. Finally, the word, "Good-bye," was written. It occasionally happened that one of the balls dropped off the board, and was at once replaced by another. The mystery left for the spectators to solve is, what is the controlling influence which propels the ball over the surface of the paper, and in such a manner as to form any word that may be selected. To Mr. and Mrs. Konorah belongs the credit of presenting a very puzzling problem for an audience to exercise their wits upon.

The amusing travesty, entitled Among the Stars is still in the programme, the leading parts being well played by Messrs. T. W. Volt, Hal Forde, Windham Guise, H. O. Clarey, Rhys Thomas, and Miss Minnie Hunt. King Encyclops and the members of his Court look on while various artists appear in the ring on the stage—a double performance that is somewhat embarrassing to the spectators. The Hardinis, in their musical act, afford evidence of their ability as violinists; and the Novellos do well in their entertainment, India in Europe. The trained elephants, ponies, and dogs perform very cleverly, and the members of the troupe distinguish themselves in a variety of acrobatic feats which evoke applause. Mr. Herbert Lloyd is an eccentric comedian who gives a very laughable performance; and he makes his exit in a small motor, labelled with the name of an asylum. It is appropriate that Vasco, known as "the mad musician," should make his appearance. He plays all kinds of musical instruments, big and little, deep-toned and the opposite, and displays such versatile ability that he is at the conclusion recalled several times. The contortionist business of Genaro and Theol is clever and graceful; and Les Ados, in Olympian games, add to the strength of the programme. Lavater Lee, the Hippodrome droll, is still a very popular personage, and his hat trick is an amusing "sell." Mention must also be made of Lux's performing white French poodles; the athletic feats of the Brothers Andreassen; Alexandra and Bertie, gymnasts; the Possiutis, acrobaic equestrians; the Imperial Troupe of Dancers; and the Human Bullet, whose remarkable aerial flight we recently noticed. Early in the evening appear Gallando, sculptor, and Anderson, clown, followed by the American Bioscope, with the latest pictures.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, Jan 9.—Mr. Alfred Dampier, who has long been in a precarious state of health, is ordered a sea voyage, so, with his wife (Miss Katharine Russell), his daughter Rose, and son Alfred, he will leave for England on the 21st. The theatrical managers and their companies will give Mr. Dampier a testimonial farewell matinée on the 19th, at Her Majesty's Theatre, granted for the occasion by Mr. J. C. Williamson.

"The Girl from Kay's" keeps the holiday-folk in fine humour. Miss Florence Young, Miss Rose Musgrove, Miss Margaret Thomas, and Mr. Haigh Jackson make a very good musical combination at Her Majesty's, and the fun is catered for by Messrs. George Lauri, Claude R. Bantock, and W. S. Percy. The dances are brilliant, and the chorus is up to Mr. Williamson's high standard.

Mr. W. Anderson's pantomime at the Royal is exceptionally good, Mr. Harry Quealy's Mrs. Sinbad being quite on the Dan Leno lines. Miss Marie Campbell is winsome; and Mr. Bert Bailey creates uproarious fun by his acting and topical songs. Miss Edith Maitland is the chief singer, her Zoe being a melodious performance. The youthful Powers Brothers do wire walking of a sensational character; the Bicknells excel as dancers; Lizette Parkes, grown into a handsome girl, sings and dances attractively; Miss Maud Cosham, who directs the ballet and dances a pas seul, is very popular, and the Maxixe dance creates a furore. Mr. Anderson proposes to produce comic opera when his pantomime ceases to draw.

Mr. Charles Holloway's dramatic season at the Criterion, under the direction of Mr. Edwin Geach, has proved extremely successful, full houses being attracted by Two Little Vagabonds, with Misses Beatrice Holloway, Alice Deorwyn, Hilda Fraser, Ethel Appleton, Messrs. Robert Inna, Godfrey Cass, J. P. O'Neill, and Jefferson Taite in the leading parts. The next production will be The Rogues of the Turf, in which Mr. Holloway will appear for the first time this season.

The Tivoli has a new star, Mr. Post Mason, who was engaged by Mr. Harry Rickards during his recent visit to London. The new singer is above the average, and his songs are all good. Mr. Alf. Lawton is back, and is as popular as before; whilst Miss Hilda Lane's return is welcomed by all lovers of vocal excellence. Boy Glen, Ryder Slone, Olive Lenton, A. G. Spry, Leeds and Leamar, Carleton and Sutton, and Little Baby Watson are also in the bill.

The Brough-Flemming Comedy Combination, now doing great business in New Zealand, will follow Mr. Charles Holloway at the Criterion early in February.

A stirring march song entitled "The Beat, Beat, Beat of the Drum," by Kenneth Lyle, has been acquired for publication by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. The firm's series of "Sixpenny Pops." has been yet further augmented, the latest additions comprising "How'd you like to spoon with me?" (now being featured at the Palace by Miss Millie Legarde), "When the boys go marching by," "My Latchkey," "Good-night, Number One," and Miss Vesta Victoria's "Waiting at the church."

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—Your correspondent in his report of Sheerness last week omitted to mention the comedy sketch, Freezing Hard.—Yours faithfully, Phil Reymond. Palace, Sheerness, Feb. 22.

An original sketch, entitled The New Actress, has been secured by Miss May Yohe from the author, Mr. Edwin Drew, and is in rehearsal for London production during March.

CHAT WITH "MY FANCY."

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Barefoot dancing seems to be the latest novelty on the variety stage. Rather, it is not exactly a novelty, because, for one thing, the charming lady who has bestowed upon herself the title of "My Fancy" engaged in this kind of business ten years ago in Johannesburg, and a few months later at Leeds. While at the City of Varieties in the last-mentioned town she dressed as Trilby, and her uncovered

> . . . feet beneath her petticoat
> Like little mice stole in and out,
> As if they feared the light;
> But O, she dances such a way!
> No sun upon an Easter day
> Is half so fine a sight!

"And you're not afraid to dance bare-footed upon sand?"

"People will not believe that it can be done," returned My Fancy, "and they say I must put something on my feet. Of course, I could not do more than one show a night of this kind, but it doesn't injure my feet at all. They are as hard as an alligator's skin. That is due to my having danced all my life. Even when I was a little girl in America I used to pirouette in the garden."

"I trust your accident will not incapacitate you much longer."

My Fancy had been limping slightly as she entered the delightful sitting-room of her cosy and artistically appointed home in Balham, and a recollection of a suddenly relinquished engagement was brought to one's mind.

"I am pretty well all right now," came the answer. "I cut my foot on Jan. 31 while performing at the Metropolitan, and had to seek medical attention. I have not been able to dance for a week and a half, but I shall return to my work in three or four days. Oh! you may like to know that I am going to produce a new dance shortly on tour. It will be in the nature of a long waltz step-dance, and while executing it I shall be tearing plain pieces of paper into different designs with my hands. That is doing two things at a time, if you like."

My Fancy has seen summer's sun and winter's snow in many different climes. She has experienced a heavy storm in a Michigan village, which blew her travelling waggon off its track, and caused it to become submerged. She has danced on gold quartz in Western Australia; she has sat under the shadows of the domes and minarets of Cairo and Alexandria; she has gazed in admiration at the scenic splendours of Ceylon and Colombo; she has marvelled at the sublime beauty of an Indian sunset, and has listened to the Muezzin calling the faithful to prayer from an Indian mosque; she has witnessed the South African sky become blackened by legions of locusts; and—she is now in the greatest city in the world, delighting audiences with her exquisite sand-dancing. And yet, after a multitude of doings in a multitude of places, the lady has years of youth still in front of her.

MY FANCY.

My Fancy was born in St. Louis, U.S.A., and commenced her stage career at the early age of eight, when she joined a travelling company, which had its fair share of the vicissitudes of theatrical life during a tour through America. My Fancy was then one of the Macumber Sisters—the other lady wasn't really a sister, but that didn't matter—their business being singing and sand dancing. And here My Fancy tells us that she never received a lesson in dancing, so that the daughter of Jupiter and Mnemosyne must have been the muse that presided over her birth. That the mythological genius known as Terpsichore has favoured My Fancy there seems little doubt—the clever artist's audiences have always borne willing testimony to her remarkable talents. Of course, she admits she has practised her art, and, for the matter of that, still practises it every day. In an American comic opera company she, while little more than a child, introduced some speciality dances in the different scenes. Very thoroughly did My Fancy experience what it means to "go through the mill." She has shared the joys and sorrows of the caravan-dweller, and if you are lucky enough to get her into a talkative mood you will hear many amusing yarns about the Romany of the New World. When she was with a travelling circus company it was her duty in the daytime, along with other members of the troupe, to take part in what was described as a "grand processional parade." And My Fancy laughs as she recalls that the imposing pageant, with a goodly space between each unit, stretched out to a distance of some twelve yards. At that period she learned to do everything, including bar-walking, trapeze acts and general acrobatics, and illusions after the style of the "sleeping beauty" order.

She came over to England twelve years ago, making her first appearance in London—and in this country for the matter of that—at the Pavilion, Piccadilly-circus, where she performed her sand and buck dances. She stayed for six weeks at the Pavilion, and was immediately engaged for a similar period at the Oxford. The late Mr. Charles Morton, who witnessed her turn at the latter house, gave her a month's contract for the Palace Theatre, but she proved such an attraction at the Shaftesbury-avenue hall that she remained there for sixteen weeks. Up to the time of appearing at the Oxford she was known as Mae Rose Baker, and it was on the programme at that establishment that she first assumed the nom de guerre of My Fancy. After London she went into the provinces and into Ireland, appearing later for a couple of months at the Folies-Bergère in Paris. This was followed by a short stay at Liverpool, at the old Alexandra Theatre (now known as the Empire), and then came a trip to New York for the opening of Hammerstein's Olympia. She returned to England for a few days in order to prepare for her voyage to South Africa, where, at the Johannesburg Empire and Royal Theatre, she delighted large audiences with her wonderful dancing. Back again to this country for a long provincial tour, then to Australia, under the management of Messrs. Garner and Harry Rickards, it will be seen that My Fancy was kept pretty well on the move.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to say my letter in your last issue has created great interest, and caused a deal of discussion amongst several prominent people in the profession.

I think the concluding line of my letter of last week may be misconstrued, as people often view things in an opposite light to what is meant. In consideration of many excellent performers who were in the business years before myself, and not wishing to displease anyone, I desire to explain that by my saying the "old stuff keep going round," I meant not "old names"—and many old performers are still drawing cards—but people trotting out the same business time after time.

In using this expression I was endeavouring to emphasise my contention (which is also Mrs. Barrasford's) as to giving to new turns, with original acts, a chance of appearing in London.

Often big trees from little acorns grow.—Yours faithfully, WILL DALTON (Dalton's Agency).

5, Matlock-avenue, West Didsbury, Manchester.

Sir,—Without doubt Mr. Will Dalton has hit the right nail on the head when he states that there is a lot of talent in the provinces which would be new to London, and a bigger draw than the all-the-year-round same artists that are continually in the halls of the metropolis, which must be stale to their patrons. I have tried many of Mr. Dalton's turns, and have found them excellent in every respect.—Yours faithfully,

ERNEST DOTTRIDGE.

Royal Varieties, Oldham, Feb. 19.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I can quite understand your correspondent, Mr. Will Dalton, expecting credit and honour where it is due to him; we all do, but very seldom get it. No doubt, had he been able, or taken the trouble, to keep the turns he "found" booked up, their names would not, and need not, appear under any other agency advertisements. It is only natural that artists, if one agent does not keep them booked up, should turn to others to find work, instead of hanging about doing nothing. Last summer, in Manchester, Mr. Dalton was recommended to me by fellow artists as a "decent and straight" agent. I wrote to Mr. Dalton, asking him to see my turn, but received no answer.

On asking one agent for a return date at a hall where he had booked me, and where I had gone exceedingly well, and where the local papers had remarked on my rendering of a certain song bringing down the house, he told me that the manager did not like my turn. Hence no return date. Who was being catered for—the management who did not like my turn, or the public who did? So far I have no return date for any hall I worked—successfully—last year. Why not?

If, in engaging and encouraging artists, managers and agents would be guided by the public's approval and appreciation of artists, instead of by their own fancy or prejudice (especially where women are concerned), there would be less talk of "latent talent" and "bad business." This applies to theatres as well as music halls.

In addition to Mrs. Barrasford and Mr. Sparrow, whom Mr. Dalton mentions in his letter, Mr. Henri Gros also will give new turns a chance. Through an introduction I procured an interview with Mr. Gros As a result, I appeared at the Chelsea Palace and Metropolitan the week before last (Feb. 5), and went splendidly at Chelsea, but not so well at the Metropolitan; but, then, even "stars" go worse at some halls than others. I asked nine agents to see my turn. Not one has done so. After expecting bookings galore, my date-book remains empty. On the strength of the paragraph in The Era, regarding Mrs. Barrasford, which Mr. Dalton quotes in his letter, I wrote to that lady, asking her to try and see, or send someone to see, my turn, and grant me an interview; but up to row my letter has been ignored. About eighteen months ago, after giving a trial show, I worked two Barrasford halls, went well with the public, but did not get the tour. I have now turned to Mrs. Barrasford, in the hope of getting work through a woman, where I failed to get it through a man.

I have, with others, almost given up hope for a woman who wants to earn her own living, and at the same time rise in the profession on her merits only, without influence of any sort.—Yours faithfully, KITTY MARION.

10, King-street, Covent Garden, W.C.,
Feb. 21

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I have read with interest Mr. Will Dalton's letter, and, with a rather lengthy experience, I cordially agree therewith. I think I could adduce hundreds of such cases as he refers to. It is, in my opinion, a matter for shareholders to inquire into and deal with. The question interests them far more than it does Mr. Will Dalton, or any other agent or agents; but it will be healthy for both agents and managers when a little daylight is given to the subject.

Now that the question has been opened out, I shall look for developments, which I feel sure will come.—Thanking you in anticipation, yours truly,

Oldham, Feb. 21, 1906. S. WALL.

Miss Daphne de Rohan, who proved such a great attraction in her latest clever musical creation, Le Rêve d'un Vieillard, throughout the whole of the past season at the Naval Exhibition, Earl's Court, is busy arranging a tour of the provinces in partnership with Mr. Fred Evered, whose talents as a comedian, humorist, and sketch artist are so well known and popular.

Mr. Lewin Sharp asked, at the meeting of the London County Council on Tuesday, whether the alteration in the licence now made by the Coliseum authorities meant that intoxicating liquors could be sold all through the premises, and whether the Lord Chamberlain was correct in licensing for stage plays a house of this description, which was supposed to cater for variety entertainments. Mr. Yates, chairman of the Theatres and Music Halls Committees, replied that the facts stated by Mr. Sharp were correct. Intoxicating drinks could be sold, but there must be no smoking. The legal position was being considered by the committee.

A small but active youth, with a very marked Scottish accent, charged before Mr. Denman on Monday at Marlborough-street Police Court with begging, told quite a romantic story. The lad—James Gilbertson is his name—said that, being unable to find work in his native place—"Langtoon, Kirkcaldy," Fifeshire—he walked to London, and had now been promised an engagement as a music-hall artist at the Star, Bermondsey. In the presence of the magistrate the youth went through his programme, including some songs in the style of Harry Lauder, the well-known Scottish comedian. He quite captured the heart of the magistrate, and with more money in his pocket than perhaps he ever possessed before, he went on his way rejoicing.

MISS MAIDIE SCOTT.

AS ALADDIN, 1905-6.

In the title-rôle we have Miss Maidie Scott, who is no stranger to Derby theatre-goers. As Aladdin, one may venture to predict that she will not fail to win favour. Possessed of a charming personality and presence and a gifted actress, Miss Scott, on Tuesday night, early captivated her audience; and immensely delighted all by her pleasing singing of "Yokohama Queen" and "Lazy Moon." All through she worked with rare energy, and much of the success achieved was due to her.—Derby Express, Dec. 27.

Miss Maidie Scott, who plays Aladdin, renewed her acquaintance with the Derby playgoers, and it was obvious from the outset that she was meeting old friends and admirers. She is distinctly dainty in boy's attire. She dances with exquisite grace, and is, moreover, the possessor of a pleasant and tuneful voice. She has some very nice songs, one, "Lazy Moon," might become very popular here. It was loudly and deservedly encored, as indeed were most of her songs and dances.—Derby Daily Telegraph, Dec. 27.

Miss Scott is a charming little lady at whose feet I can quite imagine all susceptible Derby falling. She is well placed as Aladdin, petite of figure and "riant" of method, and how much prettier she looks in her dainty "San Toy" attire than in the "tights" usually affected by the "principal boy."—Nottingham Post, Dec. 30.

Miss Maidie Scott, in the name-part, proves herself thoroughly equal to the occasion. She has an attractive stage presence, and bids fair to quickly sing and dance herself into the favour of local playgoers.—The Era, Dec. 30.

Miss Maidie Scott makes an exceedingly charming principal boy, and has become a great favourite. She sings, acts, and dances with delightful vivacity, and her various songs are all encored. "Lazy Moon" is one of the hits of the evening.—Derby Express, Jan. 2.

Miss Maidie Scott, who plays Aladdin, is no stranger to Derby. She has a charming presence, is a finished actress, and both sings and dances exceedingly well. She made a great hit at once with her songs, "Lazy Moon," with its charming dance finale, and "My Yokohama Queen."—Derby Advertiser, Jan. 5.

Miss Maidie Scott, in the title-rôle, again rendered her songs with excellent taste, and thoroughly deserved her numerous encores. All along she has been a great favourite.—Derby Express, Jan. 9.

Aladdin is represented by Miss Maidie Scott, a charming and talented actress, with versatility, which makes her in herself a complete entertainment. She acts and sings and dances with such grace and absence of affectation as wins for her unstinted admiration and applause.—Lancashire Daily Post, Jan. 16.

Miss Maidie Scott, who was an immense favourite here (Theatre Royal, Preston) last year, makes a captivating Aladdin. She has a charming presence, and by her sweet singing and dainty dancing again scores a great success.—The Era, Jan. 20.

Aladdin is played by Miss Maidie Scott, who commands success wherever she goes and conquers in whatever rôle she appears. Endowed with those natural attractions of face and figure so characteristic of a charming and pretty woman, one is not surprised that her triumph is co-equal with her popularity as an artist, for she has talent that will not be denied an outlet or refused recognition, and it is a pleasure indeed to record here how splendidly she figured as Aladdin acted, sang, and danced.—Magnet, Jan. 21.

Miss Maidie Scott, in the title-rôle, is not only a pleasing actress but an excellent vocalist, and two or three of her songs were encored.—Burnley Express, Jan. 24.

Miss Maidie Scott is the lady who impersonates the wondrous youth, and it is doubtful whether the part could have fallen into better hands. There is that about Miss Scott's acting which fascinates one; there is a robustness and there is a gentleness; an under-current of laughter, and in it all a great sympathy, a simplicity, a truthfulness. It is refreshing.—Burnley Gazette, Jan. 31.

Miss Maidie Scott, a roguish, ingratiating little actress, seemed even brighter than her usual sweet self by contrast, and the song of the "Little Brown Man" and the pendant dance amongst the coloured Chinese lanterns had to be twice repeated.—Nottingham Daily Express, Feb. 6.

Miss Maidie Scott makes a charming Aladdin, her singing and dancing and vivacity generally being an unfailing source of delight. The "Moon" song is alone worth visiting the theatre to hear.—Nottingham Guardian, Feb. 6.

Miss Maidie Scott fills the title-rôle, and her charming manner and pleasant voice gain her hosts of friends.—The Era, Feb. 10.

Miss Maidie Scott, the roguish little Aladdin, has become a prime favourite with Grand Theatre habitués, and the refrains of her songs are heartily caught up.—Nottingham Daily Express, Feb. 13.

Miss Maidie Scott has won all hearts by her dainty impersonation of Aladdin.—The Era, Feb. 17.

Fancy, fun, frolic, and thorough enjoyment were the dominant features of Mr. R. J. Brinkley's Annual Fancy Dress Ball and Carnival, held on Thursday evening, the 15th inst., at the Horns Hotel, Kennington, in the Grand Hall. In the early hours of the morning the march past took place before the ladies and gentlemen officiating as judges. The first ladies' prize (a beautiful Queen Anne silver tea and coffee service on tray) was awarded to Miss Davis, who, as "In Old Madrid," wore a lovely confection of pink silk, hand-painted, with a guitar of pink roses. The second prize (a lady's fitted dressing-case) went to Mrs. Hewson, for a delightful conception of "A Penny Bazaar," worn on a beautifully-designed costume. The third prize (a lady's bicycle) was awarded to Miss Martin, who, as "Vanity," was costumed in a handsome gown literally covered with small mirrors. Fourth prize (a silver tea and coffee service, on tray) was given to Miss Sutherland, who, as "Bluebell in Fairyland," with bare feet, made a typical and pretty flower girl.

Mr. Stanford took the first gentlemen's prize (a fitted dressing-case), for his "North American Indian"; Mr. Ferguson came second with a unique conception of "The Growth of Speed," and won a pair of five-light silver candelabra. Mr. Samuels, in the character of a "Golliwog," gained a fitted tantalus, the third prize. The brilliant success of the carnival was due to the energy and efficiency of Mr. Jean Kohl, whose experience of these festive functions is large and varied. Mr. Callaghan acted as spokesman, and Mrs. R. J. Brinkley charmingly distributed the prizes.

The Leicester Fire Brigade received at half-past ten on Monday evening a call to the Pavilion Music Hall, where an exciting incident had occurred. A bioscope exhibition was in progress there when by some means a film in the lantern caught fire. There was an alarming burst of flame and a good deal of smoke. A number of people left their seats in some alarm, but the flames were immediately extinguished, and when the brigade arrived they found their work already done. The great bulk of the audience fortunately kept their seats, and so saved a panic, and the performance was safely concluded.

Mr. Tony Iveson, so well known in the provinces, opened in London at Walham Green on Monday, and after keeping his audience laughing and applauding for fifteen minutes, was recalled again and again. He is fully booked in the provinces this year, but London will see more of him in 1907.

THE LATE GEORGE LE BRUNN TESTIMONIAL FUND.

The committee of the above met at the Oxford on Monday last, and in the unavoidable absence of Mr. Albert Gilmer voted Miss Marie Lloyd in the chair. Mr. Blyth Pratt reported as to the money taken at the doors of the matinée on Jan. 22, and sales of programmes, &c., showing, after deduction of all unavoidable expenses, a surplus of £302 16s. 6d. This handsome result, added to subscriptions to the fund, brings about a grand total of nearly £700. £200 of this it was decided to set aside for the mother of the deceased, and the balance allotted to the widow, two trustees—Miss Marie Lloyd and Mr. David Day—being appointed to pay out all monies, as and how they in their discretion judged would be best.

Votes of thanks to all helpers in the good cause were unanimously passed, including special ones to the Directors of the Oxford for so readily and generously placing the hall at the service of the committee, thereby largely ensuring the success of the movement, and to the Editor of The Era for his courtesy in giving the matter so much publicity.

It is decided to wind up the fund without further delay, and Mr. David Day would therefore be favoured if all outstanding lists and donations could be returned to him at 142, Charing Cross-road, W.C., at the earliest possible moment.

STEINWAY HALL.

Miss Grace Angus had a very large attendance at her concert, given at the Steinway Hall on the 15th inst. Miss Angus, who has a light and well-trained soprano voice, was first heard in Handel's recit. and air, "Oh, had I Jubal's lyre," but seemed better suited in Spohr's cavatina, "Rose softly blooming." Miss Angus also received great applause for her singing of the Swallow song from Goring Thomas's Esmeralda, and was associated with Mr. Norman Ridley in a very able rendering of three German duets by Cornelius, and later in the programme was set down for "The Song of Dolores," by Manzocchi, and Chaminade's "Berceuse," and for "Crabbed Age and Youth," C. H. H. Parry. Miss Angus was assisted by Mr. Norman Ridley (baritone), who sang well in two songs of Korbay. Miss Nora McKay (solo violin) and Miss Edith A. Parsons (pianoforte) both rendered useful aid towards the success of the concert, the former playing Handel's Sonata in A with marked ability, and the latter giving Chopin's piano solo "Mazurka" in B minor in a finished and able manner. The accompanists were Mr. Herbert L. Cooke and Mr. T. S. Hamilton.

MR. TED COWAN finishes to-night a successful run of ten weeks in London, and goes on the Moss and Stoll tour on Monday, commencing at the Olympia, Liverpool.

MISS FRANCES LETTY, the coon comedy girl, recently produced successfully at the Palace, Glasgow, a new song by Will Godwin, "Captain Kettle's Farewell," assisted by a miniature Captain Kettle in the front of the theatre, and met with a great reception. The fair artist has had a very successful tour at the Barrasford halls, and will soon be seen in London.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

THE many friends of Mr. H. Powell, property master at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, will regret to hear that his wife died on the 13th inst. MRS. Powell had been in ill-health for some months.

DEATHS and accidents have been unusually numerous in Stage-Staff circles recently. Mr. Ingram, a member of the electrician staff, whose sudden illness at His Majesty's Theatre was alluded to the other week, died before he reached the hospital. Mr. Wright, a member of the electrician's staff at the Waldorf Theatre, fell from the gallery, underneath the "fly" gallery, to the stage during the performance on the 13th inst., and was killed. Mr. Morgan, a member of the staff at the Gaiety Theatre, fell from Jacob's ladder, 30ft. to the stage, during the performance on the 10th inst, and was removed in an unconscious state to the hospital.

AT a meeting of the General Operative Sick and Benefit Society, held on the 11th inst., it was decided to hold the annual dinner on Sunday evening, March 18, in the Salisbury Hotel. Tickets, price 2s. 6d., may be obtained from Mr. A. E. Wood, secretary, at the Shaftesbury Theatre, and from Mr. P. Thomas, at the Alhambra Theatre, and from other members of the committee.

MR. H. B. IRVING has accepted the invitation of the Heads of Departments to preside at the forthcoming annual dinner of the Association. A meeting of the Committee will be held next week to decide the date, but it is anticipated that Sunday, April 1, will be selected. It is expected that a thoroughly representative gathering will be secured, as each of the preceding annual dinners has been extremely successful.

THE announcement that the Drury-lane pantomime will go to Paris may account for the rumour that the members of the working staff who will be sent to help "work the show" are to have lessons in French. Should this idea be carried out, it will be interesting to have "Messieurs'" impression of Paris. It would not, however, be the first time that English stage employees had visited la ville lumière. It will be remembered that several members of the Duke of York's Theatre accompanied The Admirable Crichton company from that theatre on a flying matinée trip to Paris. On that occasion only one performance was given, and as the staff worked, practically, day and night, their impressions of the gay city were not very instructive.

A MEETING of the members of the Theatrical Carpenters' Society will be held in the Salisbury Hotel, St. Martin's-lane, on Sunday evening, at 8.30, when the business includes a discussion of the auditors' report, the election of officers for the ensuing year, the fixing of the dates of the annual dinner and the theatrical sports, and the election of new members.

A MEETING will be held on Thursday evening in Stratford for the purpose of considering the objects and benefits of the National Association of Theatrical Employees and the formation of a branch for the benefits of the stage employees of the district. All stage employees are invited to attend the meeting.

AN interesting ceremony took place on the stage of the Grand Theatre, Islington, on Saturday night, the occasion being the last night of the pantomime and the annual presentations to members of the company and the meritorious members of the staff. Mr. Samuel James, the managing-director, said it gave him great pleasure to publicly thank his master carpenter for the efficient manner in which he had conducted his department, and for the way he had worked for him. He had never had a more reliable and obliging employee. The proceedings concluded with "Auld Lang Syne." Dancing then commenced, and continued until the small hours.

THE success of the Theatrical Sports lately given in Liverpool directs attention to the metropolitan theatrical sports. It is worth while considering whether the London fixture cannot be made more imposing and more representative of the profession and the professional charities. If any of our readers can suggest some improved methods we shall be glad to hear from them.

MR. ALFRED BUTT, who is always on the qui vive for something new to place before the Palace patrons, promises us a long and hearty laugh on Monday, when The Would-be Actors will appear on the programme. We believe this will be the first appearance in London of this amusing skit, which has lately been so successful in the provinces.

THE run of Hero and Heroine at the Palace terminated on Saturday evening, and Mr. Arthur Playfair has now returned to the theatrical stage to play a part in Captain Marshall's piece at the Comedy.

MLLE. ADELINA GENEE is again appearing each evening in The Little Michus at Daly's Theatre, and her dance is as attractive as ever. Her part in The Bugle Call at the Empire is now being filled by Miss Elise Clerc. Mlle. Genée, however, is seen in her exquisite performance of Cinderella

THE Three Rubys, who are the granddaughters of the late Billy Randall, the famous comedian, are scoring at the Alexandra, Birmingham, in their dance and acrobatic speciality in the Palace scene.

THE latest quotations for Music Hall shares are as follows:—Alhambra 1½, Canterbury 1½, Empire (15s. paid) 1½, ditto (10s. paid) 1, London Pav. Ord. 4½, ditto Pref. 4½, London Coliseum 1, Metropolitan ⅞, Moss Empire 4, ditto Pref. 3½, Oxford 6½, Palace 10s. 6d., Tivoli 5½, Variety Consolidated Theatres 14s. 6d.

A PRIVATE enterprise has been started for the erection of one or two variety establishments abroad. We cannot at present give the names of the places, but the engaging and sole booking of the artists is in the hands of Richard Cass's Agency.

LA BELLE OTERO, the well-known Spanish dancer, who could not carry out her tour to St. Petersburg because of the insurrection, is being sued for £640 damages by two artists whom she had engaged to accompany her.

As a result of the football match played at Goodison Park ground, Liverpool, last week, between Mr. George Robey's XI. and the Everton team, the sum of £405 has been realised for charitable purposes.

MR. FRANK LEO'S song, "Iona from Arizona," which Miss Sable Fern has been singing with very great success at the London Coliseum, has been published by the Charing Cross-road firm.

MR. SID BANDON, character comedian, has been laid aside for eighteen weeks with rheumatism and lumbago. He is now getting better, and hopes to commence work on March 12.

MISS GWENNIE HASTO has been re-engaged by Mr. Robert Courtneidge for another two years, at a big increase of salary. This will make Miss Hasto's sixth year with him in panto.

CHAT WITH MR. WILL OLIVER.

It is nearly sixteen years since Mr. Will Oliver, of the well-known agency firm of Oliver and Holmes, retired from the stage. The occasion, it will be remembered, was marked by the presentation to Mr. Oliver of an illuminated address signed by 125 prominent music-hall managers and artists. Mr. Oliver was then thirty-nine years of age, and as the anniversary of his birthday came close upon his retirement from active work before the footlights, a double event was celebrated. Presents poured in from all parts, for "Will," as he is affectionately termed, is a popular personality in variety circles. He has a nickname, with which, we believe, all music-hall people are acquainted, and that is "The Man on the Spot."

In his delightful home, "Spot Lodge," 233, Brixton-road, S.W., we had a chat with Mr. Oliver a few days ago. Showing us a time-worn portrait of himself in a red jacket, blue trousers, and old-fashioned broad silk hat, he remarked: "That was taken when I was appearing at Wilton's thirty-nine years ago, when I started in business. During my career I have played at every hall of note in London and the provinces and in twenty-three pantomimes, my last appearance in a Christmas production being at the Britannia, Hoxton. I was then the principal comedian and Miss Marie

MR. WILL OLIVER.

Lloyd was the principal girl. That was her first engagement in pantomime—and my last. Curiously enough, she went straight from the Britannia to Drury-lane. Wasn't it a jump?"

"Yes," he went on in reply to a question, "I am enjoying excellent health at the present time. I have taken care of myself whenever I could, and at times others have performed a similar service for me. I am fifty-four years old on Friday, the 23rd inst.," and as he spoke we were shown a bundle of telegrams of congratulation which had reached him on his last birthday celebration, and which, naturally enough, he regards with a good deal of affection. And talking about his approaching anniversary—which, we presume, was duly commemorated yesterday—brought to one's mind the reflection that Mr. Oliver didn't look his age, and was, in fact, as energetic as many a man of thirty. One recollected that he had appeared quite recently at the London Pavilion, when he performed as a very comical drummer-boy in a special performance under the auspices of The Water Rats. The make-up was admittedly good on this occasion, and some of Mr. Oliver's waggish friends insisted that he had padded himself, because, normally, he is a very thin man. His highest weight, he tells us, was 7st. 4lb., and now he only brings the scale down at 6st. 12lb.

"Of course," said Mr. Oliver, "I have seen a great many changes in agency work since I first launched into that department of theatrical business twenty years ago. When I commenced I used to visit three and sometimes four towns a day, and filled up all the vacancies for the following Monday. Hence my title, 'The Man on the Spot.' Today there are forty agents to every one of twenty years ago. Some of them combine the business of rag-shops and other such undertakings, and not long ago we had six clients on our books who described themselves as variety agents and carried books round the provinces. Mr. Holmes, by the way, has been with me for the last fourteen years. One of my latest 'finds' is Miss Millie Payne, who has already signed contracts for the Moss and Stoll tour well into 1909."

Mr. Oliver is one of the original founders of The Water Rats' Society, is a P.M. in Freemasonry, and one of the oldest members of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund Committee. "Spot Lodge," where he has resided for the last sixteen years, is one of the best houses in Brixton, and attached thereto is a very nice garden, upon which Mr. Oliver bestows great attention and care. Mr. Paul Cinquevalli, whose house faces this garden, has expressed his gratitude to Mr. Oliver for furnishing him with such a nice outlook.

Among his household treasures, Mr. Oliver values very much a number of oil-paintings by Mr. Carl Brenner, who was for many years the general-manager of the Palace, Nottingham; and particularly proud he is in the possession of bound volumes of The Era for seventeen years, presented to him by the late Mr. Dan Leno.

CARL HERTZ'S new illusion, entitled "Belshazzar's Blackboard," which he first presented last month at the Scala Theatre, Copenhagen, was produced for the first time in England on Monday evening last at the Argyle Theatre, Birkenhead. The novelty consists of a schoolroom blackboard measuring 3ft. by 2ft. 6in and 1in. in thickness. It is shown to the audience on all sides, and is hung in a small frame isolated from all parts of the stage. While in that position writing in chalk mysteriously appears on its surface; sums given by the audience are correctly added up; questions are answered, communications in sealed envelopes are reproduced, and numerous other experiments are performed. As soon as one writing appears on the board it is rubbed off with a wet sponge, and the next one appears on the same blackboard. All these experiments are done in full light and without any visible agency. The illusion has proved a tremendous success at Birkenhead, and will be seen Monday next at the Zoo in Glasgow.

MOST of the equestrian profession will remember "Donbavand," the jockey-act rider, who, we regret to say, passed away on Jan. 28 last, after two weeks' illness, from a very bad type of consumption. Rosie Transfield, his widow, is also well known. She is left with six children, totally unprovided for. She appeals for aid in her distressful circumstances. Those who are willing to help, please send subscriptions, which will be be acknowledged, to Mr. Gilmore, proprietor, Empire, Stockport

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Wakefield and District Amateur Operatic Society occupies the stage this week with the opera, The Gondoliers, the performance being in aid of local charities.

HIPPODROME. — Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Wee Mona, an exceptionally smart juvenile comedienne, heads the bills this week, and delights with her songs and clever dancing. The Mannikins, living marionets, win appreciation; Ariel and Astarte, gymnasts, are accorded applause; Albert Ventnor, eccentric comedian, gives a humorous turn; a wonderfully well educated horse, Billy, performs some astounding feats in arithmetical calculations, and playing cards. Other capital turns include Miss Fanny Humber, smart skipping-rope dancer and musical instrumentalist, and Wisper, comedy tourist juggler.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LTD.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—An outstanding feature in the current bill is Ella's lions; Baker and Balfe, xylophone players and dancers are clever; Viola May sings some pleasing songs; the Brothers Corty, aërial humourists, prove themselves popular; a pleasing turn is provided by F. H. Dundas, actor-vocalist; May Geraldine, comedienne; Kyoto and his mysterious Japanese box add greatly to the interest of the programme, which also includes the American Bioscope.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. John B. Stinton and Mr. Alexander Greenwood's company in the Russian drama, The Price of Her Soul, is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. John B. Shinton makes a capital Lord Rolf Mandeville; Mr. Langdon Goulding scores as General Demetrius Lonovitz; Miss Ada M. Ryder as Countess Inex Steinmetz does full justice to the part; and Vera has a careful exponent in Little Ida Thompson.

WALTHAMSTOW.—KING'S THEATRE. — One of our oldest stage favourites, Mr. Henry Bedford, is appearing here this week in a stirring drama entitled Gipsy Jack, in which his fine dashing style of acting finds good scope as the hero. Mr. Bedford is well supported by a clever company, including Messrs. Geo. W. Hewetson, Walter H. Damoney, Alec Alexander, Cecil C. Churton, Sid Bedford; Miss Mary Masters, Miss Frances Foley, Miss Ada Antley, Miss Jennie Risley, Miss Frances Pole, and Miss Bessie Bedford.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—This week we have a return visit of Mr. Louis Calvert's company in Sunday. Miss Jean Stirling Mackinlay fills the title-rôle with grace, refinement, and pathos; Miss Juliet Hardinge leaves nothing to be desired as the Nun, and Miss Rosalind Ross as Mrs. Naresby is well suited. Mr. Leonard Pagden gives a fine rendering of Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas enacts the part of Tim Cody in good style, and Mr. William Lockhart scores as Towzer. Mr. Sydney Rennef wins favour as Harry, and Jacky is in the safe hands of Mr. Arthur Vezin.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred J. Willmot.—A couple of clever quick-change artists in Baroni and Kemp astonish all with a wonderful performance; Gus Harris, a big favourite here, enhances his reputation as a character Hebrew vocalist, and is very dramatic in his rendering of "The Synagogue"; the Thompsons supply a rare sporting turn in boxing and wrestling; the Campeons are refined duettists, and Yorkshire Tom amuses all with his mimicry. Maud Edwards scores a big success with her ventriloquial turn, and Little Tina sings exceptionally well.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—This week Mr. G. H. W. Burrough's up-to-date pantomime Sinbad the Sailor is drawing crowded houses here. Miss Louie Fuller makes a dashing and sprightly Sinbad; the part of the Princess Yazora is in the capable hands of Miss Florence Barnes; Miss V. Winifred Hamilton as Captain Selim makes the most of her opportunities; the rôles of Irza and the Princess Fatima are interestingly portrayed by Miss May Gower and Miss Ada Langton respectively. Excellent amusement is afforded by Mr. H. G. Brandon as Mother Sinbad; the part of Tinbad is most comically portrayed by Mr. Chas. I. Langton; and the Fairy is charmingly enacted by Miss Nellie Trevallian.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's No. 1 company in the powerful drama Two Little Drummer Boys opened here on Monday night. Mr. F. G. Kimberley played with great success the part of Quiney O'Quirk, and kept the audience in continual roars of laughter; Mr. William Vane was all that could be desired as Captain Frank Carsdale, and the same remark applies to Mr. Andrew Money in the character of Gaptain George Darrell; Mr. Frank Hoyd gave a clever impersonation of the deserter Jim Barker; the General Kingsley, V.C., of Mr. Edward Bikker was good; Mr. Horace Custins did well as Timothy Trimmer; Miss May Smart and Miss Eva Norman, who portrayed the two Little Drummer Boys, deserve special mention for their clever acting; Miss Violet Langley presented a smart Alma Kingsley, and Miss Lottie Addison (Mrs. F. G. Kimberley) submitted an accomplished interpretation of Margaret Rivers.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Her Lost Self is being played here this week by Miss Frances Delavel's company, in which Miss Delavel achieves a triumph in the rôle of Phillipine Marcel; Mr. Percy Carne Waram as Wilfred Daventry is entirely successful; Miss Min Johnson is pretty and clever as Dorothy Daventry; Miss Dora Hammersley entirely wins the sympathy of the house in the double rôle of Dorothy and Lucille.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The dexterity and precision with which the Andos Happy Little Japs do their work is creating wonderment; George Newburn's imitations of popular variety people are faithful; the Hartley Wonders' exhibition of jumping is an astonishing one; and other numbers on the programme are contributed by Raymond's Bioscope, Mark Merry, Dusty Rhodes, Maggie Walsh, De Henau, and Mdlle. Aladina's performing cockatoos.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Clifford's company is paying a visit here this week in On Circumstantial Evidence. Mr. Milton Curtis is a manly Jack Ogilvy; Mr. Chas. Clifford makes a decidedly villainous Captain Hamilton; Mr. S. Long gives a sound performance of General Garibaldi; and Mr. E. Morton submits an artistic interpretation of Antonio; Mr. A. M. James is commendable as Sir Lawrence Kinlock. As Jeremiah Tobin, Mr. Val Gally is extremely humorous; and in the dual rôle of Olga and Mary Brandoni, Miss Rose Faitt shows much dramatic ability; Miss Maud Camfield presents an interesting study of Violet Ogilvy; and Miss Polly Denville evokes laughter as Polly Smithers.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—The original Leopolds are doing good business here this week in New Frivolity. Mr. Watson Hume is a humorous Oliver Buckwheat, and is well supported by Mr. Barry Lupino as Sammy. Miss Marie Anit is excellent as Madame Cobweb, and Miss Amy Hall is graceful as Lucy Buckwheat. Some astounding acrobatic feats are introduced by the Leopold Bros.

WIDNES. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. James Keddie.—After an absence of five years we have again here La Poupée. The company is that of Mr. Herbert Ralland, and its work is very successful. The Hilarius of Mr. Fred Seymour was the big hit of the evening, and the popular artist came in for a hearty ovation. Miss Dot Stephens as Alesia proved herself a charming little lady and an actress of undoubted ability. Mr. Wm. Everard as Lancelot brought out the bashfulness of the young man exceedingly well; Mr. Walter Balfour was a bluff Father Maxime; and Miss Edith Hunter did some work as Madame Hilarius.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is here with the popular drama The Worst Woman in London. Miss Florence Dalton plays the leading part of the adventuress with much power and histrionic ability, and Miss Effie Bartlett acts the rôle of Ruth Milford with expression and resourcefulness; Miss Florence Lovell is good as Matilda Parker, and Mr. Wallace Campbell portrays with success the manly Jack Felton; Mr. Paul Barry Lewers is very effective as the rascally Vincent Lyle; Mr. H. H. Barrington acquits himself well as James Milford; and Mr. H. W. Monte is responsible for a clever character-study of Hugh Drayton. Mr. Leonard Booker is adapted to the part of Philip Armstrong.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—At this popular house Miss Caselli's troupe of Mexican Chihuahua trained dogs perform amazing feats which are highly appreciated. Miss Nellie Coleman, the female Dan Leno, meets with a rousing reception in her many character songs; several tuneful selections on the pianoforte and concertina are given by Henderson, the blind musician; and another clever turn is provided by Juno Salmo, contortionist; Dome, clay modeller, gives some excellent likenesses of well-known people; and Tom E. Hughes delights the house with his song, "I am one of the Upper Ten." Captain Ralston, vocalist, who possesses a good bass voice, receives encores for his rendering of "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep." Other good turns are given by Gallagher and Hild, comedy artists and dancers; Vanoia, Mexican antipodeste; and by Jack Hylton, comedian. The Bioscope pictures, as usual, are good.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —Nothing more elaborate in stage scenery and effects has ever been seen here than is displayed this week by Mr. William Greet's company in The Talk of the Town. The dresses are beautiful, and many charming combinations are produced by a large and effective chorus. Among individual artistes, the principal burden falls upon Mr. William Cromwell, who as Jerry Snipe is very successful, and provides any amount of fun; as Mrs. Snipe, Miss Louie Tinsley scores heavily, and gives a most artistic impersonation of the part; Miss Joan Keddie is a charming Ellaline Lewin; Miss G. Melville is smart as Madame Modiste; Miss Katherine Harrington is a graceful and ladylike Lady Nightingale; and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy is a winsome Jane. Mr. Arthur Harrold does capitally as Lieut. Reggie Drummond; and Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. A. Gambier Melford afford much amusement as Ernest and Frank English. The whole performance goes with a good swing from start to finish.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—This week's special attraction consists of J. L. Shine and company, who are seen to great advantage in Hogmanay (A New Year's Eve). A capital programme also includes Chris Richards, "the man with the hat," an excellent comedian; Mr. and Mrs. Royston-Dee in a sketch; Nelson and Thomas, comedians; Alethea, lady gymnast; Charles Ashdowne, comedian and dancer; Kishey, patter comedian; and Ruffel's Bioscope.

WORCESTER.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Lewards.—Mr. Tree has sent a specially selected company to present to Worcester playgoers for a week Oliver Twist, with all the necessary scenic and other appointments. Mr. Wm. Mackintosh in the part of Fagin enhances a reputation already firmly established by previous visits. In his hands the character, though repulsive in its cunning and duplicity, is a masterly piece of acting. As Bill Sikes, Mr. Cecil A. Collins brings out the unredeemed brutality of the character, and Mr. Ashton Pearse makes the part of Mouks a striking one. Messrs. Tom Macfarlane (The Artful Dodger), Edgar J. Coyne (Charlie Bates), Christmas Grose (Tom Chitling), and Max Montecole (Burney) are well suited in their respective parts. Mr. Harry Braban is a distinguished Harry Maylie, Mr. Clifford Bown makes the part of Mr. Grimwig distinctly interesting, and Mr. Ben Lewin is a breezy Mr. Brownlow. As Nancy, Miss Hutin Britton's is a clever impersonation; Miss Gertrude Lang is a pleasing and lovable Oliver, and Miss Hilda Dick takes the part of Rose very sweetly. Miss Elsie Carew is a sympathetic and graceful Mrs. Maylie.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. John A. Thomson's No. 1 company is here this week presenting Dick Whittington and His Cat to highly appreciative audiences. Miss Ida Kessenly as Dick gives a very good rendering. Miss Ella Wilmer is a winsome and pretty Alice Fitzwarren, her vocalisation and dancing being greatly admired. Miss Lily English and Miss Violet English as Algy and Polly were soon installed as favourites. Miss Ella Rose does well as Princess Charming; Mr. Ross Warren is excellent as Alderman Fitzwarren; Mr. Harry Harcourt as Betsy Jane is extremely funny, and gives a clever impersonation; Mr. Syd Morreli scores as Captain Bunting, causing unstinted merriment. Great praise is due to Mr. Fred Anderson as Pimple; he proves himself to be a really first-class comedian, keeping the house in roars of laughter with his quaint comicalities. Mr. Edwin Dodds greatly adds to the fun as Idle Jack. Mr. Hubert Davis is extremely good as Thomas (the cat). Mr. Albert Hammond as the Demon Rat and Mr. Albert Victor as the Emperor of Morocco do excellent work.

YORK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company is appearing this week in the apparently evergeen Florodora. No more charming representative of Lady Holyrood than Miss Kate Leicester has previously appeared here; her performance is marked by much grace, she is a sweet singer, and as a dancer would be hard to beat. A dainty Angela is seen in the person of Miss Florence Hersee, who is extremely interesting and lively. Her share in the duet with Arthur Donegal, a part capitally played by Mr. Harold Perry, is well received and re-demanded. Miss Gwladys Elvey makes a handsome Dolores; Mr. Henry Crosland gives a good account of himself as Frank Abercoed; Mr. Edward Chester's abilities as a character-actor have full scope, and as a result he makes a very amusing Cyrus Gilfain. Of Mr. Albert Brino, who appears as Tweedlepunch, nothing but praise can be said. He works extremely hard, is a quaint comedian, and dances with much skill.

EMPIRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Conway and Garland's sketch Left in Charge is a very amusing item. The Ferras Bros. are expert acrobats, who never fail to attract; and Rose Waller is a pleasing and refined singer. On several different instruments Burnetti proves himself an adept; Leslie Race sings two songs in good style; Prince Kokin is an astonishingly clever juggler; Howard and St. Clair's sketch is well received, and Reba and the Empire bioscope completes the list.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

We are glad to be able to lay before our readers the full text of the petitions of the organised showmen against the Private Bill legislation affecting their business, and now before the House of Commons. The Wallassey Bill will come before the House of Lords in due time, and if the pacific negotiations now pending between the executive of the Showmen's Guild and the District Council fail, a petition will be lodged against the Wallassey Bill.

The petition against the Middlesex County Council Bill is as follows:—

To the HONOURABLE THE COMMONS of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in PARLIAMENT assembled.

THE HUMBLE PETITION of JANE PETTIGROVE, EDMOND HOLLOWAY, WILLIAM BEACH, ALFRED BALL, and HENRY TAYLOR

Sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter referred to as "the Bill") has been deposited in the Private Bill Office of your Honourable House, intituled "A Bill to make further provision for preventing the pollution and obstruction of Streams in the County of Middlesex and to confer further powers on the County Council of Middlesex for that purpose and in relation to the width and maintenance of Roads Employment Agencies Ice Cream Vendors Gipsy Encampments Quarter Sessions rating of Cemeteries Recreation Ground Brentford Market and Runnymede Rifle Range; for amending the London and Middlesex (Adjustment) Scheme 1905; and for other purposes."

2. The promoters of the Bill are the County Council of Middlesex (hereinafter called "the Council").

3. Your petitioners are proprietors of travelling shows and other similar exhibitions, and for their greater convenience in the carrying on of such shows, &c., they are in the habit of dwelling in vans on the ground where the said shows, &c., are on view. For the purposes of their calling they habitually resort to various places within the County of Middlesex. Your Petitioners, their property, rights, and interests, are injuriously affected by the Bill, and they object thereto for the reasons hereinafter stated.

4. By Clause 31 of the Bill it is proposed to be enacted as follows:—

"If and whenever the Council on the application of the local authority of any district shall by resolution so determine the following provisions shall have effect in the district of such local authority (that is to say):—

"(1) No owner of land shall cause or suffer any such land within one hundred yards of any street or of any dwelling house to be occupied so as to cause annoyance injury or disturbance to residents in the neighbourhood by any tent-dweller squatter gipsy or other person dwelling in a tent or van or other similar structure:

"(2) No tent-dweller squatter gipsy or other person shall use as a dwelling place so as to cause annoyance injury or disturbance to residents in the neighbourhood any tent or van or other similar structure placed on any land situated within one hundred yards of any street or of any dwelling house:

"(3) Every person who shall offend against either of the foregoing enactments shall be liable for every such offence to a penalty of not exceeding five pounds."

5. Your Petitioners, while in no way desirous of causing annoyance, injury, or disturbance, against which the said Clause 31 is ostensibly directed, are nevertheless apprehensive that the Clause, if passed into law, might be so interpreted as to interfere with their businesses in cases where no real annoyance, injury, or disturbance had been caused, since it is the practice of some justices to treat the mere presence of van-dwellers as an annoyance without evidence of any specific objectionable acts on their part.

6. Your Petitioners humbly submit that the said Clause 31 should not be passed into law by your Honourable House, as they are advised that the Council could obtain the same powers by means of by-laws made under the authority of Section 16 of the Local Government Act, 1888.

7. The Preamble of the Bill in so far as it relates to the matters aforesaid is unfounded and incapable of proof.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honourable House that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that they may be heard by their Counsel, Agents, and Witnesses against the Preamble and Clauses thereof, and, in the event of the Preamble being proved, then in support of such Clauses and Provisions as may be necessary for their protection and benefit, and that your Honourable House may grant to your Petitioners such further and other relief in the premises as to your Honourable House may seem meet.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

JANE PETTIGROVE.
EDMOND HOLLOWAY.

The Pontefract Bill raises again the important issues the showmen fought and won in the Eccles, Hyde, and Halifax Bills.

PONTEFRACT CORPORATION BILL.

To the HONOURABLE THE COMMONS of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in PARLIAMENT assembled.

THE HUMBLE PETITION of THE UNITED KINGDOM SHOWMEN AND VAN-DWELLERS' PROTECTION ASSOCIATION

Sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter refered to as "the Bill") has been deposited in the Private Bill Office of your Honourable House, intituled "A Bill to vest in the Corporation of Pontefract the undertakings of the Pontefract Park Trustees and the Pontefract Gas Company, and to make further provision for the local government of the borough and the water supply thereto and for other purposes."

2. The promoters of the Bill are the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Pontefract (hereinafter called "the Corporation").

3. Your petitioners are an Association founded in 1890 with inter alia the following object: To watch any attempt at legislation which is calculated to affect or interfere with the rights or business of Showmen and Vandwellers in general, and to take such proceedings in Parliamentary and other matters as may be deemed advisable.

4. The members of your Petitioners' Association are showmen, stall-holders, and others carrying on business at fairs throughout the United Kingdom. The property, rights, and interests of the said members are injuriously affected by the Bill, and your Petitioners object thereto for the reasons hereinafter stated.

5. By Clause 76 of the Bill it is proposed to be enacted as follows:—

"(1) The Corporation may by licence permit the holding of fairs within the borough at such times and places for such purposes and subject to such conditions restrictions and limitations as they may think fit to impose and the Corporation may in connection with any such fairs and in connection with the Statute Hiring Fair held annually in the month of November in the borough make by-laws for the conduct of the fairs and in particular may by such by-laws:—

"(A) Fix the hours during which the fairs may remain open;

"(B) Provide for the preservation of order and good conduct among persons frequenting the fairs;

"(C) Regulate the erection or placing on the lands on which the fairs for the time being are held or upon any streets or other public places within the borough of any booths tents sheds stands and stalls (whether fixed or movable) or vehicles for the sale or exposure of any article or thing or any shows exhibitions performances swings roundabouts or other erections vans photographic carts or other vehicles whether drawn or propelled by animals or mechanical power.

"And the Corporation may, by any such by-laws go to be made by them impose such reasonable penalties as they think fit not exceeding forty shillings for each breach of such by-laws and such by-laws shall be published in the manner following viz. by advertisement in the local newspapers and by handbills and otherwise in such manner as they think sufficient.

"(2) The Corporation may by licence permit the erection placing and use upon any streets or other public places within the borough during any of the days on which the Pontefract races are held of any of the erections and things mentioned in paragraph (C) of sub-section (1) of this section and any such licence may be granted upon such terms and conditions as the Corporation may think fit and the Corporation may make by-laws for regulating the erection management and use of any such erections and things. Provided always that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to derogate from or prejudice any other powers or rights for the time being vested in or exerciseable by the Corporation."

6. It is further proposed to be enacted by Clause 80 as follows: "Subject to the provisions of this Act if any person shall without the licence of the Corporation in any part of the borough hold or permit to be held any market or fair, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds and to a daily penalty not exceeding five pounds. Provided that nothing in this section or in section 13 of the Markets and Fairs Clauses Act 1847 shall be held to deprive the Corporation of any right to proceed by action or otherwise which the Corporation would have had if those sections had not been enacted."

7. Your Petitioners humbly submit that the various powers for the regulation of fairs proposed to be conferred upon the Corporation by Clause 76 are in excess of the general law, and that no necessity for the same can be made out. These powers, taken in conjunction with the provisions of Clause 80, would enable the Corporation to seriously curtail and possibly destroy the businesses of showmen, stall-holders, and others; and the exercise of such powers would at the same time constitute an infringement of the rights of persons desirous of resorting to their shows, &c.

8. Your Petitioners further submit that the provisions of Clause 80 prohibiting the holding of fairs upon land belonging to private owners are a serious infringement of the rights of showmen. And your Petitioners also submit that it is contrary to the public interest that any restriction should be placed upon the letting or hiring of land for the use of showmen, &c., whether during fair time or otherwise.

9. The Preamble of the Bill in so far as it relates to the matters aforesaid is unfounded, and cannot be substantiated by argument or evidence.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your Honourable House that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that they may be heard by their Counsel, Agents, and Witnesses against the Preamble and Clauses thereof, and, in the event of the Preamble being proved, then in support of such Clauses and Provisions as may be necessary for their protection and benefit, and that your Honourable House may grant to your Petitioners such further and other relief in the premises as to your Honourable House may seem meet.

And your Petitioners will ever pray.

WILLIAM CLARKE, Vice-President.
THOMAS HURST, Secretary.

Mr. Tom Norman sends us the following kindly appreciation of the sterling worth of the late Theophilus Read, of World's Fair celebrity:—

"Sir,—Another World's Fair has passed and gone, but unfortunately one has passed with it whom we could ill afford to lose, and I feel that I cannot let it pass without saying a few words respecting one who was so much liked and loved by all. I suppose that I was one of the last persons who spoke to the late Mr. T. Read on his last night at the Agricultural Hall. I remember him walking through just as the Hall was closing in company with his worthy secretary, Mr. Fowler, when he invited me to meet him in his office in ten minutes' time. I regret that unfortunately I was unable to keep that appointment, but sent a message instead, which makes me feel it all the more.

"Of his private character one cannot speak without admiration and regard. In his long and brilliant career he made innumerable friends, but never an enemy. Generous and open-handed, simple and equable of temper, he was everywhere beloved. By his intellectual artistic eminence he helped to raise the show profession to the level at which it now stands, thereby reclaiming it from the reproach that it had hitherto borne.

"It is men like the late Mr. T. Read that have helped me in my nine years' uphill struggle as an auctioneer to gain the success that I have attained. always an encouraging word, and a helping hand if required, therefore all well know how fully I realise for one that I have indeed lost one of my best friends.

"I am sure everyone that knew him will acclaim in their hearts with one accord that he was indeed one of the best."

The fairs ahead next week are Lichfield, Longton, Bildesden, Tetbury, Downham Market, Oswestry, Wisbech, Bury March Fair, and St. Buryans in the West, Brecon in Wales, and Berwick and Roxboro' in Scotland.

The following note is from one of our Welsh showman correspondents, and tells of an interesting episode in travelling or portable theatre life:—

An event which in the annals of the stage is as unique as it is rare, especially in the humbler grade of the profession, took place at Tredegar on the 16th inst., when Mr. Harry Howard was the recipient of a very pretty gold cross pendant suitably inscribed, on the occasion of his leaving the stage to take up his duties in the Church preparatory to his ordination for the ministry.

Mr. John Johnson, the proprietor of the Victoria Theatre, Tredegar, in some well-chosen words, touched on the excellent manner in which Mr. Howard had fulfilled his twelve months' engagement with him, not only studying five and often more parts weekly, but at the same time mastering both Latin and Greek, and making himself thoroughly conversant with all necessary Christian knowledge, and even preaching a sermon in one of the English Churches here, in the very town in which he was acting, a feat of study and perseverance which it would be difficult to surpass; and in presenting what was a most appropriate token of remembrance on behalf of his fellow artists, he hoped Mr. Howard would attain successfully that end to which his heart's ambition pointed.

Mr. Howard, in acknowledging the gift, feelingly remarked that words could not express his extreme gratitude for the kindly interest Mr. Johnson and his fellow artists had always taken in him, culminating in such an unexpected, and to him, an extremely flattering manner; and though he was quitting the stage for what, to him at least, appeared a higher life, he would always look upon his past career with pride. The stage he would always consider a noble calling, from which many a lasting lesson had been taught, his experience of which in time to come he would assuredly profit by; and though bidding good-bye to the "boards," the memory of the happy times he had spent in the Temple of Thespis would live in his heart as long as he breathed.

Mr. Howard preached two sermons on Sunday last at Moston (Manchester) Mission of St. Michael's and All Angels. Two nights previous he appeared as Martelli in Corsican Brothers and Lord Plato in A Rough Diamond—not a bad record, and a circumstance which says much for the stage.

A goodly number of new subscribers to the Showmen's Guild were enrolled at the King's Lynn meeting.

Mr. F. E. Fillis, the "Lord George Sanger" of South Africa, has been showing this week in Kimberley with very satisfactory results, both morning and evening performances having drawn large crowds. The present programme is far and away the best Mr Fillis has yet provided for his patrons, both as regards quality and quantity. Topping the list is Keaney P. Speedy, the world's greatest high-diver, whose sensational dive from a height of 120ft. into a small tank containing 3ft. of water is as thrilling a feat as one cares to witness. The Zenos, Jordan and Zeno, put in some very clever trapeze work, the excellent "fooling" of one of the troupe adding greatly to the enjoyment given by their act. The slack-rope has a capital exponent in Hugh Lloyd, who goes through his entire performance without the aid of a balancing-pole or umbrella, his concluding feat, playing the violin while throwing somersaults, always evoking the heartiest applause. Another admirable turn is that of Provo, a very smart juggler and equilibrist, with some novel and amusing tricks. The Nillson troupe of ladies contribute several pretty dances, the luminous butterfly dance being particularly pleasing. Mr. Fillis once more demonstrates his wonderful ability as a horse-trainer, cake-walking and other forms of dancing being among a few of the antics his thoroughbreds indulge in. Mr. Fillis also introduces a well-trained elephant, and Lieut. Staines exhibits his prowess amongst four big lions. The Bros. Frehal provide some really funny clowning, and the Bros. Lloyd the latest novelties in circus riding. Many other items go to make up a programme which, with variations, will be given for another week.

Mr. W. Simpson Cross, the famous animal importer of Liverpool, will this summer provide Southport with a Zoological Park, having acquired the Kew Gardens for that purpose. It is Mr. Cross's intention to have a zoological collection worthy of the town of Southport, and there is a fine lake which he intends to stock with waterfowl from all parts of the world. Admission to the Park, which will open about Easter, will be 6d., and yearly, half-yearly, monthly, and weekly contracts will be issued, as well as family tickets, students' and artists' tickets, and special rates will be arranged for the admission of schools of children. Mr. Cross, who will be the sole proprietor and director of the zoological department, is taking up his residence in Southport.

Mr. Testo, who has been in the village of Ryhill for several weeks past with his cinematograph and gramaphone worked by electricity, terminated his visit on Tuesday evening, when he gave his final display in aid of the refreshment stall for the coming Wesleyan bazaar, the sum of £2 7s. being realised.

Jenning's Theatre opens for a short season at the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, to-day.

CHAT WITH MR. CHARLES URBAN.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

A book that should prove of immense service to showmen, music hall managers, and even householders who entertain on a large scale will shortly be published by Mr. Charles Urban. It will deal with every aspect of the animated photography question. It will explain how to operate a bioscope machine, and it will afford adequate information to those who wish to make a business of cinématograph exhibitions as to what official—County Council or Municipal—regulations have to be conformed to. The price of the volume will be one shilling, and we should judge that it will be a veritable cinématograph dictionary.

"Urbanora" is now a distinctive and welcome feature of the programme at the Alhambra, Leicester-square, and many other managers of theatres of variety might, with advantage to themselves and their patrons, follow the example set by London's "home of ballet." "I warrant," said Mr. Charles Urban in an interview with the writer, "that fully one-third of the people who go to the Alhambra go to see the pictures. I think the provincial managers are ignoring a good opportunity in not running first-class cinematograph shows themselves. For a comparatively small sum of money 'Urbanora' pictures can be shown at any provincial music hall, and for that small sum we would give the most up-to-date pictures, as well as illustrations of local events on the same night as they occurred."

The Charles Urban Trading Company seems to have dealt with everything under the sun in their wonderful representations by animated photography. What more interesting to the entomologist than their series depicting the quaint denizens of the insect world? Here we see the almost incredible feat of an ant bearing a globe 800 times as heavy as itself. Then, the beautiful sight of the birth of a butterfly—the pupa bursting, the wings growing and expanding from mere crumpled masses, and the butterfly finally opening its gorgeously-coloured wings ready to take flight. Next, visits to birdland, to beastland, and reptile-land—what a veritable Noah's Ark in counterfeit presentment it is! Again, to those who cannot afford the trip, what more attractive than the long panorama of scenes illustrative of the various phases on board an ocean liner on its voyage from Southampton to Buenos Ayres? Here we see the anchor being weighed, the ship passing the Needles, the change of the watch, five-o-clock tea on the promenade deck, a cricket match on the main deck, and the magnificent harbour of Rio de Janeiro, with the forts realistically firing a salute. Or, to stir the blood of any perfervid Scot, we get a graphic portrayal of the splendid volunteer review at Edinburgh last September. Considering the interest which the public is at present taking in the forthcoming launch of the Dreadnought, the magnificent series of pictures showing the progress of a warship on "the stocks" is of special significance. And these are not all. Comedy and pathos, business and pleasure, wars and rumours of wars, demonstrations of peace, life in the Army, the Navy, the office, the workship, and the theatre all find a place in Mr. Urban's wonderful gallery.

And how is this encyclopædia of incidents compiled? Mr. Urban tells us that he has fourteen men in different countries. But, be it understood, before he sends any of his emissaries forth he himself makes a careful study of all the information available as to the scenes of their future operations so as to give them, as far as possible, explicit directions in regard to the phases of local life which he wishes depicted. So it is that we get these scenes from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands. "The study of books on these various lands and peoples," remarked Mr. Urban, "is the most fascinating part of the work. Some of my plans? Well, I am sending an expedition into Bolivia. I am afraid my representatives will have an interesting if not an exciting time there, as some of the native tribes have rather an evil reputation. Then I am going over the new Canadian-Pacific line, on which the journey to Yokohama is completed within twenty-four days. In regard to our Canadian pictures, Lord Strathcona said that they had done more for Canada than anything else."

It is anticipated that the Urban films may, at some future date, be used by the Board of Education for conveying to youthful minds never-to-be-forgotten impressions of animal life and general geographical knowledge.

The realisation of the very great importance of teaching through the agency of the eye as well as the ear has revolutionised educational methods and swept away the old dry-as-dust, pedantic ways of imparting knowledge for ever. In these days of keen competition and of competitive examinations it is of vital importance that the teacher shall not only be thoroughly up-to-date in his methods, but that he shall be able to impart instruction in a way that will hold the attention of his students, and enable them to clearly grasp and remember the subject. This can only be successfully accomplished by apt illustration. Every teacher, no matter what may be his subject, knows full well that the lecture or lesson that is demonstrated by a graphic series of illustrations or experiments is far more vividly and permanently impressed upon the minds of the students than a simple unillustrated oration. It is therefore imperative that the teacher shall have at his command some source from which he can obtain striking, truthful, and adequate illustrations for his work.

Photography is one of the greatest and most important factors in modern education. It is the magic carpet by means of which the teacher of geography can transport his or her students to the country forming the subject of the lesson or lecture, and show them the character of the country, its inhabitants and industries, its natural life, both animal and plant, and the habits and customs of the native races. By its aid Nature study may be carried on in the heart of the great city, and pupils learn to recognise the flowers of the field, the birds, animals, and insects that dwell in valley and woodland, and observe their habits. The most important advancement in photography as an aid to teaching is the successful application of cinématography to educational and scientific subjects by Mr. Charles Urban and Mr. F. Martin-Duncan. By means of the Urban-Duncan Micro-Bioscope, a wonderful series of animated pictures of microscopic forms of life has been obtained. The entire life-history of many insects, the growth of plants, the characteristic habits and movements of animals, birds, fish, and reptiles have all been cinématographed, and a unique and most remarkable educational series of animated pictures produced.

The educational series of animated pictures form an absolutely ideal means of illustrating lectures or lessons on natural science, zoology, botany, entomology, anthropology, geography, Nature study, the great industries of the world, etc., etc. They were the first to apply animated photography to the recording of living microscopic organisms, and the Urban-Duncan micro-bioscope films are in demand all over the world, and in daily use in all up-to-date educational centres.

These films and slides have been specially prepared to meet the requirements of the Board of Education syllabus, educational and scientific establishments, lecturers, and teachers. They have received the highest commendation from Prof. Ray Lankester, F.R.S., director of the National History Museum; Sir H. Trueman Wood; Prof. H. E. Armstrong, Ph.D., LL.D., F.R.S.; Dr. Henry Woodward, F.R.S., F.Z.S.; and many other eminent scientific and educational authorities. The Urban Company have just produced a very perfect small projection outfit, suitable for use in private schools and small lecture halls, which they offer at a very reasonable price, to meet the requirements of teachers. They are prepared to make special and advantageous terms to schools, colleges, and institutes for the illustration of series of lectures on natural science, geographical, and kindred subjects.

On our own visit to the Fair at Lynn last week we were made aware of the intimate business relations between our fairs and pleasure resorts and the passenger traffic on the railways. From Peterborough right down to King's Lynn we saw posters announcing the facilities the Great Northren and the Midland were giving the public to journey down to the historic Lynn Mart, and we saw the great crowds of visitors from all parts of East Anglia to the Pleasure Fair.

From all parts of England, Ireland, and Wales, and even from the United States, we found showmen gathered at Lynn. The principal shows and roundabouts made long railway journeys to begin the spring season at Lynn, and altogether King's Lynn proves to the hilt an argument we have before adduced that the pleasure and holiday traffic on our great railways is largely owing to the fairs and local holidays of the people, in which the travelling showman plays the all-important part of perpetuating and improving.

Showmen and roundabout proprietors would do well to make a note of the fêtes, galas, and wakes, &c., in the Evesham and Redditch district during the summer months. In the Evesham district fêtes, &c., are held at the following places, viz.:—Alderton, Badsey, Bidford, Bretforton, Blockley, Bishampton Broadway, Campden, Dumbleton, Elmley Castle, Fladbury, Harvington, Ilmington, Mickleton, Offenham, Pinvin, Quinton, Snowshill, Willersey, &c. In the Redditch district, at Astwood Bank, Alvechurch, Besley, Studley, Feckenham, Inkberrow, Hanbury, Crabbs Cross, Headless Cross, &c.

At Bloxham there are Mr. A. Tiller's marionettes, bioscope, and varieties.

One of the unforeseen results of the gathering together of the organised showmen of the Empire for trade defence has been the very considerable increase in railway travel by show-folk in all parts of the kingdom. For Manchester, London, and Lynn the various railway companies make a special feature of affording facilities for showman travel. With regard to London, the showmen's pilgrimage to the heart of the empire coincides with the holiday stream of pleasure-seekers, but the railways recognise the importance of the show contingent, and always, by arrangement with the Showmen's Guild Executive, fix their long-date excursions from all the country at the time of the showmen's meeting at the World's Fair, Islington.

Mr. Lyndon Greenwood may be congratulated on his rapid promotion on Monday last to the position of acting manager at the Islington Empire. He was only appointed assistant manager of that house on Feb. 5, a fortnight previously. An excellent programme at Islington has been presented throughout the week, and Mr. T. E. Dunville and other "stars" are drawing big audiences.

Lovers of good music who in the season frequent Folkestone have cause to rejoice, Mr. Karl Kaps' band having been again engaged to play on the Leas during the ensuing summer months.

Mr. David Day is shortly issuing a stirring march song, by Kenneth Lyle, entitled "The Beat, Beat, Beat of the Drum." "The Statue in Trafalgar Square," written by George Arthurs, and "A Dream of Old Algiers," by J. Francis Barron are notable examples of Mr. Lyle's musical attainments.

Mr. Tom Costello, ever on the look-out for novelties, has secured a comic character song entitled for the nonce "The Ten Bob Rise." He will portray in the ditty an abject, crushed "houseworm" of a husband, the slave of a domineering virago of a wife. The song is being set to music by Bennett Scott, and is by the author of "If it wasn't for the 'ouses in between."

SHOWMEN AT DINNER.

Messrs. Savage Brothers, of King's Lynn, the well-known patentees and makers of roundabouts and showmen's requisites generally, claim the majority of showmen in the kingdom as their customers. As many showmen are now attending Lynn Mart, and others are in the town making arrangements for their year's tour, Mr. T. R. Ronald, one of the members of the firm, took the opportunity of entertaining several of these gentlemen to dinner in the Assembly Rooms of the Town Hall, on the 16th inst. Seldom has a more jovial party assembled in the handsome and historic old rooms, and all spent a very pleasant evening. Mr. Ronald, unfortunately, was unable to be present, but he wrote expressing his regret, and wishing his guests a most prosperous season. The firm's manager, Mr. W. J. Affleck, presided, and among the guests were the Mayor (Alderman E Dunn), the Deputy-Mayor (Alderman F. J. Carpenter), Chief Constable W. G. Payne, Mr. J. W. Woolstencroft (Town Clerk), Rev. R. Gordon Roe, Messrs. C. Quennell, J. Watson Wright (solicitor Van-Dwellers Association), T. Hurst (secretary), P. Collins, J. Collins, Smith, Warren, W. Davies, H. R. Hibbert, H. Strickland, T. Clarke, J. Bostock, B. Howden, sen. and jun., J. Wilmot, W. Holmes, W. F. Terry, G. Green, T. Harniess, H. J. Wallis, B. Mitchell, W. Mitchell, jun., J. Green, W. Mitchell, H. Studt, Jacob Studt, John Studt, Jeffreys, J. Polsey, A. Twigdon, C. G. Rix, W. Wilkinson, and A. R. Dresser.

The loyal toasts and also the healths of the Mayor and Deputy-Mayor and the Corporation of Lynn were drunk with much enthusiasm.

MR. CARPENTER, Deputy-Mayor, replying to his health, said the Mart was one of the greatest boons the town had. The van-dwellers gave Lynn the first call in the whole kingdom, and this meant a profit to the town. He did not care what anyone said, the van-dwellers had upheld the town for the last thirty or forty years. The borough just now was lying under a deep cloud, and he did not think the showmen would do so well as they ought to, but he hoped they would.

THE CHAIRMAN, in proposing "Success to the Showmen's Guild and the Association of Roundabout Proprietors and Van-Dwellers," said they were two worthy societies that had done an immense amount of good amongst the travelling public. It was very kindly said by the Mayor at the opening of the Mart that all the churches, chapels, and schools were open to the van-dwellers with welcome, and this showed the good feeling that existed between the public and the travellers. Years ago, undoubtedly, all of the travellers' class were looked on with very great suspicion, but to-day they were known as a reliable, honest, and trustworthy people, who commanded the respect and trust of everyone in every town. To the Associations he wished the very best of prosperity; might they go on and prosper in the future even more than they had done in the past. The firm he represented would be very pleased to have their names put down as honorary members.

MR. T. HURST, responding, said it used to be said that showmen could not combine, but it had been shown that they could, and the results of their combining and standing up for their rights had been splendid.

MR. WATSON WRIGHT also responded. He said Mr. Hurst had the respect of every member of both Associations. The company were deeply indebted to Messrs. Savage Brothers, through their principal representative and the showmen's dear old friend, Mr. Affleck, for they all appreciated the opportunity and privilege of coming into that historic hall and dining with the official head of the old, important, and historic borough of Lynn. Showmen were welcome here and welcome everywhere in England. Why? Because as individuals they had proved that they were worthy to rank equally with the best citizens of the Empire. He ventured to say that when, in a large and important borough like King's Lynn, an old and loyal borough, the showmen met the Mayor, Aldermen, magistrates, chief constable, and other authorities at dinner, it was a lesson to other corporations who criticised and found fault with men of their (the showmen's) character, standing, and ability. The flourishing firm of Savage Brothers was busily engaged, for the benefit of the town of King's Lynn, in making appliances for showmen to do what they had the right and title to do—to find pleasure and amusement for the people of the country, which the people appreciated, and would have. Mr. Affleck was a personal friend of all the showmen, and with him and the gentlemen who were now associated with him, at Savage Brothers, showmen could rest assured that all they required would be supplied to them. Since the Van-dwellers Association was formed in 1889, it had been constantly at work endeavouring to prevent County Councils and Town Councils from harassing and interfering with showmen in their business. Since 1900 the Association had opposed fifty Bills before Parliament, and not one of these was now on the Statute Book. That was something to be proud of, and it showed that travellers had the respect of the Imperial Parliament. After commenting on the fact that her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and King Edward VII. had bestowed several presents on Lord George Sanger as a mark of their appreciation for his work of catering for the public amusement, Mr. Wright concluded by wishing prosperity to the borough, to Messrs. Savage Brothers, and the showmen, saying he believed it to be for the good of the Empire that all respectable citizens should prosper.

CHIEF CONSTABLE PAYNE, replying to the toast of his health, proposed by MR. BOSTOCK, said that during the early part of his eighteen years' police service, the police, when a van was stopping at a place, kept a sharp eye on the van-dwellers, because they imagined that the poultry and rabbits were going. It was different now, because people had learnt to discriminate between the van-dweller and the hanger-on, who kept about on the off-chance of getting a job, and was the man the van-dwellers often got blamed for. Showmen did not only come to Lynn for the business they did at the Mart. Their appliances needed overhauling and repairing; they brought them here to be attended to, and so, by giving employment, helped to pay the town's rates. If they could give him any ideas they had picked up in the course of their travels as to the regulation of traffic, accommodation at the Mart, &c., he should be pleased to do what he could for them.

MR. HARRY STUDT, who spoke first in Welsh and then translated his remarks into English, proposed the health of the chairman, which was very cordially received.

The CHAIRMAN said he or anyone else on the firm would always be only too pleased to assist the showmen in any way they could. They always treated their customers in a fair and square manner, and their work was always of the best. Their prices might be a little higher than other people's, he did not deny it; but they were not so very much higher, and those they dealt with always got value for money.

The healths of Messrs. C. Quennell and C. G. Rix (of Savage Brothers) and the Press were also drunk.

Mr. Pollsey, of Birmingham, promised to give 2 guineas to the Van-dwellers Association.

OWING to the enormous success of 'Appy 'Amstead, Mr. Walter Gibbons has booked Mr. Joe Elvin's No. 2 company for this great production; commencing on Monday at the Islington Empire. Mr Maitland Marlan has been especially engaged to play Mr. Elvin's part of Tommy Flipper, the retired bookmaker.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The Vanderbilt Cup, produced at the Broadway Theatre on the 16th inst., is the first of the automobile plays, of which we may now expect a series, the success of this one being most emphatic. Time was when the author would have called it a musical comedy, but this is the era of the motor car, so the piece is described as "a new eight-cylinder comic machine, carrying three shoes and eight tubes." Mr. Sydney Rosenfeld wrote the book, and Mr. Raymond Peck the lyrics; while the music was composed by Mr. Robert Hood Bowers. Miss Elsie Janis, a girl of seventeen, who jumped into popularity very suddenly last summer through her cleverness as a mimic, made her début as a Broadway "star" in this production, and scored a personal success of the first magnitude. Miss Janis appears under the management of that ardent motorist Mr. George C. Tyler, of Messrs. Liebler and Co., who traverses Europe at intervals in his "machine."

THE story runs as follows:—Dorothy Willetts is an ingenuous little country girl, who knows nothing of motor cars until her uncle, Cart Willetts, a New York millionaire, sends for her, and makes her acquainted with the countless delights of the big city. Uncle Curt has the motoring craze, and on the day after his niece arrives he takes her to see the race for the Vanderbilt Cup, which takes place on Long Island, and in which he has entered his powerful racing-car. Dexter Joyce, a wine agent, who has fallen desperately in love with Dorothy; Theodore Banting, an attorney; and Clarinda Larkspur, a young lady with a "past," attend the race, and figure prominently in the subsequent proceedings. The fair Clarinda has a number of compromising letters from Uncle Curt, and failing to realise a large sum of money on them, she contrives to win the affections of his French chauffeur, and induces him to desert his employer just before the race begins. Dorothy discovers the plot, makes her uncle promise to give her anything she may ask for if she wins the race, and orders Dexter Joyce to drive the millionaire's motor car. The young man consents, and at early dawn the entire party troop out of the hotel to the half-lighted racecourse, where a vast crowd is assembled. The race scene is tremendously effective. Through a landscape that flies past in one long, indistinguishable blur, and through two lines of wildly enthusiastic spectators, the famous motorists, "Barney" Oldfield and "Tom" Coper speed their great machines neck and neck, the scene being extremely realistic and exciting. The struggle ends in a victory for the Willetts motor car, and, of course, having been instrumental in winning the race for her uncle, Dorothy asks and obtains his consent to her marriage with Dexter Joyce, but not until she has dressed herself in boy's clothing, made love to the designing Clarinda, and obtained the compromising letters. As Dorothy Willetts, Miss Janis captivates the audience with her girlish charm and vivacity, singing and dancing with an air of enjoyment, that has the effect of keeping everyone in a good humour. In the last act her imitations of Ethel Barrymore, George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy, and other stage favourites win hearty and prolonged applause. In a scene representing the lobby of the Marjorie Wellington Hotel, there is a comic burlesque of life in a well-known hotel in this city that is occupied exclusively by women. The music is tuneful. "The little chauffeur," sung by Miss Edith Decker; "If you were I and I were you," by Miss Janis and Mr. Henry V. Donnelly; "Somewhere in the world," by Mr. Aubrey Boucicault; and "My houseboat beau," by Miss Janis, are popular numbers; and "Wine, woman, and song," rendered by Mr. Harlan, with an automobile chorus, serves to introduce a sprightly trio of dancing girls, whose gymnastic movements are enthusiastically applauded. As Mr. Boxwood, president of the gasoline trust, Mr. Jacques Kruger creates much amusement, being made up to resemble John D. Rockefeller

NEW YORK.—Feb. 7.—Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play, The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, has scored an unqualified success at Daly's Theatre. The dialogue is uncommonly bright, witty, and interesting, and the piece is admirably acted by Miss Ellis Jeffreys, Mr. Frank Worthing, Mr. Herbert Sleath, and the other members of the company. Miss Jeffreys appears as Lady Clarice Howland, a charming young widow. Her mother, the Marchioness of Headingly, and her sister, Lady Clementina Desborough, are determined that she shall marry again, and two worthy old gentlemen with lots of money are encouraged to dance attendance upon her. Lady Clarice is poor, and she admits that she will have to marry some day, but being fancy free she is no particular hurry. Colonel Raynor, an old friend of the family, takes a good deal of interest in Lady Clarice and lectures her in a fatherly way, but is not supposed to be in love with her. The fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt (Mr. Frank Worthing), for whom Lady Clarice evinces a partiality which causes her mother and sister much uneasiness, is extremely attractive to women, and finds his chief pastime in encouraging their admiration. Lady Clarice is apparently a rather frivolous woman, but she has too much good sense for Mr. Vanderveldt's fascinations to have any effect upon her, and merely tolerates him because he is more amusing than either of the serious-minded old gentlemen favoured by her relatives. Lady Clarice proves that she is not as heedless as she is supposed to be by spoiling one of Mr. Vanderveldt's intrigues with a married woman, and the fascinator conceives the idea of capturing his fair monitress. So he tells her that he is going away, and asks her to take a farewell ride with him in his motor-car. Lady Clarice consents, and at a distance of fifty miles from home he pretends that the car is disabled. They take refuge at an inn, where they learn that they are seventeen miles from the nearest railway station. After Lady Clarice has failed to procure a horse and found it impossible to communicate in any way with her friends, Mr. Vanderveldt confesses that it is all a plot of his own to compromise her, so that she will have to marry him. He shows her the "sparking plug," the removal of which from the machine has caused the apparent breakdown. Lady Clarice takes his confession good-humouredly, but whilst she is laughing over the situation she is wondering how she can outwit her companion. Her opportunity comes when he leaves her for a few minutes and the village clergyman happens in. She has kept the little plug that makes the wheels go round, and the parson confesses that he can drive a motor-car. At first he refuses, but his scruples are overcome when he discovers that Lady Clarice is the widow of a college friend whose athletic prowess has won his undying admiration. So while the fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt is unpacking the hamper that he has thoughtfully provided, the lady is whisked off to the railway-station in his motor-car. There is some excellent comedy in this, the best scene of the play. Lady Clarice reaches home on the following morning, and her scandalised relatives treat her with so much suspicion that she refuses to give an account of herself. The two suitors, being highly respectable old gentlemen, shake their heads and withdraw. Colonel Raynor is the only one who believes in her. He has loved Lady Clarice all along, and has wanted to tell her so, but she has always laughed at his serious face and put him out of patience with her. This time, however, she listens, and the fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, who turns up all unabashed after his futile expedition, is just in time to witness her betrothal to the Colonel. As Lady Clarice Miss Jeffreys gives a delightful portrayal of a charming woman of society upon whom the cares of life sit lightly, and fully confirms the agreeable impression she made during her previous engagement in this city.

MR. JAMES K. HACKETT recently interrupted the long run of The Walls of Jericho at the Savoy Theatre in order to produce a new play, by Herman K. Viele, called The House of Silence. This is the name bestowed upon an old manor house on the coast of Brittany, where an aged artist named Gravin dwells with his young wife Beatrice. In the prologue, the action of which takes place on the cliffs, the only servant, Victor, the gardener, kills old Gravin by pushing him over a precipice into the sea, being prompted apparently by a double motive—a passionate fondness for his mistress and a hatred of his master. Fearing that she will be suspected of complicity in the crime, Beatrice suffers it to be regarded as an accident, and remains secluded in the House of Silence, being looked upon as a witch by the simple fisherfolk. She visits the village occasionally, but at such times she dons a peasant's gown, and is not recognised by the villagers. At the door of the church she encounters a young American artist, Paul Gregory, and theirs is a case of love at first sight. Victor, the gardener, offends the villagers, and Gregory shields him from their fury, imposing the condition that he be allowed to use the garden of the House of Silence as a studio. Installed there, the artist woos the lovely Beatrice at every opportunity, and Victor is made mad with jealousy. After a quarrel with the artist he is locked out, but he finds admittance to the House of Silence through an upper window. A storm is raging without, and Beatrice is entertaining her lover before a cheery wood fire, when Victor creeps down the stairs and sees the pair embracing each other. He declares that he will put an end to both of them, and seizes a big scythe, but in the same moment he is struck by lightning and killed. Mr. Hackett gave a grim and impressive portrayal of the surly and revengeful gardener, and Miss Mary Mannering was a charming Beatrice, the American artist being represented by Mr. Edwin Arden. The play was withdrawn after a few performances, and The Walls of Jericho will be allowed to pursue the even tenor of its way until next week, when the English comedy Mr. Hopkinson is due at the Savoy Theatre.

"THE GALLOPER," a farce in three acts, by Richard Harding Davis, recently produced at the Garden Theatre, has won the approval of the Press and the public chiefly because it provides the favourite comedian, Mr. Raymond Hitchcock, with a suitable rôle. The scenes are laid in Athens, at the time of the Graeco-Turkish War. Copeland Schuyler (Mr. Hitchcock), a wealthy New Yorker, follows Grace Whitney, a trained nurse, to Greece, and pretends to be a well-known war correspondent named Kirke Warren in order that he may be near her. In carrying out this deception he lands himself in all sorts of difficulties, the said Warren being pursued by his divorced wife, a soubrette known as the "Human Fly," to whom he owes alimony. Then there is a widow to whom he has proposed marriage also on the war-path; and, to add to his troubles, he is involved in a misunderstanding with the Foreign Legion, and is burdened with the demonstrative gratitude of the Cretans, whose revolutionary plans he has furthered. Schuyler takes all of these responsibilities upon himself when he assumes the name of Warren, and has a lively time of it before he succeeds in extricating himself from his difficulties. Schuyler, the nurse, two English war correspondents, and the "Human Fly" are all captured by the Turks, and the latter, fearing a bombardment by the Greeks, permit one of the party to ride into the enemy's lines to apprise them of the presence of women. Schuyler is the chosen messenger, and he gallops away in a rainstorm. Finally, he wins the nurse, and is decorated by the Greeks for bravery. As the pretended war correspondent Mr. Hitchcock's drollery has full play, and his characterisation proves highly amusing. Mr. Harold Vizard is excellent in the comedy rôle of a stammering, self-important correspondent of a London newspaper, and Mr. L. Rogers Lytton acquits himself well as another English journalist. Miss May Buckley gives a clever impersonation of the "Human Fly." Mr. Edgar L. Davenport as the real Kirke Warren and Miss Nanette Comstock as Grace Whitney play their parts well.

ON Mr. Frank Parker's birthday last Saturday he was presented by his staff with a splendid walnut "surprise card-table," richly adorned with solid silver hammered fittings on the exterior, and fitted in the interior with the following silver-mounted articles:—3 cut-glass, silver-mounted liqueur glasses, 12 liqueur glasses, 6 Copeland china coffee-cups, and silver-mounted holders and spoons. Mr. Hal Forde made a neat little speech in making the presentation, on behalf of the staff, artists, stage staff, &c., including Among the Stars company. This splendid table was ornamented with the crest of the London Hippodrome inlaid with silver in one corner and Mr. Parker's own monogram in the other.

IN addition, the popular "Frank" was the recipient of a silver and cut-glass claret jug from Miss Marguerite Doris, a silver-plated syphon-holder from Mr. and Mrs. F. Percival, and a silver-mounted paper-knife and book-market from some of the ladies. Mr. Hal Forde, who again did the amiable, said, "On behalf of a few friends I have the honour to present you, as a token of regard, a small birthday present. When you are at home on Sunday, dear old guv'nor, having your usual cup of coffee—and a liqueur—may you always find remembrances of the people you have had working for and with you, and when you are in dreamland 'among the stars' may you never see spotted troglodytes. Mr. Parker, who never can reply when he is taken by strategy, could only say "God bless you."

A DELIGHTFUL rendering of Harrington and Tate's charming song, "We'll be Married in Primrose-time," is nightly being given by the Dandies at the London Coliseum; and the enterprising Monte Carlo Publishing Co., which publishes the song in its "Sixpenny Successes," has received large orders from the trade for this number, during the past fortnight, while the daily sales in the auditorium of the Coliseum have been correspondingly large.

MR. EUGENE STRATTON has just accepted from Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate an ear-haunting "romance of life Down South," with the quaint title "De Whitewashed Coon," which he will produce during his forthcoming Stoll tour.

MR. ALEC HURLEY has just accepted for production, in the near future, a new scena, of intensely human interest, entitled The Neglected. This novelty is written by Mr. John P. Harrington, while appropriate music has been specially composed for it by that master of melody, Mr. Jas. W. Tate.

"COPPELIA," the most charming production of Léo Délibes, which Mr. George Edwardes promises us at the Empire in Easter week, first saw the footlights at the Paris Opéra on May 25, 1870. The composer had greater ambition than to write merely the music for ballets, and on May 24, 1873, he produced at the Opéra-Comique a work in three acts entitled Le Roi l'a Dit, which, in spite of the grace and charm of the first act, has not had a lasting success. After this Délibes returned to the Opéra, where he produced a grand mythological ballet, Sylvia, on June 14, 1876, which confirmed his superiority in dance music. He still hankered, however, after the higher walks of composition, and wrote Jean de Nivelle and Lakmé for the Opéra-Comique. He died in Paris on Jan. 16, 1891.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Kind expressions from Authors and Managers.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT.

"I congratulate you on your 'Fifty Years of the Drama': the list must prove both interesting and useful to lovers of and workers for the stage."

MR. GEORGE EDWARDES.

"I think the new feature of The Era is most interesting and useful. A list of plays produced from 1850 to 1900 will certainly be of great service to a very large number of your readers."

MR. EDWARD TERRY.

"An admirable idea, and will prove a most valuable record."

MR. FRANK CURZON.

"Your list, I think, will be most useful for reference."

MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD.

"I think the list will be immensely useful."

MR. SYDNEY GRUNDY.

"Your list will be exceedingly useful. But, of course, there is no reason why old titles should not be used again. Indeed, some day we shall have to go back to them. Some of our modern titles, when they are not mere proper names with an adjective attached, display the desperation of the dramatist in too ludicrous a light. Such a title as 'The Importance of Being Earnest' amounts to a misdemeanour."

MR. ARTHUR W. PINERO.

"The list of plays produced during the last half-century is a most valuable record. The thanks of those interested in the theatre are due to The Era for this and many other enterprises."

MR. ALFRED SUTRO.

"The list you are compiling will be of very great benefit, and I am looking forward to the time when it shall be complete, and obtainable in pamphlet form."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

"I have watched with the greatest interest the progress of your alphabetical list of the plays published during the last half of the nineteenth century. It is a most useful undertaking, and when it appears in volume form, it must prove of great value to all who are concerned with the drama."

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

"The list of plays will be very interesting and useful when published in complete form. The etiquette of the profession apparently still allows of novelists' titles being used by playwrights. Thus, The Master, which will appear in your list as a play by somebody else, is the name of a book of mine; while the new play, Noah's Ark, has the same title as a shorter story of mine."

MR. ARTHUR LAW.

"The publication in The Era of a list of plays produced during the fifty years, 1850-1900, is an excellent idea, and will be most useful to authors who may be in doubt as to their right to a certain title. When it is issued in book form I shall be very glad to possess a copy."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER.

"Mr. Arthur Bourchier thinks the list very useful indeed."

MR. TOM GALLON.

"Your idea seems to me to be a most excellent one. Quite apart from the fact that there is always a difficulty in knowing what titles have been used, there very often arises the question of when and where a play was actually produced—a question difficult to be answered. Actors and authors should alike be grateful to The Era."

MR. HAROLD MONTAGUE.

"I think the idea of printing a list of plays produced during the last fifty years an excellent one. It should be of great value to authors."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY.

"The list of produced plays was not merely a happy thought, for the same idea has probably occurred to many, though until The Era carried it out no one took the pains to collect and publish such a truly valuable record.

"Managers, dramatists, as well as would-be authors, will henceforward have a long list of titles to refer to, and there will be neither reason nor excuse for encroaching on pre-existing copyright in play titles. What a lot of trouble it should save us all!"

MR. WALTER MELVILLE.

"I think it shows great enterprise on the part of your journal, and likely to prove most useful and at the same time interesting to the general profession."

MR. ARTHUR MORRISON.

"The list you are publishing will be a most valuable work of reference to everybody taking an interest in the stage, and I have no doubt that when it is published as a book you will find its success warrant you in issuing fresh editions from time to time, with the information brought to date in each case."

MR. J. J. DILLEY.

"The idea is an excellent one, and there can be no question at all of the usefulness of such a summary. Cousin Grace has not been included. This is a little piece from the French, played at a matinée performance at the Gaiety Theatre, Dec. 4, 1884."

MR. COSMO HAMILTON.

"I think that your new feature is an excellent and most useful one. A list of plays produced during fifty years is interesting not only to the playgoer, but essentially so to the manager and the playwright. They will only have to consult it to be sure that a title has not been used before."

MR. CHARLES H. E. BROOKFIELD.

"My attention has been called to your list of plays produced between 1850-1900. I have no doubt it will prove interesting and useful to many."

MR. F. FRANKFORT MOORE.

"The list of plays produced during the past fifty years, now appearing in The Era, will, I am certain, prove, when completed, extremely valuable to everyone associated with the drama in England. I am convinced—and I have had a considerable amount of experience in this direction—that it will be especially valued by all writers upon stage matters. The advantage of being able to refer at a moment's notice to the criticisms upon the production of various plays in various newspapers must be apparent to everyone. If such a list had been in existence some years ago, I would have been saved a vast amount of worry and vexation of spirit. The Era has once again proved itself appreciative of the conditions under which the best interests of the drama in England are maintained."

MR. LOUIS N. PARKER.

"I think your list of plays, produced between 1850 and 1900, will, like the other contents of your paper, be invaluable."

FRED KARNO'S COMPANIES.

Unprecedented and instantaneous success of the Military Burlesque entitled:

"THE THIRSTY FIRST."

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS OPINIONS.

Era, Feb. 3, 1906.—Brimful of bustle and excitement, there is no departure from an welcome a rule. . . . . With such a wealth of elaboration it was nothing less than remarkable that the fun—all performed in dumb show—should be kept going so briskly. . . . . The sketch was received with uproarious laughter, and forms a successful beginning to Mr. Karno's new enterprises.

Daily Telegraph, Feb. 6, 1906.—"The Thirsty First," which is the leading item in the Canterbury programme this week. . . . proves very good fooling.

Entr'acte, Feb. 10, 1906.—The name Karno has become quite a Hall mark of excellence in connection with Music Hall Burlesques. There are plenty of laughs in the new production, which is of the pantomimic order—not a word being spoken throughout the three scenes. The idea is a burlesque upon Tommy Atkins—the Tommy Atkins of the comic papers. The fun is kept going by an efficient company, and should be another "screamer."

South London Mail, Feb. 9, 1906.—"The Thirsty First" will bear favourable comparison with any of this "fun" merchant's previous efforts. . . . . For sheer merriment this production will long remain the funniest sketch seen on the variety stage.

Eastern Post, Feb. 17, 1906.—"Fred Karno's latest pantomimical production, "The Thirsty First," is really worth everybody going to see."

In active preparation.
LONDON SUBURBIA

HERBERT DARNLEY

Submits his Company of COMPREHENSIBLE COMEDIANS in

"MOVING IN,"

THE SCREAMING SKIT ON DOMESTIC DERANGEMENT.

This Clever, Clean Pantomimical Production has made

THE GREATEST HIT

of any comic dumb show since the days of "Love in a Tub."

OR

"MOVING IN"

The Referee says: "Laughter was holding both his sides—to say nothing of occasionally rolling out of his seat—nearly the whole of the time I spent on Wednesday night at The Empress. The principal persons guilty of thus setting Brixtonians on the broad grin were Herbert Darnley's Co. in 'Moving In.' Mr. Darnley, its author, has told his story in dumb show. It is a screamingly funny interlude."

The Era says: "This is a lively bustling piece. . . . an effective finale to an exceedingly lively production.

"MOVING IN"

Has not received one condemnatory notice.

Bookings include

THE MOSS-STOLL EMPIRES, MR. WALTER GIBBONS' HALLS, MESSRS. LIVERMORE'S PALACES, &c., &c.

"MOVING IN,"

The "Ace of Diamonds" in Drawing Cards.

Unbroken run from the Production Week, "Hip," Eastbourne, Dec. 18th, 1905, until July 16th, 1906, and then merely a few odd weeks vacant.

"MOVING IN,"

Invented and Arranged by
HERBERT DARNLEY,
Author and Composer (or part author) of the following successes:

"His Majesty's Guests," "Dandy Thieves," "Moses & Son," "A Father of 90," "One of the Girls," "Saturday to Monday," "The New Leaf," "A Race for a Wife," "Chang," and others, including the late DAN LENO'S greatest successes "Mr. Wix of Wickham," "Mrs. Kelly," "Tower of London," "Clever Mr. Green," "Buying a House," &c.

HERBERT DARNLEY

Acknowledges the splendid work of his LOYAL LITTLE COMPANY,
CHAS. H. BELL, JOHNNY DOYLE,
CLARA BELL,
HERBERT BELMORE, STEANE LOUGH,
FRANK MARNEY,
ARTHUR BLUNT, E. A. JOHNSTONE,
TIM McDONAGH,

W. G. BAXLEY, F. G. TALBERT.
Manager ... ... HERBERT BELMORE.
Secretary ... ... BERT HALDANE.

HERBERT DARNLEY

will shortly produce a New Military Pantomimical Skit, entitled

"THE SKIRMISHERS,"

OR,

"THE RAW RECRUITS,"

A Wordless Comedy without a tinge of vulgarity.

A WARNING.

is a copyright production, and Mr. Herbert Darnley's solicitors are Messrs. F. Lamartine Yates & Co, 40, Chancery Lane, W.C.

This Week, EMPIRE, HOLLOWAY.
Next Week, EMPIRE, NEW CROSS.

LIFE ON BOARD SHIP.

Scenes in the daily life of the different class passengers. Through the Suez Canal. Scenes, views, and objects of interest along the banks. Sighting other vessels. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

WHEN THE MASTER'S AWAY.

Dressing for the theatre. Departure. The servants' jolly half hour. Making free with the master's good things. The "professor" at the piano. A lively dance. The lost necklace. The search. The return home of the master and mistress. Grand collapse of servants. Very amusing. About 180ft. The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

THE MINIATURE THEATRE.

The boy's visit to the toy bazaar. The purchase. The miniature theatre. Invitations to the performance. The stage, showing a fine selection of mechanical toys, all working. The devastating motor car; its journey through the country, up and down hills, over bridges and precipices. It runs through a barber's shop, and finishes up by dropping through the roof of a dancing academy. Arrest of the chauffeur by the police. Trial and sentence. This is a most ingenious arrangement of mechanical toys, amusing and interesting to old and young alike. About 344ft. The Subject, £8 12s. 0d.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

The lazy servant and the dusting brush. A fit of energy. The dancing chairs and statues. The revolving table. The disappearing meal. Attempted capture and very amusing result. Funny throughout. About 180ft. The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE.

Conjugal honour. What happened while the husband was absent. Discovery. Involuntary murder. Conscience speaks. Visions of the murdered husband gradually cause the insanity of the lover, who ultimately dies, killed by his conscience. About 275ft. The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

TIT-FOR-TAT.

A series of magnificent transformation scenes in brilliant colours. The butterfly catcher. His adventures. Examining the butterflies under a microscope, first pinning them to a cork. He is captured by the butterfly fairies, who try him and sentence him to be tortured in the same way as he tortured the butterflies. He is then seen through a microscope pinned to a cork. He promises never again to pursue his sport, and after breaking his nets, &c., he parts on very friendly terms with those who taught him a well-deserved lesson. Very fine effects. About 330ft. The Subject, £8 5s. 0d. Colouring extra nett £4 2s. 6d.

THE HEART GOVERNS THE HEAD.

An unwilling bride. The secret lover. The ceremony. The lady's refusal to sign. Stormy interview with parents. Departure for Convent. The elopement in a motor-car. Four years later. The happy family. The mother's letter. The little child causes father to relent. Reunited at last. About 540ft. The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

THE INGENIOUS DAUBER.

Starving painter has brilliant idea. The begging model reaps a good harvest, and the ingenious one is well satisfied. Very amusing. About 214 ft. The Subject, £5 7s. 0d.

THE TRACEDY OF THE SAWMILL.

One of the finest melodramatic stories we have produced. The first scene depicts the work going on in large up-to-date saw-mills, machinery in full swing. Lunch whistle goes, and men prepare to depart. There enters the sweetheart of one of the workmen and her young sister. The foreman of the works, however, is also in love with the workman's sweetheart, and talks to the young workman to distract his attention while handing written offer of marriage to the girl. She repulses his attentions and thereby increases his jealousy, and anger for the young workman. Scene 2.—The foreman arranges to meet the girl in the open, and there again proposes marriage. She again refuses, and he endeavours to do her violence. The young lover comes on the scene, and fights the foreman. Foreman swears vengeance, and arranges with an accomplice to do him harm. Scene 3. Back in the workshop. The villain foreman and his accomplice strap the young man on the swiftly moving saw bench near circular saw. His sweetheart rushes in, and the foreman forces her hand on lever to start the machinery, then rushes off with her. Enter young sister, who luckily stops machinery in time. Hero thrashes villain. Grand finale. Most exciting, and of fine quality.

Length 500ft. Price, £10 12s. 6d.

No. 989.

THE BEST LITTLE GIRL IN THE WORLD.

The little girl who is the heroine of this picture is an only child, and her father's pampered darling. A poor blind man, who is one of the many usual recipients of her charity, greets her with a smile of recognition as she drops a coin into his hat and speaks a word of gentle sympathy. But a small boy has been before her and removed the crown of that hat, artfully placing his own cap underneath. The little girl notices this, and is filled with rage at the youngster's wickedness. In her anger she shakes him, but he is poor and hungry, and he tells her how at home his father is dying, and his little brothers and sisters are crying with hunger. Only half believing him, she says she will go home with him and see these things for herself. One quick look round is enough to confirm the cruel truth of the urchin's story, and now her mind is fixed only on the alleviation of the sufferings she has witnessed. All haste and anxiety, she drags the hungry boy to her father's house, and leads him straight into the presence of her wealthy parent. The father has heard these tales before, and he knows his daughter's too tender heart, but she cajoles him to give her money, and out she rushes again, with the hungry boy at her heels, to buy food and toys for the starving children. The scene in that squalid room when she arrives with her treasures is not easy to describe; the dying man is filled with joy to see his children so happy among the good things which are being lavishly distributed; and while the small children, forgetful of everything but their new-found happiness, fall to eagerly on the welcome fare before them, "the best little girl in the world" slips quietly away and leaves them to their joy.

Length 250ft. Price, £6 5s.

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION

by Mr. FRED HILTON, at the St. Annes Hotel, St. Annes-on-the-Sea, on Monday, the 12th day of March, 1906, at 6.30, for 7.30 o'clock in the evening, subject to the general conditions of the Manchester Incorporated Law Association, and to special conditions which will be then produced.

THE PREMISES KNOWN AS

THE PUBLIC HALL,

ST. GEORGE'S ROAD,
ST. ANNES-ON-THE-SEA,

and the Club known as the ST. ANNES-ON-THE-SEA DISTRICT CLUB, adjoining, together with the FIVE SHOPS in Garden-street, St. Annes-on-the-Sea, in the occupation of Messrs. Cook and Co., Verity, Dawson, and another.

The site of the premises contains 2,418 square yards or thereabouts, and is leasehold for the residue of a term of 900 years (less 60 days) from the 1st day of September, 1897, and is subject to the payment of a yearly ground rent of £150.

The premises, which were completed in 1900, are substantially built, and have been maintained in a good state of repair, the interior having been recently decorated at considerable expense. The frontages to St. George's-road and Garden-street are faced with terra cotta. The Hall affords seating accommodation for 800, and is well provided with ladies' and gentlemen's retiring rooms, crush-room, kitchens, and numerous dressing-rooms. There is also a very large stage, amply supplied with scenery and usual stage furniture, pianos, &c. The Public Hall is the only building in the district which possesses a spring floor specially laid for dancing. The premises are partly lighted by electricity, but have a complete installation of gas in case of necessity, and are heated by low-pressure hot water apparatus of a very efficient character. The Club premises contain ample and spacious rooms, with all necessary conveniences, and a house for the steward, and are let, as also are the shops, at rents which are considered to be very low for the accommodation they contain.

For further particulars, apply to the Auctioneer, 55, Market-street, Manchester, or to MESSRS. ROGERSON and SUTCLIFFE, Vendors' Solicitors,
6 St. James's-square, Manchester.

LYCEUM.

There are many Artists new to London who, perhaps, have not had an opportunity, and who may be looking forward for a chance to present itself, of giving their performance before those who are able to give them the much-desired "dates."

This time has arrived for many, as by the courtesy of a large number of Artists will be enabled to appear before those who give Contracts. Mrs. Thos. Barrasford has kindly given the use of the LYCEUM for the afternoon of

Wednesday, March 14th, and Mr. Thos. Barrasford intends giving a

ROYAL EXTRA-TURN MATINEE.

Representatives of the best Establishments and the leading Agents will be present, so that those appearing will have a rare occasion for distinguishing themselves.

Communications regarding application to appear should be addressed to—

RICHARD CASS, 30, Maiden Lane, Strand.

IN case of the non delivery of "THE ERA" by the First Post, the Publisher will be greatly obliged if Advertisers will forward their Postal Wrappers, with the time of delivery marked upon them.

A GREAT DETECTIVE STORY IN SEVENTEEN THRILLING SCENES.
The personality of Sir Conan Doyle's great character "Sherlock Holmes" is so striking, so realistic, that one scarcely realises the fact that the wonderful detective is only a hero of fiction, an imaginary personage evolved from the brain of a clever author. Mr. Gillette, the popular actor and playwright, strengthened the impression of realism by his splendid impersonation of Sherlock Holmes in the play of that name, and now the great detective is a familiar friend, admired by all, the idol of young and old, and his advent into the realm of Vitagraph drama will be warmly welcomed. Length 700ft.

1780. ADVENTURES OF RAFFLES and His Pal Bunny. Thrilling Adventures throughout. Length 900ft.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Chas. W. Poole's No. 1 Hyper-Myriorama. Mr. John R. Poole is a capable and interesting guide. Other attractions include Woolford's wrestling ponies, dogs, &c.; the Three Rochesters, in a musical performance; Mr. Harry Raymond, in his Amazonian creations; Coma, an amusing and clever juggler; Dane's Marionettes; Funny Chef, with his witticisms.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. Eade Montefiore's successful pantomime, The Babes and Robin Hood proves a big attraction this week. There are many outstanding features in the piece. The four Misses Tree dance and sing with equally telling effect, and two other quartettes of lady dancers are also heartily applauded. The leading parts are in the extremely capable hands of Miss Lulu Evans (Maid Marian), Miss Sophie Harris (Robin Hood), and Mr. J. T. Macmillan (Dame Cobbie), while the Brothers Lorenzi act very humorously as the two ruffians. Other equally successful parts are the Allan-a-Dale of Miss Edyth Goodall, Mr. F. G. Gilbert's King Richard, and Mr. William Rokeby's Sheriff. The Babes are very cleverly represented by Misses Renee Lancaster and Maisie Rawlings. The production is finely staged.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Edwin Boyde, a most resourceful and original comedian, is exceptionally popular, and an equally striking success is made by Walton and Lester, a very clever pair of comedy conjurers. The Two Kays are successful as usual, and Johnny Holland and company make a hit in their funny sketch The Millionaire. Lozelle and the Mozondos contribute exceedingly good gymnastic and acrobatic displays, and Mueller and Coyne are highly appreciated as comedians. Among the other artists are Miss Lillie Lassah, a sprightly comedienne and dancer; Miss Mina Carlton, an accomplished operatic singer; and Mr. Lade Henderson, a successful character vocalist. Vernon's Imperial Bioscope, among other novelties, introduces a graphic and interesting depiction of "A Sailor's Wedding."

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. A. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident-Manager, Mr. George W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—Miss Ada Wallis's No. 1 Company is here in the musical comedies, The Major and Sweet Marie. In the latter piece Miss Wallis plays the title-rôle with much vigour, her singing and dancing being very smart. As John Bush Mr. Tom Robertson is good; as Alfred Bush Mr. Victor Silvernie excels, his singing of "My Nightingale" being quite a feature; and as Tom Bush Mr. Harry Vernon keeps the house in roars of laughter. Miss Marie Carlton and Miss B. Vernon as Lady Violet and Lady Augusta respectively are very capable. The Sisters Valli in their dance specialities are charming and clever. Mr. T. C. McQuire is the author, and plays Lord Tofton in fine style.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This week we have Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Are You a Mason? Mr. E. H. Patterson gives an amusing impersonation of Amos Bloodgood; Mr. H. Langdon Bruce plays Frank Perry in a praiseworthy manner; and Mr. Allan Pollock and Mr. Howard L. Tracy are good in their respective parts. Miss Adelaide Grace gives a capable exposition of Mrs. Bloodgood, and Eva, Annie, and Lulu are in the capable keeping of Misses Mabel Younge, Rita Ward, and Mabel Jowett.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—An excellent bill is provided at the above hall this week. Miss Bonnie Goodwin and her Piccaninnies are smart; Tom Johnston is good; Carr and Rose are all that can be desired; Tasma receives due appreciation; the Campoens are clever duettists and dancers; Ike Scott and Son fairly bring down the house; and the Hippo. Pictures are good.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong-Fairbairn.—The popular musical comedy The Earl and the Girl is here this week, played by Mr. Wm. Greet's company. Mr. Reginald Switz, as before, is the impecunious dog-trainer, Jim Cheese, and his droll method is laughter-provoking to a degree; Jim's sweetheart Liza is admirably hit off by Miss Florence Wix; a remarkably good impersonation of character is given of Dick Wargrave by Mr. Alec Fraser; Mr. Stanley Harrison is equally happy in his assumption of the Hon. Crewe Boodle; Mr. H. B. Brandreth is very comical as Bunker Bliss; and Messrs. F. Cane and Robert Rous are capital as the American and English solicitors. Miss Mary Fraser takes first honours as the American heiress, Miss Elphin Haye; and remarkably effective as character-actresses are Miss Maud Adams as the strong lady, Miss Maude Aston as Daisy Fallowfield, and Miss Mary Morrison as Miss Virginia Bliss.

THE EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—This week's bill is headed by the banjo expert, James; and also includes Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre; Cissy Maude, comedienne; the Du Gros Trio; Moto, the musical eccentric; Will Souls, comedian; and the Marion Sisters, dainty juvenile vocalists; La Petite Voltaire, mimic and speciality dancer; Mr. Chas. Baldwin's comedians and pantomimists, in the farce Bank Clerks; and the bioscope.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—This week's attraction here is furnished by Mr. Harry Foxwell and company in the drama An Abandoned Woman. Captain Herbert Seaton, a manly hero, is interpreted by Mr. Wolston Foster; as Robert Saunders Mr. Nelson Ford is good; Mr. Harry Foxwell as Paddy Boyle causes much amusement; Mr. J. Butler in the peculiar part of Phillipe Malvoisin succeeds in realising its requirements; Mrs. Harry Foxwell gives a well-studied performance of Eleanor Dean; and Miss Doris Gilham is good as Ninian Malvoisin.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—The management here is providing a strong programme this week, headed by the Max Trevally Harley troupe of acrobats, who give a clever and novel show. Miss Beattie Foster is a dashing comedienne; the Silvester-Sansome Trio are well received in The Maiden and the Tutor, in which Miss Frances Farina gives a most amusing impersonation of a "slavey"; Mr. Arthur Croxon wins hearty applause with his admirable rendition of the "One Man Village Concert"; Mr. E. C. Clayton has an excellent selection of pictures; Anthony, as the "mysterious gentleman in white," goes well; Mr. Ventom Swift is good as the Piccadilly Coon; and Mr. Wallace Whitney is a capable comedian.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's pantomime Dick Whittington is here on a welcome return visit. There is a slight change in the cast since its last appearance, and some new songs and specialities have been introduced. Miss Grace Henderson still successfully fills the title-rôle; Miss Millie Doris makes a charming Alice, her singing and acting evoking much applause. Mr. Harry Albery is as funny as ever as Martha Muggins, and Mr. Will Dennis is excellent as Idle Jack. Amongst the specialities introduced may be mentioned the Three Marvellous Schaffers, in their equilibristic act; the Estos, contortionists; Leslie Murray, court magician; Mlle. Dora, oboe soloist; the Maros, and Miss Marie Winsome.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee is here. Mr. Frank Crimp sings well and acts finely as Harry Vereker; Mr. Bertrand Gates is effective as Boobhamba; Mr. Ethelbert Edwards is a pleasing Bobby Warren; and the irascible Sir Peter Loftus is forcibly rendered by Mr. Coop Edmunds. As Lady Patricia Vane Miss Marjorie Clarke acts with much charm; Miss Essie Perrin, as Angy, dances with grace; and Miss Winnie O'Connor is a finished Nanoya, singing her numbers with much artistic finish. Chambuddy Ram, in the hands of Mr. Lauri de Frece, is a humorous creation; and Miss Gladys Guy, as Peggy Sabine, does well.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Norman Macowan's company, with Monsieur Beaucaire, is here this week. Special mention must be made of Mr. Norman Macowan in the title-rôle. He gives an exceedingly clever rendering. Miss Marguerite Cellier is charming as Lady Mary Carlisle.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi.—Miss Daisy James, the Gibson Girl, is paying a welcome return visit here; Rastus and Banks, the coloured American artists, are a capable turn; Lord, Murray, and Lord, in their sketch, The Intruder, give an excellent gymnastic show; Miss Florence Badalle delights the audience with her charming singing; Zoroff gives a capital whistling and mimicry entertainment; and Harry Cotton is a first-class eccentric comedian.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Mr. H. Armitage's and Mr. Arthur Leigh's company is here in the late Mr. Wilson Barrett's last play, Lucky Durham. Mr. Edmund Kennedy is starred in the rôle of John Durham, his portrayal of the strong-minded millionaire being excellently sustained; Mr. Arthur Leigh has a thorough grip of the character of Reggie, his scene with Mr. Kennedy and Mr. W. F. Clitherow (Verstein) in act 3 being particularly effective. Mr. A. E. Walker does much commendable work as Mr. Vallerton; Mr. Benson North hardly realises one's idea of Lord Mountfallon, but acts with power, especially in the final act. Other gentlemen who assist in keeping the interest going are Mr. Campbell Goldsmid (Arthur Walcombe), Mr. John Hartt (Tasker), and Mr. George Lake (Jarvis). Miss Gertrude Robins makes an engaging Helen Vallerton; Lady Mountfallon is well enacted by Miss Frances Wolviston; Margaret, a candidly outspoken young lady, being brightly impersonated by Miss Florence Dulhunty. Miss Louise Gourlay plays the loveable Mrs. Durham in quite the right key.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Schubert.—A genuine success is being scored this week by Jake Friedman, the one-man opera; Kitts and Windrum, in their new society skit, provide capital entertainment; Lilian, the lady trick cyclist, outshines in daring and cleverness any similar turn seen locally; and a unique item is the appearance of Chieftain Rangiuia, the Maori singer, who secures a cordial reception; Otto and Olga provide a musical and mock operatic turn that has plenty of good points; Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and dancer, is paying a successful return visit; and Harry Luck, eccentric comedian, and Raymond's Bio-tableaux complete the bill.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—Mr. W. H. Kirby has got together a capable little company in the performance of the musical play Somebody's Sweetheart. As the heroine Miss Dot Reeve is naïve, sweet, and chic, she is a sweet singer and dainty dancer; Miss Cordelia, possessed of a good voice, renders her numbers very well, and acts the part of Zorah with skill; Miss Dora Condor plays a somewhat colourless part as well as she can, and Miss Bella Parriss does well as Miss Ainslie. Mr. W. H. Kirby fairly revels in the ridiculously funny Blabbs; Mr. Percy Maitland is strong in a heavy part; Mr. Barry Searle acts naturally and sings admirably; Mr. G. P. Lester does well as Lem Lee, and Mr. Hyland Shea gives a patient, pathetic, and touching rendering of Old Joe, a negro retainer. The scenery is adequate, and the Three Gibson Girls supply some effective acrobatic dances.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Arthur Gibbons' company in the children's pantomime Little Red Riding Hood. Miss Ruby Lester makes a sweet Red Riding Hood, and Miss Nina Terri is seen to advantage in the rôle of Maid Marion. A couple of extra turns are provided by the acrobatic dancers known as the Three French Dolls and the Swift Trio of expert cyclists.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Leigh Lovel's company is paying a return visit to this city with the delightful play The Duke of Killicrankie. In the title-rôle Mr. Guy Cary's acting throughout is very fine. No one could desire a more charming exponent of Lady Henrietta Addison than Miss Octavia Kenmore; a special word of praise is due to the clever actress, Miss Naomi Neilson, for her impersonation of Mrs. Mulholland; Mr. Lovel delights all with his sketch of Henry Pitt Welbi; Miss Celia Gordon is admirable as the Countess of Pangbourne; and Miss Ethel Savill is the housekeeper (Mrs. McBayne) to the life. Mr. Arthur Claremont makes the most of his few opportunities as Ambrose Hicks (a reporter).

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Directors, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—The chief attraction at this popular theatre is the comic operetta entitled The Belle of India, presented with every element of success by Rajah Rham Singh and company. Mr. Fred Russell, the ventriloquist, is welcome; Captain Max Gruber introduces his marvellously trained elephant, horse, and pony; and Hanvarr and Anna Lee appear in their attractive juggling speciality "The Golfer and the Maid." Also appearing are Adey Spencer, Kisbey (the Call Boy), Los Rupertos, Culpitt, and the Palace pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—The leading attraction at this popular theatre is the smart sketch A Bachelor's Dream, presented with much success by Mr. Fred Edwards and that delightful actress Miss May Edouin. A big hit has been recorded by Miss Nellie Farrell, who sings Irish songs with much fervour; Sinclair and Parr appear to advantage in their vocal item "Keeping an Appointment," their fine voices being much admired; Les Gittins and their dog supply a clever performance; and the gymnastic feats of the Fitzroys have caused quite a sensation. Also appearing are Dave McNeill (character comedian), Mr. Arthur Melrose (the popular and accomplished whistling comedian), Mr. Irving Jones, and Stephens and Rennior (vocalists and dancers).

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—Mr. J. S. Benyon, described as the "World's Champion Cyclist," heads the bill, and assisted by Miss Violet Whitworth's Cycling Girls, appears with immense success in their capital sporting act Riding to Win. The dancing of the Bros. Dean is clever; and a fine reception has been extended to Keith and Merson in their smart acrobatic absurdity "Military Manœuvres"; Ferris and Farnley, an exceedingly funny duo, raise the heartiest laughter; and Harley and Hardon, mandoline soloists, have been deservedly applauded; Mr. Charles Woodward, actor vocalist, gains the heartiest approval; and appearing with every success are Vasey and Ramsey (comedy dancers), Cristo (a wonderful illusionist), Miss Nancy Renshaw (coon vocalist), and Mr. George Rae (Scotch comedian).

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. Frank Bateman holds the stage here with his attractive drama No Wedding Bells for Her! Miss Lizzie Montague is seen to advantage in the heavy part of Lola. Mr. Stuart Lomath makes a manly fighting parson; Mr. George C. Doughty is smart as Detective Delver; in the character of Horatio Fane, Mr. A. Balfour Mackay shows his talent as an experienced actor; Miss Ida Mackay's efforts as Doris Fane are of a restrained character; and Mr. Will Skelton as Simkins and Miss Helen Stuart as Peggy fill up the comedy relief.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—In the musical comedy The Girl from Japan Mr. J. Martin Morris's company is presenting an agreeable and amusing entertainment and are attracting overflowing audiences. Mr. W. H. Moore is prominent with a clever rendering of Horatio Binks; the part of Lord Allenbury is skilfully assumed by Mr. George Hudson; Mr. Percy Baverstock is a capital General Baugh, and Mr. Charles Lupton as Sir Mulberry Flippington, Mr. Ernest Spalding as the Rev. John Smith, and Mr. Charles L. Ludlow are all capital in their respective impersonations. The title-rôle, Violet, the girl from Japan, is charmingly played by Miss Dorothy Glenton; Miss Mabel Kerridge is a good Polly Perkins; and Miss Jeannie Holmes as Lady Flippington and Miss Josephine Ellis as Maud are both thoroughly efficient. There is a wealth of supernumeraries; Miss Josephine Ellis is premier danseuse; and the orchestral arrangements are in the hands of Mr. W. H. Eveleigh.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Starr and Leslie, American speciality artists, are a prominent feature here, as also are Florence and Lilian in their elaborate musical act; Sydney James's Strolling Players are again appearing with eclat; and Mr. Fred Earle, comedian, is on a successful return visit; the Sisters Oswald, duettists and dancers, are favourites; and Mr. Hamilton Hill (vocalist), Miss Alice Ormonde (comedienne), Mr. Walter King (comedian), and a good display by the Bioscope complete the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—Aladdin gives no signs of withdrawal, its rich and various attractions being received with the enthusiasm and support due to such an elaborate and generous production. Last night (Friday) was "Students' Night," the medicos being present in full force.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Cinderella, despite its enormous success, has to be withdrawn on Saturday next to make way for other engagements. In the meantime, Messrs. Mark Sheridan, George Lashwood, Mesdames Lelia Roze, Edith Fink, and the rest of the company increase in favour nightly. Last night Miss Lelia Roze was accorded a benefit, which promised exceedingly well for this popular and princely principal boy.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Romeo and Juliet remains an abiding pleasure, and Miss Edith Turner as Juliet and Mr. Milton Rosmer as Romeo are to be richly commended for the rare quality of their acting. Mr. Vincent Clive is attracting much attention with his really brilliant personification of the merry jesting Mercutio; Mr. Sydney Arnold, besides acting excellently as Montague, has in the capacity of producer wrought the play to a fine point of perfection and beauty; and Mr. Thos. Holding as Tybalt, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave as Friar Laurence, Mr. Frederick Harker as Paris, Mrs. William Lowe as the Nurse, and Miss Lilian Revell as Lady Capulet endue their characters with the proper attributes.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Blue Beard ranks among the best successes of the year, and its reign will be one of the longest, lasting until the 17th inst., making twelve weeks in all.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—The Scales of Justice, with the clever stock company engaged therein, fully maintains the reputation of this house for healthy, clean melodrama. Mr. Felix Pitt again leads, and puts some clever acting into the part of the Spanish adventurer, Antonio Cordova. Mr. Andrew Emm on the side of comedy also does good work as Tony Wilkins; Mr. Ernest Owtrim is earnest and convincing as Harry Maxwell; Mr. Frederick Sandy wins great respect for his sterling qualities as Tom Duncan; and Mr. H. J. North as Captain Duncan and Mr. Alec Macmillan as Jack Breeze do good service. Miss Frances Ruttledge is in entire sympathy with her rôle of Mary Maxwell, which she doubles cleverly with that of Jenny Maxwell, and the Misses Florence Nelson and Evelyn Marrable shine in their well-sustained parts

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Sailors of the King, in which the famous Mr. Charles Harrington scores a legitimate hit as Admiral Drake, and who is, moreover, supported by an excellent company, has brought a most prosperous week to the Carlton. The audiences have been delighted with the manly acting of Mr. Harry Douglas as Dick Drake; Mr. F. Vernon Travers has given a capable impersonation of the villain, Orrel Drake; Miss Sylvia Stella as Felicia Thrynne has aroused much interest and sympathy; Miss Maud Digby portrays the housekeeper, Rebecca Crosby, in a meritorious manner; and Mr. W. Farnsworth, Mr. Kenneth Black, Mr. Fred Owen, Miss Maud Treymane, and Miss Hero Hathaway are eminently successful in their parts.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Cinderella, plentifully embellished with clever specialities and lovely scenery, is the attraction here, with the marvellous Pardoes and company. A most charming heroine, who speedily wins the affections of the house is found in Miss Dolly Wright, and Miss Lottie Holland has all the ability for the rôle of Prince Charming. Miss May Daventry acts in a popular style as Dandini, and the Ugly Sisters are made most diverting by Messrs. Gordon and Boxer. Mr. Tom Hulme is good as the Baron; Mr. George Hyam as Scoot, the man in possession, keeps the house in constant mirth with his clever humours; and Messrs. France and Frances, Wright and Gordon, Zenieth (the famous animal impersonator), Miss Nellie Cross and her clever quartette, Nelly Rose, and Paul Rundle's performing dogs are among the specialities.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W Matcham.—The prominent item this week is the Serenaders, a quartette of masked singers. Their entertainment is refined, and much appreciated. Richard Sawade's lions, tigers, and bears remain another week; the Boccacio Minstrels receive loud applause; Billy Hobbs is a smart dancer, and as a comedian he is very droll; the Three Victorias, vocalists and dancers, and the St. Julian Sisters are well received; Edie King is seen in an artistic vocal and terpsichorean scena; an amusing acrobatic act is given by the Tups; while Frobel and Ruge come in for a fair share of applause.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—Arthur Rigby is always sure of a big reception here. The Alexandroff Troupe of Russian Singers and Dancers give an excellent entertainment; the Three Sisters Sprightly are smart; Les Bollingers, "The Rag Painters of Paris," are original, and deserve the applause given them; the Sisters Cora, duettists and dancers, and Maxwell and Francis, duettists, are highly appreciated; Harry Champion and Bliss and Bliss are amusing comedians; and Anthy in a wire act and Fielding and Hull in their sketch conclude the bill.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Musical Johnsons head a long programme here. Their xylophone entertainment receives loud applause. As banjoists the Sisters Redfern are far above the average, as also are the Donovans. Harry Lamore, silent comedian, on the loose wire, is applauded; Harry Reynolds's Minstrel Quintette all sing well, and are appreciated; Jennie Johns is a dainty soubrette; the Louberts have a fine comedy act in Uninvited; and the Passports in their dancing speciality and Vandinoff in a clever exhibition of quick painting also contribute.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—An attractive programme this week is drawing large houses. The Cratons have a sketch, Front and Behind, which is very amusing; the musical entertainment provided by the Two Howards is well received; the Four Ramlos are comedians who cause roars of laughter; the acrobatic performance given by the Trapnell Family is exceedingly smart; and Harry Brown, coloured comedian and the Three Sisters Chester are well applauded.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Huntley.—The attraction here this week is Mr. John Leopold's company, including the world-renowned Original Leopold Acrobatic Troupe, in their farcical musical absurdity entitled New Frivolity. Mr. Watson Hume as Oliver Buckwheat is admirably suited to the character; Jules Vermiglio, the deserted husband of Madame Cobweb, is admirably handled by Mr. Wilfred Vaughan; whilst Madame Cobweb has a capable exponent in Miss Marie Ault; Mr. Barry Lupino is seen in the rôle of Samuel Vermiglio, a character of which he gives a diverting rendering; Professor Fumble is well played by Mr. Tom Leopold; Daniel Teething has a good representative in Mr. John Leopold jun.; whilst Tickle is amusingly rendered by Mr. Will Leopold. Mention is also earned by Miss Amy Hall as Lucy Buckwheat, her coon song and dance being quite an important item. The several acrobatic performances of the Leopolds are loudly encored each evening.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. J. F. Preston presents Miss Madge Nelson and company here this week with Rogues of the Turf. Mr. Preston himself takes the same important part, and as Joe Flaxman establishes himself a great favourite; Miss Nelson plays Nellie Flaxman, and is also well received; Miss Hilda Shirley shines as Lady Heathcote, and Miss Lalla Stanhope is successful as Phyllis Wurzel. Mr. Arthur Prescott carefully portrays Sir Gerald Heathcote; and Mr. Ernest R. Allen gives ample proof of his histrionic ability as the heroic Arthur Somerton; the villainous Captain Clifton is faithfully represented by Mr. Fred Emery, whilst Mr. Herbert Woodin cleverly impersonates Sam Flaxman. A stud of race-horses is a special feature of the production.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The Gay Parisienne, played by Mr. Charles Macdona's company, is here once again. The title-rôle is this time in the very capable hands of Miss Nellie Hodson, whose vivacity and charm are unquestionable; Ebenezer Honeycombe has an ideal exponent in Mr. Tom Conway; and Messrs. Charles Adeson as Major Poendyke and Mr. Charles Seguin as M. Pompier also do well in their respective parts; Miss Gwennie Harcourt plays Ruth in the most humorous manner imaginable; and Madame Ilma Norma gives a creditable rendition of Mrs. Honeycombe. The Imperial Glee Singers (Messrs. Jones, Reid, Carey, and Fitz-James) sing some pleasing quartettes, and clever skipping-rope dancing is contributed by Miss Ducie Saunderson.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Alice Hollander, the Australian contralto, tops a good bill here this week; other contributors are the Steinway Quartette, Hall and Wilson (expert bicyclists), Lilian Rigby (singer and dancer), Syd Godfrey (a very clever mimic), Richardson Taylor (whistling ventriloquist), Edie Rivers (comedienne), A. J. Rebla (comedy juggler), and My Fancy (the peerless dancer). Vernon's Imperial Bioscope is, of course, always here.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. George E. Good.—Miss Annie Bell, supported by an excellent company, has paid a successful return visit here with Sapho. Miss Bell in the title-rôle has had a most hearty reception. She gave a highly artistic and clever portrayal of the part. Mr. Pringle Roberts was a prominent figure as Jean Gausin, and as Cesare le Ferrat Mr. Francis Serle gave satisfaction. Father le Grande was ably portrayed by Mr. C. M. Daley; Mr. H. Langford played the part of Eugene Flamant with success; Mr. Lawrence Kingsley as the patron of art, Paul Dechellette, gave a vigorous performance; Miss Florence Graham as Machaume was much in evidence, and had a good reception.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company has this week presented the drama Leah Kleschna, which has been well staged and acted by a good company. Miss Pearla Gardner deserves much praise for her fine rendering of the exacting part of Leah Kleschna; Mr. George Ingleton displays great histrionic ability in the character of Kleschna; Mr. Langhorne Burton does justice to the part of Paul Sylvaine; Mr. Cyril Rawdon was good as Schram; Mr. Pat Newall made the most of the part of Raoul Berton; the rôles of General Berton, Madame Berton, Claire Berton, Valentine, and Sophie were in the capable hands of Mr. Leslie Lees, Mr. Gissing Walters, Miss Mary Barton, Miss Lilian Locke, and Miss Ida Vinnall.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—The company here comprises the Mohamed Troupe of Sousa Arabs; Amy Russell, vocalist; Billy Burns, singing Wigan pit lad; the Sultan Bros., comedy herculean acrobats and equilibrists; Harry Grey, eccentric comedian; George A. Booker and Mabel Narbis in their original comedy creation of wit and song, The Interviewer; Harry Rogerson in a new scena, Sleepy Sam; Maggie Grimshaw, juvenile male impersonator; the Gregory Comedy Trio in their screaming absurdity, The Dummy; George Foyle, vocalist; Mlle. Victoria Dagmar and Clown on the horizontal bar and gymnastic ropes; and James Willard and company in the amusing and dramatic episode, Did He Deserve It?

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Wilson.—Messrs. R. H. and W. H. Maddox are presenting Dick Whittington here. It would be difficult to find a more admirable Dick than Miss Mabel Kessler, whose singing and cornet solo playing gain her encores nightly; Miss Peggy Fame, a sympathetic Alice, plays with marked success; Mr. Dan Iyndan scores a great success as Alderman Fitzwarren; Messrs. Kempton and Pastor, as McFlip and McFlop, keep the house in roars of laughter with their quaint comicalities; Mr. Harry Howe makes a good Betsy, the cook; and Mr. Gus Granville causes endless amusement as Idle Jack. Mr. Harry Wright is a good Emperor of Morocco, his extempore song demanding numerous recalls; Mr. Fred Garrett, as King Rat, and Mr. Victor Le Glere, as the Cat, are distinct successes.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Blue-Bell in Fairyland was produced here on Monday by Messrs. Murry, King, and Clark's company. Miss Gladys Cooper made a most fascinating Blue-Bell, and was well assisted by Mr. Lawrence Emery as Dickey and Mr. David Cruickshank as Mr. Joplin. Messrs. H. C. Morton and E. Cossart worked hard in the dual parts of Blib and Blob and Will and Wont. Mr. Fred P. Allen and Miss Muriel Juin played well, the latter giving evidence of a good voice; and as the tiny sisters of Blue-Bell Miss Connie Emerald and Miss Marie Edmonds were quite successful.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The successful flight of Mother Goose will be cut short on Saturday evening, although the pantomime is in the height of its prosperity. The Floral Matinée which was held last week realised £113 for the local charities.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Dick Whittington's merry run continues with uninterrupted success. There was a crowded audience on last Monday night, the occasion being a complimentary benefit to the courteous Acting-Manager, Mr. Hepworth, who was the recipient of a large marble timepiece and bronze ornaments, presented by Mr. Lardler as a token of esteem from the staff and the members of the company, and a handsome cigar case was also handed over the footlights to Mr. Hepworth. Extra turns were contributed during the evening by the members of the company for the occasion, and also by Edie Veno (comedienne) and Frank Seeley (comedian) from the Empire Theatre.

THE EMPIRE (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Spessardy's wonderfully trained bears and ponies are seen here this week in a performance which elicits great applause, and there is great interest taken in the charming and graceful trapeze performance, with electric effects, which is submitted by Lydia and Albino; Frank Seeley in humorous style sings a capital comic song; there are many novel features in the clever gymnastic feats performed by the Hans Hansen Trio; Princess Pauline and Edie Veno are comediennes whose contributions are much in favour; the "Bounding Billiardists," Kelly and Ashby, do some clever work on a spring table; in their familiar sketch, Little Charlie and the Twin Sisters, the Arthur Lloyd Trio make a welcome reappearance; and Fred Karno's company of comedians in the boisterous sketch The Mumming Birds simply keep the audience in roars of laughter.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—At the head of a good programme here this week is Winifred Ward, male impersonator, who is well received; there are a couple of comedians in the company who provide a lot of mirth in different styles, viz., Frank Coyle, "the continuous," and Jock Walker, a Scottish comedian; Lily Esplin's comedy contributions are entertaining; Fred Bronte submits a good turn as an actor-vocalist; the gymnastic feats by Les Henris are distinctly clever; Kate Carney, the coster comedienne, achieves success with her musical burlesque sketches The Mouth-Organ Brigade and 'Liza Johnson, and for the best imitations of herself by local amateurs prizes in money and jewellery are offered. There are some excellent films shown by Raymond's Bio-tableaux.

BRIDGEND.—TOWN HALL.—Manager, Mr. T. D. Schofield.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Christian, attracted a crowded house here on Monday. Miss Laura Walker won golden opinions by her vivacious, fascinating, and withal pathetic, rendering of the part of Glory Quayle; Mr. Alfred Goddard gave a strong portrayal of the manly Christian, John Storm; as Polly Love, Miss Florence Radcliffe was most pathetic; Mrs. Callender received an excellent interpretation at the hands of Miss Violet Vivian; Mr. Harry Colbeck as Father Lamplugh and Mr. Colin Johnstone as Archdeacon Wealthy, were both good. The parts of Lord Robert Ure and Horatio Drake were in excellent keeping in the hands of Mr. E. S. Sharpe and Mr. Duncan Yarrow.

BRIDLINGTON.—ROYAL VICTORIA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. James Stephens and his répertoire company are appearing here this week in a round of plays. On Monday night they gave a good representation of the drama The Golden Chance, in which the part of Arthur Hastings was capitally played by Mr. Talisyn G. Davies; Mr. Chas. Yorke as Clinton was very good; and as Shelberg Mr. Stephens gave a powerful representation of the part. Mr. Frank Landon as St. Claire, Mr. James Hart as Sam Brown, and Mr. C. Brecon as Dick Newman lent valuable aid. The part of Lydia Hastings gave Miss Mabel Lewis Cluer chances which she grasped with great ability, her acting being intense and powerful; Miss Louise Cooper was a charming Vivia Zac; Miss Lucie Cooper did remarkably well as Susan Brown, and Miss Annie Hart shone as Mother Hawk. On Tuesday the company gave a finished performance of The Heart of London, and the other plays billed are Best Lynne, Our Boys, The Gentleman Plunkey, and For Wife and Fortune.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. William Greet's company opened here on Monday with The Talk of the Town. The piece was well staged and superbly dressed. Mr. William Cromwell was highly amusing as Jerry Snipe; and Miss Louie Tinsley achieved success as Mrs. Snipe. Miss Joan Keddie made a delightful Ellaline Lewin; Miss G. Melville was an attractive Madame Modiste; and Miss Katherine Harrington a charming Lady Nightingale; Miss Evelyn D'Alroy as June sang very expressively; Mr. Tom Graves and Mr. A. Gambier-Melford were entertaining as the Brothers English; and the remaining characters were ably sustained. The choruses were ably sung; the augmented orchestra proved very efficient; and the duties of conductor were in non's animated pictures. The performance on Thursday afternoon, with special attractions, was for the benefit of the Bristol Ambulance Corps.

BROMLEY. — Lyric Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. A. Carlton; Manager, Mr. H. Strong.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company, under the personal direction of Mr. Bannister Howard, made a successful two nights' visit here in the comedy Merely Mary Ann. Mr. J. Harold Standing is good as Lancelot, whose friend Peter is smartly played by Mr. J. Cranstoun Nevill; Mr. Dudley Stewart as the Rev. Samuel Smedge is a realistic country vicar; a clever character study of Herr Brahmson, a music publisher, is presented by Mr. Wm. Collard; Lord Tottenham, of the Automobile Club, is safe in the hands of Mr. David Faulkner; Miss Ruth Hazelwood makes a typical London lodging-house keeper; Mrs. Leadbetter and her simpering daughter Rose is creditably undertaken by Miss Pauline Emeric; the Sisters Trippett are daintily represented by Miss Marie Nelson and Miss Margaret Frame; and a refined and unassuming impersonation of the little country girl, Mary Ann, is supplied by Miss Margaret Fairleigh.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria, Limited.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred. Watson.—The revised version of The Prodigal Parson was witnessed here on Monday, the piece being well played by Messrs. Northway and Garrod's company. Mr. W. V. Garrod added to his reputation by his portrayal of the Rev. Tom Godley; Miss Bertha Kingston had a gratifying reception for her clever study of Fern Godley. Mr. Alfred Northway left nothing to be desired in his impersonation of the villainous Enoch Jaggins; Mr. Frank Dallas also did well as Ben Jaggins. Mr. Claremont Gaskell as Phil Drive and Miss Mary Grayce as Gretchen were responsible for some good comedy business, and Miss Gladys Conover was a charming Myrtle Godley. The Radium Girls did some good dancing.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Delighted audiences are witnessing the performances of Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearian company here this week. On Monday The Taming of the Shrew was accorded a flattering reception. Mr. Henry Herbert, an extremely clever actor, gave a fine representation of Petruchio; Mr. Bernard Limpus made a handsome and dignified Lucentio; and Mr. Gerald Ames was a pleasing Hortensio; Tranio was pleasantly portrayed by Mr. James Annand; Mr. Ross Shore and Mr. Alfred A. Harris were equally responsible for humour as Gremio and Biondello. Miss Dorothy Green as Katharina was distinctly the shrew; and Miss Kate Turner was a pleasant and amiable Bianca. The programme for the week includes Macbeth, Romeo and Juliet, Merry Wives of Windsor, As You Like It, Hamlet, and The Merchant of Venice.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General-Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culeen.—The popular attraction here is The Sin of Her Childhood, performed by Mr. J. A. Campbell's company. Miss Mary Fulton gives a charming rendering of Mary Haysel; little Dot Moss makes herself quite a favourite with her performance as Hannah Spry; Mr. Franklyn Graham is smart and soldierly as Capt. John Thornton, and Mr. Beresford Lovett is appreciated as Rev. Alan Grey; Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes plays well as the scoundrel Stephen Haysel, and Mr. Fred Elvin is an amusing Barney.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Edmund Tearle is here for the week with his company in a series of Shakespearean plays, &c. Opening to a good house on Monday with representation of Othello, Mr. Tearle gave a really powerful rendition of the jealous Moor. The cunning Iago as depicted by Mr. Richard Vine was a masterly conception; Cassio also found a clever exponent in Mr. V. O. Crabtree; Mr. T. W. Benson as Brabantio was convincing, and Mr. F. Kelsie did well as the Duke of Venice. Miss Esther Tearle gave a finished and pleasing presentation of Desdemona, and Miss Mary Campbell showed marked ability as Emilia.

BURY (Lancs).—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Sentenced for Life, a convict drama, is being played here by Mr. Fred Bulmer's company. Mr. T. A. Ellis acts well as Lieut. Stillwell, and is ably assisted by Miss Madge Douglas as Adele Gray; Mr. Ernest Vaughan is worthy of mention for his capable rendering of Captain Derrick.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Tom Foy heads the bill, and his sketch entitled The Yorkshire Lad in London is exceedingly funny; another sketch by the Five Boys is enjoyable. Ariel and Astarte (smart gymnasts), the Albano Troupe (musicians), the Boston Twins (comedians), Grace Logan (vocalist), Shirley Higgins (negro joker), and Cinizelli (the "silent jester") make up a good show.

The Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A good programme is provided here, and includes the Four Geraldos, club swingers and jugglers; Bert Williams, ventriloquist; Gertrude Mason, vocalist; the Cavalattis, musicians; Amy Anderson and Co. in a sketch entitled The Banana Stall; the Two Rayners (contortionists), Mabel La Blanche (vocalist), Tod Lowan (comedian), and the usual Bioscope pictures.

CARDIFF.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Tree's company in Oliver Twist is here this week. Mr. Wm. Mackintosh's Fagin is an impersonation worthy of the highest praise, artistic to a degree as regards both make-up and acting. The ruffianly Bill Sikes is a remarkably fine realisation of the character by Mr. Cecil A. Collins; Mr Harvey Braban portrays Harry Maylie in a markedly successful manner; the part of Oliver Twist is well sustained by Miss Gertrude Long; and a striking triumph is attained by Miss Hatin Britton as Nancy, well-deserved applause being the reward of the talented actress's brilliant work. Mr. Ben Lewin gives an excellent delineation of Mr. Brownlow, and Mr. Ashton Pearse as Monks and Mr. Clifford Brown as Mr. Grimwig are both responsible for some creditable acting.

King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—The boards here are occupied with a welcome visit of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey's company in The Wearing o' the Green. Mr. and Mrs. Mackey appear in the rôles of Barney O'Hea and Norah M'Grath, and achieve considerable success.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—A particularly strong programme is presented at the Empire this week, consisting of the following:—The Sleedes, in The Haunted House; Esdale Bros., comedians and speciality artists; the Cape Girls, long boot dancers: Kyoto, with the mysterious comedy Japanese box; "Down on the Farm," a humorous and exciting episode on the American Bioscope; Payne's Little Vagabonds; Duncan's Collies; May Geraldine, comedienne; Howe and Ardie, in their specialitv Up in a Balloon; and the Kellinos.

CARLISLE.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr. R. S. M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—The first visit of The Duchess of Dantzig has created an immense amount of interest here. Mr. George Dance's company gives a delightful interpretation of this clever and delightful musical play. Miss May Glenn, who made a big hit on her last visit here in The Country Girl, has added to her previous success, her charming freedom of style and brilliant vocalism, in the title-rôle. Miss Maggie White plays Renee with grace and spirit, singing delightfully and dancing daintily; Mr. Gilbert Yorke's clever sketch of Napoleon is a big feature of the performance; Mr. Leonard F. Griffith is a manly and dignified Lefebvre; Adhémar has a clever exponent in Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy, a baritone of exceptional power and ability, and an actor of much merit.

Algir's Hippodrome. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—The Frantz troupe of acrobats are first favourites here; Dandy George and his dog Rosie meet with an enthusiastic reception; Queenie Lolo submits a smart speciality act; Mlle. Aunneda, equilibrist, hand balancer, scores a big success; T. C. Jacques sings a couple of descriptive songs in good style; and Scottie's Waifs and Strays secure the plaudits of the audience with their ballet Life in the Streets.

CASTLEFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Henry Masterman.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon's company is entertaining large audiences here with the pantomime Aladdin. Miss Marie Braham plays the title-rôle, a part which she fills in a sprightly and fascinating manner, her songs being particularly well received; Miss Daisy Lane is a charming Princess, and Miss Effie Morde impersonates the Vizier's son Pekoe; Miss Florrie White dances remarkably well, and makes a capital Caramel. As the Widow Twankey Mr. Harry Carmen causes incessant mirth, and Mr. E. C. Jazon gives a humorous impersonation of the Magician; Mr. Cyril Carle sings in fine style, and is a first-rate Emperor; as Gin Sling Mr. Alf Brooke is amusing. The specialities include the Sisters Varley, who are well received as harmony vocalists; the Three Delaries in their interesting and clever gymnastic display; Salidi and Vone, smart dancers; Mantell and Oval, who cause uproarious hilarity as knockabout cyclists.

CHATHAM. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—The Girl from Kay's is making a welcome reappearance here, the company being toured by Mr. George Dance, under the business management of Mr. Percy Hart. The most popular delineations are as follows:—Max Hoggenheimer, Mr. H. C. Barry; Winnie Harborough, Miss Beatrice Poole; the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle, Mr. Reginald Grey; Harry Gordon, Mr. J. S. Durant; Norah Chalmers, Miss Emily Taylor; Ellen, Miss Mabel Dent; and Joseph, the hall porter, Mr. Tom Seymour.

Barnard's Palace of Varieties.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The chief attraction at this house is Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company in The Battle of the Bells, which causes laughter from start to finish. Harry Maxam's ditty, "How would you like to be me?" just suits Mr. Barnard's patrons; Venie Clements's vocal scena, A Trial Trip, goes well; Bertha Winder is greatly admired and applauded for her clever dancing; "The Great Jewel Robbery" is the title of one of Mr. Lacey's best-liked Erascope pictures; and Lillie Stewart (comedienne), the Bros. Obo (patter vocalists), and Gold and Sterling complete the company.

Gaiety Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Miss Florrie Forde tops the bill here, and is getting a good reception nightly. The Gaiety's patrons still marvel at Frank Maura's dexterous equilibristic skill; Terry; or, True to His Trust, is capitally played by Edward Cranston's company; Ethel Dunford scores with "My Irish Molly O" and "Killarney"; spirited dances are executed by the Sisters Mayo; and the following artists assist in the evening's entertainment:—Larry Logan, comedian and dancer, and Samuel Morrison, male soprano vocalist. Pictures by the Edisonograph form the concluding item.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—On Monday evening Mr. Charles Carey presented After the Ball to a full house. Mr. Buckstone Clair, the author, takes the part of Martin, the hero's servant; and the orchestra is conducted by the composer, Mr. Guillaume Leone. Miss Nellie Groves distinguishes herself as Nellie Mather; Mr. Walter Ringham works hard as Halliwell Menit; and Mr. Victor Widdicombe is strenuous as the Colonel; four chic little waitresses are Misses Roze Alma, Dorothy Westerleigh, Gladys Darrell, and Helen Vane; and the eight new-type Gibson girls are very prominent.

CHESTERFIELD.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. M. Dickie.—Mr. John B. Shinton and Mr. Alexander Greenwood's company occupies the boards this week in the Russian drama The Price of Her Soul. Mr. John B. Shinton gives a capital impersonation of Lord Rolf Mandeville; Mr. Langdon Goulding is seen to advantage as General Demetrius Lonovitz; Miss Ada M. Ryder does full justice to the rôle of Countess Inez Steinmetz, and Vera finds a capable exponent in little Ida Thompson.

Corporation Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. M. Dickie.—Mr. George Dance's own company in The Orchid is paying a visit here, and meets with the success it deserves. Miss Constance Hamilton gives a charming impersonation of Lady Violet; Miss Maude Jay makes a delightful Josephine Zaccary; Mr. W. Garland is a success as Dr. Ronald W. Faussett; Mr. R. C. Corray acts the part of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton with great ability; Mr. Tom Maxwell scores in the portrayal of the Hon. Guy Scrymgrour; Miss Madaline Maude does well in the part of Caroline; Miss Beck is a charming Thisbe; Mr. Colin Campbell as Meakin is the life and soul of the piece.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Clay.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is here presenting A Modern Adventuress. Miss Kate Froude is a capable Violet Meredith, her fine impersonation arousing great interest; Miss Alice Defoe is particularly effective in a charming rendering of Vivette Delby; Miss Ivy Chandos vivaciously undertakes Sally Hodges; as Pietro Donelli, Mr. Leonard Aardale gives a powerful interpretation; Harry Delby is capitally undertaken by Mr. Louis Edmonde; Mr. Leonard Montgomery is distinctly good as John Crompton, Mr. Sydney Grant ably impersonates Wallace Dalton; and Mr. Stanley F. Champion and Mr. Frank Orchard, as Walter Beal and Steve Meredith respectively are very effective.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Carlo.—Mr. T. Edward Ward's company is here this week with Her Wedding Day. Mr. Percy Brown gives a finished performance of Harold Saxby; Mr. S. Herbert Humber scores as the unscrupulous Weedon Kenyon; Mr. T. Edward Ward is good as Seth Mayson; Mr. Fred Yarnold is highly successful as Caccles; Gordon P. Jessop has a capable exponent in Mr. Norris Maud; and Sam Klink is safe in the hands of Mr. James Barrett. Miss Maud E. Ward looks and acts charmingly as Madge Conway; Miss Beatrice Sinclair gives a clever impersonation of Dolly Kirk; and the same may be said of Miss Eva Betram as Dora.

COATBRIDGE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—When Woman Hates, which is played by Mr. Millar Anderson's company, is the attraction here this week. Miss Mabel Mannering gives an artistic impersonation of Cora Daintry; Miss Maude Townsend is efficient as Marie Rokeby: Miss Eva Lane plays with much distinction as Thirsty Meg; and Miss Helen Richmond as Sally Potts fills the part to perfection. Mr. Charles Herberte is powerful in the rôle of General Rokeby; Mr. Jerrold Heather acquits himself well as Lieut. Fred Rokeby; Mr. Millar Anderson finds full scope for his abilities as Godfrey Lawton; and Patrick O'Brien receives full justice at the hands of Mr. Frank Litchfield.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Charles Price is this week presenting The Shop Boy, a pantomimical absurdity, and the piece, which is of the extravagant type, gives ample scope to the comic abilities associated with the name of that versatile comedian Mr. Harry Pleon, who, with action, song, and repartee, maintains the fun throughout. A clever introduction in the second act is a travesty entitled Hero the Haughty, which evokes hilarious applause nightly. Plenty of songs of a light nature and dances of a novel type are introduced. The principal piece is preceded each evening by a farce entitled The Club Raid.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. John H. Tomkinson's Royal Gipsy Company is occupying the boards this week. The second part consisted of single turns, the following artists taking part therein:—Elsie Rubina, princess of equipoise; Sam Paul, comedian; Florida Girls, vocalists and dancers; John Mathews, descriptive vocalist; Bert Allen, Lilliputian comedian; the Musical Keiths; Frank Weir, comedian and dancer; Annie Knowles, lady trombone soloist; and the Lizette Troupe of lady acrobats and tumblers.

CORK.—Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The principal turn here is that given by Leoni Clarke and his trained cats, monkeys, &c.; the Alexandra Trio, acrobats, perform some wonderful feats; George Le Wist is a capital ventriloquist; the Staffords, in Happy Hooligan's Troubles, are amusing; Reno gives a clever performance with cards, coins, &c; Oliver Conroy is a capital eccentric comedian; Amy Elcock and Florrie St. Roy, comediennes and dancers, also contribute.

COVENTRY.—The Opera House.—Proprietor, Wm. Bennett.—The Walls of Jericho is proving a very great attraction at the above house this week, the piece being presented by Mr. Bourchier's company under the direction of Messrs. S. Dauncey and M. V. Leveaux. Mr. Herbert Bunston in his presentation of Jack Frobisher is very clever and convincing. Mr. George A. Brandram gives a hearty rendering of the outspoken Hankey Bannister. Mr. Lawrence Hanray is indeed a study as the Marquis of Stevenston. Miss Florence Jackson gives a polished and pleasing rendering of Lady Alethea Frobisher; Miss Molloy Carton is seen to advantage as Lady Lucy Derenham. The piece is excellently staged.

The Hippodrome.—Manager, T. M. Sylvester.—This popular house was well filled on Monday with an appreciative audience. Harry Freeman established himself as a favourite. The Two Bees on a return visit are just as popular as ever; Alethea is a clever contortionist; Farley, Rennie, and Farley are amusing in a comedy act entitled Fun at a Railway Station; the Musical Schaffers give a much-appreciated turn; Miss Katie Marsh is a clever singer and dancer; and the Olive Trio submit a short musical sketch entitled Auntie. The animated pictures are a success.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, John H. Morton.—Miss Winifred Chalmers' company is doing good business here this week with The Master Criminal. Miss Winifred Chalmers herself represents the part of Cecile, alias Lady Travennes, and plays with grace and feeling. Mr. H. L. Osmond takes the title-rôle, the Master Criminal (Telfard Lestage), and the highest praise is due to him. Mr. Albert Sember is well placed as Philip Manners, and he is ably supported by Miss Kate Somerville, as Philip's wife; Mabel, little Ivy Rocheforte, gives a sweet and winning representation of Winifred Manners. Mr. Elmore Frith, as Ben Beandy, of Scotland Yard, deserves special mention, as also does Mr. Russel Yorke as James Dawney. Mr. W. B. Somerville makes a dignified bank manager, Mr. Manners; and Miss Augusta Tullock is pleasing as his widow, Mrs. Manners. Mr. Geo. Nuttall is an ideal Bank Clerk, Simmons; and Mr. Harry Cooke is well received as Tommy Dale. Mr. J. W. Gallagher as Gentleman Jim and Mr. Fred Jordan as the doctor are well selected for their respective parts.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland are presenting this week an interesting drama in The Coal King. Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts plays throughout with distinction, and frequently evokes applause; Mr. Robin Shiells gives an admirable portrayal of Sir Reginald Harford; the part of Walter Harford is capitally rendered by Mr. Joseph Millane; Mr. Wilfred Graham proves a capable Dick Shirley; and Mr. Charles R. Stone is decidedly amusing as Jim Williams; Mr. H. S. Rutter is good as the detective. Miss Gertrude Valentine is a sympathetic Grace Shirley; and Miss Joan Wellman creditably sustains the part of Mad Ann; Miss Hetty Cornwallis as Araminta Green acquits herself worthily. Mr. Archie Gradshaw, Mr. Harry Bellain, and Mr. Harry Nelson, as colliers, deserve notice. During the week Mr. Maitland very generously gave four half-tons of coal to the four most deserving persons in the town, an act which was much appreciated.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—A return visit of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company is giving great satisfaction to Croydon playgoers. The Older Miss Blossom was plaeyd on Tuesday. Mr. Kendal acted with good judgement and was always interesting as Andrew Quick; Mr. Ernest Hendrie's efforts as Christopher Blossom were rightly directed; Mr. Bassett Roe had a real grip of the character of Major Twentymen; Mr. Reynolds Denniston acted the rôle of the Rev. Arthur Leacroft in the best possible manner; Mrs E. Barnett's Tyrrel Jones had many good points; Mr. Metcalfe Wood was adequate as Withers; and Mr. W. M. Rutherford was satisfactory as Wells. Miss Kate Bishop submitted an admirable impersonation of Mrs. Wells; Mrs. A. B. Tapping gave a noteworthy performance as Cooper; and Miss Elsie Clarens was quite equal to the rôle of Sophie Blossom. We have nothing but praise for Mrs. Kendal, who gave a carefully-studied and finished portrayal of Dorothy Blossom. The week's programme also includes:—Still Waters Run Deep, A Scrap of Paper, and The Ironmaster.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Messrs. Garside and Knowle's company is here with The London Fireman. Mr. J. Forbes Knowles is commendable as Colonel Fleming; Mr. Edward L. Garside is excellent as Hall Curtis; Mr. Frank Hertie shows ability as Doctor Gerrard; Mr. Oliver Birrell acts carefully in the rôle of Viscount Fleming; Mr. Walter Wilby is creditable as Joe Bluener; Mr. Joe Rockley scores as Captain Langton; Mr. Charles Preece is a comical Nixey Stinger; Miss Florence M. Daly is effectual in the part of Grace Curtis; Miss Nellie Waddington's Countess Fleming is a finished performance; Miss Nellie Garside is at her best as Polly Bramble; and Miss Nellie Shirley deserves congratulations as Ida Curtis. Smaller rôles are in capable hands, and the scenery is worthy of special notice.

DARWEN. — Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Messrs. Montague Beaudy and Sidney Crowe's company was here during the first portion of the week in The Way of the World. Miss Cissie Bellamy won the sympathy of the audience by her delicate rendering of the part of Kate Montague; Miss Violet Ingram was seen to advantage as Marian Fanshaw; Miss Violet Vivienne did justice to the part of Polly Bell. In the heavy rôle of Adela de la Roche Miss Sidney Crowe could scarcely be improved upon; Mr. Herbert Shardon impersonated Cecil Montague in praiseworthy fashion; Mr. V. Gordon was capitally placed as Capt. Fred Slade, being ably supported by Mr. C. Temple as Matthew Malyon and Mr. Louis Scott as Horatio Bluff. The Racecourse scene is a most realistic one. On Thursday evening and during the remainder of the week The Toreador was staged.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Louis Calvert's principal London company is here this week in Sunday. In the title-rôle Miss Jean Sterling Mackinlay appears to distinct advantage, bringing out the light and shade of the character in most effective fashion; indeed, her achievement is one of all round excellence. Mr. Leonard Pagden as Col. Brinthorpe acquits himself admirably; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas does exceedingly well as Tom Oxley; and Mr. Cecil Duncan is capital as Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Wm. Lockhart as Towzer, Mr. Sidney Rennef as Davy, Mr. T. Norman Walter as Lively, and Mr. Arthur Vezin as Jacky are all good alike. Miss Juliet Hardinge and Miss Rosalind Ross as the Nun and Mrs. Naresby respectively are well worthy of honourable mention, and the part of Abbott is well filled by Mr. Ernest Harrison.

Palace.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—The Pichel Troupe of Risley acrobats and equilibrists are the principal attraction here, and their performance is one of considerable ability; Ben Hur gives a creditable exhibition of strength, and Matt Wilkinson and company cause much amusement in their comedy sketch The Registry Office; Walter Wallis, a lively comedian, soon makes himself popular; Violet Beatrice is a charming Irish comedienne; Phillips and Merritt, Australia's comedy duo, are quaint and entertaining, and the same may be said of Tom Dunmore, comedian; the Palace Bioscope is again to the fore with interesting pictures.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Messrs. Melford and Polini with The Silver King are achieving much success by their telling production of this sterling play. In the name-part Mr. Herbert Ford gives a powerful performance, while Mr. E. J. George remains the same kindly Jaikes. Miss Daisy Scudamore as Nellie Denvers portrays this arduous rôle with telling skill, and the Cissy of Miss Amy Manfree is quite clever. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is the Spider, and the rôle could hardly be in better hands, while the parts of Cripps and Coombe are ably taken by Messrs. W. Thompson and A. Wright. Corket is earnestly enacted by Mr. J. L. Power, while Olive Skinner in the hands of Miss Georgina Winter is played with care and sympathy.

Hippodrome and Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—The varied programme here includes Madame Frederica's terriers; Zanfretto and Napier, musical eccentrics; F. S. Hulme, actor-vocalist; Vincent, scrobatic tumbler; Ada Merry, dancer and comedienne; Charles Santon, double-voiced vocalist; Harley and Melton, novelty comedians; Henderson, blind musician; and the Harriscope, operated by Mr. Harris.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Mr. George Dance's principal company came here on Monday evening with The Orchid. Lady Violet Anstruther had a most engaging exponent in Miss Dorothy Firmin; Miss Madeline Maud played with humour the rôle of Caroline Vekins; Miss Florence Wakeman was acceptable as Zelie Humbert; Miss Daisy Kersey acted with much dignity as Thisbe, private secretary; Countess Anstruther came with grace from Miss Edith Johnson; Miss Elsa Brull added to her professional reputation by her dainty reading of Josephine Zaccary; and Mr. W. Griffin was well placed as Dr. Ronald Faussett. Mr. Gordon Begg gave an acceptable interpretation of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton, and a great success was scored by Mr. E. Nainby as Comte Raoul. Zaccary was exceedingly well rendered by Mr. Arthur Helmsley.

DOVER. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Under the Czar is drawing crowded houses this week, this being the first visit of Mr. Jarman's clever company to this town. The rôle of Nicholas Yeroshaff is played by Mr. Bertram H. Ross in a capable manner, his sweetheart, Sonia Gregorovitch, finding a most sympathetic exponent in Miss Cathleen Cavanagh. Mr. W. H. Riley gives a powerful rendering of Yakhar Yovesky, and Mr. C. P. Amalia is responsible for a well-studied piece of acting as Count Nesseldorf. The small part of the Englishman, Captain Johnson, is excellently acted by Mr. Gerald Smythe; Mr. Hugh Rounsey gives a clever study as Michael Granoviski; Mr. Louis Weston is a really humorous Paul Ignat; Mr. Lawrence Brien as Alexis Petroff gives a very effective portrayal; Mr. R. Tarrant does some good work as Victor Kleff; and Mr. P. Diamond as Sergeant Anton is also worthy of mention. Some amusing scenes are contributed by Mrs. Linda Riley as Siomka, and Miss Lucy Murray is good as Zara.

The Empire Palace Co.—Manager, P. C. Wraith.—T. W. Barrett tops the bill here this week; Lillian Devon sings and dances well; Charles Aigo, ventriloquist, is most versatile; and Sam Dalton has some really comic songs; Lillian Travelli contributes charming ballads; Belle Meredith wins approval with song and dance; and the Cartell Trio, in their musical act, introduce a large number of instruments.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—A large audience was present here on Monday to witness Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush, as presented by Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison's company. Mr. Mollison gives a praiseworthy impersonation of Lachlan Campbell; Miss Evelyn McNay is all that can be desired as Flora Campbell; the rôle of Dr. Maclure has an able exponent in Mr. Allen Thomas; Mr. Alec F. Thomson sustains the humour of the part of Wee Posty in capital style; the Rev. John Carmichael is in the capable hands of Mr. Durward Lely; Miss Alice Francis is seen to advantage as Kate Carnegie; Mr. F. M. Paget is exceedingly good as the Earl of Kinspindle; and Mr. Kendal Chalmers as Tammas Mitchell and Mr. Archie Chapel as Lord Hay are both successful in their respective rôles.

Theatre Royal. — Managing Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Louis Calvert's company in the charming comedy, Dr. Wake's Patient. Mr. Herbert Ross causes no end of laughter by his impersonation of Duff Wynterden, and Miss Olive Terry displays considerable ability in the rôle of Lady Gerania. Mr. Douglas Vigors is admirable as Dr. Wake; Miss Ina Pelly is particularly good as the Countess of St. Olbyn; Mr. Arthur Willoughby makes the most of the part of the Earl St. Olbyn; Miss Amy Fanchette is creditable in the rôle of Mrs. Wake; Mr. Alfred Wellesley cleverly enacts the part of Andrew Wake; and the Misses Lilian Rachael and Beatrice Webb successfully portray the rôles of Mrs. Murdoch and Harriet Brosnan respectively.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General-Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—Mr. Kennedy Miller's annual benefit took place here on Monday, when a varied and attractive programme was presented to a crowded house. On Tuesday Mr. Kennedy Miller's Co. commenced a short engagement here with The Irishman. Mr. Dane Clarke in the rôle of Felix Blake repeats his former success; Mickey Whelan is successfully played by Mr. James Daly; the part of Owen Kavanagh is well sustained by Ion Ireland; Mr. Robert Faulker is capital as his nephew, Dan Kavanagh; as Larry O'Rourke Mr. James O'Brien is as humorous as ever; Miss Monica Kelly is amusing as Molly O'Flaherty; the part of Father Kelly is well filled by Mr. Harry Richardson; Miss May Axon is effective as Norah Desmond; and Mr. H. Ryland Leigh is good as Captain Frank Delahunt.

Empire.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Marsh.—The star turn here this week is Will H. Fox, the comedian at the piano, whose clever performance is loudly applauded. Another excellent turn is provided by Collins and Rice, American comedy artists; the Three Sisters Slater are warmly received; a laughable comedy act is contributed by the Driscoll and Beattie Company; the marvellous acrobatic act of the Goltz Trio elicits applause; the Korries, musical entertainers, are as popular as ever; Walter Stanley is a capital comedian; the Cotton Blossom Quartette of Coon Vocalists are highly appreciated; Cora Casselli sings several songs with good effect; Charles Russell is an acceptable comedian; and the Empire Pictures are up to date.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, tops the bill here, and meets with a good reception. Diamond and Beatrice are entertaining instrumentalists; the Naros are clever male and female acrobats; Fancourt and Rubie's sketch Out of Barracks is well enjoyed; Molly Doon is a pleasing comedienne; the McKays, comedy artists, meet with success; an interesting item of animal training is given by Gilbert's dogs and cats; and other turns are Satsuma, illusionist, and Smiler Lee, comedian. The Bioscope Pictures are also good.

EASTBOURNE.—Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Mouillot's company is appearing here in Old Heidelberg. Chief honours fall to Mr. Robert Minster, who gives a capable and sympathetic rendering of the part of Karl Heinrich. Mr. J. Nelson Ramsay is to be highly complimented on his very fine work as Dr. Jutner; Mr. Lionel Gadsden is happily-placed as Lutz; and Mr. Eric Phillips is an entirely effective Von Haugh. Mr. Wallace G. Court is an eminently satisfactory Graff von Asterberg, and he sings very pleasingly; and Mr. A. M. Moore and Mr. William Searle, as Ruder and Kellerman, do good work. Miss Irene Lavington is a dainty Kathie, attaining particular success in the lighter parts; Miss Nellie Blackford is a satisfactory Frau Dorffell; and Miss Rose Helene does well as Frau Ruder. The chorus of students deserve a word of praise for their tuneful singing.

The Hippodrome.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Smith.—Mr. Harry Tate's company heads the bill here with the amusing sketch, Motoring; Mdlle. von Etta has an attractive setting to her smart illusion act; Miss Marie Reeve provides a popular turn as a comedienne, and her dancing is of the daintiest and prettiest; the Sisters Charnley sing, dance, and swing bâtons, to the delight of the audience; Saxo has a very entertaining musical show; the Sivronis are amusing in their opera burlesque; the Delmars are laughing comedians, who deserve praise; and Mr. Charles Jackson's work as a comedian, and the pictures, complete the bill.

EDINBURGH.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—The Spring Chicken has made its first appearance in Edinburgh this week, and here, as elsewhere on its provincial tour, the piece has been very warmly received. Mr. George Edwardes's company, by whom the production is brought round, gives a successful interpretation of the humour and mirth with which this bright musical comedy abounds. Included among the leading performers in a good cast are Miss Irene Verona, Miss Gertrude Gilliam, Miss Rita Everard, Miss Gertrude Glyn, Mr. L. W. Harris, Mr. Edgar Ronalds, Mr. Frank Hector, Mr. C. D. Cleveland, and Mr. George Gregory. The first and last-named of these artists keep the fun going very merrily, and all concerned work together with great zest in their respective rôles. Scenery and costumes are on a superb scale.

Royal Lyceum Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. George T. Minshull.—Mr. Edward Compton deserves the thanks of all playgoers for the care and completeness with which he presents, year after year, the best of the old English comedies, and that his efforts are duly recognised was evidenced by the heartiness of his reception from the crowded audience which greeted him upon his appearance in Davy Garrick on Monday evening last, when he began a six nights' engagement here. Repetition has only mellowed Mr. Compton's performance of the title-rôle of Muskerry's play, and he acted on Monday with more than his usual felicity, depicting with unfailing power the humour and pathos of the character. He was twice recalled after his exit in the second act, and in response to loud calls at the close of the scene he came forward, and in a neat speech thanked the audience for their enthusiasm. Mr. Compton was ably supported by the members of his company. Mr. Henry Crocker imparted the true note of pride and feeling to the part of Alderman Gresham, and Mr. A. B. Imeson, a promising young actor, showed admirable skill in his rendering of the character of Tom Tallyhaut. Miss Mackenzie displayed much charm of voice and method as Violet, being particularly good in the lighter passages of the comedy. The Guests were brightly acted by Mr. Herbert Pigat as Rumbelow, Mr. Arnold Lucy as Sowerberry, Mr. G. Wallace Johnston as Simkins, Miss Marie Hassell as Mrs. Rumbelow, and Miss Muriel Meek as Selina; and, if the farcical business of the second act was somewhat over accentuated, the players probably were justified in their action by the loud laughter of the audience. The comedy was preceded by a play in one act, The Desperate Lover, which gave Miss Mackenzie and Mr. Imeson the chance for some excellent acting. On Tuesday evening She Stoops to Conquer was presented.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The Sleeping Beauty continues to run with unabated vigour and success, and public interest in the entertainment is well maintained.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. J. Cawood.—The programme which is provided here this week is an admirably varied and interesting one. Mr. Bert Gilbert arouses

J. M. Barrie's poetic fantasy, played by the original company direct from the Duke of York's Theatre. Miss Cecilia Loftus as Peter Pan gives a charming performance, humorous yet pathetic, bright and animated, but with that wistful abstraction that befits the part. Next in importance ranks the Wendy of Miss Hilda Trevelyan, another of those finished studies of youthful character that this clever young actress has lately made so successfully. Both performers were accorded a hearty welcome, and their acting throughout evoked much enthusiasm. Mr. Loring Fernie as Mr. Darling gives a clever bit of acting, and again in the part of the Pirate Captain he fairly revels in the old-fashioned melodramatic touches which the character is capable of. Master George Hersee and Master Harry Edwin Duff impart boyish enthusiasm to their parts as Wendy's two brothers, and Miss Enid Spencer-Brunton gives a realistic touch to the part of their mother, Mrs. Darling. Mr. Arthur Lupino is extremely good as the dog Nana, and clever character studies of the pirate crew are contributed by Mr. George Shelton as Smee, Mr. Ben Field as Starkey, and Messrs. Charles Medwin, Chris Walker, Frederick Annerley, &c. In the absence of Miss Pauline Chase, her part of First Twin is well played by Miss Phyllis Beadon, and the other boys are amusingly acted by Misses Joan Burnett, Christine Silver, Winifred Geoghegan, and Mr. A. W. Baskcomb. Miss Mary Mayfren as Tiger Lily, Miss Ela Q. May as Liza, and the representatives of the Crocodile, the Ostrich, and the wolves all help to make the play as novel as it is enjoyable.

ROYAL PRINCESS'S.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—Simple Simon is now in its last week here, and on Friday, the 23rd ult., Mr. Jack Lorrimer appealed to his friends, and a crowded house rallied round him. He had the assistance of Mr. Harry Lauder from the Royal, and Mr. John E. Coyle, a great favourite at the Princess's. On Monday, the Sisters Hall were given a hearty welcome, and on Friday Mr. Rich. Waldon took a complimentary benefit, on both occasions special attractions being given in addition to the pantomime.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The Prodigal Son is now in the last week of a most successful engagement, after a run of nearly six weeks. All the members of the company give clever performances in their respective parts.

METROPOLE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—The Swiss Express opened here on Monday. The Brothers Renad once more essay their parts with all their well-known ability, and there is not a dull moment while they are on the stage, their fun-making in the last act being particularly enjoyable. Mr. Herbert Lewis as Dr. Gull has a heavy part, and is irresistibly funny; Mr. C. Gray is good as Septimus Squeeze; and other clever actors, as Dudley and Rob, are Messrs. Owen Remonde and Geo. Martin; while Mr. J. Carl Lyle is alert and amusing as Rhino. Miss Helen Douglas as Mrs. Squeeze acts well in conjunction with Mr. C. Gray; and as the sorely-tried and tormented bride Miss Jessica Ford is at home in the part. The Edene Quartette are clever in acrobatic and other dances. The "Met" pictures are deserving of notice, and close a merry entertainment.

LYCEUM.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company is fulfilling a week's engagement in Florodora. Mr. Daley Cooper, as Anthony Tweedlepunch, made a great hit; Miss Leonora Grieve plays Doroles—her acting and stage presence are thoroughly well suited for the part; Mr. R. Courtier Dutton was successful in the part of Frank Abercoed; Mr. Stanley White did well as Cyrus W. Gilfain; the same may be said of the Angela Gilfain of Miss Lily Gullick; the Lady Rid'rood of Miss Edith Horsley, was also a successful performance.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.: District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Mussett.—A first-class variety company is billed here this week. A capital sketch, entitled Bloomsbury Burglars, is given by Lew Lake and company; and the turn submitted by Rex King, "The One-man Programme," is decidedely smart. O'Gust's wonderful impersonations of animals, &c., fairly captivate the house, while the novel dancing of Frank Hayes and Anna Suits is deservedly applauded: Ella Retford, coon singer, has a pleasing reception; and the Three Missouris get through some clever acrobatic feats. The well-known comedian James Fawn, Kate Gourlay, "the Scotch Lassie," and a series of animated pictures make up the rest of the programme.

ZOO-HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The principal item on the programme at this popular resort is the mystifying illusion act of Carl Hertz, the most novel and mysterious feature of which is the answering of questions by means of writing on a blackboard, the writing being done in some invisible manner. Fanny Wentworth's musical sketches at the piano prove very entertaining; the singing and painting of Rossi Ashton is an exceptionally clever turn; and a distinct novelty is seen in Mlle. Sylvia's picturesque vocal tableaux; La Belle Mexicaine Yberri, the expert international dancer, gives a pleasing exhibition; and in the gymnastic line smart displays are given by Mezetti and Mora, bar performers, and the Maningos, head and hand balancers; E. J. Sheldon, the white coon, sings topical songs in taking style, and Charles Ousley retains his popularity as an expert dancer; while the Hippodrome Bioscope is kept up to date with such films as the funeral of the late King of Denmark.

COLISEUM.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, S. Gething; Resident-Manager, B. G. Maclachlan.—The principal attraction here is Ahmed Madrali (the Terrible Turk) and his international troupe of wrestlers. Other notable turns include Seeley and West, comedy musicians; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz, grotesque acrobats; Katie Traill, vocalist; Albert Le Fre, versatile comedian; Bert Woodward, trick cyclist; Amann and Hartley, comedy sketch artists; Derenda and Green, comedy jugglers; Katie Butler, comedienne; and the American Bioscope.

PALACE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. McKelvie.—An interesting programme is provided here this week. Nat Clifford, cahracter comedian, is the top turn. The other members of a good programme include Lil O'Gorman, vocalist and dancer; Lal Melrose, comedienne; Talberto and Douglas, comedy artists; the Canadian Boys, comedy artists; the Royal Welsh Singers; Will Vay's Juveniles, comedy artists; Solaire Duo, speciality artists; Wright and Elton, comedians; and Walters and Wyndham, speciality artists.

PAVILION, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—The programme this week is headed by Whit Cunliffe, a comedian whose catchy topical songs are a decided treat. The Three Sisters Andersen perform some graceful feats of ball and barrel balancing; Ida Brophy sings her lively songs with great animation; F. Warden Reid and company are amusing in their comedy duologues; Tom Yorke sings coster songs in telling style; intense merriment is caused by Frank Elliston and company in their sketch called Aunt Matilda; the Carina Sisters render excellent music on various instruments; Zaro and Arno contrive to mix up good fun with surprising feats on the bar; and the Four Aces perform clever acrobatic feats. A football match on the Bioscope screen makes a fitting finale to a pleasing entertainment.

QUEEN'S.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. T. J. Colquhoun and Barney Armstrong.—Marie Kendall is starring here, and fetching the audience with all her songs, new and old. The Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese are a clever and daring combination, their balancing feats being wonderful; Henri Cazman gives his well-known shadowgraph turn, and also impersonations of famous composers and conductors; Barney Vox's ventriloquial turn is well received; Florence Yaymen contributes some coon ditties of eccentric type; Chas. Stevens is a clever comedian with smart songs; and J. W. Elliston and Steve McCarthy also do well, the dancing of the latter being a strong feature. Jack Crawley's imitations are neat and prove popular.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company in The Toreador was here the first three nights this week. Mr. J. Colclough Fagan was extremely good as Carajolo; Mr. Richard Telford was the principal mirth-maker as Sammy Gigg; Mr. Tom May did well as Pettifer; and Mr. Chas. W. Anson scored as Rinaldo. Mr. Chas. M. Heslop as Augustus Trail and Mr. F. Hulme Sharp as Sir Archibald Slackett submitted good portrayals of their respective characters; Mr. Henry Arthur was praiseworthy as the Governor of Villaya; Mr. Daniel Maston was effective as Moreno; and Mr. Harry Playfair as Mr. Probitt, a solicitor, was well placed. Miss Florence Spurgeon made a capital Donna Teresa; Miss Gracie Desmond was successful as Mrs. Malton Hoppings; and Miss Ethel Netherton made a delightful Nancy Staunton. Miss Leah Howard was a success as Susan, and Miss Sadie Neville as Dora Selby gave a good reading. In Act II. Miss Nora O'Niel was applauded for a well-executed dance.

GLOUCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Miss Grace Warner and company are here in The Scarlet Clue, East Lynne, and The Little Widow. On Monday The Scarlet Clue was played, Miss Grace Warner enacting the exacting rôle of Sal Scarlet in a powerful manner. Mr. George Gordon plays in skilful and finished style as Michael Stanton, and Mr. Reginald Brown doubles the parts of the twin brothers Jack and Henry Esmond capably. Mr. V. T. Raymond proves a smart comedian as Billy the Rotter, and little Edith Rutland displays ability as Little Polly. As Elsie Dane Miss Grace Jones acts effectively, and a clever performance of Reggie Carstairs is given by little Miss Phyllis Massey. Mr. J. E. Tomlinson is extremely realistic as Crazy Jim, as is Miss Kathleen Cranston as Mother Scrooge. Miss Esther Dean is a vivacious Musette.

GOOLE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—On Monday night Messrs. E. A'Dell and Fred Chabot's company presented The Romany's Revenge. Mr. E. A'Dell as Farmer John Hope gives a conscientious study, and is ably supported by Miss E. Elwes, a sympathetic and graceful Mrs. Hope. Miss Elwes also appears to great advantage as Elspie, a gipsy. Miss F. Wallace is delightfully fresh as Polly Pluck, her dances being quite a feature of the performance. Mr. D. Hamilton as Bobby Bloom keeps the house highly amused; Mr. G. Austin is well placed as Archibald Heath; and Mr. H. C. Robinson gives a powerful portrayal of the villain David Renard; Miss Ethel Ashleigh very ably acts the part of Zamet, a gipsy boy.

GRAVESEND.—GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—Engaged here this week are the New Macs, knockabout comedians and dancers; Maud Esmond, a refined comedienne and dancer; Funny Rose Newport, a lively coon artist; the Sisters Darrell, capable character duettists and dancers; Rackett and Hazard, American trumpeters; Syd Burford, comedian; and the Donatos, one-leg clowns.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—A return visit is being paid by Mr. Horace Stanley's company with the sensational drama The 10.30 Down Express. Mr. Chas. Burden presents a natural and effective study as Jack O'Malley: Mr. Geo. Arthur is excellent as the villain, James Inderwick, and Sam Wagstaffe is capitally played by Mr. Horace Stanley. Bessie Leigh is charmingly represented by Miss Elsie Capell; Miss Clara Santley is admirable as Olive Coombes; and Miss Kate Kilpack is amusing and pert as Peggy Pots.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—The Royal Carl Rosa Opera company is paying a successful visit to the above theatre this week. On Monday Tannhauser was presented to a crowded and appreciative audience. Herr Julius Walther made an ideal Tannhauser. His singing was superb, and the same can be said of his acting. Mr. Charles Victor, as Wolfram, used his fine voice with telling effect; Mr. Arthur Winckworth, as the Landgrave, is to be congratulated on his artistic singing and acting. Miss Grace Nicoll, in the part of Venus, was all that could be desired as regards singing and acting; and Miss Hanna Mara, who possesses a lovely soprano voice, filled the rôle of Elizabeth effectively. A feature of the performance was the fine singing of the chorus, which, along with a largely augmented orchestra, is ably directed by Mr. Eugene Goossens. The other operas produced during the week were The Bohemian Girl, Il Trovatore, Carmen, Lohengrin, Faust, and Maritana.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The Tom Davies Trio, who head the bill here, give a truly marvellous exhibition of motoring in mid-air; Will McIvor, vocalist, sings well; Denby and Dent, comedians and dancers, give an amusing performance; Oakdene is a clever ventriloquist; Fox and Melville introduce illustrated songs effectively; the Vyponds are smart society entertainers; and Hallam and Stanton smartly enact a sketch, entitled A Broken Journey.

GREENOCK PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Lottie Lennox, comedienne, heads the bill here, and her turn is applauded. Other items of an excellent bill are:—Fred Herbert, vocalist and rhymester; the Ashers, duologue couple; Janet Howard Reynolds, vocalist; Francisco Comedy Jugglers; May Moody, with a musical performance; Tom E. Hughes, Scotch comedian; and Cribb and Cribb comedians. The entertainment concludes with a first-class cinematograph display.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—The drama The Midnight Mail has made its second visit here this week. Mr. George Harvard still portrays the engine driver, Harry Steyne, who is reclaimed by his wife from dissolute habits, and Miss Grace Lester successfully takes the part of Mary Steyne. Mr. Fred G. Evison is a popular figure as the vagabond, Billy Brewer; whilst the part of Nancy is brightly played by Miss Mildred Carr. Miss Hilda Merrilees accomplishes good work as Lady Phyllis Eustace; and mention may also be made of Mr. C. P. Wentworth, as Hassan Padisha; Mr. Dobell Lyle as Donald Craig, and Mr. Austin Mortimer as Leonard Royle.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Lively Lily Langtry has thoroughly justified her name, for she is one of the liveliest comediennes imaginable, and puts unlimited dash into her songs. She has been a great success here. The Voldram Brothers, a couple of Dutch eccentric acrobats, have performed a variety of clever feats, and excellent gymnastic work was also accomplished by Carlin, who proved an expert equilibrist; the musical turn given by the Saxonias was very pleasing, these artists being capable performers on a big variety of instruments; plenty of humour was contributed by Walker and Lake, comedians; the Katos, in a speciality; and Fred Hallam, comedian; whilst The Chaperon was presented by Frank Bertram and company.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Tolfree.—George Formby has given an entertaining exposition of Yorkshire humour, his songs and patter being very funny; a capital display of various styles of dancing was given by the Great Northern Troupe; Gillin's ventriloquial turn was productive of much fun; and comedy was also provided by the Bros. Ashley, who performed a sketch; Marie Blythe's songs were greatly appreciated; Starr and Jerome contributed a smart sand dance; Myles and May gave a laughable hunting burlesque; and Ida Ross, comedienne and Tyrolean vocalist, also appeared.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—La Poupée, despite its innumerable visits here, is this week being hailed with applause by excellent houses. Mr. Wm. Everard acts and sings finely as Launcelot; Mr. Walter Balfour makes a commanding Father Maxime; Mr. Arthur Dennis as Loremois, Mr. Fuller Allen as Baron Chanterelle, and Mr. W. J. O'Sullivan assume their respective rôles with ability. The humorous side of the piece is unfolded in irresistible style by Mr. Fred Seymour, who is very smart in the quaint character of Hilarius; Miss Dot Stephens as Alesia sings the various numbers allotted to her beautifully, her conception of the doll being excellent. The orchestra is under the able guidance of Mr. H. H. Shaw.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—Capital houses are this week giving enthusiastic receptions to Her One Great Sin, which is being presented by Miss Blanche St. Albans and Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company. Mr. Sam Arthur depicts Reuben Warhurst with telling effect; Mr. J. Leicester Jackson is effective as Arnold Thornhill; Mr. Fred Hodson is well placed as Jerry; and Miss Blanche St. Albans is a great success as Grace Warhurst.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—An artist who has many Halifax admirers is Herbert Shelley, whose character songs are a feature of the programme here. Bill Williams is as clever as ever; as is also Addie Dorina, character impersonator; Donald Keir and Mabel Kempton provide an attractive turn with their solos and duets; some ornamental swimming is exhibited by Dickinson and Johnson; and Fred Southern is also in the bill.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard.—The Village Blacksmith is staged here this week, and Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is warmly welcomed. Mr. Sam Livesey is responsible for a characteristic rendering of John Strong; Captain Leo is quite effective in the hands of Mr. Joseph Carter; Mr. Edwin Maydew is a meritorious Lucas Marlow; Jeremiah Parkins finds a capable exponent in Mr. Thos. E. Marshall; Mr. George V. Campbell is well placed as Billy Twigg; Mr. George Wilton is seen to advantage as St. John Harman. As Kate Strong Miss Laura Hansen makes a favourable impression; the boy Harry Strong is admirably enacted by Miss Bertha Hanbury; Mrs. T. C. Livesey contributes a good character study as Sal Parkins; and Miss Edith Giddens makes a capital Martha Mopps. Ruth Parkins is nicely portrayed by Miss Cassie Edwardes.

GRAND, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—The premier position here is held by Dr. Carl Hermann, electrician, &c., whose hypnotism is most amusing. Fred Poplar pleases everyone with his humorous contributions; Kitty Wager sings a good song, in which she introduces local items; Rozene and Robini are funny in their trapeze act; Arthur Slater is a whistler of much ability; Lilian Doreen sings her songs admirably; France and Stewart, in their American racing comedy, A Hundred to One Chance, are most diverting; the Three Bostonians sing and dance admirably; and the pictures are excellent.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; General Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The Avolos head the bill here in some novel acrobatic feats; Charles Matthews accomplishes some difficult jumping feats; Marie Gibson is a pleasant-voiced soprano; the Sisters Terry are popular mimics; and Craig, Rose, and Craig, in a sensational act, have all appeared here before. Harry Taft, Winnie Scott, and a new series of pictures are other attractions.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Weedon Grossmith's interesting and amusing comedy, entitled The Duffer, is proving a great success here. The company is smart and clever, and the mounting of the play is in keeping with the general excellence of the entertainment. Mr. E. H. Wynne in the title-rôle may be credited with exceptional ability; Mr. Pennington-Gush as Charles Chester presents a capital character study; Mr. Whitford Kane as Paul Martin gives a finished piece of acting; Niobe is admirably played by Miss Mabel Taylor; Miss M. Montrose as Lady Amelia Farington plays with much grace and finish; Miss Nelly Griffen is highly amusing as Miss Bide; Miss D. Cousin and Miss Florence Adale are charmingly natural in their attitudes, and refreshingly simple as models for the Academy students.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Ewing.—Mr. Will Percival, eccentric comedian, takes the place of honour on the bill; the Maitland Comedy Trio engage in a laughable trio; Salvino is an expert musician, and shows his ability on many instruments; a clever turn is given by the Arizonas, five in number, who exhibit some nimble and diverting comedy juggling; Miss Flo Luck is an attractive comedienne; Miss Minnie Mace is warmly welcomed as comedienne and dancer; the negro element has an excellent representative in Mr. Will English. A feature of interest during the evening is the new Hippodrome films.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. Edward Neville's company is here in the play, entitled The Anarchist Terror. Mr. J. Nelson Turner is a typical American; Mr. M. J. Cumming shines as a true British sailor; Mr. George Langdon scores as Ravagoon; Mikey Doolan is remarkably well played by Mr. Edward Neville; a fine, bold character sketch Mr. Gus Bowerman gives of the gipsy chief, Ishmael; Miss Flora Leslio is natural as Marita; Miss Evelyn Clare is a brisk representative of Columbria Goldstraw; Miss Loie Esmond takes the part of Kitty Malone in a pleasing manner.

HEBBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. G. H. Austin; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Graham.—This week the boards are occupied by a first-class variety company. The top of the bill is taken by Charlie Green, wrestler, contests being arranged with him throughout the week; Pooh and Pooh, comedy entertainers, introduce smart acrobatic business; Etherdo is an artistic magician, juggler, and contortionist; Eva Frere has popular songs; the Sisters Sylvia, duettists and dancers; the Kendals, eccentric comedians; Ormonde, speciality artist; J. Kavanagh, patter comedian; Malvo, ventriloquist; and Bert Brookes, eccentric comedian, complete the programme.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, The Provincial Theatres Co.; General-Manager, Mr. C. M. Neville; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Hawke; Secretary, Mr. Chas. Bradley.—Mr. Roy Jackson is paying a return visit this week with The Hand of Iron. The company is a good all-round one, and includes Mr. Jackson, whose varied impersonations are very striking; Mr. Herbert De Ville as Lucky Ned and Mr. Henry Deane as Geo. Sutherland, who play their parts admirably. Mr. Everett Lynn as Solomon Isaac Silver, Mr. Frank Haynes as Hiram Lincoln O. U. Duch, and Mr. Arthur Beaufort as Jos. Wellington receive their due share of aplause. Miss Kittie Durogue's portrayal of Marie Durogue is most artistic, Miss May Sutherland is sympathetically played by Miss Violet Lesborough, and Miss Florrie Hayes as Nell Swift creates much laughter.

HUDDERSFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Mr. George Dance's company is here in Lady Madcap. Miss Vera Vere's merry spirits and tireless activity are admirably suited to a part like the Madcap. Her singing and acting are alike eminently attractive. Mr. H. V. Surrey is the embodiment of quaint, crisp, cultivated humour as Oroya Brown; Mr. Vincent Erne is a loyal helper as Corporal Ham; Mr. Alex Chentrens as the Count de St. Hubert is an artist to his fingertips; Mr. Bay Russell as the flamboyant Stratford sings and dances with an energy well directed and highly successful; Mr. Fred Payne makes the most of his chances as Jenkins. In important if less prominent parts adequate support is given by Miss Kathleen Ronayne as Gwenny, Miss Peggie Primrose as Susan, and Miss C. Johnstone as Mrs. Layton. The bright, concerted music is smartly sung by a well-trained chorus under the guidance of Mr. Alfred C. Tone.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The bill this week includes the well-known Automatus Torupe, in their speciality Fun in a Restaurant; Miss Ivy Callard, comedienne; the Lovelaces, in an acceptable turn as song illustrators; E. W. Selman, comedian; the Waldrons, in a screamingly funny duologue which sets the house roaring with laughter; Judd, Rudd, and Budd, comedians; the Frasettis, a couple of instrumental soloists of exceptional merit; Bellonini, the smart juggler and plate thrower; and the pictures on the biograph.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Miss Mary Austin and company, under the direction of Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, are paying a return visit here with The Cotton Spinner. Miss Austin, who undertakes the rôle of Mary Prescott, gives a talented and sympathetic performance. Mr. John S. Haydon is also heartily welcomed, and his portrayal of John Prescott is worthy of great praise. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds contributes a fine piece of acting as Arthur Northbury; Mr. Edwin F. Fysher plays feelingly as Lord Northbury; and Mr. Ernest C. Edwards as Major Stratton, and Mr. Charles F. Wilton as Foster Cunningham are both good in their respective parts. Miss Enid Ross gives a careful and creditable performance as Constance Harrington, and Miss Bella Power as Lady Charlotte Needy is quite at home.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Crowded and appreciative houses are nightly greeting Mr. Fred Karno's gorgeous pantomime Cinderella, which is here for the week. Miss Annie Purcell makes a handsome and dashing principal boy, and her vocal numbers are well received. A winsome and charming Cinderella is found in Miss Lulu Louden, and Miss Lilian Lea is a shapely and attractive Dandini. Mr. Fred Winn and Mr. Austin Lenton as the two Sisters are most amusing, and Mr. Alex. Keith as the Baron also creates much merriment. Special mention should be made of Mr. William Gourlay, who as the Baron's page proves himself a versatile and resourceful actor. The funny business of Mr. James Fletch and Mr. Ned Palmer also meets with approbation. An effective and novel feature is the flying ballet which is greeted with loud applause.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mortons, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. George Morton.—A strong attraction is provided here this week by Mr. Frederick Melville's company in The Beast and the Beauty. Mr. Fred D. Daviss gives a good performance as Jack Barrymore; Mr. Bernard J. Lieil as the Earl of Lomon handles the part with care; and Mr. Bernard Merdyn plays in a convincing manner as Lord X. As Delilah Vane, an adventuress, Miss Georgiette Thiery is seen to advantage, and Miss Alice Bowes as Violet is charming.

THE PALACE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Barnett.—The Aurora troupe of cyclists are the principal turn here. Ivan Edwards also appears in his ventriloquial show; Mr. and Mrs. Lucas present various Dickens characters with much dramatic effect; Fred. E. Terry is singing an original song which should become very popular; Albert Whelan, from Australia, gives a clever and varied entertainment; Virto and his daughters are a welcome musical turn; a nice ballad-singer is Sybil St. Elmo; the two Bostons and Terley, the latter in a plastic figure entertainment, are also popular.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham.—A dramatic sketch, A Fight in the Forge, is a good top turn, and Dorothy L. Clark bottoms the bill in some well-rendered songs. Charles F. Best creates much laughter, and Mark Leslie is one of the best of coon vocalists. Other turns include Ethel Loftus, the Brothers Ralston, Geo. Prince, and Major Moss and Son.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. R. Elder.—Mr. and Mrs. John Walter's pantomime company, including their wonderful team of juveniles, is attracting large houses with Cinderella. Miss Gerty McQueen is a dashing Prince Charming. She speaks her lines clearly, and is successful vocally. A dainty little Cinderella is Miss Kitty Rafferty, who acts with charm and grace and sings sweetly. Miss Marie Hardacre is an attractive Dandini, Miss Florrie Parkinson a pleasing Flighty Flirt, and Miss Kitty Chester warbles artistically as the Fairy Godmother. Mr. A. Benson as Baron Wheresmecash and Mr. Joe English as Buttons create roars of laughter; whilst others who are responsible for touching the risible faculties of the audience are Mr. Dan Dougherty and Mr. George Swinhoe as the two Ugly Sisters.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. G. H. W. Burrough's company with the pantomime Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Florence Barnes gives a pleasing performance as Princess Yazera, and Miss Louie Fuller as Sinbad well earns the same compliment. Miss May Gower and Miss V. W. Hamilton as Irza and Capt. Selim capably represent the parts allotted them. Mr. John Sanbrook as Caliph of Bagdad and Miss Ada Langton as Princess Fatima are worthy of praise. Mr. H. G. Brandon makes up capitally as the Dame, and in conjunction with Mr. Chas. J. Langton as Tinbad creates much amusement. Mr. Jack MacMahon (Bizbad) and Mr. Fred Fuller (Quizbad) are a pair of comedians of more than ordinary merit. Mr. Will Trevellian and Miss Nellie Trevellian sing a duet in very telling style. Mr. Geo. Sinclair's quartette of lady dancers are exceedingly smart, and Master Sidney is a vocalist of no mean ability.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Knightall.—Nora McEvoy, serio, retains her popularity at this place of amusement. Mac and Hill, patter comedians, are appreciated; Manko does a clever rope-climbing and monkey act; Florrie Wright is a meritorious serio; T. W. Lenner pleases with his comic songs; James Oliver is a successful vocalist; and Hugo, trapezist, and Sid Bernard, comedian, complete the bill.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Jennings.—After twelve years The Lights o' London has been revived here this week with a company under the direction of Mr. Herbert Hollister. Mr. Arthur Colwell gives a manly impersonation of Harold Armytage; Mr. Riddell Robinson as the villainous Clifford does justice to an unthankful part; Bess, the long-suffering wife of Harold, has a pathetic representative in Miss Jeannie Burgoyne; and Miss Lilly D. Dempsey is a charming Hetty Preene. The showman, his wife, and son are humorously played by Mr. W. E. Passmore, Miss Violet Temple, and Miss Gladys Murray, and the minor characters have capable representatives.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—One of the chief turns in this week's varied programme is the appearance of Nellie Wallace, whose quaint songs and patter elicit much merriment, her ditty "I was born on a Friday" being very funny. Another attractive item is a sketch entitled The Prodigal Son, in which a black and white quartette of vocalists, led by Emma Don, contribute some pleasing songs and dances. The Three Seabornes, as speciality gymnasts, do some neat and clever acrobatic feats, and a couple of banjo players named Stanley and Greenop are responsible for clever business with these instruments. James Stewart, the original "tramp," at the piano is amusing, and other turns included George Tacius (female impersonator), Chas. Dixon (comedian), and Kate Lynn. The Hippodrome Pictures are very effective.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr G. G. Jefferson.—This week's attraction is Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee. Miss Cecile Beresford gives a good account of herself in the title-rôle; Miss Katie Yates wins admiration as Peggy Sabine; and Miss Mona Grey is an excellent Lady Patricia. Mr. Walter Chapney is a droll Chambuddy Ram; Mr. Hugh Webb as Boobhamba is clever; and Mr. W. Bosco is quite at home as Sir Peter Loftus. Mr. Courtney Comber is well placed as the Hon. Harry Vereker; and Mr. Arthur Foote gives a capital study of Bobby Warren

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—General Manager, Mr. L. F. Sanderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Wallace.—The attractions here this week include the Dahomeians, coloured comedians and dancers; Chant and Chant, comedy vocalists and patterers; Nellie Vann, serio; the Bowery Boys, in a sketch; Marcus Boyle, character comedian; Miss Babs Lloyd, serio; Miss Ada Whitton, male impersonater; and Shavo and Frank in The Demon Chef.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hales.—Mr. Chas. Carey's company is presenting The New Barmaid here. As William White Mr. Alexander Loftus does excellent work; Mr. Joseph B. Montague ably fills the rôle of Bertie White; Mr. Jas. Grant gives a typical rendering of Colonel Claymore; and Mr. Leslie Austin finds a part to suit him as Captain Lovebury. Ethel Joy receives full justice in the capable keeping of Miss Amy Preston, and Miss Hilda Blanche is charming as Brenda Lough.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard's Co., Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—A return visit of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's Oliver Twist company during the latter half of last week enabled Lynn theatregoers to renew their acquaintance with Mr. Stanley Drewitt in his excellent impersonation of Fagin. There were many new faces in the company, but of the original members Mr. Wm. H. Kemble as Bill Sikes was recognised and deservedly applauded for his excellent acting. Mr. Rotherham was enthusiastically received for his inimitable Mr. Grimwig. He surmounted the difficult task of doubling that part with that of Monks with signal success. Miss Edith Anton Laing gave a clever rendering of Nancy; Miss Dorothy Marsden made a boyish Oliver Twist; Mr. Cyril Cattley did well as Harry Maylie; Miss Helen Clement making a sympathetic Rose Maylie, and Mr. Fred Penley a benevolent Mr. Brownlow. On Monday and Tuesday this week Mr. Chevalier and his company were here. The programmes presented were pleasing and varied. Mr. Chevalier's own contributions were loudly acclaimed, more especially "The Workhouse Man," and an old favourite, sung by special desire, "Mafekin' Night."

KIRKCALDY. — KING'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Rex Sugden.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company opened on Monday with The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Special mention should be made of Miss Beatrice Homer in the name-part; Miss Margaret Watson as Morita; Mr. Tubby Edlin as Tubby Herrick; Mr. Philip Darien as Jack Merriman; Mr. Leyton Cancellor as Hubert Gold and Mr. Allan Davonport as Tom Redvers. Miss Nellie Jackson is smart and humorous as Aggie Brown; and Miss Rita Milman as Rose Courtenay could not be better suited. Mr. Frank Denis is an accomplished Dr. Carr, and Messrs. Charles Barrett and William Wallace as Antonio and Raggles exhibit the requisite amount of villainy demanded by their respective parts.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Henry Wilkinson.—Mr. Norman V. Norman's company, which is one of all-round excellence, occupied the boards for three nights this week with The Adventure of Lady Ursula and As You Like It. The latter was played on Tuesday evening, and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. Mr. Norman as Jacques was seen to special advantage; Mr. Dennis Cleugh was all that could be desired as Orlando; and Touchstone was cleverly depicted by Mr. Frances Hope. Miss Beatrice Wilson gave a clever portrayal of Rosalind, and other characters were in able hands. On Wednesday The Adventure of Lady Ursula was produced, with Mr Norman V. Norman as Sir George Sylvester and Miss Beatrice Wilson in the leading rôle.

PALACE.—Lessees and Manager, Messrs. W. J. Fergusson and J. Porter.—The bill is this week headed with Bosanquet, violinist, who is paying a return visit. Jack Rae is a clever gymnast, and Tilley's Minstrels have a good reception. Others who contribute successfully include Mozzetto, juggler; Lottie De Abbey, vocalist; Bert Delmar, in a comedy act; Miss Cissie Curlette; and Walter Payne's Animated Pictures.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The Grip of Iron is paying a visit this week. Mr. Fred Powell, who has played the dual parts of Simmonet the Strangler and Jagon for many years past, is very dramatic; Mr. George Denham is a capable Loustalot; and the rival detectives have competent representatives in Messrs. Harry Agar Lyons and John Brittain. Mr. Harry Scott and Mr. Leonard Howe are well placed in the parts of Paul Blanchard

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Bush.—That bright and bustling Yankee importation, The Prince of Pilsen, is on a welcome return visit. Mr. George Musgrove's company includes Mr. Edwin Adeler, in the comical part of Hans Wagner, and his performance is vastly amusing. Clever and vivacious Miss Nell Emerald has made a big hit as Sidonie; Mr. Stuart Alexander is effective as the real Prince; and Miss Nellie Cozens as Mrs. Madison Crocker invests the part with an abundance of the necessary dash and vigour. Mr. Alfred Selby wins general approval as the concierge François, his speciality dance being exceedingly well done. Good service is also rendered by Mr. G. Villiers Arnold, Mr. Lawrence Wensley, Miss Mildred Baker, and Miss Mabel Osborn.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Mr. Fred Karno's latest extravaganza, Moses and Son, is the feature of the week's programme here, and, with that very humorous personage Mr. Fred Kitchen in the lead, fulfils its mission of providing a feast of laughter and merriment. The Lukushima Troupe present their typical Eastern entertainment with success. The Cole de Losse Duo are pleasing humorists and expert performers on the slack wire; Mattie Wilks, a coloured vocalist, arouses much enthusiasm; whilst Helene and Emilon, with expert gymnastics, and Morton and Elliott, with paper tearing and other specialities, also prove distinctly popular.

Tivoli.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Harry Ford is the star turn here, and ably fills the position. Harry Allister is very clever in his impersonations; Gus Garrick and H. O. Wills are smart and entertaining comedians; and G. Lennard has also a prominent place in the programme with a clever speciality. A really accomplished musical act, by Roma and Romani, is particularly well received; an Eastern musical fantasy, by Sherlock and Van Dalle, is a decided novelty; and Alma Grey, a charming comedienne, is another prominent contributor to an excellent programme.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—The Barra Troupe of instrumentalists and grotesques lead here, and have a big reception; the speciality dancing act submitted by Collins and Hawley is cleverly done, and a popular item; as also is a fine acrobatic and equilibristic performance by the Paul Hesse Trio. The Sisters Hall are charming duettists; Fred Lloyd and company are vastly amusing in a comedy sketch; another smart comedy duo, Oakley and James, appear with success; whilst Dan Noble and Charles J. Johnson provide capital humorous turns.

Leicester.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—A most enjoyable attraction is being presented here this week in the booking of Mr. George Dance's principal company in the comic opera Veronique. A word of praise should also be meted out to the chorus and augmented orchestra, under Mr. Leonard Leslie. In the title-rôle, Miss Rita Leonhardt deserves high praise for a charming performance, which is heartily applauded; Mr. Ellis Holland is extremely mirth-provoking in the part of Mons. Coquenard; Mr. Roland Bottomley both acts and sings well as Florestan de Vallancourt; Mr. Ivan Berlyn is very good as Mons. Loustot; and Mr. Tom Shelford is capital as the groom Seraphim. Both Miss Florence Lee as Agatha (Madame Coquenard) and Miss Florence Aylwin as Emerance (the Countess de Champ d'Azur) are well suited to their parts, and Miss Neste Laurel as Denise is excellent.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—The new management here are also determined to do everything to conduce to the comfort of their patrons, and have commenced to redecorate the theatre and recast the gallery and cushion the pit. The attraction this week is provided by Mr. George Kirk and Miss Mary Neil's company, in the new drama, Her Luck in London. Miss Mary Neil is prominent with a very clever portrayal of Nellie Harborne, and scores a well-deserved success. Miss Neil also wears some charming dresses. Mr. Charles A. Leicester, as the Hon. Gerald Fitzgerald O'Connor, shines with a portrayal of much merit; Mr. Charles Draycott is good as Richard Lenowen; both Mr. Douglas Tremayne as the Rev. Lionel Strong and Mr. Tyrone Power as Stephen Harborne invest their parts with considerable histrionic ability. The comedy characters are in the safe hands of Miss Florrie Groves as Maud Gladys Shovepenny and Mr. J. Telly Dillsen as Jerry Gotobed, who keep the audience in the best of humours. Miss Frances Waring submits a good performance as Lilian Harborne; and Miss Pamela N. Hodson as Angelina Plantagenet is capital. Mr. Charles Digby is praiseworthy as Algie Kirkcumbrie.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—The great attraction in this week's varied and entertaining programme is Miss Ella, with her full-grown lions, which she puts through a clever performance. Alf. Gibson repeats his usual success, his quaint style keeping the audience in a roar of merriment; the Selbinis get a cordial reception for their pot-pourri act, consisting of a smart display of trick cycling, acrobatics, and baton swinging; the Five Olracs, rag-time acrobats, give a clever and mirth-provoking turn, which is cordially appreciated; Mdlle. Olive is a quick and skilful juggler; Lillian Lowe sings in excellent style; Harding and Ah-Sid are eccentrics, who create hearty laughter; the Five Julians, beautifully costumed, sing and dance in a vivacious manner; Alexander and Co. give their latest comedy sketch to the accompaniment of much laughter; the American Bioscope is a popular feature.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The premier attraction in this week's programme is Miss Hulo Hodgson, Mr. Harry Lowther, and company, who are presenting for the first time here their extremely funny farcical episode Barmaids, which is scoring a well-deserved success. Rumbo Austin and his comical troupe of navvies keep the house in continual merriment; Ted Saunders, the popular mimic, is very good and realistic; the Sisters Beatrice, excellent duettists and clever dancers, score a success; Johnny Walker, eccentric character comedian, creates hearty laughter; Geo. Victor is a capital descriptive vocalist; Marie Stole, serio, also entertains; Walter H. Pallister's American Bioscope is projecting the usual series of entertaining films.

King's Hall.—On Tuesday afternoon and evening, Mr. C. Hayden-Coffin, assisted by Miss Ada Davies (late of the Moody-Manners Opera Company), Miss Kathleen Meyer, Mr. Sydney Dorée (late of Mr. J. W. Turner's Opera Company), Miss Margaret Holloway (violinist), Mr. J. H. Taylor, and the Rev. Wyndham Earée, gave a delightful entertainment here. Both Mr. Hayden Coffin and Miss Ada Davies were rapturously encored for their songs, and the violin solos of Miss Holloway, the character songs of Mr. Dorée, the humorous songs of Mr. Taylor, and the singing of Miss Kathleen Meyer (who gave "The Sunbeam Girl," composed by herself), elicited unstinted applause. The duologue Both of One Mind was performed by Mr. Sydney Dorée and Miss Meyer to the accompaniment of hearty laughter.

Leigh.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Dewhurst.—The Craggs are paying a welcome return visit this week with Laughter Land. Mr. Cremorne Cragg as Billy keeps the audience in continual laughter; Mr. Dan Hardie as the Squire does well; Mr. Harry Rousby is a capable exponent of Dick Marlow; and Mr. H. B. Lewis does well as the Professor; Miss Louise Millward as Clothilda sustains the character effectively; Miss Amy Hastings is quite at home as Clarisse; the Sisters Glynne also score in their singing and dancing; and the acrobatic feats of the Marvellous Craggs in Act II. bring down the house.

Ohmy's Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. King Ohmy; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Prince.—An interesting bill of fare is presented here this week, headed by Les Kyasyas, who give clever exhibitions of feats of strength. The Rizarelis, lady gymnasts, contribute a smart turn on the revolving trapeze; the Ernests, in their riding acts, are greatly appreciated; Cattle is deservedly applauded for his ladder performance; Onda and Leon provide a clever and amusing act on the horizontal bars; Mr. J. C. Laurie, comedian, sings in good style; and August and September ably supply the comic element.

Leven.—Town Hall.—On Friday and Saturday Miss Maggie Morton's company presented The Temptress. Miss Marion Fawcett as Lady Fordyce played with convincing power, Mr. Somers Leigh being commendable as Sir Oswald. Mr. George Rammell was a manly Philip Welford; Mr. Leonard Thackeray made himself thoroughly disliked as Lucas Denbeigh; Mr. Willis Collins as Francis Fitz-Fluke was amusing; and Mr. Percy Morton Wright and Mr. Sidney Claydon made the most of the parts of Pedro Gonzales and Bob Tanner. Miss Elsie Dean as Marion Fordyce made a successful appeal to the sympathies of the audience, and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff was an engaging Rhoda Brown.

Liverpool.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, Jun.—For the first time in Liverpool Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's The Love that Women Desire has been presented here by the author's own company. Mr. David G. Noble handled the part of Philip Carnaby satisfactorily; as Squire Abingdon Mr. J. O. Stewart played admirably; and the rôle of Richard found an able exponent in Mr. C. Quinton Fulford. Mr. G. Carlton Wallace made a strong impression with his portrayal of the outcast, Frank Hardy; the rôle of the clergyman Gathorne was capitally presented by Mr. H. Wallace; Miss Lydia Donovan played sweetly as Sybil Thorburn; Miss Clarissa Bamford gave every satisfaction as Mariquinha, the Indian maiden; and Miss Alice N. Livesey presented Madge Abingdon with success.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The second week's engagement of Dr. Walford Bodie is as decided a success as the first, and the house has been packed nightly with enthusiastic audiences. On Wednesday, a special matinée performance was given in connection with the Theatrical Gala (of which Mr. Henry C. Arnold is chairman of the Entertainments Committee), when Dr. Walford Bodie gave a most interesting and unique programme. Other artists who appear on this week's programme are Marguerite Ismay and her piccaninnies, in a musical scena; Yorkshire Tom, with his mimicry; Curtis Leo, a clever conjurer; Charley Harvey, who is answerable for considerable laughter; the Brothers Hayes, comedy vocalists; Sisters Melba; and Ivy Leafe. On Friday night, the 23rd ult., the annual "Pick of the Pantomime" and "Stars of the Stage" Concert was held at the Picton Lecture Hall, Liverpool, in aid of the Liverpool Food and Betterment Association, in which the principal artists engaged in Liverpool appeared, including Misses Winifred Hare, Ethel Haydon, Millie Lindon, Maude Darling, Maidie Andrews, Gertrude Branscombe, Messrs. Bransby Williams, George Robey, George Bastow, Brothers Egbert, Lupino Lane, and Harry Lupino.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's excellent military drama Death or Glory Boys has proved an attraction here this week. Mr. Mitchelson held his original part of Captain Ferrers, which he played in his well-known able manner; as Jack Malden, Mr. Wellesley Draper indicated the feelings of a suffering man with great realism; Miss Violet Carlyle was a pretty Nana Furgeson; Miss Rosabel Dodd handled the rôle of Edith Malden with discretion; Mr. Edwin Jenner was an excellent Lieut. Duff, and as Colonel Furgeson Mr. Theo. Balfour proved capable; Miss Hettie Senior as Jane and Mr. J. R. Boyne in the character of Nat Wilks were extremely humorous.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—The enterprise shown by this theatre is being well repaid, for during the week large and appreciative audiences have witnessed the pretty pantomime Dick Whittington, produced by Mr. James Kiddie. A talented company presented it, and the dresses and scenery were on an elaborate scale; while a principal feature was the large amount of comedy introduced by several able artists. Miss Bessie Willow was an attractive Whittington; a capital "Cat" was presented by W. V. Vido; Miss Maggie Summerson made a sweet Alice; a deal of fun was provoked by Mr. Cyril Dundas as Fitzwarren; Messrs. Clifton and Gibson were exceedingly laughable as the apprentices; Mr. Archie J. Milne in playing King Hat did excellently with a difficult rôle; Miss Mildred Wrightson sang sweetly as the Fairy Queen; a dashing young "mash" was presented by Miss Florence Hilton; and Mr. Charles Dillon's notion of a cook was very amusing. Specialities, loudly applauded, were introduced by Curtis and Vanity, the Three Sisters Kilner, and a smart troupe of Parisian dancers.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—At the head of the bill here this week are Charles Majilton's company with the musical comedy The Runaways, which has provoked great merriment; Staley's Novelty Transformation Company remain another six nights with their much appreciated entertainment; the Finney's are heartily applauded for their aquatic exhibition; a smart turn is given by Cardow's Cadets, their whistling, singing, and dancing proving most enjoyable; much interest is centred in the clever manipulation of D'Arc's marionettes; Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, earned and received a good reception; Arthur Sutcliffe, an up-to-date comedian, has some capital songs and patter; Harry Drew, possessed of a fine bass voice, sings several popular ballads; and the Stuart Quartet of vocalists and dancers are not the least interesting turn on the bill.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—John Tiller's delightful extravaganza Red Riding Hood remains another six nights, the amount of appreciation bestowed upon it being considerable. The Gotham Comedy Four provide a most acceptable turn in music and comedy; Frances Letty, comedienne and dancer, comes in for a cordial reception; a pleasing comedienne is Dorothy Gould; and some neat dancing and singing are given by Edney and Wade.

New Parthenon.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—Good business continues to be done at this cosy little place. Heading the bill this week are York, Mac, and York, who provoke endless merriment with their comedy act, Widow Mac's Troublesome Boys; Joe Humphreys, a favourite vocal comedian here, pays a return visit; some excellent singing and dancing is provided by the Two Rubies (Rosie and Flo); Decona, as an eccentric comedian and novelty instrumentalist, proves very diverting; Frank Boyce has several good songs; and Daisy Summers is a pleasing vocalist and comedienne.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Mr. Percy Boucher and his stock company are staging here this week The Mystery of a Hansom Cab, which has been well received. Mr. Boucher held the part of Kilsip; Mr. E. D. Allen was an able Gorby; Mr. Cecil Ravenswood played Mark Frettleby; as Brian Fitzgerald Mr. Harry Tresham acted most capably; and other good supporters were Mr. Herbert Cecil as Roger Moreland, Miss Beryl Ravenswood as Sal Rawlins, Miss Lina Nazeby as Madge Frettleby, and Mrs. Charles Wood as Mother Guttersnipe.

Paddington Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Most of the programme here this week is occupied by a sketch company, under the control of Mr. J. Wright Aitken, including Miss Una Wright, with A Human Fiend, a domestic episode of much interest; Elton and Elma have a most amusing knockabout triple bar act; as a tramp juggler Monty is particularly funny; and the Bioscope shows a number of attractive pictures.

Park Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The Jackley Trio of comedy acrobats, including the whistling comedian George, are at the top of the bill this week. Their drawing-room entertainment is very diverting; some amusing juggling is introduced by Zarmo; the vocal act of the Four Mill Lads is pleasing; Jolly Tom Mills sings several acceptable character songs; an uncommon turn is that given by M. Slippere, the blind novelty pianist and baritone vocalist; some clever banjo playing is shown by Harry Hunter; and others who appear are Ida Dorce (comedienne) and Alsop and Beckwith (vocalists and dancers).

Haymarket.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Foremost here this week are Allis and Cassati with their amusing act of singing, comedy, and dancing; the popular Gerald Mount, an able comedian, has had a hearty re-welcome, and delighted everybody with his "The Gallery Boy"; Thomson's Topweights go through a smart exhibition of wrestling and boxing; J. P. Boston puts in some dexterous dancing; Little Tina is a neat vocalist and dancer; and Robins and Collier have a humorous musical comedy scena, The Lady and the Porter.

Westminster.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Mongomery.—At the head of an acceptable bill here this week are the Wallys, whose smart juggling is of a very high order; the Musical Couple, Ford and Hanson, present a turn which is much appreciated; Arthur Royce goes through a funny show at the piano; Harry Morris displays talent as a comedian and lady impersonator; Kavados is an accomplished juggler with cannon balls; Miss Mona McDonald sings pleasingly, and J. D. Tonier, the newsboy mimic, is well worthy attention.

Olympia.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Hengler's interesting water novelty A Village Wedding, or Tramps Abroad, has proved so popular that it is retained in the bill for another week; Lempriere Pringle, an operatic artist well known in Liverpool, gives a beautifully-staged excerpt from Faust, assisted by Mr. Scott Russell; the Dean Tribune Trio with their comedy sketch Applicants create much merriment; Rohda Bros. have a novel gymnastic act; the singing and dancing of the six Lancashire lasses is much appreciated; the illustrated songs "The Homeland of my Heart" and "In Dreamland," rendered by Miss Gracie Moore, caught on immensely, and that artist was most cordially applauded; Tom White's Arabs gave an excellent comedy and vocal entertainment; and others in the programme were Little Barney (comedian), and Ted Cowan (comedian).

Llanelly.—Royalty Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews; Acting-Manageress, Miss Alice Rocheforte.—Cinderella is being presented here this week by Mr. Cecil Clayton. Miss Norah Waylett in the title-rôle is most charming, and Miss Eva Rosslyn as the Prince is very vivacious; Miss Annie Rose makes a capital Dandini; the part of the Baron is in the able hands of Mr. Arthur Colley, who together with Messrs. Reg. Kloof and Arthur Omani as the Ugly Sisters, and Mr. A. Evermond as Pimples cause endless fun. Miss Gertrude Gray as the fairy Sunshine is a sweet ballad vocalist; the Misses Florrie and Theresa Keithley, Mabel Beaufort, Minnie Burrell, and Violet Cameron are all most capable in their parts; the Sisters Clancy introduce clever speciality dancing.

Loughborough.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Miss Maud Camfield's company in the drama At Twelve Midnight is the attraction here this week. Mr. Charles Clifford gives a powerful impersonation of Sir Robert Dare, and Mr. A. M. James does well as Lionel Daventry. Mr. Milton Curtis is well placed as Dick Holland; Mr. Val Gully makes a good Sammy Bimbo, and Miss K. Faith a praiseworthy Gertrude de Sage. Miss Maud Camfield is sympathetic as Hazel Dene, and Miss Polly Denville is capital as Sally Wiggins.

Lowestoft.—Marina.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Admirably staged and dressed, we have this week the first visit of Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company in The Temptress. In the title-rôle Miss Blanche Steele submits a finished performance; and equally praiseworthy in their respective rôles are the Misses Mabel Scudamore (a charming Marion Fordyce) and Florence Palmer (Madge Denbeigh). Amusing character-sketches are contributed by Messrs. Tom E. Sinclair, Allan Carruthers, Oscar Power, and Miss Lizzie Chambers. Mr. Geo. D. Daiper makes a manly Philip Welford, and Mr. James C. Ashworth is good as the banker, Sir Oswald Fordyce.

Maidstone.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. Sylvester.—A good bill is headed by Lady Mansel and her Juveniles, who give a clever and entertaining turn; Mr. Alf. Aubyn, dancer and coon impersonator, is on a return visit; the Gilbert Bros. are a smart pair of tight-rope performers; Calile and Walker cause great amusement in their cross patter business; Lorne and Rene are popular in their singing scena Capital and Labour; Chas. Norman in My Wife's Peculiarity, and the Hippograph complete the programme.

Macclesfield.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The boards are occupied this week by Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company, in the drama The Days of Cromwell. As Sir Marsden Mardyke, Mr. Robertson Foulis does exceptionally well; Mr. Montagu Beaudyn appears as Ironhand, and his powerful and finished impersonation creates a good impression. Mr. Harry Lloyd, as Mathew Mardyke, is both forceful and convincing; Mr. Tom Robertson is a dignified Oliver Cromwell; Mr. Howard Hardy's impersonation of Walter Clifford is commendable; Mr. Edward Carter is very good as Sir Wilfred Avondale; Miss Gloria Hill's interpretation of Mistress Judith is all that can be desired; Miss Irene Munroe, as Ruby Avondale, brilliantly sustains this part; Mr. Harry C. Momber as Toby, Mr. J. Walker as Chaunt, Mr. T. R. White as Shadrach, Mr. A. Mewburn as Smith, Miss Annie Glunn as Betsy, and Miss Jane Massey, as Mrs. Shadwell are prominent in the comic scenes.

Manchester.—Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's company in Two Little Vagabonds are here this week, after a week at the Junction Theatre.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—Mr. George Edwardes's company in The Little Michus provided a capital entertainment for a large audience here on Monday, this being the first visit of the piece to Manchester. As a sample of comic opera, distinct in point of coherence from musical comedy, it is as pleasing and satisfactory as anything needs to be in the exploitation of this kind of piece. Like most stage stories of the romantic orders, it has few claims to probability, but this is more than compensated by the delicate sentiment it exhales from first to last. The expression of this sentiment is, in fact, its greatest charm, and it is most daintily centred in the characters of the title. Nothing more charmingly sympathetic could be imagined than the exposition of the supposed sisters Michu by Miss Iris Holy and Miss Mabel Green; the sentimental Blanche-Marie of Miss Holy and Miss Green's cheerful Marie-Blanche are as nearly perfect as could be wished. A big success is made also by Mr. Eric Thorne as the eccentric General des Ifs, but this is in the direction of broad burlesque, which, though vastly amusing, detracts from the verisimilitude; Mr. Jack Cannot as Bagnolet has extraordinary chances, in which he proves himself a comedian of excellent and unfailing ability; of Mr. Leonard Mackay as Aristide Vert it must be said, regretfully, that his splendid voice and accomplished manner are not sufficiently called upon. Others prominent in the development of the story are Mr. Arthur Royd as Gaston Rigaud, a vigorous tenor and pleasing actor; Mr. Eardley Turner as Pierre Michu; and Miss Elsie Cameron as Madame Michu; both of the latter being sufficiently clever and amusing. Incidentally, Mr. Willie Ward, jun., depicts a market man in the comic vein; and Miss Deborah Volar sings "The Fairy Princess"—an excellent song—in highly accomplished style. The music is consistently good, without being catchy in the cheap sense of the word, and the vocalism adds greatly to the pleasant effect of the story. Staging and dresses are beautiful.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—One of the most amusing farces seen in Manchester for some time past is Miss Lancashire, Limited, excellently presented here this week by Miss Florence Baines and company. The part of Mary Ellen Thompson, the Lancashire Lass, fits Miss Baines like a glove, and laughter reigns supreme the whole of the time she occupies the stage. She also sings several songs in first-rate style, and her acting throughout is worthy of special praise. Excellent support is given by Messrs. Patrick Evans, Richard C. Hicks, Allen M. Servington, H. Pollock, Payne Fletcher, David Donaldson, and the Misses Jennie Hallsworth, Pattie Groves, and Mabelle Clinton. The scenery is good, and the whole performance most enjoyable.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The bill is headed here this week by Percy Honri, who delights the house with his admirable new sketch Concordia; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, is also a popular turn; and good business is supplied by Clara Walters, a clever juvenile, who dances while playing the piano; Kendrick and Laura, singers and dancers; Ben Johnson, banjoist; Olive Poole, singer and dancer; Bernard Noble, comedian; Edna, the whistling girl; and Harry Walker, comedian. A good series is depicted on the Bioscope.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in the American drama, At Cripple Creek, are the attraction here this week. A very clever performance is given, in which Mr. Hilliard Vox particularly shines as the heroic Joe Mayfield, and important parts are finely rendered also by Miss Vera Fordyce, Miss Daisy Carlton, Miss Leslie Wynne, Miss Ella Dixon, Little May Douglas; and Messrs. Walter Thornton, C. Douglas Carlyle, Chas. D. Pitt, Albert Rogers, and Will Hook. By all these a high level of excellence is attained, and the staging is correspondingly effective.

St. James's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. A. Jordison.—A bright performance of Cinderella is given here this week by Mr. Eade Montefiore's company, whose efforts to amuse are considerably enhanced by the elaborate and effective staging of the production. The principal parts are all in capable hands, excellent comic business being provided by Messrs. Conan and Doyle, Mr. Fred Lincoln, and Messrs. Arthur Byron and Geo. Antley; while Miss Georgina Leonard and Miss Nellie Merton fill their respective parts of the Prince and Cinderella with admirable tact. The minor parts are also well played.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—The bill is topped here this week by those first-rate comedians, Foreman and Fannan, The Millionaires, and their patter and eccentric business, as usual, are productive of endless laughter. Claude Ginnett's well-known sketch, The Rejected Remounts, is also highly amusing and well received; and Charles Coborn (acting as deputy for Miss Florrie Gallimore), makes a big hit with his coster scena; the veteran Ethiopian philosopher, Sam Redfern, amuses with song and patter; George Bohu plays the banjo well; Speedwell is a smart lightning portrait painter; Cora Corina, Anglo-Spanish speciality artist, dances nicely; the Three Laurels are wonderfully clever in their speciality on the ping-pong table; and John Marx, the modern Hercules, does some surprising things in weight and other lifting. Animated pictures complete a capital programme.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Collins.—The big turn here this week is The Orange Girl, an elaborate episode in three scenes concerning Nell Gwyn and King Charles II. There is a cast of nine accomplished artists, of whom Miss Dolly Elsworthy as Nell, Mr. Frank Liston as the King, and Mr. D. Wall as Dick Harradin are particularly good. The piece, as a whole, is very successful. Lil Hawthorne contributes to the programme a couple of charming songs; and T. E. Dunville makes a hit in his well-known comic style. Other excellent turns are given by Alburtus and Bartram, club experts; Ryan and Hall, acrobatic comedians; the Merrions, entertainers; Verno and Voyce, in a song scena; the Sisters Gasch, smart athletes; and Dion Wade, the quaint-style one. The Biograph, as usual, is entertaining.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—A novelty here this week, which is attracting considerable notice, is the Fishing Cormorants, lately to be seen at the London Hippodrome. It is undoubtedly an interesting, instructive, unique, and amusing sight. Neil Kenyon, that highly amusing Scotch comedian, is still in Manchester, and is deservedly well received; the Picquays are extremely graceful head and hand balancers, and the inverted sand-dance, in conclusion, evokes a storm of applause; Victoria Monks, the popular comedienne, sings two catchy songs in a style of her own; the Wally Hoste Trio, comedy acrobats and jugglers, provide a capital turn, and introduce a cleverly-trained dog; Leona Dare gives a remarkably clever and unique musical trapeze act; Jordan and Harvey, Hebrew dialect comedians, are exceptionally funny; and Princess Gooma, of Youribah, and her West African bodyguard furnish an interesting turn. "In the Village by the Sea" is nicely sung by Miss Mildred Timms, assisted by the choir, who also render in finer style Elgar's glee, "O Happy Eyes." The American Bioscope shows some instructive pictures.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Mlle. Sylvia Du Barry, the charming South American soprano, is here this week, and renders three songs in a most delightful manner, and meets with a flattering reception. Very successful also are John E. Coyle, the popular eccentric comedian; G. W. Hunter, comedian and raconteur; and the American Comedy Four in scena, Outside ye Old Bulle and Bushe; Jennie Lynwood, a pleasing comedienne, makes a hit with her song, "Billy"; Kitty Neville sings nicely; Mlle. Vanda juggles cleverly whilst on the rolling globe; and Raynor and Reece are capital dancers. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures are particularly good.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A return visit of Mr. H. A. Jordison's pantomime of Cinderella is to be recorded here this week. The company includes Miss Daisy Morrell as the Prince; Miss Mamie Iris as Cinderella; Messrs. Johnny Worman and Billy Keene as the ugly sisters; Mr. Will Letters as the page; Mr. Chas. Russell, as the Baron; Messrs. Harris and Worth as the broker's men; and Mr. J. H. Booth as the deaf General; and all of these do much towards making the performance amusing and successful. The dresses, scenery, and general staging give brightness and colour to the show.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Ara, Zebra, and Vora present here this week a novel and pleasing acrobatic sketch, entitled Indian Pastimes, and are greeted with much applause. Well received sketches, which cause no end of laughter, are also contributed by the Brothers Anthony and the Brontes. Other good turns are those of the Three Royal Temples, including Louie Gilbert (soprano), operatic vocalists; Welda and Wynne, very smart jugglers; Dobito and Buxton, vocalists; Linton, who performs clever feats on the wire; and Little Violet, child vocalist. The Mimosa Trio did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

Hippodrome (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Harry Tate's company in an original sketch, entitled Fishing, is to the front here this week. The piece is quaintly humorous, and causes much merriment. Menotti, the Stockholm Wonder, is very clever and daring in his cycling act on the revolving wire, and is loudly applauded; and the exceedingly smart juggling of Ernesto is also well received. Particularly good are the Eccentric Arleys in their clever and amusing cycling performance; Bert and Dora are good in song and smart patter; and Harry Bent is successful in his impersonations of music-hall stars. Other entertaining items are given by Little Dando, comedian; Thurston, mimic; and Carlotta Lunn, American comedienne. "Oxo Cattle Farms," are shown on the Bioscope.

Mansfield.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moulla and Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Mr. Herbert Barr's pantomime Cinderella is attracting large audiences here this week. Miss Lallah Davies is a capital Prince Charming; she has a good voice, and her singing is much appreciated. The character of Dandini is capitally portrayed by Miss Josephine Preece; Messrs. Grapho and Jackson as the Ugly Sisters create roars of laughter; Baron Stonio is played in first class style by Mr. Carl Fredericks; Miss Dorothy Oswald as Cinderella sings her way into the hearts of her audience; the Broker's Men (Messrs. Duncan and Morton) create a great amount of merriment; as also does Mr. Alf Widdownson as Buttons; Messrs. Grapho and Jackson introduce a quick change act entitled In a Restaurant, and win much applause; the Ya Pyn Keto Family give a clever turn of conjuring; the dancing by the Rainbow Trio is very clever. Entertaining turns are also given by the Ohio Quartette and Duncan and Morton.

Margate.—The Hippodrome.—Sole proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree. The list of turns here is deservedly headed by Helen Charles, an artist of exceptional merit, her imitation of Chirgwin singing "The Blind Boy" is cheered to the echo; Edith Sylvesto is a clever contortionist; and Wal Robbins proves himself an amusing instrumentalist; Constance Mori is especially good as a dancer; Little Don keeps the house in a roar of laughter with his eccentricities; and Minnie Cunningham, Irish comedienne, is also good; the Harlem Brothers, versatile performers, do a smart turn in rifle swinging, tumbling, and sand dancing; and Ruffell's pictures are once more excellent.

Merthyr Tydfil.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—The Midnight Wedding, presented by Messrs. Walter Howard and Alfred Panmier's company is here this week. Mr. Alfred Panmier ably impersonates the character of Paul Valmar, and Miss Annie Luther is to be praised for her capable embodiment of Princess Astrea; Mr. Clinton Baddeley presents a careful study of the part of Captain Rudolph Von Scarsbruck; and Mr. Fred W. Freeman satisfactorily fills the rôle of the Crown Prince Leopold. Messrs. Fred Constable, Reginald Payne, and Algie Spalding cause much amusement as Max, Otto, and Bobo, receiving valuable support from Miss Ada Champion as Kathie.

Mexborough.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. Ed. Marris's pantomime Dick Whittington is being presented here this week. Miss Winifred Preece is delightful in the title-rôle; Miss Lottie Vincent is a capital Alice; Mr. Walter Wade a versatile Idle Jack; Mr. Walter Nugent a capable Dame; and Mr. W. H. Ball does well as Fitzwarren. Mr. C. Kashma is thoroughly at home as Captain Kettle; and Mr. Wm. Kashma is a particularly lively cat. The specialities include the Thalian Glee Singers, the Kashmas (acrobatic comedians), the Sisters Vincent (coon singers and dancers), and Miss Effie White in her rainbow and fire dances.

Middlesbrough.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in Oliver Twist is here this week. Fagan is entrusted to Mr. Stanley Drewitt, and in his hands the portrayal leaves little to be desired. Mr. W. H. Kemble is well adapted for the rôle of Bill Sykes, in which he achieves a distinct success; Mr. Cyril Cattley does well as Henry Maylie; and Mr. W. H. Rotherham in the rôles of Monks and Mr. Grimwig, gives every satisfaction. As Nancy, Miss Edith Auton Laing is responsible for a faithful interpretation, and wins many tokens of approval; Miss Helen Clement acts gracefully as Rose; whilst Miss Dorothy Marsdin, in the title-rôle, is an effective exponent; Mr. Chas. Clark, as the Dodger; and Mr. C. Hunter, as Bates, are interesting.

Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. Arthur; Manager, Mr. W. K. Chatto. Mr. Walter Reynolds' company in Mr. Smith is here this week. The cast includes Mr. Hamilton Stewart, who figures prominently in the title rôle, his acting being strong and vigorous; Mr. Herbert Graham smartly represents Herr Deidrich Anheuser; Mr. Sydney Price, as The Earl, is interesting; as is also Mr. William Dunlop, as the Duke. Mrs. Alfred Davis plays Mrs. Smith with becoming dignity and grace; and Miss Phyllis Relph is clever as the vivacious Ruth Anheuser; Miss Mary Relph proves herself a bright and hearty Duchess; and Miss Ethel Milton is a fascinating Lady Mary. Other praiseworthy performances are given by Mr. Rupert Strutfield and Mr. Austin Spencer.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Alf. Mattison; Manager, Mr. Chas. Rembges.—Excellent turns are provided at this place of amusement. Frank and Albert Boisset's troupe head the bill and create roars of laughter in their sketch, The Wild West; Raie Walters is well appl given by Levarni; and Nash and Noel, comedians and dancers, are well received, as are also Julian Mack, Carl Howard, the crazy juggler, the Sisters Albert, vocalists, Estio and Leuigy, eccentrics, and the animated pictures by the Barrascope.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Miss Maud Hildyard's company is here in The Great Awakening this week. Miss Maud Hildyard as Lola Selby gives a really clever interpretation of an unscrupulous adventuress; Mr. Bernard Copping provides a good impersonation of Jack Merton, and he also sustains the part of Sir Henry Merton; Mr. Chas. Fancourt, as Captain Harry Lambert, makes a pleasing hero; and Miss Nina Blake Adams, as Molly Merton, wins the sympathy of the audience. The humorous side of the piece is in the hands of Mr. Willie Scott (Billy Brass), and Miss Isa Bellington (Selina Worte), who evoke much laughter while they occupy the stage.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Arthur Lennard heads the bill here, and is received with hearty applause; Madame Alice Simmons, Australian operatic artist, scores; and the Marlo and Dunham Trio are smart performers on the horizontal bar; and great skill in ladder balancing is shown by the Silvas. The comedy sketch, The Hunt, by Terry and Bentley, is a source of amusement; the Sisters Aindow provide a pleasing musical turn; and Lizzie Fletcher sings her songs in a taking style. The military sketch, Drummed Out, by A. C. Lilly and Co., is much appreciated; and the Bioscope shows some new pictures.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—Mr. James Kiddie presented here his comic pantomime of Cinderella on Monday. Mlle. De Rose's rich voice does justice to her songs as the Prince; Miss Rose Pareezer sings admirably and looks well as Sunbeam; Miss Adela Roze is a delightful Cinderella; and plenty of fun is provided by Mr. Dick Thomas as the Baron, Mr. Sidney Benson and Mr. Steve Cooke as Ethel and Maud, the two Sisters, and Mr. Frank Dunlop as Pimples the Page. The specialities of Messrs. Houpla and Hecla are well appreciated, and the ballet and choruses are very good.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Burton.—The Seven Savonas in their musical scena, The Palace of Orpheus, a veritable prismatic combination, give their remarkably clever musical display with the greatest success; the wonderful cycling of the Six Elliotts is clever, daring, and unique; Harry Sims (descriptive vocalist), Janet Howard Reynolds (a sweet singer of sweet songs), Harry Royde (an amusing comedian), Horton and Linder (in a grotesque gymnastic act), Elsie Earle (burlesque actress), Josie Watson (comedienne), and the famous Palace pictures furnish the rest of a good programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Large audiences have assembled here this week, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levy and Mr. J. E. Cardwell's company, with the pantomime, Beauty and the Beast, being the attraction. As Prince Charming, Miss Kitty Trewhitt gives an artistic representation of the part; and Miss Mona Townshend is smart as Will Scarlett; Miss Dolly Dodds makes quite a hit as Beauty; Miss Ida Gibson is clever as Maid Marion; and Miss May Gibson shines as Silver Star; Master Will Kay is a droll Baron Mumps; Master Fred Bentley makes the most of Dressalinda; Master Fred Ellis is prominent as Marigolda; and Master Paddy Mills and Master Tot Hunter, as the sheriff officers, are responsible for much hearty laughter. The specialities and the harlequinade are also much enjoyed.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The Celtics, in their musical comedy act, are received with much favour here. The Grovinis, lady and gentlemen acrobats, perform some marvellous feats, for which they are loudly applauded; Messrs. Reed and Wright, comedy duettists and dancers, are clever; and Mr. Sam Shipley (eccentric comedian), Miss Beattie Worth (comedienne), Mr. Charles Valvo (ventriloquist), and Mr. Dan Merriles (bass drum performer), and the Bio-Photoscope, are all successful.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—Mr. Erno Aguzzi's company in Sinbad the Sailor is here this week. Miss Marie Gerrard is a dashing Sinbad, and she dances and sings in a pleasing manner. As Princess Zaza Miss Rose Tree does well, her dancing being exceptionally clever. Mr. Erno Aguzzi in the rôle of Tinbad causes much amusement, and is ably supported in his efforts by the Ashley Bros. as Captain Scuttlem and Baccer Stopper. As Mrs. Sinbad Mr. Will Owen is extremely funny, and his drolleries earn well-merited applause. The specialities include the Tom Boys, acrobatic and speciality dancers; the Great Anthy, in a clever wire act; Belford and Mars, comedy duettists; and Will Owen, Tyrolean vocalist.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company is giving a capital representation here this week of A Royal Divorce. Mr. Frederick Mayes presents Napoleon in a most impressive manner; Mr. Harry Gray Dolby is everything desirable as Talleyrand; whilst Mr. Henry Ludlow ably embodies Marquis de Beaumont. Mr. C. Lionel Brocknor as General Angereau; Mr. T. W. Ford as Marshal Murat, and Mr. H. J. Powell as Dr. Corvisart, do well in their respective parts. Mr. Dennis Bryan as Gumaud, and Mr. Charles Stanley as Marshall Ney, are capable. Miss Lilian Dundas acts the part of the Empress Josephine with much dignity and power; Miss Muriel Thompson is excellent as Marie Louise; whilst Miss Gertrude Entwistle has had a favourable reception as Stephanie de Beauharnais, Miss Gracie Kendrick is good as the little King of Rome; and Miss B. French Stewart equally so as Gouvernant. Miss Alice Metcalfe as Blanche d'Hervas, Miss Teresa Gilmour as Angelique de Varennes, Miss Ada Kavanagh as Madam la Campan, and Miss Barbara Mead as Jeannela Terroure, ably assist. On Friday evening a complimentary benefit was given to Miss Lillian Dundas.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—A capital variety programme is presented this week. Miss Nellie Coleman, rightly called the female Dan Leno, heads the bill, and delights the audience with her eccentric drolleries; the Four Marsanas are entertaining as well as comical musicians, and create amusement; the Phillipi Brothers are clever head and hand balancers, exhibiting great strength and agility; Percy Hannan, the American baritone, gives some excellent songs; Wal Grove and Jenny Chalmers are very good as society entertainers; Dome exhibits clever work in clay modelling; whilst Gertie Gitana proves entertaining in her songs and step dancing. Gus Hindel, in song and story, is an excellent turn; the Hippo. Bio shows pretty pictures; whilst Captain Selby's band renders great assistance to the entertainment. At last Saturday's matinée through the kindness of the proprietors, the boys of the "Evening News Brigade," numbering about 350, were entertained to the performance, previously to which the party were photographed, with the manager, Mr. Councillor Fitt, and others being taken in the centre of the group.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Frank Curzon has provided an all-round good company for the latest musical comedy The White Chrysanthemum. The tuneful music, bright setting, and wholesome fun were thoroughly appreciated by Monday's audience, and numerous recalls demanded. Miss Ruth Lincoln, who impersonates the name-part, is a cultured and experienced vocalist; Miss Maud Harvey makes a winsome and attractive Betty Kenyon; and Miss Isabelle Dillon contributes a lively portraiture of the American girl, Cornelia Vankerdecken. Mr. John Clulow aptly assumes the breezy Admiral Armitage, and Reggie Armitage is capitally acted by Mr. F. Pope-Stamper; Mr. G. Davy Burnaby enters into the spirit of the fun in no half-hearted way, his "chipping" being a success throughout; two exceedingly droll characters are seen in Mr. O. B. Lennen (Sin Chong) and Mr. Harry Paulton, jun. (Perks), and a well balanced chorus render the music with good effect under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson opened their second and last week with a fine performance of Julius Cæsar. In the part of Marcus Antonius Mr. Benson displayed his best qualities, the oration especially being given with fervour and earnestness; Mrs. Benson showed a tender womanliness in depicting Portia; and Miss Tita Brand embodied Calphurnia with dignity and refinement; Mr. George Buchanan was impressive as Julius Cæsar; and Mr. Derwent gave the fullest expression to the rôle of Octavius Cæsar. Valuable assistance was also rendered by Misses Katharine Boyce, Leah Hanman, and Messrs. Cyril Keightley, H. O. Nicholson, B. A. Pillar, and Clarence Derwent. King Lear on Tuesday brought out Mr. Benson's great histrionic powers, and the audience cheered him to the echo. Mrs. Benson gave a sympathetic portrayal of Cordelia; and the two vengeful sisters, Regan and Goneril, were vigorously described by Miss Elinor Aickin and Miss Tita Brand; the faithful Edgar was finely depicted by Mr. Cyril Keightley; and as the Fool Mr. George R. Weir realised the pathetic side with realistic feeling. Other plays given were Henry the Fifth, The Taming of the Shrew and A Midsummer Night's Dream.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—A London Actress contains an element of excitement and plenty of fun, which appeal to the patrons here, and a large house on Monday gave it a rousing welcome. Miss Emma Litchfield, the authoress of the play, presents a fine interpretation of the unscrupulous adventuress, Hilda Mannering, showing the necessary fire and passion; Miss Maud Steeples enacts the heroine, Phyllis Crawford, with sympathetic tact and care; Mr. John C. Carlyle plays Clive Crawford feelingly and earnestly, and Mr. Arthur F. Dudley makes a satisfactory Lieutenant Kingstone; Mr. George H. Doyle as the deceived husband, Captain Mannering, gives a smart embodiment; and Mr. Stuart Cleveland shows aptitude as the money-lending Jew, Moses Mendoza. A word of praise is also earned by Misses Nellie Fern, Millie Hayward, Theo. Herries, and Maud Saxby.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Vesta Tilley, as dainty and delightful as ever, is charming crowded houses nightly by her inimitable rendering of songs, both old and new. A vast amount of fun is created by the Mannons in their burlesque absurdity Uncle Yank, which brings forth uproarious laughter; Stewart and Morgan find much favour by a little sketch introducing a number of Irish melodies; an interesting and attractive entertainment of physical culture is supplied by the five Bellatzer Sisters; an amusing comedy juggling performance is given by Drawee, Frisco, and Hambo; and another humorous piece of work brings out the abilities of Fyne and Hurley; the drollery of the Bohemians does not interfere with their clever playing of musical instruments, and the singing of W. H. Downs calls for a word of praise; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden submit a capital little trifle called A Desperate Remedy, for which they receive their reward.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Home, Sweet Home, presented by Mr. Frank Lindo's company, is proving a good attraction here. The author, Mr. Lindo, fills with much success the rôle of Stephen Armitage; as David Armitage Mr. J. W. Henson gives an excellent study; Miss Marion Wakeford is impressive as Joan; abundant humour is supplied by Mr. Ernest E. Owens (Lord Silvermore), Mr. S. Bryant (the Hon. Percy), and Miss Hettie Webster (Sibyl Fay). Good work is done by Capt. Gerald Gambier as the Duke of Ancaster, Mr. Wilson Coleman as Lucas Lyle, and Mr. George Overs as Dick Kidmayne.

OXFORD.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's company in A Wrecker of Men is the attraction here for this week. Mr. C. Watson Mill presents a very powerful and careful rendering of Jim Murley, and Mr. P. Horton enlists sympathy as Guise Strange. Mr. Gilson Brooke enacts Railton with due restraint, and Mr. M. Noble gives a clever and artistic portrayal of Pharosophus. Mr. Henry Rutland does good work as Ezekiel Isaacs; Mr. N. Carter is seen to advantage as Hon. Reggie Verincourt; and Mr. Alfred Maurice is a manly Eric Melville. Miss Cissie Podmore is convincing as Dorris Melville, and Miss Kittie Melville is a vivacious Valvasole Slopper. Miss Rosalind Tate interprets Risca Mallison with considerable dramatic intensity, and achieves undoubted success.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—Mr. Esmond Bramley's company headed by Mr. Cyril Este and Miss Millie Ford, is presenting a good selection of Shakespeare's plays this week, the répertoire for the week including Richard III., All's Well that Ends Well, As You Like It, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and Romeo and Juliet.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—An entirely satisfactory programme is submitted here this week by the Lulaine Darrell Trio (novelty gymnasts), W. E. Hilton (ventriloquist), the Percys, in their comedy act The Showman, Blanche Gerard (versatile actress and dancer), Lang and Beal (knockabout musical comedians), Stentora (baritone vocalist and singer of coon songs), and Joe Mack (eccentric burlesque comedian).

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. George Dance's own company in The Girl from Kay's is delighting theatregoers here this week. Miss Lily Edmonds assumes the title-rôle, and could hardly imagine a more suitable exponent for so charming a part; Mr. J. W. Cooper excels in the arduous part of Max Hoggenheimer, and creates considerable amusement, while Mr. Claude Dampier stands high in the roll of honour for his delightful impersonation of Joseph; and no mean talent is exhibited by Mr. Herbert Franklin in his clever portrayal of Harry Gordon. Miss Marie Greenhouse displays considerable power as Norah Chalmers, and Miss Irene Vere is quite a favourite as the amorous Ellen; Miss May Wiltshire does full justice to the rôle of Mrs. Chalmers, in which her vocal talent finds scope and is much appreciated; Miss Roma D'Alroy is advantageously placed as Jane, Mr. Fred Thomson is quite amusing as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle, as also are Messrs. Herbert Jennings and E. Ford as Theodore Quench, Q.C., and Mr. Chalmers. Mr. Austin Herbert is an admirable Pepper the Page Boy; Messrs. Sydney Carte and J. Hart are capable exponents of Archie Pembridge and Fred respectively, as also are the several artists who adopt the rôles of Assistants at Kay's and Norah's Bridesmaids.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Brown.—The Cingalee presented by Mr. George Dance's company is here this week. Miss Edith Harmer is entirely successful in the leading rôle of Nanoya, which she acts with much grace and energy. Mr. Tom Payne leads the comedy, and deserves unstinted praise; the Hon. Harry Vereker is ably accounted for by Mr. A. Wortley Drewitt, whose voice is heard to advantage in the various numbers allotted to the part; the rôle of Peggy Sabine finds an excellent representative in Miss E. Hughes; Mr. Eric Fenton is distinctly clever as Sir Peter Loftus; and Mr. E. Edwards is in every way satisfactory as Bobby Warren; as the tea girls, Miss Phillis Herbert, Miss Marie Hayden, Miss Rose Lind, and Miss Millie Gordon figure most agreeably. Mr. F. Sutton acquits himself admirably as Boobhamba. Other members of the company are Messrs. Miller Wilson, Guy Nixon, G. Mepstead, Misses Millie Field, Cynthia Norman, Dora Grey.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—Local playgoers are enjoying a dramatic treat here this week, The Little Breadwinner being the attraction. An excellent company interprets the piece most successfully. Mr. Edward Lloyd plays with power and earnestness as Lord Dorrington; Mr. Gordon McLeod enacts the part of the secretary with skill and care; Richard Lawrence is an attractive character in the capable hands of Mr. Richard Boses; and a judicious amount of low comedy is introduced by Mr. Green Taylor as Charles Prior. Miss Myrtle Woodward gives a fine reading of the heroine, Margaret Daventry, her acting at times reaching a high standard. Miss Lily Prescot, Miss Irene Farington, and Miss Pattie Bells appear in important rôles with great credit.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—This week Mr. Henry Bedford and company are appearing here in Gipsy Jack and The See-Saw of Life. In the former drama Mr. Bedford essays the title-rôle in good style.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. W. H. Mitchell.—The popular musical comedy-drama Carl the Clock-maker is doing good business here this week. Mr. Harry Starr as Carl gives a clear-cut and realistic portrayal; Mr. Edwin Firth provides a fine study of Helmore the Anarchist; and Mr. Arthur Armfield and Mr. Arthur Esdail both render excellent service. Miss Lucy Fitzroy, Miss Madge Blundell, and Miss Kate Morris deserve warm commendation for their performances.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Brothers.—Some clever and interesting turns are included in this week's programme. Notably so is the one supplied by the Caledonian Boys, an orchestral and concert combination under the direction of Herr Guster Stephen and Herr Karl Hegel. A very amusing sketch is The Man in Possession, submitted by Blake and Granby; the Bros. Kroney appear in an act entitled London's Lazy Coalmen, their acrobatic feats being marvellous; delightful dancing by Susie and Protti is much enjoyed; the topical songs by George French hit the popular taste; Zeta Grey and company in The Lancashire Lass score a triumph; the Wiltons are clever duettists and dancers; Massona is a smart original juggler; and Vernon's Animated Pictures are excellent.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—This week Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company is presenting the drama entitled A Traitor Prince. Mr. G. M. Montanini is a conspicuous success in his portrayal of Prince Ras Dalmirez; Miss Nita Langford contributes an artistic embodiment of Vashti, the Indian snake charmer; Mr. Francis Everard is to be highly complimented on a clever portrayal of Lieut. Frank Derrick; Mr. Ernest A. Duval does full justice to the character of Bobby Bright; Mr. Jerold B. Reed as the Hon. Bobby Vavasour Dalrymple is entertaining; and Cara as presented by Mr. Victor Rae leaves nothing to be desired; Miss Rose Routledge gives a delightful impersonation of Lola Vane; Miss Kitty Thomas is a charming Pansy Blossom; Miss Clara O'Grady acts capably as Mrs. Martha Blossom; Mr. A. W. Norman ably impersonates Richard Vane, and Mr. George Montague shows to advantage as Sergt. Bucket.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—The special attraction here this week is Mr. Allan Wilkie and his dramatic company, who opened on Monday evening in Othello. Mr. Allan Wilkie in the title-rôle was well received, and was responsible for some excellent acting; Mr. Edwin Ling was a most satisfactory Duke of Venice; Mr. James Willoughby displayed ability in his representation of Brabantio; Cassio had a capital exponent in Mr. Clifford Rogers; Mr. G. Lambton was successful as Iago; Mr. Alfred Gray merited praise as Montano; Roderigo had an amusing representative in Mr. Louis Palgrave. Miss Ine Cameron gave an effective rendering of Desdemona and Miss Lizzie Maddocks was an efficient Emilia. The Corsican Brothers, The Fool's Revenge, David Garrick, The Lady of Lyons, and the Sleigh Bells are also in the week's Bill.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The bright and very successful musical play, The Catch of the Season, is being presented here this week by Mr. Charles Frohman's well-organised company. Angela is charmingly played by Miss Maie Ash; Miss Belle Napier makes the most of the part of Lady Catherham; Lady Crystal is ably portrayed by Miss Ida Mann; and the two daughters, the Hon. Sophia and the Hon. Honoria, are effectively acted by Miss Alice Lethbridge and Miss Hettie Muret. The Duke of St. Jermyns is well and successfully undertaken by Mr. Frank Lincoln; Mr. E. H. Kelly is most amusing as Lord Dundreary; Mr. Alfred Lloyd does well as Mr. William Gibson, and Mr. Julian Cross is an excellent Sir John Crystal. Mention may also be made of Master Grata, who does capitally as Bucket the page.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Walter Melville's combination is playing here the powerful play A Girl's Cross Roads. Miss Ada Oakley is most life-like in her delineation of the degraded Barbara Wade; Miss Nannie Meade meets with much appreciation as Nellie Meadows; Miss Elsie Savile gives a good rendering of Constance Cornell, the schoolmistress; the farmer, John Meadows, is excellently acted by Mr. Chas. Franmore; Mr. Frank R. Robertson as Jack Livingstone submits a finished and careful performance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—A diversified programme here this week includes the Andos Troupe of native Japanese equilibrists and acrobats, who do exceedingly good work; Queenie May, a youthful soubrette, has had a very kindly greeting; Risto Bros., acrobatic grotesques, contribute a diverting turn; the Norman Leonard Trio in the musical sketch The Itinerant is an undoubted success; W. J. Churchill, eccentric character comedian, has had a capital reception for his highly humorous songs and patter; Bert Byrne, light comedian, does well; Jennie Hartley, soubrette and danseuse, another youthful aspirant, is well received; and contributing to the success of the bill are the Clarion Trio (speciality artists), Les Sprays (Continental dancers), and some realistic pictures by Payne's Bio-photoscope.

PRESTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Charles Carte is this week presenting the drama, entitled A Noble Brother. Miss Doris Brookes gives a sympathetic rendering of Nana Leigh; Mr. Charles Carte shows dramatic ability and also a quaint sense of humour as Jerry, the tramp; Mr. J. Anadel Wilson is an ideal hero in the part of Jack Elsworth; Mr. Arthur Gilroy ably sustains the rôle of Henry Travers; Mr. Maurice Jones deserves great credit for his portrayal of Colonel Richard Leigh; Miss Alice Ballard as Mrs. Leigh wins the sympathy of the house; Miss Kate Cameron is a charming and vivacious Rosie Rapid.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—This week Witty Watty Walton heads the bill here, and, needless to say, scores a success; Avon and Crest also are popular comedians; the Five M.P.'s give a versatile and tuneful musical performance; the Franko Midgets are smart prestidigitators; the Brothers Herslebs display unusual strength in a comic acrobatic act; Dot Stanley is an accomplished vocalist and dancer; the Marconis present some clever and diverting electrical experiments; Daisy Aylmer, comedienne, is well received; the Ringling Trio, eccentric comedians and stilt-walkers, privide a capital turn. Bioscope pictures complete the programme.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company in The Worst Woman in London is proving a decided success. Mr. Wallace Campbell assumes the character of Jack Felton with the utmost success; Vincent Lyle is well depicted by Mr. Paul Barry Lewers; Mr. H. H. Barrington, the able stage-manager, is applauded for his acting as James Milford; Mr. Leonard Booker gives a forcible rendering of Philip Armstrong; Mr. W. H. Monte submits a fine conception of Hugh Drayton; and Mr. Percy Dawsone does good work as Bob Goldfinch. Miss Florence Dalton brings to bear considerable talent in the heavy part of Frances Vere; Miss Effie Bartlett plays Ruth Milford with much grace and refinement; and Miss Florence Lovell is to be complimented on a clever and humorous Matilda Parker.

RAMSGATE.—SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—With two shows a night, Mr. Gerald Hunt's biograph and varieties have been attracting large crowds here this week. One of the strong lines in the bill is Mr. Leo Selwyn, the handcuff prince, who proves his wonderful dexterity in getting free from manacles, &c. The variety programme is contributed to by Ricardo, comedy conjurer; Miss Hilda Verdi, vocalist; Dan Raymond, eccentric comedian; and Miss Edith Waring, ballad vocalist, &c.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Co-Proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company is here this week with The Poor Must Live. Miss Olive Fulton as Olga D'Ryncourt displays great talent and gives an artistic interpretation; and as Moya Darling Miss Alice Buckland presents a vivacious impersonation; Mr. Harold C. Macartney is a capital Donald; Miss Mollie Wynne as Dick Sully gives a sprightly portrayal, causing much merriment; as does also Mr. Arthur Carleton as Hooker Holdsmith. Mr. Geoffrey Fulton presents a clever impersonation as Clifton Manville; and as Sam Sully Mr. Arthur Trail is a great success; Mr. Charles O'Connor is good as the Earl of Marswood; and Miss Violet Hammersley as Dorothy Murdock acts with marked skill. Cross as Pete is all that can be desired, and he is ably seconded by Miss Minnie Waterford as Kate Cregeen, who gives a most effective and moving portrayal; Mr. Sydney H. Kearns as Phillip Christian is very artistic, and Mr. Chas. Halling as Ross Christian does very well. Miss Nancy Mitchell is charming as Nancy.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—Mr. J. H. Clynde's company in A Royal Revenge claims attention this week. Mr. J. H. Clyndes plays Estevan Alvarez in his usual finished style; as the rascally Moor Azan Ben Musid Mr. Fred Rivers excels; Manuel Mondega finds an apt representative in Mr. Arthur Chisholm; Mr. Herbert M. King is passable as the King of Spain; while Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon as Michael Sancha is truly styled the "Merry Muleteer," introducing catchy songs. Miss Enid Edoni is excellent as Inez Alvarez, her efforts being warmly applauded; Miss Aimee Grattan as the rejuvenated daughter Cora Casilda presents a pretty study; the volatile Macquita Marcella of Miss Celestine Brandon is a delightful piece of work; and the mother Marie Teresa of Miss Eve Manfred deserves mention.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Geoffrey Langdon's Wife? by Nita Rae, an interesting drama only a few weeks old, is presented this week by Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield. Miss Marie Dagmar sustains in a careful manner the principal character of Elinor D'Arville; Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's study of the infatuated Will Maynard is fine; Mr. George Mitchell powerfully interprets the dual parts of Geoffrey Langdon and Cyril Langdon; much laughter is caused by the clever drollery of Mr. T. G. Vane as the bespecked Leonard Vimbart, assisted by Miss Marie Chavering as Rosini; another comical character is Peter Miles, well played by Mr. Bradford Crosby; Miss Maudie Grayson as Phœbe and Mr. Charles R. Warne as Charles (a flunkey) also add some good comedy business; Miss Marie Barrett cleverly sustains the trying part of Lily Lorrimer.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Herbert Raymond; Secretary, Mr. J. C. Patterson.—Although most of the artists engaged this week have been seen here before, they appear to be none the less welcome. George Gilbey is exceedingly droll as "Sproutey the goalkeeper," causing hearty laughter; a pretty dramatic scena, The Little Colonel, by Ernest Montefiore and company, makes a good impression; De Henau, the rapid painter with his toes, is well received; some exceedingly smart acrobatic work is done by the Borghetti Troupe; Barney Stuart's sketches are clever; Reed and Lerne, comedians, cause much laughter; and Mlle. Aladina with her performing cockatoos, Ranji Singi (Indian magician), Lily Turner (descriptive vocalist), and Gracie Bard (coon artist and dancer) also give acceptable turns.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. Wentworth.—Yet another pantomime twice nightly. This week it is Babes in the Wood, specially written by Theodore Adge, and it is full of fun. Robin Hood is sustained by Miss Madge Daly (who is a favourite in this district), and Miss Nancy Thornton is a charming Maid Marian; the Baron is well played by Mr. A. Stratton; Mr. R. Hill makes a comical Dame Peggy; the Babes are very cleverly played by little Dolly Cullen and little Elsie Jordison; and Messrs. Bennett and Martell make excellent comic robbers; Mr. David Poole does a clever ventriloquial speciality, and there is plenty of go in the Ariston Quartette of dancers.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—Miss Jessie D'Alton's company appeared here on Friday and Saturday last in Beauty and the Beast, and were received by appreciative audiences. Miss Jessie D'Alton appeared to great advantage in the title-rôle, and was well supported by Messrs. Fred Park and J. V. Noble as the Two Sisters; Mr. Percy Galino as Marmaduke was very lively; Miss Lily Rhodes as Silver Star rendered her songs in excellent style. Specialities were introduced by the Cerito Troupe of Lady Dancers, who provided a smart turn; M. Pizet, the contortionist, deserves praise; and the Two Dandies, coloured comedians, kept the audience in roars of laughter.

SCARBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Henry Mayhew; Business-Manager, Mr. F. P. Morgan.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. H. Vivian Edmond's company in The Golden Ladder is here this week. Mr. Harry Cullenford as the Rev. Frank Thornhill is a most delightful missionary; Mr. J. Milne Taylor excelled himself in the trying part of Michael Severn; Mr. H. Bedford as Jim Dixon is well placed; Mr. G. Winsford as Peranza is effective. As Samuel Peckaby Mr. Joseph Rowlands finds favour; Miss Eva Moss as Lilian has a most captivating style and acts throughout with great ability; and Miss Nelly Graham makes an excellent Mrs. Peckaby.

AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—A strong programme is again presented here. This week Captain and Mrs. Julia Manard head the bill with an exceptional display of rifle and revolver shooting. Miss Lola Vereker has a good voice; the Shamrocks are clever dancers; Prof. McArthur delights the audience by showing how conjuring tricks are done; the Lennards with their illustrated songs are well received; and Miss May Longford and Harry Harcourt are both comedians of merit; the Hustlers, comedy dialogue artists, are entertaining; and the Monckton make a favourable impression in the sketches A Woman's Curiosity and The Lady and the Burglar.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. C. Harrison.—Mr. John F. Preston's company, under the dire

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. P. Reymond.—Amongst the newcomers this week are Maynard and France, who appear with success in the dramatic sketch A Father's Love; also Miss Amy Leggett, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Gus Daniels, descriptive vocalist; the Callcotts, comedy sketch artists; Miss Ethel Mordaunt, ballad vocalist, and the Rishaw Combination in the comedy act A Perfect Lady.

SHEFFIELD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company opened on Monday in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Beatrice Lindley as Suzanne revealed talents of a high order, united to a charming and winning personality; Miss Emily Patterson acted cleverly as the irritating mother-in-law, Mrs. Mallalieu was very successful as Mrs. Putman; and a good performance was the Fanny Minching of Miss Charlotte Mead. The character of Charles Trevor was represented in an earnest, sincere, and convincing manner by Mr. Herbert J. Bentley; Mr. F. G. Thurstans made a humorous uncle as Fitzroy Harding; a careful bit of character delineation was Mr. Townsend Whitling's Lord Datchet; and other neat sketches were the Harry Cecil of Mr. Edward Bonfield, the Mason of Mr. Frank Lee, the Sir Horace Hatton of Mr. William Mallalieu, the Tommy Kestan of Mr. Archie Selwyn, and the Mr. Budd of Mr. Edward Sidney. Miss Violet Fay was excellent as Lady Isabel; Miss Annie Stalman acted well as Mrs. Tunstail; and Mr. Bruce Smith was a characteristic Porter.

Alexandra Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Mr. Walter Melville's Her Second Time on Earth was again played here on Monday. Miss Hilda Beverley, a great favourite with Mr. Fosdike's patrons, was again seen to advantage as the handsome and alluring Dora Grey. An old Sheffield pantomime favourite in the person of Miss Pollie Marsh gave a realistic impersonation of a drunken virago. Mr. Harry Hillier was effective as Jack Carlton; and other well-considered studies of modern types of character were Mr. W. H. Porter's Guy Brand, Mr. W. C. Reid's Teddy Butterfly, Mr. George Gaisford's Captain Norman, Miss Dorothy Hildebrande's Laura Norman, and Miss Marjorie Millbank's Kitty Rosebud.

Empire Palace.—Proprietors, the Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The following artists gave pleasure on Monday to a crowded audience:—The Brothers Leslie, in a novel comedy act; Miss Selma Braatz, in a unique and graceful act; the Riogaka Family, sensational performers; Mr. Dan Conroy, a funny comedian; La Tostia, a talented and versatile artist; the Coloured Meisters, Messrs Baker and Lynne; Mr. Charles Adams, vocalist; the celebrated Vessems, in a distinctly novel performance, &c. In addition to these there was the American Bioscope, with special films of a humorous, local, and topical nature.

Grand Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Pallister's Biograph with up-to-date pictures, Mr. Sydney Mason's dramatic company, the Raymond Trio, Mr. Chas. Ray, and Miss Fifi Gordon form the chief items in the programme at the Grand this week.

SMETHWICK. — Theatre Royal.— Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—Florodora is being played here by J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 company. Mr. Albert Bruno makes Tweedlepunch one of the drollest of characters; his versatility as a comedian is fully displayed, and he dances with much skill. Miss Florence Hersee is admirable in the part of Angela Gilfain; no more charming representative of Lady Holyrood than Miss Kate Leicester has previously appeared here; Mr. Edward Chester is a very amusing Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. Harold Perry is a dashing Capt. Arthur Donegal; Mr. Edward Crossland is a pronounced success as Frank Abercoed; Miss Gwladys Elvey is an attractive Dolores; Leandro is cleverly portrayed by Mr. C. A. James; and special dances are introduced by the Misses L. Coe and F. Fenn.

SOUTHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton.—Mr. William Greet's company is here in The Sign of the Cross. Miss Marie Leonhard is a sweet and dainty Mercia, and Mr. William F. Grant is capital as Marcus Superbus. Miss Nellie Bonser is a charming Poppœa, and Mr. J. Boyd Pearson is good as the Emperor. Miss Ivy Millais is excellent as Stephanus.

Palace.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten: Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—The principal attraction is Mlle. Luba de Saremo and her wonderful performing animals. Dinah Morris and her troupe of Southern belles score in a musical scena, The Lost Coon, and Charles Austin, a capital eccentric comedian; Baker and Balfe, xylophone experts; Marba and Verity, humorists and dancers; Elsie Roby, comedienne and pianist; and Leah Arden, ballad vocalist, complete the bill.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; District Manager, Mr. Sydney Paxton; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. C. Aldin.—George Abel's company in the nautical sketch The Little Stowaway is well played and cordially received; Mahatma completely mystifies her audience, and is liberally aplauded; and H. A. Moore (an excellent mimic), Fred. Curran (a capital comedian), Sisters Edwards (dancers), the Bodina Trio (vocalists and instrumentalists), and Flo Schuberth (burlesque artist) also find great favour.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—Empire Theatre.—Sole Owners, The Southend Theatre Co. (1905), Ltd.; Managing Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—The attraction for this week is the fascinating drama entitled The Female Swindler, which is being presented by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's renowned company. Monday's production was most successful in all respects, and the scenery and effects elicited admiration. Mr. Henry C. Cooper soon gave the impression that the rôle of John Coulson, the criminal investigator, was in really clever hands; Abraham Mikestein was well taken by Mr. Bernard Dunstan; and Mr. Luke Forster won praise for his many characters, Billy Binks being conspicuous; Mr. W. Shaw was good as Detective Dixon; to Mr. Hugh Mewburn was entrusted the rôle of Geoffrey Warden, whose villainy was finely depicted; Harold Travers found in Mr. Paul Beckett a capital exponent; Miss Florrie Kelsey was seen to advantage in her portrayal of May Andrews; and Miss Grace E. Leslie gave a really clever impersonation of Lu Valroy.

SOUTHPORT.—Opera House, Winter Gardens.—General-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—An entertainment of more than usual attractiveness is provided by the engagement of Mr. William Greet's principal company in The Earl and the Girl. Principal honours are shared by Mr. William Stephens and Miss Aimee Grey, the former in the rôle of Jim Cheese, which he impersonates with irresistible grotesque drollery, and the latter as the American heiress Elphin Haye, a part that is depicted in a charmingly volatile manner. Daisy Fallowfield is piquantly represented by Miss Florence Imeson; Mr. Percy Carr is an admirable exponent of Dick Wargrave; Miss Dot Carey submits a capital character-sketch as Liza Shoddam; Miss Gladys Fontaine very effectively portrays Mrs. Shimmering Black; the Hon. Crewe Boodle has a commendable representative in Mr. Percy Wright; Mr. George H. Curzon appears to advantage as Bunker Bliss; Mr. Will Hudson and Mr. J. C. Graves, as the American and English solicitors, create much amusement.

Pier Pavilion.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Parker; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Mertz.—Carlton, the King of Cards and eccentric wizard, supplies the premier turn here this week. The good all-round programme presented includes Masie Pelham, comedienne and dancer; Milly Wolstenholme, operatic vocalist; George Hall, comedian and siffleur; the Vekeys, marvellous banjoists; Mark Merry, quaint comedian; the Three Sisters Geroude, vocalists and dancers; Harry Maynard, vocal comedian; and the bio-tableaux.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Mr. E. Lockwood's excellent company is appearing here in the musical comedy Sergeant Brue. Mr. Paddy Dupres proves a capital exponent of the title-rôle; Miss Midge Clark furnishes a pleasing Lady Bickenhall; Miss Lilian Middleton as Aurora Brue also figures charmingly; Mr. Henry Chichester characteristically interprets Mr. Crank; Mr. Clarence Napier (Inspector Gorringe) and Mr. Arthur Stroud (General Treherne) do justice to the parts allotted them; Mr. E. Percy Rogers is a handsome and manly Michael Brue; and another praiseworthy portrayal is the Daisy of Miss Eliza Earle. An augmented orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. Norman Latham.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—The principal attraction this week is Bella and Bijou, the favourite society entertainers. Holden's Mannikins submit an exceedingly enjoyable performance; Harry Clifford is an amusing comedian; Prince Lee Fung is a good Chinese magician; the American Bioscope is again prominent with fresh films; Goggin and Davis are smart in a comedy act; Florrie St. Clair is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; and the remaining items are contributed by George Ridgwell and T. C. Callaghan.

Tivoli.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Joseph Sweeney.—J. H. Milburn, vocal comedian, heads a good bill here, and is enthusiastically received; Harry Lee is a comedian and mimic of ability; Devoy, Hurst, and Ricks are responsible for an amusing sketch; the Atkins Trio of Comedy Vocalists are firm favourites; and Volp and Volp appear to advantage in a refined musical act. Other successful items are A. P. Boswell, Fred Lindsay, and Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—The noted American-Indian actress, Miss Go-Won-Go Mohawk, is paying a visit here with Wep-Ton-No-Mah, in which she plays the title-rôle in a really charming manner. Her efforts are ably seconded by her well-trained Indian ponies Wongy and Buckskin. Mr. Edward Leroy appears successfully as Spanish Joe; as the kind-hearted Col. Stockton Mr. C. W. Charles is seen to advantage; Miss Minnie Goepel is exceedingly vivacious as Nellie Stockton; and Miss Dora Pass exhibits talent in her portrayal of Matilda. Mr. Guy C. Hackney in the nigger part of Sam White, with his dog, is the cause of much merriment; and Mr. Dan Ryan as Garry Cullen establishes himself a prime favourite. In the rôle of Captain Franklin Mr. Ike Shawcross renders adequate service. The scenery is all that can be desired.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Benton's company opened on Monday with A Marriage of Vengeance. Mr. A. L. Baron does well as Glynne Earnscliffe; and Mr. Max Coutts is well placed as Geoffrey Fannock; as Max Rheinhardt Mr. Fred Benton gives a clever presentation of an exacting rôle. The comedy business is in the capable hands of Miss R. Hamilton Belasco (Amelia) and Mr. Seymour Perry (Bob Shorner), who work well together; as Stella Miss A. Harrison Tate is a distinct success.

STOCKPORT. — New Theatre Royal. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Pantomime again is entertaining the numerous habitués of this theatre, Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company of talented artists presenting Little Bo Peep with marked success. Miss Susie Bevan makes an attractive principal boy, and as Boy Blue sings most pleasingly; a charming little lady is Miss Lizzie Payne in the part of Bo Peep; Mr. J. W. Groves is genuinely funny and amusing as the Dame; whilst among other comedians who work hard together and provide abundant fun are Messrs. Stern and Stern as Johnny Stout and Jimmy Green; Messrs. Gilroy and Gross as Weary William and Tired Thomas; Mr. Harry Wren as Tommy Long, and Mr. Dawson Dewick as Baron Hardup. Included in the specialities are the Pemm Quartette in their charming coon song and dance, the Solon Trio in their pleasing statue performance, and the Hammersley troupe of lady dancers.

Empire.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatres Co., Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black.—The Akimoto troupe of Japanese equilibrists, who give a marvellous entertainment, are the chief attraction here this week; among others engaged are Bayne and Hope in a Napoleonic episode An Emperor's Divorce, which was followed with interest and received with gratifying appreciation; Emilie Warren is a ballad vocalist of much ability, and was deservedly applauded; Morimura, a Chinese conjurer, gives a clever entertainment; the Brothers Newport are able and amusing gymnasts; John Ross, styled the silver-voiced tenor, sang pleasingly, whilst the entertainment given by Lieut. Chard's performing dogs and troupe of high-leaping hounds was greeted with hearty applause.

STOURBRIDGE. — Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company was here on Monday and two following nights with the successful musical comedy Sergeant Brue. In the title-rôle Mr. J. Harold Carson proves a capable representative; while Mr. Frank Wilson as Michael Brue is funny, and receives unstinted applause. Miss Gertie Fawcett is a charming Aurora Brue; the rôle of Lady Bickenhall is admirably depicted by Miss Reydon Dallas; and Miss Amy Vivash is good as Daisy.

STROUD.—Subscription Rooms.—Manager, Mr. H. J. Twitchett.—Miss Inez Howard's company presented on Saturday the romantic military play Revenge. Mr. H. Bonhote Willson displayed fine acting qualities in the rôle of Capt. Loris Vanetta; the villainy of Prince Orloff was well depicted by Mr. Alfred Brandon; Mr. H. C. Lanceley sumbitted a good rendering of the King; Count Mussant found a clever exponent in Mr. Edward Swinton; Mr. Guy P. Ellis made a manly Capt. Carr; the same may be said of Mr. Walter Kenion as Jim Jennings; Miss Josie Beltram acted with much feeling as Lieutenant Maurice; the Queen was sympathetically represented by Miss Nesta Sandford; Miss Eva Trevenna faithfully interpreted the part of Cora Brook; and Draga Vanessa was powerfully acted by Miss Marion Turner.

SUNDERLAND.—Avenue Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—This is the last week of the successful pantomime Cinderella. There is no change in the cast, and the piece is as popular as ever.

Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Sunderland Theatres, Ltd; Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hemingway.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company is here this week in The Face at the Window. The Chevalier Lucio Delgado finds an apt exponent in Mr. E. Hoggan Armadale, and Mr. T. W. Dunscombe infuses considerable power into the rôle of Paul Gouffet. Mr. Alfred Warne is seen to advantage as Henry de Brisson, whilst Mr. Gilbert Hall makes the most of his opportunities as Lucien Cortier. Mr. Calne Hineson is a droll Peter Pottleberry, and Mr. George Phythian is well placed as Le Blanc. Miss N. Thorne Hallam gives a refined rendering of Marie de Brisson, and as La Pinau Miss Elaine Grant leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Gwynne Warren is a bright and charming Babette.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. John H. Stringer; Treasurer, Mr. Alfred Browne.—A good all-round programme is provided here this week. The Moran and Marreece Quartette party top the bills, and please with their clever electric and musical entertainment, their lightning transformations being very smart. George Adams, baritone vocalist; Barton and Franklin, Scottish musicians; Grell and Grey, in their amusing absurdity Bertie's First Lesson in Tennis; Charles Lilburn, comedian; Agnes and Arthur Lynch, with picture songs; Haig and Novel in a clever comedy act; and the Four Stellings in their quick-change act, all contribute acceptable turns. The entertainment winds up with the usual show of Vernon's up-to-date animated pictures.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Captain Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Dare-Devil Dorothy, played by Mr. Henry Swinerd's company, is paying a first visit here this week. Miss Dorothy Desmond plays the title-rôle in a charming manner; Mr. Arthur Verne as Silas Crump creates roars of laughter, his humour and singing being greatly appreciated. He is ably assisted in the comedy by Miss Mabel Blake, who plays Rosy Ann; Mr. Cecil W. Parke as Capt. George Fielding and Mr. Henry C. Ward as Capt. Edward Dudley, are also good. The specialities which abound in the piece are excellent. Miss Mabel Blake and Miss Nellie Anderson's mirror dance is exceptionally clever.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—The visit of Miss Lillian Holmes to this town with her Rip Van Winkle company, under the business direction of Mr. Herbert Burnley, attracted a large audience on Monday. A prominent feature of this production was the beautiful scenery, Mr. A. Maitland Stapley, who was seen to considerable advantage as the hard-hearted Derrick, being also responsible for the excellent staging of the piece. The company was headed by that popular artiste Mr. Fred Storey, who must be highly complimented on his clever impersonation of Rip, for which he was deservedly applauded; Miss Lilian Holmes was very successful as Gretchen; while Mr. A. Wainwright and Miss Ella Brandon as Heindrick and Meenie respectively deserve praise for their good work; Master R. Conner and Miss Florence Gardner also undertook their small parts very pleasingly.

TON-Y-PANDY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Miss Winifred Maude's company is here in The Sins of a City. As Ralph Blackwater Mr. Edward Avinnal scores heavily; the parts of the twin brothers, Joe and Jasper Woodleigh, are well acted by Mr. Norman Shields; Mr. Royce Carleton is an excellent Sandy McDonald; Mr. Victor Du Cane creates great amusement as Isaac Levi. As Seaweed Miss Winifred Maude wins sympathy by her graceful impersonation. The Stowaway is booked for the latter part of the week.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—A great attraction is provided by Mr. William Greet's company, in the musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl. The comedy is admirably performed throughout, and the staging is excellent. Mr. Alfred Donohoe sustains the part of Jim Cheese with great humour; Mr. Leslie Gaze does well as Dick Wargrave; Mr. Thomas Kennard is seen to advantage as the Hon. Crewe Poodle; and A. Bunker Bliss, the irate American, finds an admirable exponent in Mr. A. E. Wilson. The important character of Elphin Haye is entrusted to Miss Hylda Dugdale, who gives a charming performance; Miss Ida Statham is a vivacious Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Beatrice Anderson's Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Lina Hicks' 'Liza Shoddam, are well played; and Miss Minnie Plumpton is smart as Miss Virginia Bliss, Mr. E. Plumpton as Downham, Mr. Sam Lysons as Mr. Talk, and Mr. Greville Hayes as Mr. Hazell, all fill their respective parts in good style.

Hippodrome.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—The Royal Cingalese Troupe contribute some native dances, which meet with appreciation; Martini and Son, American song illustrators, supply a capital turn; "Silent" Tait is a comical juggler; Messrs. Juan and McQue, comedians and patterers, are amusing; the Falcons, hand-balancers, are clever; and Miss Lottie Bray, banjo and dance artist, dances well; and Mr. Fred Brooke, comedian, wins favour.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre, Ltd.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; Joint Management, Moss Empires, Ltd., and The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd; Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—At the top of the bill here are Herr Grais's baboons, which prove a great attraction; Frank Darwin, character vocalist, is applauded; Gertrude Bradshaw, soprano, is clever; the Glenroy Troupe of Dancers are great favourites; and Flem and Brok are smart aerial boxers; Ethel Ra-Leslie sings some pleasing songs; the American Bioscope gives a sensational episode, "The Train Wreckers"; Edward Arthur and company in two scenes from The Lily of Killarney prove a great attraction.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—A visit of Adria Hill and Robert Ayrton's company with A Gambler's Daughter is being paid here this week. Mr. R. Ayrton is most successful as Desmond O'Dare; as the villain Mr. R. Pitt acts with ability; Mr. Harry Rutland is well placed as Ralph Gillman; Mr. Alfred Sanders is a capable exponent of Soloman; as Jack Grant, Mr. Victor Millard lends adequate support; Miss Adria Hill plays with vigour and effect; and Miss E. Vane makes an amusing negress.

WALTHAMSTOW.—Palace.—Managing Director, Mr. G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slater.—Prominent in this week's bill are Vivian's Arcadians, a trio of pretty damsels who in a fine woodland scene, and attired as ideal shepherd and shepherdesses, sing much charming music and dance with grace; C. St. John Denton and G. Rowland's company of children in the scena The Punch and Judy Girl, by Newman Harding, introduce a number of sprightly youngsters who sing in good style some rattling songs and perform various intricate dances; the Virginians, a quartette of genuine coloured artists, appear in "Koons' Kutting Kapers" most effectively, their harmonious singing being supplemented by a considerable amount of energetic dancing. Miss Cassie Walmer, described as the Dusky Queen, is the possessor of a powerful voice which is heard to great advantage in "Bombay," while her sand dancing is not only good but shows extraordinary staying power; Mr. Tom Collins is a comedian whose voice is heard to great advantage in songs of the sympathetically dramatic character; one of the most amusing eccentric comedians we have had lately is Mr. Fred Dunstone, whose success is empathic, especially with his clever parody of the "Little Wooden Hut." Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope has a couple of series of capital films. Brien McCullough and company occupy an important position in the bill with the serio-comic episode Beneath Big Ben; Mr. McCullough appears as Walker Wallop, and extracts every inch of fun that can be secured from the part.

King's Theatre.—The American drama A Fight for Millions is the attraction here this week and, capitally played and well staged, has been meeting with much popular favour. Mr. Percy Ballard makes a hit as Richard Dudley; Mr. Robert Ferris is capital as Willie Neverwork; Mr. W. Henry Hargraves is good as Tom Manley; Miss Eva Purcell is a capital heroine as Pearl Rivers, and Miss Audrey Sutherland acts very prettily as Little Madge. The other parts in a long cast are all well filled by Miss Aubrey Canning, Mrs. Elma C. Turner, and Miss Lottie Pearce; Messrs. P. Geo. Beresford, Karl H. Edwards, Gus Harding, Nicholas Conway, George Hodges, James Risk, William Turner, R. Bradshaw, and J. Knox.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Mr. George Dance's company is at the Rylands-street house this week with The Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Minnie Leslie as Fi Fi gives a reading of the rôle which is decidedly her own, and her quaint personality is irresistible; Miss Poppy Wilkinson is active and vivacious as Mrs. Pineapple, and Miss Edie Ross is happily cast as Mrs. Brown; a smart and charming Soo Soo is Miss Ada Watson, who sings her songs very spiritedly. The bridesmaids are vivaciously impersonated by the Misses Lillie Hildroe, Maud Carlton, Madge Shaw, and Isobel Vivian. Mr. St. John Hammond acts with all the necessary ease and aplomb; Mr. Percy Russell is the essence of official acidity as Chippi Chop; and Mr. Jack Lisle is drily droll as Hi Lung, the Lord High Admiral; Mr. L. Bullock-Webster is a manly and agreeable exponent of the rôle of Tom Atherton, and Mr. Foster Courtenay as Mr. Pineapple makes the part stand out by his strong and acute treatment.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—The Brothers Bellong head the bill here this week, and are really the most sensational equilibrists seen here; Charley Whittle, one of the most popular comedians, again scores; and the Sisters Russell are thorough exponents of low comedy; Herbert Maden, character vocalist, does well, and Bromley and Fontein are original duettists. Charles Bignell (comedian) and the Brothers Hannaway (cross talkers and expert dancers), together with the fine Bioscope pictures complete an excellent programme.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's celebrated No. 1 Company in the romantic costume play Proof is proving a great attraction here this week. Mr. Gerald Kennedy's characteristic rendering of Pierre Lorance evokes loud applause; whilst the important rôle of Lazaire is admirably rendered by Mr. William Defter; Mr. Wilford Bailey as Chamboran proves a decided success; as Victor de Langney Mr. G. Garnet-Vayne is all that could be desired, and as the Duke D'Aubeterre Mr. Terence Nerry is well suited. Miss May Grimshaw plays the rôle of Valentine in an artistic manner; the part of Adrienne is left in the clever hands of Miss Lucy Prittie-Tydd; Miss Phena Powell as Madame Deprets, and Miss Dorothy White as the Duchesse D'Aubeterre do excellent work in their respective portrayals.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Messrs. Moore and Kennedy's pantomime company is here in the old favourite Dick Whittington, the title-rôle being played by Mlle. Lucretia with that charm and grace which are ever at her command, captivating the house with her clever singing and dancing; Mr. Dan Agar gives a smart impersonation of Idle Jack, keeping the audience in roars with his funny antics; Mr. Clarence Turner as Captain Bunting causes great amusement by his clever delineation; the Betsy Mary Ann of Mr. Arthur Behan reflects great credit upon him; M. Pauletti is responsible for much merriment and clever acting as the Cat; Mr. Hyam Long as Alderman Fitzwarren pleases with his instrumental turn; the Jessie Barrow Troupe work hard and give a good show; much of the applause goes to the three Behans, who give a smart turn of singing, dancing, and quick changing.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — Palace. — Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Georg Hackenschmidt, the champion wrestler, is taking on all comers here, and offers various challenges to British wrestlers. His exhibitions are followed with keen interest. A clever contortionist entertainment is provided by the Two Neros, with some diverting comedy interwoven into the act; the Paolias are responsible for a turn of much athletic interest, including some fine classic poses; a very popular artist is Ed. L. Ford, the Australian sundowner; Fred Harrison, in a funny Chinese ditty; Ted Farrar, the Lancashire comedian; the Sisters Wingrove, duettists and dancers; Gertie Moore, in a singing and dancing act; and the Bio-tableaux, are other attractions in a good programme.

Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Hardie and Von Leer's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here with great success. The attraction is A Path of Thorns, a drama of great merit. Mr. Wm. Fazan undertakes the work of the hero of the plot, John Edmunds, giving a most powerful interpretation of the character. Miss Muriel Dean, as the wife of Edmunds, is an artist capable of winning the deepest sympathies of an audience; and another lady who sustains a difficult rôle with great effect is Miss Emil Leslie, as Nell. The Rev. Frank Selby finds a worthy and manly exponent in Mr. Gilbert Fenn; and Mr. Gordon K. Bull as Jonas Dean stands out prominently amongst a clever company, which includes Miss Marion Ryder, Miss Kitty Lofting, Miss Evelyn Shaw, Mr. Chris Mason, Mr. A. E. Enroblem, Mr. Frank Gordon, Mr. Harry G. Wright, and others.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. John a Thomson's No. 1 company commenced on Monday a week's engagement here in the pantomime, Dick Whittington. Miss Ida Kessanby's interpretation of Dick is full of vivacity. Miss Ella Willmer is sweetly pretty as Alice Fitzwarren, and acts, sings, and dances to perfection. Miss Lily English, as Algy, and Miss Violet English, as Polly, are both commendable. Miss Ella Rose is a delightful Princess; charming Miss Annie Swires is entitled to the highest eulogy for her artistic singing as the Fairy Goodwill. Mr. Fred Anderson, a clever comedian, and his funny gags, as Pimple, kept the house convulsed with laughter. Mr. Edwin Dodds is decidedly humorous as Idle Jack; and Mr. Ross Warren evokes much amusement as Alderman Fitzwarren. Betsy Jane is comically portrayed by Mr. Harry Harcourt; Mr. Syd Morrill ludicrously made up as Captain Bunting, causes a lot of mirth; Mr. Hubert Davis's antics, as the Cat, are praiseworthy; Mr. Albert Hammond is worthy of unstinted praise as the Demon Rat; and the same can be said of Mr. Albert Victor, as the Emperor of Morocco. A special word of praise must be given Mlle. Florence for her globe walking act.

WEST STANLEY.—Royal Theatre.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd; Managing Director, Mark H. Lindon.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company in Honour thy Father, is paying a visit to Stanley. It is a fine drama, ably played by a powerful company. Mr. J. W. Evelyn, as Gabriel Garth, is a fine type of a descriptive and emotional actor, and evokes rounds of applause; Mr. Douglas B. Watson, as Jack Halyard, portrays the breezy and good-hearted British seaman in a thorough manner; Miss Mabel Coleman and Miss Winnie Donovan, as Lillian Garth and Mercy Merry, both fulfil their parts in an able manner, their enunciation being clear and distinct. As Mike Copplestone, Mr. Walter Cameron lends a vein of humour to the drama; Mr. Clavering Craig displays the fierce and relentless nature of Sir Duncan Bly, throughout; and the Mad Inventor is ably played by Mr. Claude Merton.

WIDNES. — Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—On Monday evening Mr. Lingford Carson's company opened with the weird play The Power of the Cross. Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby created a deep impression by his study of Baron Curzola; Mr. Fred W. Goddard used his sonorous voice to the best possible advantage in the part of Gerald Fairfax. Mr. Horace Denton was an admirable Leslie Fairfax. Plenty of fun was created by Mr. Richard E. Nugent as Timothy Dowd; Mr. Edward L. Hocking, in a clever make-up, did sound work in the character of Benjamin Hawke; Miss Cissie St. Elmo was a dignified and powerful Rita Lascelles; Miss Lilian Ross was at home in the part of Blanche Kingsley, and Miss Stanley Burt won all hearts by her charming and sympathetic acting as Margaret Seaton; Miss Etta Turner was humorous and clever in the part of Dolly Gray.

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—A hearty reception has been accorded this week to Mr. William Holland's company in Aladdin. Miss Frances Haskell makes a captivating Pekin Boy. She has a charming presence, and by her sweet singing scores a great success. The Princess Badroulbadour has an attractive exponent in Miss Florence Wood, whose songs are greeted with loud applause; and to Miss Flo Warner praise must be accorded as Pekoe. Mr. R. M. Woodville does exceedingly well as the Emperor of China; and Mr. Glanmore Jones is well placed as the Grand Vizier. The comedy element is cleverly supplied by Mr. George Reeves as the Widow Twankey, Mr. Jack O'Conner as Wishee-Washey, and Miss Evelyn O'Conner as Chief Laundry Maid. Sandy and Carl as the Policemen are to be well commended for their smart dancing. The specialities include Jack and Evelyn, the Three Florodora Girls, and the Colonial Vocal Four. The scenery is worthy of note.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—A good all-round programme is provided this week. At the head is the zoological comedy, presented in a grotesque and laughter-provoking manner by Donaldson Bros. and Ardell. Another good turn is provided by the Lyons troupe of pantomimists; the Five Madcaps, acrobats and dancers; a refined musical act by Will Cornish: Martin Conway, comedian; Larola, juggler; Rose Cabani, comedienne; Lottie Siemgenberg, comedienne; Herbert Betts, comedian; Fred Horsfall, mimic; and Syd Bird and Walter Arnold's illustrated songs are other attractions of the bill.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is this week producing here Her Majesty's Guests, an amusing, rollicking farce, which keeps the audience entertained from first to last. Mr. Dick Kitchen is particularly funny as Sergeant Lightning; Mr. Frank Morton is a capable Lord Easem; Mr. Chas. Usher is a capital Mr. Miffin; Mr. S. Bolton does well as Mr. Minks; and Miss L. Castelle ably fills the part of Lady Maud Easem. Some excellent pantomimical business is introduced.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—This week's programme includes some good turns. Morritt, a clever conjurer and illusionist, heads the bill; Eva Hope and Jack Wayho perform some sketches taken from Dickens's works; and the Herald Comedy Four appear to advantage in The Shipwrecked Sailor. The other artists include Rita and Roma, vocalists and dancers; Andy Higginson, swell comedian; Clio and Rochelle, comedians; and Nina Elmo, vocalist.

WORCESTER.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Mr. Wm. Maclaren's company is this week presenting Claudian to well-filled houses. Mr. Maclaren interprets the title-rôle with dignity and a restraint which emphasises its power. Miss Lily C. Bandman is a delightful Almida; as Agazil, Mr. G. R. J. Austin is seen to advantage; Miss Carlotta Anson, as Edessa, and Mr. C. T. Chaloner, as Belos, contribute some welcome comedy. Mr. Wilson Howard is well suited as the Tetrarch, and other parts capably taken are Holy Clement (Mr. A. G. Carr), Alcares (Mr. Weston Hubbard), and Clia (Miss Dora Harvey). Mr. Amy Hardcastle is responsible for the cymbal dance and the incidental music is made a feature of the performance.

WORKINGTON. — Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Manager, Mr. Falconer Jackes.—Mr. Edward Marris's company presented The Dandy Doctor on Monday night to a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Edmond Russelle's impersonation of Brown was highly successful, and equally so that of Mr. Jas. Danvers as the Colonel. There were roars of laughter at the humorous incidents. Mr. S. S. Gordon was satisfactory as the Doctor; Mr. L. Martin created amusement as Berty; Miss May Yates sang well and danced gracefully as Ivy; Miss Norah Melton's comedy as the servant was clever and successful. The chorus was good, and throughout there was capital dancing.

WREXHAM.—Empire.—Proprietor, Mr. J. J. Scott; Manager, Mr. Herbert Nicholls.—Miss Ella Dean, a great favourite here is repeating her previous successes; the Two Leons, acrobatic, song, and dance duettists, do well; Mr. Charles Ashdowne is a capable comedian; Mlle. Melita, a graceful dancer, scores with her Cossack dance; and Mitzi, in his Japanese and acrobatic entertainment, is clever. The Empire electric tableaux show excellent pictures.

YORK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. J. Dacre.—The Woman Who Gambles is the title of a new drama which Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is playing this week. Mrs. Powell has a very strong part, which provides many opportunities for the display of her skill as an emotional actress; Miss Ada Roscoe also does remarkably well as the Countess Stembach. Mr. E. A. Ashby is a manly hero; Mr. Horatio Sinclair is an effective Baron Cratzlaw; much amusement is caused by Mr. F. Calvert and Mr. Fred Prior.

Empire and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooks.—Barton and Ashley are here again this week giving their clever sketch with much success; the Three Romas, strong men, give a neat and original show; Marzello and Millay are grotesque gymnasts of the first rank; Gracie Lawn is petite and pleasing; Carney and Armstrong give an original act The Pro and the Baggageman, which is well received; Bessie Travis is a clever ventriloquist, and the New Hulines

"THE PRINCE OF INDIA."

A Dramatisation of General Lew Wallace's Novel, by J. I. C. Clarke, Produced at the Colonial Theatre, Chicago, on Feb. 5.

(FROM OUR AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT.)

The scenery of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger's splendid production, which was designed by Messrs. Thomas E. Ryan and Henry Emden, was painted by Mr. Ryan and Messrs. Ernest Albert and Richard Marsden. The costumes were designed by Mr. F. Richard Anderson. Mr. J. C. Hemmett looked after the historical details; and the incidental music was composed by Prof. Horatio Parker, of Yale College. The drama is arranged in a prologue and five acts, comprising thirteen scenes. Thirty-six characters are represented, the principal parts being distributed as follows:—The Wanderer, afterwards the Prince of India, Mr. J. E. Dodson; Prince Mahomet, Mr. William Farnum; Emperor Constantine, Mr. William Beach; the Emir Mirza, afterwards Count Corti, Mr. Gerald Lawrence; Gennadius, Mr. Sydney Herbert; Princess Irene, Miss Sarah Truax; Lael, Miss Julie Herne.

Of the two novels written by General Lew Wallace, his "Ben Hur" is probably more widely known than "The Prince of India." The first-mentioned book was dramatised seven years ago, the play being produced by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger at the Broadway Theatre, New York, in 1899. It was considered an extraordinary achievement, and it scored an extraordinary success. The material for the story of "The Prince of India" was gathered during the author's residence in Constantinople, as United States Minister to Turkey. The nucleus of its interest is the wooing of the Princess Irene, a follower of the orthodox Greek Church, by Mahomet II., a disciple of Islam. The fortunes of these two are involved in the wars of the Christians and the Moslems before Constantinople, during the sixteenth century. Through the ramifications of the plot moves the strange figure of the Wandering Jew, who bears the title of Prince of India, and symbolises the protest of a peaceful soul against the crimes committed in religious warfare.

The prologue has two scenes. In the first of these, the Wandering Jew and his dumb attendants are seen entering the rock-hewn tomb of Hiram, King of Tyre, the friend of Solomon, King of Israel, and builder of the Temple of Jerusalem. From the tomb the Wanderer reverently takes the sword of Solomon and a portion of the treasure deposited there, which he dedicates "to the service of the ever-living Lord." The scene is impressively arranged and effectively lighted. A view of Constantinople from Galata is disclosed in the second scene, and the Wanderer is revealed as the Prince of India, who preaches the union of all men in one religious brotherhood. In the garden of Uel, a Jewish merchant, he tells his story of the day of the crucifixion, and speaks of his own doom. Here, too, he first meets Lael, the daughter of Uel, and exchanges his jewels for the merchant's gold. The first act opens at the house of the Prince of India in Constantinople, and shows Lael's happiness at being adopted as his daughter. The Emperor Constantine commands the Jew to visit the palace, and explain his plan for a universal religion to the Court. Mention is made of the dissolute young Greek nobles, who have banded themselves together under the pagan title of Epicureans, whose highest aim is to abduct young maidens. Angered by the discovery that the Emperor's messenger, Demedes, has been following his adopted daughter about the city, the Jew is about to denounce him; but Lael persuades him to take her for a sail in his galley on the Bosphorus, and thus relieve his mind of its fears. The scene changes to the landing-place of Blacherne, on the Golden Horn, where the Prince and Lael embark. Demedes and his dissolute associates are there, mingling with the crowd of citizens. Presently, amid a scene showing how fatally the citizens are divided amongst themselves, the Emperor Constantine, conducting the Princess Irene to her galley, arrives. He is in love with the Princess, and, as she leaves him to return to her palace at Therapia, on the Bosphorus, he cautions her to avoid the Asian shore. The two boats start, and are seen leaving the Golden Horn and passing into the Bosphorus. A storm arises; the boats are driven to seek shelter on the Asian shore, and the Princess takes refuge at the White Castle, a Turkish stronghold. The third scene of this act shows the arrival of the young Prince Mahomet at the fortress with his friend and companion, the Emir Mirza, and the first meeting between Mahomet and Princess Irene, the former concealing his identity, and passing as the governor of the castle.

In the second act, the Emperor Constantine, with his retinue, comes to the palace of Therapia, to ask for the hand of the Princess. Much as she reveres him, and is impressed by the honour, she rejects him. As he is about to depart, Mahomet, disguised as an Arab story-teller, arrives, and when the opportunity offers, he tells her that he has come to ask her hand. Although she loves him deeply, she cannot as a Christian accept him, but declares she will devote her life to religion. Duke Notaras, a kinsman of the Emperor, returns to seize the story-teller; but Mahomet escapes by jumping into the sea. Ere he leaves, he places his royal graven sign of protection upon the palace gate.

A year is supposed to elapse between the second and the third act, which takes place in the throne-room of the imperial palace of Blacherne in Constantinople, resplendent with the pomp and ceremony of the Byzantine Court. The Princess Irene is being tried by the Holy Council for keeping upon the sea-gate of her palace the seal, or teukra, of the infidel Mahomet. She is pardoned by Constantine. Count Corti, under which name the Emir Mirza has been sent to Constantinople by Mahomet to spy out the strength and weakness of the Greeks, has also fallen in love with the Princess, and has cast off his allegiance to Mahomet. The Prince of India, vainly expounding his universal religion to the Greeks, suddenly learns that his adopted daughter, Lael, has been abducted, and bursts into a frenzy, announcing that Mahomet's father is dead, that Mahomet himself reigns, and that the Greek Empire is lost.

The fourth act begins in the tent of Mahomet before Constantinople, to which city he is laying siege. He sends for Count Corti to arrange plans for the safety of Princess Irene when the city falls. Mirza will not come, so Mahomet resolves to seek him. The scene changes to a room in the palace of the Princess in the city, which is being used as a hospital, the Princess refusing to leave Thither comes Mahomet to demand an explanation of Corti. He is recognised by the Princess, who is about to hand him over to the guard; but her heart fails her. In despair at her weakness, she seeks to die by heading a procession of maidens on the walls during the assault on the city.

The fifth act has four scenes. Within the walls of the city the doomed Emperor is preparing to resist the enemy. Without, Mahomet suspends operations whilst the procession of the maidens passes, then leads the attack, until the walls crumble and the city is captured. The curtain falls for a few moments, and then, amid the darkness of the night, on the broken walls, the rejuvenation of the Wanderer and the struggling onward of this pathetic figure are depicted. In the final scene, the conqueror, Mahomet, rides on his black charger into the ruins of the church of Sancta Sophia, where the terror-stricken Greeks are gathered, to tell the Princess Irene that her devotion has won peace and religious freedom under his rule for her people. He asks her to share his throne, and as the curtain falls, she kneels at his feet in silent consent.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS SYLVIA CAVALHO.

Miss Sylvia Cavalho is well known to the theatre-going public in England and South Africa. At her pretty suburban house the visitor is confronted on entering the hall with some fine specimens of leopard and tiger skins. A specially fine panther skin was presented to Miss Cavalho by friends in South Africa. Along the walls are hung some handsome springbok and other horns, genuine Zulu shields and assegais, which were used in the Zulu War.

Miss Cavalho says: "They were very nice to me in South Africa; people didn't seem to be able to do enough to show their appreciation. And what splendid audiences you get in Johannesburg—quite as intelligent and cosmopolitan as London audiences, I'm sure!"

Miss Cavalho, who returned to England over a year ago, went out to "star" under Messrs. B.

and F. Wheeler's management. Her original contract was for twenty weeks, but she was asked to extend her engagement to play Zaza and Yo-San in The Darling of the Gods. She visited Johannesburg, Cape Town, Kimberley, Bloemfontein, Durban, Port Elizabeth, East London, all twice, besides going to numbers of small towns, with especially small scenery, where, of course, the big productions could not be played.

Her répertoire consisted of Zaza, Marriage of Kitty, Darling of the Gods, Silver King, Sign of the Cross, &c.

Miss Cavalho made a phenomenal success in South Africa. Mr. Frank Wheeler wrote: "I should like you to know how much Miss Cavalho's work and great talent have been appreciated." The estimate in which she is held by the South African Press is indicated by the flattering notices which appeared of her performances there.

Asked as to whether she anticipated returning to South Africa, Miss Cavalho said that she had had a tempting offer to return in the spring; but that she hoped—if certain arrangements are satisfactory—to have a London season by that time.

Miss Cavalho owed her first important engagement to Mr. J. W. Boughton, the genial manager of the Portsmouth theatres, who was quick to recognise her ability, and gave her every encouragement.

Miss Cavalho appeared with great success as Mercia in The Sign of the Cross, when that play was toured under the management of Mr. William Greet. It is to be hoped that before long Miss Cavalho will be seen in a West-End theatre in a part suited to her undoubted great ability.

MISS HELEN KINNAIRD.

Miss Helen Kinnaird comes of a non-theatrical family, is German on her father's side, and of French extraction on her mother's. She was, however, born in London, and regards herself as quite English. Her first performances were as an amateur in Germany—in German, which is the same to her as English. Under the management of the late Mr. D'Oyly Carte, she made her first professional appearance, and for six months she toured as Fairy Queen in Iolanthe, and then as Lady Jane in Patience. Having decided that acting was far more congenial to her than singing, she decided to go in for a course of training in elocution under that admirable teacher, Mr. Hermann Vezin. She then made a successful London début as leader of the chorus in Dr. Todhunter's Helena in Troas. After playing a couple of less important parts in town, she went on tour to play lead in the Court Comedy Company, under the management of the late Messrs. Clayton and Cecil. Coming back to London she played in Pepita, and lead in The Deputy Registrar at the Criterion, and in Kleptomania at the Strand. She also played in the pantomime King Gold at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, and Captain of the Forty Thieves at the Theatre Royal, Brighton. An engagement under the management of Messrs. Williamson and Musgrove followed, and Miss Kinnaird says that during the time she was in the colonies (over two years) she was always rehearsing or studying when she was not acting, and that it was considered to be very hard work, but that she thoroughly enjoyed it, and feels that she gained invaluable experience. She played everything but pantomime. She would one week be playing Lady Dedlock in Jo, and the next Mrs. Privet in Dorothy.

MISS HELEN KINNAIRD.

She then went home viâ the States, and played there for four seasons under the management of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger, the late Mr. John Stetson, Mr. Daniel Frohman, and Mr. Charles Frohman. On her return to London she took up the leading part in The New Boy at the Vaudeville, the part she had just been playing through the States under Mr. Charles Frohman's management. Then, after a short engagement at the Duke of York's, she reluctantly allowed her family to persuade her to give up work, and tried to be happy without it. Miss Kinnaird says that she found doing nothing very irksome, and that when she went to the theatre to see a performance she envied everyone on the other side of the footlights; and, finally, not being able to stand private life any longer, made her reappearance as Mrs. Shimmering Black in The Earl and the Girl at the Adelphi. Finding that the public took very kindly to her in that line of business, Miss Kinnaird decided to write a sketch for herself, with a similar part, and try it on the variety stage, which she did. Thereupon, a gathering of the clans was called, and an indignation meeting held, at which it was decided that on no account should she be permitted to carry out her desire, and at the time she had no alternative but to submit, or, at least, to appear to do so. Opposition, Miss Kinnaird says, acts always as an excellent tonic upon her temperament, so she employed her time in getting together a number of handsome costumes for the part, and now finds herself playing the sketch with everyone's consent and approval. It is just a short farcical comedy called A Poor Weak Woman, playing only fourteen minutes, and Miss Kinnaird sustains the title-part.

MISS DORA PRICE.

Miss Dora Price started her theatrical career about 10 years ago in a travelling pantomime, playing small parts and understudying the principal boy. Next followed a short stock season at Bolton, followed by a tour of Liberty Hall, Miss Price playing Miss Ailsa Craig's part in that comedy. She was then engaged for a pantomime at the Royal, Cardiff, playing the Fairy Queen. In three tours of A Royal Divorce with Mr. W. W. Kelly she acted the part of Stephanie. A pantomime engagement at Sheffield as Cinderella was followed by two tours with The Girl of my Heart, in which Miss Price played the comedy character. Turning to heavier parts, she next created the leading rôle of Brenda in For the Colours, making a big hit, and this was succeeded by a short tour with Mr. Frank E. Burdett's Denounced Co., Miss

Price playing the heavy part. A highly successful engagement followed as The Worst Woman in London. The late Mr. Frank Connor then engaged her to star in the title rôle in the drama A Beautiful Fiend. She was afterwards engaged by Mr. Isaac Cohen for stock at The Pavilion, Mile End, where she played La Colombe in Woman and Wine, and created the part of Mrs. Galloway in The Boom of Big Ben. Next followed starring engagements with Mr. Walter Melville as That Wretch of a Woman, and as Dora Grey in Her Second Time on Earth. In the part of the woman in Mr. William A. Armour's drama, What a Woman Did, Miss Price starred for nearly two years most successfully at all the principal suburban and provincial theatres.

MISS ANNIE SAKER.

Miss Annie Saker comes of a very old theatrical family, being a daughter of the late Maria Saker, granddaughter of the late Horatio Saker (who was principal comedian with Charles Kean), and great-granddaughter of William Saker, grandniece of the late Edward Saker, and Mrs. R. H. Wyndham, and cousin of F. W. Wyndham. She began her career when a child in Mr. Tree's production of Hypatia at the Haymarket Theatre, and felt very proud when Mr. Tree gave her a little dumb acting scene. She writes: I was a little slave girl, and had to be torn from my slave sister's arms. Miss Esmé Beringer was the other slave, Mr. James Welch was the slave dealer, and when the elder girl was sold, and I dragged from her arms, he used to strike me across my arm with a scroll he held in his hand as I fell sobbing to the ground. I remember, one night, Mr. Welch (noticing some bruises on my arm) said he would cut out the business of hitting me and just push me down. I implored him not to; that I never felt the blows. He then said that he would see that he hit me lighter. "Oh no," I said, "Please hit me as hard as you can." I so dreaded even a little bit of business being cut out of my scene. I think I knew every line in the play, I loved it all so much, and I almost worshipped Miss Julia Neilson, and no wonder, she was always so gracious and kind to all.

Miss Saker remained with Mr. Tree through the run, and then appeared in The Tempter and The Enemy of the People. She has very happy recollections of her engagement with Mr. Tree, who, she says, "makes everyone so happy and comfortable." From the Haymarket she went to Mr., (now Sir Charles) Wyndham. Being too tall for children's parts, with the aid of longer frocks she was able to play young girls' parts in The Headless Man, understudying Miss Annie Hughes in An Aristocratic Alliance, Mary (the heroine) in Home Rule, Lady Dorothy (Miss Mary Moore's part) in The Candidate, Nina (the Italian Girl) in Hot Water, and The Case of Rebellious Susan. Then Messrs. Harrison and Maude engaged her for the Waitress in the first act of Under the Red Robe, and to understudy Miss Eva Moore. After she played Suzette for three weeks, and then Miss Emery and her understudy being suddenly taken ill at the same time, Miss Saker played Renée de Cocheporet at half an hour's notice. She sustained the part several times. Then she accepted an offer to tour with Miss Hutchison, playing Rebecca in Pink Dominoes, Lady Hamilton in The Great Divorce Case, Madame Polenta in Betsy, Mary in Mary's Secret, Dora in Why Women Weep. Following that came a short London suburban tour of Pink Dominoes, with Percy Hutchison as Harry Greenlanes, her mother (Maria Saker) appearing as Mrs. Tubbs, while Miss Saker played Rebecca again. Then followed tours as Beatrice in The Liars, Astraea (Mrs. Patrick Campbell's part) in The Trumpet Call, Esther in Caste, Blanche in Ours, Bella in School, Violet in Our Boys, Kate in The Gov'nor, Beatrice in A Fool's Paradise, Millicent in The Money-Spinner, and Violet in Why Men Love Women. Her present part, Princess Astrea von Strelsburg (in Messrs. Paumier and Howard's play, The Midnight Wedding) was written expressly for her by Mr. Howard. Miss Saker has had offers to visit America, South Africa, and Australia, but up to the present has never been abroad. The accompanying photograph is in the character of Astrea mentioned above.

MISS KITTY LOFTING.

Miss Kitty Lofting comes of an old theatrical family, and began her stage career at a very early age. The first part she played was that of a chambermaid in the farcical comedy called Tomboy. After that she played anything from comic old women to Miami in The Green Bushes. A long engagement in Criterion comedies followed. She played the title-rôle in Betsy, Mrs. Sterry in Truth, &c. She next had three tours with Mr. Arthur Bearne, playing Miss Softdown and understudying Miss Lottie Venne's part in Husband and Wife. Special weeks and stock seasons followed; then a tour in Wales, Miss Lofting playing Mildred Parker in Flying from Justice. After that came a long tour under the management of Miss Ethel Calrow and Mr. Charles Harrington in Her Wedding Day, in which she played the juvenile part. An engagement lasting nearly two years with Mr. William Greet in The Sign of the Cross followed, during which Miss Lofting played Dacia, Poppœa, and Anearia, and understudied Mercia and Berenice. Various stock seasons at Blyth, South Shields, and Hastings, under the several managements of Miss Ellen Cranston, Mr. L. M. Snowdon, and Miss Nina Cressy intervened. A four months' tour with Mr. H. J. Hadfield, during which she played Lady Sybil in Mr. Creagh Henry's version of the Sorrows of Satan, and Cecilia Hudson in the light comedy part in Married by Proxy was succeeded by a short summer tour (which included the principal Scotch towns), under the management of Mr. W. A. McNeill, Miss Lofting playing Effie in Jeanne Deans. She was next personally engaged by Mrs.

MISS KITTY LOFTING.

Lewis Calvert to play Valentine in Proof, which she did with only one rehearsal. A special engagement with Mr. A. Clifton Alderson to play the leading part in A Soldier and a Man followed. Various Pantomime engagements came in between, Miss Lofting playing both boy and girl parts. She was engaged by Mr. Milton Bode to play the adventuress in Night Birds of London, and on a long tour with Messrs Conquest and Leonard she took the lead in On Active Service. Afterwards she was again engaged by Mr. Milton Bode, this time for the heroine in Women and Wine. A tour under the management of Messrs. John Hart and J. B. Mulholland, during which Miss Lofting played the part of Mary Tremain in An Eye for an Eye, was followed by a re-engagement for a special week by Miss Nina Cressy to again play Effie, the Scotch girl, in The Professor's Love Story. Two of Miss Lofting's favourite parts are Janet Preece in the Profligate and Margaret Vesle in Lady Bountiful.

In the autumn of 1903 Miss Lofting had a long tour under the management of Mr. A. E. Maskell, when she played Glory Quayle in The Christian. Nearly the whole of the year 1904 she was in South Africa with Mr. Leonard Payne. It was her first trip abroad, and in spite of the hard work the constant change of programme entailed, she looks back to it as a most enjoyable experience. Miss Lofting visited Pretoria, Kimberley, Bloemfontein, Johannesburg, and Cape Town, making long stays in the two last towns. She sincerely hopes to go again at some future time. She played Glory Quayle out there among a large range of parts, Mr. Rayne's repertoire being very varied in character. Recently Miss Lofting has been playing Marion Thornton in The Two Little Vagabonds.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 26, the Japanese Opera, by Owen Hall and Sidney Jones, entitled "THE GEISHA."

The play this week at the Fulham has been The Geisha, which still appears to retain a fair measure of its popularity. The company is well organised, and maintains a good general level of merit; whilst two or three parts were really admirably played. Of the ladies, Miss Bessie Allayne was a dainty representative of O Mimosa San, and her singing and acting were excellent. Molly Seymour was brightly played by Miss Florrie Saunders; and Miss Aubrey Ashton was a stately Lady Constance. Miss Violet Kenyon played the French Geisha, Juliette Diamante, with much grace and all the needful piquancy. The leading geishas were Misses L. Bland, D. Browne, D. Irving, and Maude Lloyd; they were charming in their Oriental attire, and their songs and dances went excellently. Mr. Cyril Thompson looked well and sang finely as Fairfax, and was well supported by Messrs. S. Lockridge, Ryton Hoare, and Stephen Hall, and Miss Blanche Browne, as his fellow officers. Mr. Edgar Ward gave a pleasant rendering of the part of Captain Katana. The rôle of the Marquis Imari was taken by Mr. Lionel Braham, whose great stature afforded a comical contrast to that of the other Japanese characters. Mr. Braham's performance was full of rich humour, and caused many a hearty laugh. As Wun Hi, Mr. Edward Carlton was admirable. His performance was quite one of the successes of the evening, while his wonderful contortions and clever dancing caused endless merriment. Both he and Mr. Braham may be congratulated on making the most of these two important parts, and they had a good store of up-to-date jokes and sayings, which were quite naturally brought in, and did not suffer from the appearance of being dragged in to raise a laugh. The dresses were very handsome, and the chorus sang capitally; while Mr. Francis Knowles presided most capably over the orchestra. A performance of The Greek Slave was given on Friday.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The programme of the Students' Concert given on Wednesday evening commenced with a duet for two pianos, "Rondo in C" (Chopin), the executants being Miss Constance M. Beech and Miss Gertrude Peachey. Miss Gertrude Gill sang Allitsen's "Oh! for a burst of song" in a pleasing manner, and was much applauded. In the violin solo Sonata in E Minor (MS.) Mr. Lawrance A. Collingwood undertook too exacting a task in writing a sonata for the violin, although the second movement revealed much promise. Miss Bessie George was the executant, the work being accompanied by the composer. Two songs by Mr. Waddington Cooke, "Dream Ships" and "Visitors" (the latter of a humorous nature), were well sung by Miss Beatrice Jeffereys, and Miss Violet Coombs revealed a good touch and neat execution in her piano solo "Fantasia on Verdi's Rigoletto, by Liszt. Mr. Edwin Lewis gained hearty applause for his very able singing of Balfe's air "Come into the garden, Maud," and Miss Grace Cole and Miss Bertha Lansdell gave a pleasing rendering of the duet "Quis est homo," from Rossini's Stabat Mater. A mandoline solo, Andante from Concerto (Mendelssohn) and "Moto Perpetuo" (Bohm), gave variety to the concert, both pieces being admirably executed by Miss Lillie Selden; and Miss Ethel Wynne gave ample evidence of careful training in her piano solos, "Humoresque," by Tschaikowsky, and "Etude de Concert" (Liszt). Mr. Fred Henry sang "Oh! Jolly Robin Hood," by Carmichael, with much spirit, and Miss Yathe Mandelbom was warmly greeted by the audience after her violin solos Romance in F Major and "Moto Perpetuo," by Ries. Two Indian songs by R. Orlando Morgan, "A Lullaby" and "Serenade," were skilfully sung by Miss Ethel Willet, the first song proving very attractive. The concert concluded with a duet for two pianos, "Variation on a Theme of Beethoven," by Saint-Saëns," given with good effect by Miss Muriel Hearson and Miss Katie Gray. Miss Jenny Hyman ably fulfilled the duties of accompanist.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Co., of Berners-street, has accepted for immediate inclusion in their "Sixpenny Successes" two new songs, from the pens of Ballard Macdonald and Donovan Meher, respectively entitled "My Tiny Fire-fly," which will shortly be sung by a leading artist at the Palace, Shaftesbury Avenue, and a striking march number, "Now I've come back to you."

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Farce in Three Acts, entitled
"THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER."

Mr. F. W. Purcell this week again gives cause for the keenest enjoyment in the setting forth for the first time in North London of the whimsicalities contained in the adventures of Mr. Montague Sibsey and his imaginary trip to the Alps. Proof of his comedy powers is to be found in Mr. Huntley Wright's highly-mirthful and entertaining embodiment of Montague Sibsey. Mr. Charles Frohman has engaged an exceptionally strong company to support Mr. Wright. Very notable is Miss Kate Mill's animated and enjoyable impersonation of Mrs. Sibsey; and the Misses Christine McGill and Dora Barton impersonate the two winsome daughters, Alice and Betty, with great success. Messrs. Eric Maturin and T. McCausland Stewart also score as their lovers, Arthur Lydbrooke and Sidney Ketton, and good representations of the Swiss guides are contributed by Mr. Algernon Newark as Oscar Rheinthaller and Mr. Scott Craven as Sepp. Miss Ivy Hertzog sustains in excellent style the part of Lena; and the servant Mary is well assumed by Miss Amy Thomas. Mr. W. R. Staveley infuses humour into his impersonation of Samuel Midgham, and the remainder of the cast are all praiseworthy.

In The Little Father of the Wilderness the wonderful versatility of Mr. Wright is forcibly demonstrated. Of his portrayal of Père Marlotte it is only necessary to say his grip of the character is full and complete, and at the fall of the curtain full recognition of his clever performance is deservedly rendered him. Mr. Eric Maturin fills the rôle of Louis XV. in a dignified style; and Captain Chevillon has a competent exponent in Mr. Montague Elphinstone. Distinction is earned by Miss Christine McGill for her graceful study of Mlle. Henriette; and Messrs. Staveley, Victor, and Craven as Frère Grégoire, Duc de St. Albret, and Chevalier de Frontenac respectively, all render valuable aid in this charming one-act play by Lloyd Osbourne and Austin Strong.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Farce-Comedy, by R. C. Carton, entitled
"PUBLIC OPINION."

That the public and private opinion of Mr. Carton's latest farce-comedy was entirely satisfactory was made very manifest on Monday evening at this popular house, when the audience laughed whole-heartedly at the extremely absurd situations in which the different personages are placed in their search for the incriminating letters written by them to Miss Pansy Bligh, the music-hall star. As played by Miss Emma Hutchinson and Mr. Percy Hutchinson's company, there is very little, if any, falling-off from the brilliant performances lately given at Wyndham's Theatre. Of the original performers, Mr. George Giddens remains to repeat his highly amusing impersonation of the lawyer, Horace Wibsey, and it will suffice to say that no actor could have been more effectively placed in the part than Mr. Giddens. A deliciously comical representation of Mr. Justice Mulley is given by Mr. William Hargreaves; whilst Mr. George Mallett makes a most satisfactory and realistic Sir Babbington Mulley, F.R.C.P., the Harley-street specialist. Mr. Harold West is capital as the silly young peer, Viscount Poffley. As Spencer Fraughton, C.B., Mr. Ernest Ruston works hard, and succeeds admirably as the Indian civil servant suffering from "spleen." Mr. Templer Powell is a dashing and manly Lord Percy Kilgour. Smeeton, Finchett, and Jowers are ably undertaken by Mr. C. J. Barber, Mr. Ernest Cox, and Mr. John E. Watson. Miss Emma Hutchinson makes one of her few appearances on the stage, but she is very welcome in the part of Lady Diana Caldershaw, and is completely successful in that rôle. Miss Mary Mallalieu is a fascinating Phyllis Dagenham, and Miss Ida Laurie, as the maid Charlotte, is excellent. Pansy Bligh, the music-hall star, finds a charming representative in Miss Lilian Hallows, whose acting is alike refreshing and natural. The scenery and appointments are of a high order. A comedietta by Mr. F. Kinsey Peile, entitled The Stratagem, in which Miss Hallows, Mr. Harold West, and Mr. Templer Powell act with marked ability, is also played during the evening.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, entitled
"LEAH KLESCHNA."

In booking Mr. Charles Frohman's company in Leah Kleschna Mr. Sounes has provided his patrons with what should prove a strong attraction. Miss Haidee Wright played Leah with a sympathetic, convincing manner, which betrayed thorough insight into, and appreciation of, the conflicting traits of the girl-thief's character, her acting—especially in the strong fourth act—rising at times to considerable heights of histrionic ability. As Paul Sylvaine Mr. J. Graeme Campbell gave a consistent portrayal of the somewhat visionary reformer, his fine resonant voice and quiet, unforced style of acting adding to the value of his impersonation. Mr. Robert Pateman submitted a powerful delineation of Kleschna, rightly throwing into prominence the rugged, tyrannous nature of this expert cracksman, but at the same time cleverly suggesting as a secondary side to his character an almost chivalrous determination to "play the game through," and a passionate affection for his daughter. Mr. E. H. Brooke was well suited as Schram, whose dogged devotion to Leah and her father, spite of all snubs and bullying, was ably depicted. Mr. Cyril Harcourt was very successful as Raoul Berton, and contributed a really fine piece of acting in the scene in which the drunken Raoul, having forced his way into Sylvaine's house, is suddenly sobered by the discovery of Leah there. Mr. Roland Daniel made a decided impression in the somewhat meagre part of Valentin Favre; and Mr. Kenneth Rivington was sufficiently military and pig-headed as General Berton. Miss Dorothy Sidney was a lively Sophie Chaponnière; and Miss Haidee Hemsley and Miss Ethel Marryatt, as Claire and Mme. Berton respectively, made the most of their small chances.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"THE TRUMPET CALL."

The patrons of the Elephant and Castle will indeed sustain a heavy loss when the present stock company takes its leave. That it has been exceedingly popular under the management of Mr. E. E. Norris there is no doubt. He has not only been responsible for the carefully-selected and well-staged production of a series of high-class dramas, but has undertaken the leading parts each week, and right well he has done it all. The season, however, is not quite finished, as in a fortnight's time we shall see the company again in a Grand Irish week. Lord Edward, or '98, will be produced. The stirring Adelphi drama, The Trumpet Call, is being presented this week. The fine presence, good voice, and manly bearing of Mr. Ernest E. Norris is admirably suited to the part of Cuthbert Cuthbertson. The part of the heroine is in the very capable hands of Mrs. Bennett, who fully maintains her popularity. The sweet womanliness of Constance is pathetically rendered, and, in more than one scene, draws tears from her audience. Mr. Alfred Harding as Richard Featherstone is a plausible villain. The part of the breezy, rollicking Sergeant-Major Milligan is drawn to the life by Mr. Wellesley Smith. Mr. Howard Templeton as Professor Ginnifer works hard and successfully throughout. The part of Colonel Engleheart is thoroughly safe in the capable hands of Mr. Edwin Bennett. Mr. Harold Wagner is satisfactory as Captain Sparks. Other male characters are adequately filled, Mr. Herbert Coddard being a most efficient James Redruth. A striking piece of character acting is given by Miss Georgie de Lara in the difficult part of Astrea. Miss de Lara is intensely dramatic in voice and gesture, and scores a genuine success. Miss Alice Spry cleverly depicts the warm-hearted Mrs. Wicklow, afterwards Mrs. Ginnifer. Miss Clara Moore is exceedingly funny as Lavinia; and Miss Alice Williams thoroughly enters into the humour of the part of Tommy Dutton. The expressive by-play of these two is most enjoyable. The childish pathos of Little Cuthbert is well portrayed by Miss Florrie Green. As Lill, Mary, and Lucy, Miss Gladys King, Miss Vivian Stuart, and Miss Olive Duncan are satisfactory. Great credit is due to the management for the effective staging. The principals are vociferously called before the curtain after each act, and receive a well-merited ovation from the crowded audience.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Play, by M. L. Ryley, entitled
"MICE AND MEN."

The playgoers of North London have indeed a special treat provided for them this week, and it is pleasing to note that they are showing their appreciation to the full. Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott are making a very welcome appearance here, and are playing in two of their most popular pieces of recent years, The Light that Failed and Mice and Men. The latter was chosen for the opening performance. The story of Mark Embury, the scholar, scientist, and philanthropist, who adopts a foundling to train as his wife, is delightfully told, and though we see Embury's scheme is doomed to failure, and in the end he bows to the inevitable, and does the right thing, yet one feels that the old bachelor will not go back to a very unhappy life; so the finish of the story only leaves us wondering, and not worrying, which is just as it should be. As Mark Mr. Forbes Robertson has a part which suits him well, and which he plays with all that dignity and richness of voice to which he has so long accustomed us. It is a fine study of a thoughtful man—strong, and yet full of quiet restraint. For Miss Gertrude Elliott we have nothing but praise as the foundling, Little Britain, afterwards Peggy. She was quite at her best. The way the development of the girl's character is shown is capital, and her joy at being told she is grown up was perfectly delightful, and so natural. Miss Elliott, too, has a delicious humour of her own, which is quite fascinating, and these two players were accorded tremendous receptions at the close of each act. Mr. Charles Weir was in fine form as the jealous Roger Goodlake, whose flighty wife, Joanna, was excellently portrayed by Miss Auriol Lee. Mr. Vernon Steel as the dashing young lover, Captain George Lovell, played in good style; Mr. J. H. Beaumont was seen to advantage as the gay Sir Harry Tumblestone; Miss Minnie Griffin, who was only seen for a few moments in the opening act, managed to give a clever character sketch of the hospital matron; Miss Keith Lytton was very good as Mrs. Deborah; and Miss Dorothy Paget did well as the maid. The old fiddler, Kit, was quaintly played by Mr. J. H. Ryley, who extracted much from the part. Peter, the old servant, had an admirable representative in Mr. Robson Paige; Mr. William Pilling was amusing as the portly old beadle. The play was prettily staged, under the management of Mr. Ian Robertson.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Comic Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"PEGGY MACHREE."

A strong attraction has been provided here this week by the presentation by Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company of the new comic opera, Peggy Machree. The piece is bright and sparkling, there is plenty of pretty music, and the scenery and dresses are all that can be desired. Large audiences have attended each performance, and testified their appreciation by enthusiastic applause and repeated demands for encores. Miss Claudia Lasell is a charming and sprightly Peggy Machree. Acting her part with marked ability, and rendering her songs with much expression, Miss Lasell scores a decided success. Her most successful songs are "Sundial Shadows," "The Simple Life," and "The Emerald Isle." The part of Barry Trevor is undertaken by Mr. Leslie Stiles, who gives an excellent performance, and contributes greatly to the success of the play. He was deservedly encored for his spirited rendering of the song, "Donovan." Miss Blanche Asley sings and acts well as Molly Cafferty, and her dancing gains much applause. A clever study of Moira Cafferty is given by Miss Madge Avery, who gives a sound display in the part. Mr. Ralph Lynn presents an excellent picture of Sir Lawrence Borthwick; and the fine voice of Mr. John Morley is heard to advantage in the rôle of Sergeant Bampton. His duet with Miss Blanche Asley, entitled "A little man and a little maid," receives much applause. The talents of Mr. Milroe Cooper are well employed in the part of the solemn Scotchman, Alexander M'Dougall, and he scores with his song "Bonny Scotland." A humorous contrast is the performance by Mr. Dan Fitzgerald in the part of Michael; and Mr. Hare Macdermott does all that is possible in the rôle of the designing Frenchman, Captain de la Cour. Miss Doris Kelvey is thoroughly efficient as Madame de la Cour; and Miss Dorothy Garden is pleasing as the Hon. Emily Pryor. Valuable support is also rendered by Miss Marion Cecil as Arline, and Mr. J. Herbert Willis as Lawyer Keene. The powerful chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. K. Ernest Irving, render efficient support. Mr. Chas. F. J. Watts is the business-manager, and Mr. W. H. Chattell acting-manager for Mr. Hamilton, and the opera is produced under the direction of Mr. Herbert Cottesmore.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"PASSION'S POWER."

It is a good many years since Mr. Arthur Shirley's powerful drama was seen in London, but played by such an excellent company as that organised by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, it never fails to make a favourable impression upon an audience. The manly and generous character of Prince Kandos is brought into striking contrast with the mean, despicable conduct of Michel Laski. Zorah Varno, when an innocent, inexperienced girl, was betrayed by the man she trusted—Michel Laski. Subsequently she meets Prince Kandos, who falls in love with her, and, ignorant of her past, offers to marry her. In the second act Michel calls at the Countess Delaunay's house in Paris to see Zorah, but at her command the servants release two large boarhounds, who fiercely attack Laski. Indeed, he would no doubt have been torn to pieces, but for the intervention of Prince Kandos. Zorah tells him that the intruder was a thief, and gives Michel to understand that she will give him another chance of leading a better life. Zorah's former lover resolves to have a bitter revenge. He places in an envelope the letters, couched in warm, ardent terms, received in former days from Zorah, and instructs his valet to hand this package to Prince Kandos just as he is about to lead his bride to the altar. The servant, missing the Prince, entrusts the package to Michel's father, Rudolph Laski, who places it on a table, and forgets all about it. The marriage ceremony duly takes place, and just afterwards the Prince discovers the package. Zorah begs him not to open it, and her intense earnestness arouses his suspicions. Seeing that he is determined to ascertain the truth, she makes a full confession; but the strain of the situation is too much for her brain, and she suddenly goes mad. The last act is devoted to bringing the story to a satisfactory conclusion. Mr. William Clayton is forcible yet quietly effective in his treatment of the character of Prince Kandos, whose noble qualities are very naturally portrayed. Mr. Frank Radcliffe is a brisk representative of General Zuran, and makes good use of his opportunities for the introduction of a little humour. Mr. Walter Roberts gives a dignified embodiment of the judge, Rudolph Laski, whose son, Michel, has a powerful exponent in Mr. Stephen S. Scanlan, who quite succeeds in arousing the enmity of the audience. Mr. Henry Howard is good as Patrice, a journalist; and good work is done by Mr. Ernest Dare as Michel's valet, Felix. Miss Ruth Shepperd plays the part of Zorah Varno with much power and passion, her acting being specially effective in the scene where she goes mad. Miss Stella Carmichael is a charming representative of the coquettish widow, the Countess Delaunay; and Miss Lowe Dare is bright as Lucie. Efficient assistance is given by Mr. Henry Howard as Yacopo, Mr. Arthur Lowry as Prosper, and Mr. Henry Merlin as Ivan. The play has been carefully staged; and the audiences at the West London have given it a most favourable reception.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Fred Melville, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

This week Mr. Douglas Bruce's company, in The Girl Who Lost Her Character, is playing a return visit. The company is, with two exceptions, the same that performed it previously. Mr. Henry Herne undertakes the part of the Rev. John Everton, and acts exceedingly well; Mr. Wingald Lawrence gives a manly rendering of, and brings into prominence, the character of Jack England; Mr. Frank Adair is quite at home as Captain Caversham, the callous individual who disgraces Molly and then deserts her. The repentant forger, James Sutton, is well played by Mr. Albert H. Clarke; Miss Marie McAulay acts as the villain's accomplice, Marion Franklyn, very forcibly, and her powerful acting in the last act is received with abundant applause. Miss Ethel Bracewell presents a pleasing and dignified portrait of Rose Seymour; Miss Ada Marius as Molly Vernon plays very ably and successfully the part of the poor deluded girl; Mr. C. Hammond Asquin as Dick Punch and Miss Daisy Maynard as Isabella Jones are the cause of incessant laughter whenever they occupy the stage. The drama is staged in the usual elaborate manner of Mr. Melville, two of the scenes being very pretty sets.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Comedy-Drama, in Three Acts, entitled
"A MESSAGE FROM MARS."

Mr. Frederick Mouillot's company in A Message from Mars is paying its first visit to Mr. Clarence Sounes's latest playhouse. On the opening evening the piece was received with enthusiasm by a well-filled house. Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee realises most naturally the selfish propensities of Horace Parker, evoking much laughter by the awkward consequences arising therefrom. Mr. William H. Brougham as the Messenger from Mars is responsible for a sound performance throughout. Mr. Bruce Lindley makes an acceptable "tramp"; whilst Joe the coster finds an amusing exponent in Mr. James Mayall. Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson secures much appreciation for his embodiment of the American, Arthur Dicey; Mr. Eustace French is well placed as Sir E. Vivian; and Mr. Leslie Tyler is successful in his portrayal of Mr. Fergusson. Mr. Harry Reynolds's policeman evokes much hearty laughter; a charming and winsome impersonation of Minnie is contributed by Miss May Saker, who gains some of the chief honours of the evening; Miss Parker is thoughtfully played by Mrs. Edward Saker; Bella by Miss Peggy E. Yeoman; Mrs. Clarence by Miss Joan Meredith; and the Flower Girl by Miss Elsie Walton. A clever little character study of Jim is given by Mr. Willie Wrench; Dr. Chapman is in the capable hands of Mr. Percy Tyler; Miss Teresa Vanburgh is the Polly; and the remaining characters are well sustained. Some capital selections of music are provided during the intervals by Mr. Blythe's excellent orchestra.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Musical Farce, in Two Acts, by Paul Rubens and Newnham Davis, composed by Paul Rubens, entitled
"LADY MADCAP."

Mr. George Edwardes's company in Lady Madcap forms the attraction at Stoke Newington for the present week. Every possible aid is given to the play in the way of dressing and mounting, which is quite as elaborate as is customary in Mr. Edwardes's productions. Miss Marie Studholme appears as Lady Betty Claridge, the "madcap" of the title, and her pranks and antics appear to give unbounded delight to her audience. Miss Nina Sevening is the Gwennie Halden, and her performance is pleasingly natural and refined. A very bright and attractive Susan is found in Miss Mabel Russell, who is not only a capital dancer but also a clever and capable actress. The singing of some popular English songs in French by Mr. Ernest Mahar, who appears as Count de St. Hubert, evokes considerable enthusiasm. Mr. W. E. Richardson is too good a comedian not to make the utmost of his all too slender chances as Colonel Layton, and the other officers of the East Anglian Hussars are fittingly represented by Messrs. Eustace H. Burnaby, Harold Parkes, and J. Edward Fraser, the last of whom scores with his song in the first act. Mr. Arthur Longley is the Oroya Brown, and although he succeeds in keeping his audience thoroughly amused, we have seen him more happily suited in another of Mr. G. P. Huntley's parts. Mr. E. Stalham Staples makes a quaint and droll little corporal; and Mr. Oliver J. Round plays Posh Jenkins with a quiet, dry humour that is not ineffective; but the performance that stands out above all others is the Bill Stratford of Mr. J. Robert Hale. Mr. Hale is a comedian whose bright and alert style arrests attention the moment he steps on to the stage, and he never relaxes his efforts to keep things moving for an instant. The wonder is that Mr. Edwardes can spare Mr. Hale from the West End. Mr. Douglas Munro contributes a characteristic sketch of the butler, Palmer, and Messrs. Henry Latimer and Percy Davison do all that is possible as Lord Framlingham and the old Huntsman. Mrs. Layton is successfully played by Miss Ethel Griffies.

OPERA HOUSE, CROUCH END.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Play, in Three Acts, by A. W. Pinero, entitled
"SWEET LAVENDER."

Sweet Lavender is proving a popular attraction at Crouch End, and good houses testify nightly to the skill and ability of the excellent company which has been playing this celebrated work of Mr. Pinero. Miss Ethel Carlyon, in the title-rôle, is charming. Dainty and petite, she seems to realise in every way the author's ideal. Minnie Gilfillian, as played by Miss Minnie Grey, is an excellent creation, and she is bright, sympathetic, and pleasing in every way. Miss Kate Wingfield, as Ruth Rolt, the injured mother of Lavender, gives a careful rendering of the part; and Miss N. Gillmore is most effective as Mrs. Gilfillian. Mr. F. Thorpe Tracey is again quite at home in the part of Dick Phenyl, and vastly pleases his admirers by the way he enacts the character. Mr. A. P. Kaye gives a refined and polished performance of Clement Hall; and Mr. C. A. Clarke, in the rôle of Geoffrey Wedderburn, is well placed. Equal praise is merited by Mr. Norman Clarke as Dr. Delaney, the kind-hearted physician. As the young American Horace Bream, Mr. Harvey White wins golden opinions. Mr. Fred Castleman's Mr. Maw and Mr. E. St. Claire Vayne's Bulgar are both excellent performances.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Historical Drama, by Tom Taylor, entitled
"'TWIXT AXE AND CROWN."

Miss Russ Whytal headed a strong company who appeared at the Kingston Theatre on Monday, for the first time there, in that stirring play, 'Twixt Axe and Crown, and the reception which it received from a well-filled house was at once a tribute to the excellent manner in which it was presented, as well as a proof of the interest which the historical events depicted still have for playgoers. Chief honours were secured and deserved by Miss Whytal, who played the part of Lady Elizabeth with an impressive dignity that won her admirers in all parts of the house. The rôle of Mary Tudor was filled by Miss Elsie Chester at short notice on Monday, owing to the sudden indisposition of Miss Geraldine Olliffe, but she acquitted herself with great distinction, and earned and received the warm approval of those who witnessed the effort. Mr. Alfred Fisher also scored a great success as Sir Thomas Wyatt, which was shared by Mr. Charles Combe, who filled the rôle of Bishop Gardiner. A fine impersonation of the part of the Earl of Devonshire was given by Mr. Lumsden Hare; and others deserving of particular mention were Mr. J. J. Bartlett as Simon Renard, Messrs. Ulick Burke, John Bower, and S. Riggey as Lords of the Council, and Mr. Edward Beecher as Sir John Brydges. The play was admirably staged and dressed.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, by Sir Augustus Harris and Henry Pettitt, entitled
"A LIFE OF PLEASURE."

Everything that a thoughtful and experienced management can do has been done this week to properly frame the well-known Drury Lane drama, A Life of Pleasure, which met with an enthusiastic reception on Monday evening. The play, although episodic, is certainly most exciting, and with its vivid pictures of love, hate, revenge, and martial heroism, forms an engrossing work of much interest. In every respect the drama has been well mounted, while the result from a scenic point of view is most gratifying, the scenes, Houseboat at Cliveden, The Empire, and The Chasm, being especially deserving of notice, and every praise must be given to Mr. Frank Harding, who is responsible for the production. As the much-tried Nora Hanlan, Miss Katherine Clarke played with pleasing tenderness and skill, exhibiting much pathos and emotion, rising to a fine degree of power at the close of the third act; and Miss Ethel Kay displayed grace, delicacy, and sympathetic feeling in her earnest portrayal of Lady Mary Clifford; while Miss Eleanor Gilbart as Lady Nellborough acted with dignity and decision. The fine voice of Mr. Fred Victor was heard to advantage in his attractive and picturesque impersonation of Desmond O'Brien, which was full of force and penetration, combined with manliness and sincerity. Mr. Vernon Sansbury, although a trifle uncertain of his lines, was frank and soldierly in bearing, and presented a convincing exposition of Lord Avondale; and Mr. Maurice Drew gave a painstaking rendering of the conventional Jewish moneylender, Isidor Scasi. Mr. Charles Langley infused a sufficiency of rough character into his reading of Michael Hanlan; and Mr. Fred Boustead was suitably direct and outspoken as Tim Doolan. Mr. Harry Barford, who is an established favourite here, and has the satisfaction of being thoroughly en rapport with the audience, must be warmly congratulated on his particularly fine conception of the faithful friend and true-hearted English officer, Captain Danby. The humour of the part was never forced, while the occasional gleams of pathos were excellently brought out. A careful, clever, and conscientious piece of work, full of those little artistic details which add so considerably to success, was given by Mr. Frank Harding, whose performance of that very incarnation of evil, Captain Chandos, was marked throughout with an intensity of villainy that largely strengthens the motive of the play. Miss Lucy Beaumont won repeated marks of approval as Phyllis de Belleville; and Miss Lydia Cantwell was a capable Laura Somerville. Mr. Henry Cooper created amusement as the Empire Checktaker; and Mr. C. Mordan was an efficient Dr. Delamore; while a neat little sketch of Dennis O'Rourke was given by Mr. Harry Bristow; and Sir John Berkeley was carefully enacted by Mr. Henry D. Brame. Mr. F. Wilton as Sergeant Perkins, Mr. H. Garside as Larry Doolan, Mr. James Mason as Tompkins, and Mr. J. Robinson as Private Smithers leave nothing to be desired. The smart Pavilion orchestra must be complimented on their masterly rendering of the various selections and incidental music, reflecting great credit on their talented conductor, Mr. Charles Aves.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
"THE PRODIGAL SON,"
by Hall Caine.

It is no small achievement to transfer the Drury Lane production of The Prodigal Son, with its huge "sets" and colossal and elaborate effects, to a provincial or suburban theatre, but when one considers that this process takes place weekly with the touring company, under the business management of Mr. Hy. Templeton, and the stage-management of Mr. Frank Collins, it speaks volumes for the huge strides made by the profession of recent years. On a somewhat modified scale all the original scenes as produced at Drury Lane are preserved, with the home-coming to the Inn Farm, the grand spectacular view of the Casino on the Riviera, and the final tableau of the regenerated Oscar ascending the snowclad mountain peak in silent solitude, and looking back on the happiness of home life at the Inn Farm. A capital cast has been secured, including Miss Alma Murray, who is full of sweet womanly tenderness as Anna, Stephen Magnusson's wife, and, indeed, she contributes a beautiful and moving picture of a mother's love, replete with charm and expressiveness. Miss Lily Hall Caine supplies a pathetic portraiture of the unhappy Thora, but she shows off to most advantage as the ingenuous and sunny-dispositioned Elin, her daughter, in the closing scenes. Miss Cecil Cromwell makes a very fascinating Helga Neilsen, and her fine figure and commanding presence, added to her emotional ability, show off the part to perfection. Mr. Norman Partridge is excellently well suited as the unstable Oscar Stephensson, his handsome and youthful appearance, excellent elocution, and intense earnestness all tending to make the part interesting and convincing. Mr. Henry Renouf undertakes the sympathetic rôle of Magnus, and he shines most in the quieter and more subdued scenes of the last act, though he acts well throughout. Mr. Henry George is a dignified and impressive Stephen Magnusson, Governor-General of Iceland; and Mr. Frank Collins does good service as the factor, Oscar Neilsen. Miss Mima Renouf is entrusted with the witty, plain-spoken remarks of Margret Neilsen, the factor's sister; and Mr. Howard Russell is good as Doctor Olsen; while the other small parts are quite satisfactorily rendered. Mr. Edward Lytton, the courteous and able resident-manager for Mr. Arthur, also lends valuable assistance.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 26, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Henry Pettitt and the late Sir Augustus Harris, entitled
"A LIFE OF PLEASURE."

Large crowds are flocking this week to see the above popular Drury Lane drama. Mr. Ashley Page and Miss Marion Denvil are great favourites with the Rotherhithe audiences, and during the performance are called several times before the curtain. Mr. Ashley Page gives a fine rendering of the part of Desmond O'Brien; Miss Marion Denvil makes a charming and sympathetic heroine, and the success of the production is greatly due to her ability in the part of Norah Hanlan. Mr. Cyril Vernon presents a powerful sketch of Lord Avondale; Mr. Tom Taylor submits a fine delineation of the character of Captain Chandos; the fun soon starts when Mr. Johnny Chippendale makes his appearance on the stage, and he extracts much fun from the rôle of Captain Danby; Mr. John Sargeant makes the most of Michael Hanlon; Mr. S. Major Jones gives a neat character sketch of Isidore Scarsi, the moneylender; Mr. Eugene Santley plays with power and skill as Sir John Berkeley; Miss Kathleen Russell submits a delightful portrait of Lady Mary Clifford, and plays with undeniable pathos; Miss Mattie Everett is a bright Phyllis de Belville, and her song in the second act is greatly appreciated by the audience; and Miss Maggie Lindsay is well suited in the part of Lady Nellborough. The remaining characters are in good hands. The scenery and effects are excellent, and in the fourth act the machine gun is introduced, firing at the rate of 500 shots per minute.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Farce, by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker, entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

"Laughter holding both his sides" is to be heard at the popular Peckham house this week, and it is not to be wondered at that the first visit of Mr. Cyril Maude's company in the above popular piece is attracting large audiences. The gay old sea dog, Captain Barley, whose only failing is "haffability, too much haffability," is capitally represented by Mr. Harry Ashford, who hits off all the peculiarities of the man, the cockney accent, the insinuating smile, the amazing impudence, to perfection, and must be credited with a most artistic piece of acting. Mr. Charles Goold gives a comic impersonation of the mate of the barge, Tom Codd, and his make-up is capital. Mr. Percival Knight is dashing and natural as the volatile Lieutenant Boyne; and Mr. Percy Marmont makes the most of the rôle of Herbert Manners. Augustus is well rendered by Mr. Forrester Harvey; the diminutive landlord of the Old Ship, as played by Mr. Charles Caffrey, caused roars of laughter. The dry humour of the gardener, John Dibbs, as represented by Mr. John Wheatman, is excellently suggested. Mr. Walter Pemberton gives a clever character sketch as the irascible Major Smedley. The customers at the inn are adequately played by Messrs. Fred Lake, Arthur Flinders, Fred Paul, and Boothroyd Fairclough. Miss May Fairclough makes a charming Beauty of the Barge, and represents the various phases of the character with refreshing naturalness and fidelity to nature. Miss Mary Pemberton presents a neat companion portait as Lucy Dallas; Miss Mary Griffiths makes an appropriately massive Mrs. Baldwin, and causes roars of laughter by her clever reading of the part; Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite plays cleverly as the yellow-haired Mrs. Porter; Miss Ethel Stalman is good as Mrs. Smedley. The scenery is excellent, especially the open meadow near Hedge End, which is a pretty piece of brushwork. The curtain-raiser is the amusing one-act play, That Brute Simmons, to which full justice is done by Messrs. John Wheatman, Fred Lake, and Miss Harriet Trench.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by T. N. Waller, entitled
"JANE SHORE."

For the current attraction at this theatre, Mr. Samuel James has selected as a welcome change Jane Shore. The drama has many claims on popular approval—dialogue much above the average, a picturesque setting, and a well sustained and entertaining plot. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that the production is meeting with cordial approval. Mr. James is once again relying on the efforts of his stock company, amongst whom we notice many familiar faces, and it is pleasant to be able to congratulate them on so excellent an all-round performance. Mr. Frank Stone as Richard Duke of Gloucester plays a difficult and arduous part with distinction and effect. In his hands the character finds an apt and skilful interpreter. Mr. Bert Morley as Edward IV. is dignified in a part of limited opportunity. Mr. C. F. Collings as Hastings submits a really excellent performance; Mr. Harry Hillier as Lord William Catesby is good in a poor part, and makes everything possible out of it; Mr. Fred Waller deserves warm commendation for a clever reading; Mr. Edwin Wilde as Shore enacts the part of the much-injured goldsmith with sincerity and ability, and makes a good impression; Messrs. Jo Monkhouse and Tod Squires, as Peter and Simon, are responsible for the comedy, and discharge that task in a light-hearted and irresponsible manner; Miss East Robertson powerfully enacts the part of Jane Shore, and the trials and troubles of that unfortunate lady evoke a sympathetic response from the feminine portion of the audience; Miss Marie de Roos as Queen Elizabeth portrays the revengeful nature of the jealous woman with skill; Miss May Seton, who is pleasantly remembered here, has a small, but attractive, part to play as Drusilla, and acts in an unassuming manner that greatly pleases the audience. The scenery and dresses are on a very elaborate scale, and the incidental music was capitally performed by Mr. Gliddon's orchestra. Mr. Frank Stone, who produces the play, deserves a word of commendation for the smooth performance he secured.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
Verdi's Opera, in Four Acts, entitled
"IL TROVATORE."

The third week of Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera season at this theatre was opened on Monday with a performance of Il Trovatore. As usual, a large audience was present, and great enthusiasm was shown during the evening. The mounting and staging of the piece was all that could be desired, and the orchestra and chorus was ably led by Mr. T. Lawton. Mr. F. J. Hargrave as Manrico used his fine tenor voice exceedingly well, and for his exquisite rendering of the ear-haunting melody occurring in the first scene of the last act, won some well-deserved applause. As Count di Luna, Mr. Tom Griffiths was excellent, and he sang his music in a manner worthy of the warmest praise. Mr. George Ridding made a capital Ferrando; and Mr. Newton was a satisfactory Ruiz. Miss Marie Burnett supplied an impressive rendering of Azucena, and sang sweetly; and Miss Ethel Locker was a very suitable Inez. The rôle of Leonora was capitally sustained by Mme. Duma, a lady specially engaged to encounter the difficult and intricate music occurring in the part. She certainly made the most of every opportunity offered, and acquitted herself with great credit. Other operas in this week's programme are The Puritan's Daughter, Night Dancers, Maritana, The Bohemian Girl, Satanella, and Faust.

NEW AMATEUR PLAYS.

The Dramatic Debaters can scarcely congratulate themselves upon two out of three of the new one-act plays by the "great unacted," produced at the Royalty Theatre on Sunday evening. But the fact that they have discovered one agreeable little oasis in a desert of rubbish is something, for if all the others plays sent in by the members were worse than Miss Vere D'Arsay and The Death of a Soul—two of the chosen pieces upon which it is impossible to bestow praise—then we sympathise with Mr. H. Hamilton Fyfe, upon whose shoulders fell the onus of selection, in having to wade through what must have been a shoal of "shockers." But after listening to insipid conversations by insipid characters in the first piece, and, in the second piece, absurdly unsoldierly platitudes, and equally unsoldierly situations, in what was intended to be a military sketch, we had some compensation when we came to the third item on the programme. This was

"A MAKER OF WOMEN,"
by Edith A Browne.

John Raines .....MR. MILTON ROSMER
Myra Raines .....MISS IRENE ROOKE
Tom ..... MR. ROBERT BOTTOMLEY

Much as we admire Miss Browne's work, we are forced to the conclusion that her story savours somewhat of Mr. Alfred Sutro's clever play, A Maker of Men. Myra Raines is a loyal little wife, whose ambition for her husband to make a name as an artist carries her beyond the point of matter-of-fact commonsense. John Raines has risen practically from errand boy to engineer in a tinplate works; but the latter position is considered by his wife as a very humiliating one for a man whom she fancies to be endowed with such transcendent artistic talents. It had always been her ideal to marry a struggling genius, and she is prepared to sacrifice much in order that her husband may continue to engage in what is really a hopeless fight for fame as a painter. Like the devoted woman she is, she employs her time in making and selling pretty little household ornaments, thereby meeting the expenses of the home; but apparently their finances have reached a rather low ebb, and John Raines is sadly disappointed at his lack of success. His disappointment is the disappointment of despair. He realises that he is not an artist, and never can be. He is too honest to impose pot-boilers upon the unwary and the uncritical, and he is too much of a man, and too much a lover of his wife, to allow the silly pride which has been mainly instilled into him by her to overcome his sounder judgments. At the tinplate works he had been an immense favourite with everybody. He was popular with his fellow workman, he was looked upon as a steady and clever artisan by his employers. He will go back to the works. Once more he will don the blue smock. Once more he will live a healthy, conscientious life, free from the hypocrisy of pretending to be what he is not. With an exclamation of disgust he cuts out the canvas of his latest effort from its frame, tears it into several pieces, and flings them contemptuously to the ground. He has tried—and tried hard—to be what it was his wife's heartfelt desire he should be, and he feels he has failed lamentably. At his former trade he was able to earn a respectable livelihood for himself and his wife; as an artist it is impossible. And, above all, he cannot bear the thought that she is not experiencin gthat ease and comfort in their married life which he ought to be in a position to ensure. Myra's generous egotism is shocked at his declarations. What does he mean by changing his brown velvet smoking-jacket and his æsthetic "Trilby" hat for a plain blue serge coat and a bowler? Where can he be going in such unartistic garb? "I am going," he says, "to the tinplate works, to ask them if they will take me back." She expostulates, she pleads, she even suggests that, as he is not fulfilling her ideal of a man, she can love him no more. But the very love of which she speaks triumphs, and, after an angry scene and a flood of tears, she recognises that it is all for the best—he must do something for which his real nature fits him.

Charming, affectionate, and womanly was Miss Irene Rooke as Myra Raines, and a very tender note she struck as, with pleading persuasiveness, Myra endeavours to encourage her husband to do the impossible. Very commendable, too, was Mr. Milton Rosmer in the rôle of the artist who has the courage to abandon what he knows to be a false position. Mr. Robert Bottomley was distinctly good in the part of the landlady's talkative, yet somewhat comical, son. At the conclusion of this piece Mr. J. T. Grein, the president of the Dramatic Debaters, presented the authoress, Miss Browne, with a silver inkstand, and expressed the hope that before long she would complete another play.

Another of the playlets bore the title,

"MISS VERE D'ARSAY,"
by F. M. Mayor.

Miss Vere D'Arsay .....MISS JULIE SAMUEL
Miss Lil St. Cyr .....MRS. J. T. GREIN
Mr. King .....MR. SPENCER CARPENTER

This piece was badly constructed and badly written, although the author certainly seemed to have an idea which might with advantage be worked out by a much abler dramatist. Miss d'Arsay is a young actress who is experiencing the seamy side of theatrical life. Apparently she has received, or expects to receive, an offer from a young playwright of a part in his piece. Miss d'Arsay's companion, Lil St. Cyr, gives hints to the former as to the manner in which she shall hide her lack of experience and engagements from the author, and vulgarly suggests that she shall make love to him. It appears that Mr. King, the author, has previously seen Miss d'Arsay, and has come to the conclusion that she is his "ideal," both from his own personal point of view and from the point of view of the principal part in his play. He interviews her at her lodgings. Unfortunately, however, during her temporary absence from the room, he is ungentlemanly enough to pick up a private note from the table, on which Miss St. Cyr had indicated her scheme of duplicity. He is disgusted; crumples the piece of paper in his hand, and flings it on the floor. When Miss d'Arsay returns, he tells her that he has overheard a conversation which has disillusioned him as to her real fitness for the part in his play, and he will not now require her services. She bursts into tears, and makes a confession; leaves the room again, so as to give him time to write a conciliatory epistle, and presumably all ends well.

Miss Julie Samuel exhibited real dramatic ability in her handling of the rôle of Miss d'Arsay, and as an amateur actress she shows great promise. Mrs. J. T. Grein imparted a spirit of breeziness to the piece with her acceptable performance of the not altogether unsophisticated Lil St. Cyr. The part of Mr. King, the playwright, was a weak character, and it was weakly played by Mr. Spencer Carpenter.

We failed to see how the death of the soul came about. Colour-Sergeant Humphrey Quayle has seen twenty years' service, and, with all the experience of the necessity of discipline, he does not seem to understand that, when his brother sergeant has been promoted, he must obey him, in spite of the fact that the brother sergeant has been elevated owing to the part he played in an intrigue between his colonel and a woman. Quayle is not inclined to obey Sergeat-Major Spry; but there does not seem sufficient reason why he should not. In a terrible scene, in which his ungovernable fury bursts forth, he lifts up a chair, and threatens to kill his superior officer, or the first man who comes near him. He is given a chance to quit the mess quietly under arrest, but he doesn't take the hint. Ergo, he is removed forcibly through the means of the frog's march, squealing all the while like a pig at its execution. Quayle, we suppose, is intended to be the hero of the play We are bound to confess that he is a very sorry one, and we hope there are not many like him in the British Army. Mr. Arthur Goodsall acted with dramatic intensity in the part, such as it was. For ourselves, we can scarcely believe that a soldier of twenty years' standing could have behaved, as Quayle did, like an hysterical schoolgirl.

MISS WINIFRED SIDDONS.

Miss Winifred Siddons has been singing at the principal London and provincial concerts during the last four years, and is a great favourite. She was specially engaged to play Dolores in Florodora at the Theatre Royal,

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 26,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"KITTY GREY."

Mr. C. St. John Denton's company, appearing this week at the Dalston with Kitty Grey, one of the many successful musical comedies now on tour, begets the reception generally accorded to old favourites. Miss Hilda Guiver, whose general deportment and spirited manner render her an ideal Kitty, is many times recalled in some of her best scenes. Lady Binfield, as represented by Miss Marie West, is an interesting character, and her sympathetic singing adds charm to the representation. Other prominent characters are played by Miss Ada Booth, Miss Nellie Lauraine, Miss Beatrice Balfour, and Miss Kathleen Arnold, who all do well. Mr. Robert Hyett as Sir J. Binfield realises the piquancy of the many adventures associated with the part; and Mr. H. E. Garden as Lord Plantagenet imparts an amount of humour to the character which secures popularity. Mr. Lauri Lisle is decidedly well placed as the King of Illyria, being a decidedly energetic actor; and others helping in the success are Mr. T. W. Kingston, Mr. Stanley Ravenscroft, Mr. F. Russell, and Mr. L. Steward. Mr. Forbes Russell conducts the orchestra, and the music is well rendered.

MR. STANLEY LEVERTON'S RECITAL.

The third dramatic recital given by Mr. Stanley Leverton on the 23rd ult., at Stanley Hall, N.W., proved most successful. Mr. Leverton is an earnest student of the drama, and his rendering of Clarence in the Murder Scene from Richard the Third deserves great credit. He was also seen to advantage as Frank in a little comedietta entitled Confessions, in which a newly-married couple, who wish to conceal from the people in a Brighton hotel the fact that they are on their honeymoon, are thus led into all sorts of difficulties. Miss Rita Gallally made a pretty and charming bride. Another meritorious item on the programme was "The Portrait," recited by Mr. Leverton in fine elocutionary style. Miss Rita Gallally may be congratulated on her very intelligent rendering of Andersen's "The Red Shoes." The audience showed their appreciation by demanding an encore, Miss Gallally giving "The Lesson of the Fan" in response. The entertainment concluded with Poor Pillicoddy, in which Mr. Leverton, humorously made up, enacted the title-rôle with decided ability. A great improvement in his stage demeanour was also noticeable. Mr. Leverton may be heartily congratulated on his engagement with Mr. Chas. Fry during his season at the Court Theatre to play Richmond and Clarence in Richard the Third and Camillo in A Winter's Tale.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

At the Theatre Royal, Canterbury, on the 22nd ult., what promises to be a most popular new costume play was staged, for the first time, by the theatre stock company, under the stage-direction of Mr. J. Austin-Leigh. The action of the play, which is a pleasing blending of romance and fact, takes place during a day in April, 1710, and deals with the Court of Queen Anne. The first act represents an audience chamber in St. James's Palace, and members of the Court are depicted busily engaged in discussing an article written by Dr. Swift, editor of The Examiner, in which he charges the Duke of Marlborough with misappropriating certain State funds, and with intriguing with the French, against whom England is at war. Queen Anne, who is very weak-willed and easily swayed, holds converse with Harley, a prominent Tory, and Dr. Swift, who use their utmost endeavours to prejudice her against the Duke of Marlborough and the Duchess. The Duchess of Marlborough suddenly appears upon the scene, and denounces Dr. Swift as a scurrilous slanderer, and then asks for a warrant to be issued for his arrest. The Queen eventually consents to come to the Duchess's apartments that night, and to bring the warrant with her, signed and sealed. This alarms Harley, who has really been the instigator of the attacks made on the Duke of Marlborough, and he makes an appointment with Mrs. Masham, his paramour (who is desirous of supplanting the Duchess as Mistress of the Robes), at his house. At their interview they devise a plot to prevent the proposed arrest. The Duchess pays an unexpected visit, and Masham is forced to hide in an adjoining room. After an ineffectual appeal to Harley that he should seek no further to bring the Duke into disfavour, the suspicions of the Duchess are aroused by the scent of lavender that pervades the room, and she suddenly opens the door leading to the adjoining room, and discovers Mrs. Masham listening at the keyhole.

In the next act the Queen visits the Duchess at her apartments, and brings with her the warrant, signed, but not sealed. She explains that she has mislaid the ring which contains the seal, but promises to return later, and complete the warrant. This she fails to do, and the Duchess accordingly goes to the Queen. During her absence, Harley enters the Duchess's apartment by a secret passage, and seals the warrant for Swift's arrest with the Queen's ring, of which he has surreptitiously obtained possession, afterwards placing the ring in a drawer of the Duchess's table. Swift is arrested on the warrant, but is liberated an hour afterwards. The Queen is told of the Duchess's supposed perfidy, and a passionate scene takes place between them. The Queen later commands the Duchess to leave her apartments, and to relinquish her position as Mistress of the Robes at midnight. Before this summons arrives, a French spy is brought before the Duke, on whom are found letters to the French from Mrs. Masham, and implicating Harley. At midnight the Duchess pretends to permanently leave her rooms, and Mrs. Masham immediately takes possession as Mistress of the Robes. Harley presently joins her, and while the two chat gaily of the success of their plans, the Queen listens patiently, and, entering at a compromising moment, a dénouement takes place, and both Mrs. Masham and Harley are dismissed from the Court. The final act is a touching little scene, in which the Queen asks forgiveness from the Duchess.

The stock company at the Theatre Royal are certainly deserving of great praise for the excellence of their performance. The part of Queen Anne was admirably taken by Miss Eugenie Vernie. The rôle was a difficult one, the Queen being swayed by every passing emotion; but Miss Vernie seemed to be thoroughly at home in the part, and gave a distinctly clever performance. Miss Marion Lind, who was called upon to take the part of the Duchess at a few days' notice, was a great success. Miss Lind was not only letter-perfect, but displayed adequate appreciation of the effective situations. Her tirades against Swift and Masham were particularly good; but perhaps her crowning effort was in the interview with the Queen, when she denounces her for not signing the warrant for Swift's arrest. The part of the Duke of Marlborough was taken by Mr. Arthur Burne, and his representation of the great soldier-minister was a very creditable one. The scene between the Duke and Duchess in their apartments was a very effective piece of acting. Mr. Austin Leigh impersonated the crafty, scheming Harley with much ability, being at home in his audiences with the Queen, as in the stolen interviews with Mrs. Masham. This latter impersonation was not altogether an enviable one, the Queen's favourite being depicted as a fawning, ambitious woman, who would go to any lengths to gain her ends. Miss Emmie O'Reilly was, however, quite equal to the part, and the impersonation must be described as an exceedingly clever one. As the wizened, bitterly sarcastic Dr. Swift, Mr. G. W. Elton seemed to find a congenial part, and his performance left little to be desired. Mr. Richard Fielding made an excellent, blithe-hearted, popular "Dick" Steele, besides taking the part of a groom-in-waiting; and Mr. J. E. Savery made a very soldierly Colonel Jack Hill. Miss Maude Creighton, Miss Lilian Rogers, and Miss Violet Agnew all did full justice to their respective impersonations. The part of Lord Villiers was very creditably sustained by Mr. J. K. Lord; and Mr. Farringdon capably enacted the rôle of Sir William Devral. Miss Clara Youngson made a charming Mistress Prudence Malling; and Mr. Dare Austin showed much ability in the part of Handel. The subsidiary impersonations of footman to Mr. Harley, Cole, and Pompey were well carried out respectively by Mr. F. J. Ingledew, Mr. Claude Agnew, and Master Horace Eyres. The play was excellently staged, and the costumes were of a most elaborate and charming character.

AT Covent Garden Theatre on Friday afternoon a concert was given in aid of the widow of M. Coquelin (late musician and secretary to the Garde Républicaine Band). Several prominent artists gave their services, and the combined bands of the Grenadier Guards, Coldstream Guards, and the Garde Républicaine, comprising 180 performers, played selections. The concert was organised under the management of Mr. Philip Yorke.

CHAT WITH MRS. BROWN-POTTER.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Mrs. Brown-Potter is a great believer in the stage representation of historical characters. During the last few weeks she has been seen and admired at the Coliseum in what was called a "poetic cycle," in one scene and three tableaux. The scene represented the Abode of the Spirit of Love, and to Mrs. Brown-Potter it was mainly left to explain the apotheosis of the ruling passion. We had the love of Antony for his Cleopatra and of Dante for his Beatrice vividly brought before us, and the translated lines of Armand Silvestre were rendered with power and intensity and beautiful expression by Mrs. Brown-Potter.

This clever actress is now appearing at the Coliseum as Mary Queen of Scots in a new scena. It will not by any means be the first time she has impersonated that unfortunate lady, for she has already played the character on the Moss and Stoll tour.

"My idea in taking heroines," said Mrs. Brown-Potter during a few minutes' conversation in her dressing-room at the Coliseum a few days ago, "is that the public in a theatre should have something to pin their eye to. The moment you work on broad lines in a great palace of entertainment like this, you must get some conspicuous character, in history or fiction, that your audience know something about, so that when they see you make your entrance they will say, 'This is Mary Queen of Scots,' 'This Joan of Arc,' or 'That Charlotte Corday.' One of the first historical parts I played was that of Elizabeth in 'Twixt Axe and Crown. I have played Charlotte Corday right round the world, and I think that that is my most successful heroine. Another part

MRS. BROWN-POTTER.

I liked very much was that of Marie Antoinette in The Queen's Necklace, which I played for over a year in America with the late Augustin Daly."

The play in which Charlotte Corday was the central figure was first produced in India. It is interesting at this time to mention that the piece was written by Mr. A. Macdonald, then editor of the Times of India, and perhaps the first man to discover the extraordinary talents of Mr. Rudyard Kipling. Mr. Macdonald, Mrs. Brown-Potter informs us, did not wish to be at all identified with theatrical literature. He was a political writer of the old school of journalists who thought that Parliamentary affairs should not be mixed up with play-writing or with the theatre in any way. Upon leaving India, Mrs. Brown-Potter proceeded to America, where she acted as Charlotte Corday for a couple of years, after which she had a tour with the piece in Australia and in England.

"Joan of Arc is a character in which I have a great belief," said Mrs. Brown-Potter. "In portraying the French heroine I was particularly fortunate in having the old and correct historical records of the time placed at my disposal. Joan possessed a distinctive charm, a charm in which simplicity of life and manners was combined with most extraordinary patriotism. Other people of the period were patriotic, too, but her patriotism amounted to a passion, so much so, in fact, that, with the force of her individuality and personal beauty, it swept everything before it.

"Reverting to what I said about Mary Queen of Scots," continued the vivacious lady, "it may surprise some folk to know that the lowest as well as the better classes of audience have taken a great interest in this character wherever I have appeared in it. When I played it in Edinburgh the students from the University came to the theatre, and were most enthusiastic with their applause. Then we got excellent notices from the local Press.

"I have always held the opinion that in stage representations truth cannot fail to please. One frequently hears the remark fall from the lips of an artist or a manager, 'Oh, the public wants this,' or 'the public wants that.' My own idea is that an actor or an actress should make a work of art a work of love, and then he or she will not go far wrong. It frequently happens that in trying to find out what playgoers do want, they are given what they don't want. I am strongly inclined to the view that wholeheartedness in one's work, whatever it be, brings success in its train."

Mrs. Brown-Potter's admirers have long since recognised that her marked and delightful personality is well suited to the stage representation of those "strong" women whose influence has left a powerful impression upon the pages of history. In attempting to delineate the famous women of all ages she makes it a self-imposed duty to study every possible detail of her characters, as well as the customs and manners of the period. We can feel sure that her portrayal of the ill-fated daughter of James V. of Scotland will in all respects be an adequate dramatic likeness.

A MATINEE in aid of the Royal Infirmary, Bristol, was given on Tuesday, at the Prince's Theatre in that town and attracted a crowded assemblage. Mr. J. M. Chute, the popular proprietor of the Prince's, was chairman of a committee which comprised Mr. Wilkie Bard, Mr. Edward Lewis, Miss Fanny Fields, Miss Lily Morris, Mr. G. R. Chapman, Mr. Henry Turner, and Mr. F. S. Green (hon. secretary). The programme was contributed to by many of the performers engaged in the pantomime of Mother Goose at the Prince's, and valuable aid was rendered by artists from London, Birmingham, and elsewhere. During an interval Mr. Chute announced that he anticipated the total result would amount to £315. The entire proceeds would be handed to the Infirmary Fund without any charge for expenses whatever, with the exception of a small percentage deducted for the Actors' Benevolent Fund and the Music Hall Benevolent Fund.

Of late the mind of the average British citizen has been obsessed with the legend of the inherent super-excellence of everything German. Especially has this been the case in the sphere of intellectual activity. The very possibility of understanding Hegel has been to the average ignoramus a guarantee of that thinker's profundity.

If this young man expresses himself in terms too deep for me,
Why, what a particularly deep young man this deep young man must be.

Thus Mr. Gilbert very tersely expresses the truth about a good deal of the seemingly ex cathedra rhodomontade which, merely because it is German, we are expected to assimilate as the deliverances of the spirit of wisdom itself. Such is the devout feeling with which one goes to hear a new production at the German Theatre, in Great Queen-street. But if Das Erbe is to be accepted as an average specimen of the modern Teutonic drama, then we are afraid that the principle of "dumping," about which we have heard so much during the recent Election, has been extended to the stage, and we are having the surplus output of German slop-work sent over here for Britannic consumption. For surely no one can believe for one moment that this ill-constructed tale of sordid mercenary intrigue is a sample of what is regarded as good drama in the Fatherland to-day. Of course, if one witnesses it with a mind in a state of receptive adulation, good and well. Then no doubt there would be discovered some cryptic power which otherwise is totally wasted upon the average spectator. The story is somehow involved with the betrayal of a secret of gun-manufacture to the emissary of an American firm. A somewhat peculiar Government official, Excellenz von Küstner, announces that, owing to this leakage, a great Government contract has been transferred from Germany to America. The young proprietor of the German firm, Baron von Larun, declares that he will dismiss all his employees unless the traitor is discovered. General suspicion arises all round. Küstner proposes to found a new factory with the assistance of Heinrich Sartorius, the manager of von Larun's works; but the latter demurs to leaving the employment in which he has been so long. But when he finds that von Larun believes that he is the guilty party, he announces his intention of abandoning him. Then the work-people threaten to storm von Larun's house. The true villain is opportunely discovered, and everything ends happily in Sartorius receiving a partnership in the firm.

A slight love interest is added by the rivalry of two ladies for the hand of the easily-influenced Baron von Larun. There is only one redeeming feature in an otherwise dreary performance, and that is the really praiseworthy efforts which the company make to give life to this unresponsive collection of bombastic ineptitudes.

Herr Hans Andresen really managed to arouse some sympathy with the badly-used Sartorius; but the credit is all due to the art of the actor, who imparts some force and vitality to what would be otherwise a very prosaic part. The rather eccentric diplomatist, Excellenz von Küstner, was played as well as could be expected by Herr Bruno Wiburger. What we suppose must be regarded as the villain of the play, Van der Matthiesen, was ably portrayed by Herr Richard Starnburg. It seems essential in German plays that the villain should be of Dutch extraction. The female parts hardly call for rmention. Sartorius's wife, Henriette, was rendered somewhat lifelike by Fraulein Charlotte Kelly; and the two rivals, Hertha Sartorius and Clarice Matthiesen, were made as much of as possible by Frauleins Margarethe Russ and Johanna Becker.

MISS SARA DREW, the Roland of Goody Two Shoes at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, was the winner of the coveted diamond ring in the Pantomime Popularity Competition promoted by the proprietors of Ally Sloper's Half Holiday, the result being decided by public ballot. The "Eminent" himself was in attendance on Saturday, and made the award in the presence of a crowded audience, who displayed much enthusiasm. Mr. W. F. Crewe, the popular manager, personally attended to the arrangements at the theatre.

WHEN the proprietary of the Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, take over the Theatre Royal at the end of this month, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont, the able and courteous general-manager of the Lyceum, will fulfil the duties of business manager, though he will retain his important position as Mr. John Hart's local representative and treasurer at the house "over the way." Mr. Beaumont is a thorough man of business, and a great favourite socially.

MR. CHARLES WILSON, the popular stage-manager at the Alhambra, is, we are pleased to hear, now convalescent. His recent serious illness gave his friends considerable anxiety.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham's visit to the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday afternoon had been long looked forward to, and an overflowing audience fully appreciated every point in Mr. Hubert Henry Davies's fine comedy Captain Drew on Leave. Mr. Bannister Howard, the new lessee of the theatre, apologised for the delay in beginning, Sir Charles having missed his train at Brighton; but the wait was short, and the eminent actor was quickly on the scene, brimming over with high spirits as the mercurial Captain Drew. Added pleasure was given to the afternoon by the unexpected appearance of Miss Mary Moore, who, it was feared, would be unable, on account of indisposition, to take up her part of Miss Mills; but, despite some evidences of a cold, Miss Moore played with all her customary brightness and charm.

Miss Ellen Terry, who celebrated her birthday on Tuesday, spent last week-end at Bath with her daughter, Miss Ailsa Craig, who has been staying in the "West City of the West" for some little time. The eminent actress, it is pleasing to note, is shortly to be seen in London again, having been secured for the part of Hermione in Mr. Beerbohm Tree's production of The Winter's Tale at His Majesty's in the autumn.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree has selected The Winter's Tale for the attraction at His Majesty's Theatre, during his absence from town in the autumn, and rehearsals of Shakespeare's comedy will have the benefit of his personal supervision. Mr. Tree has made a happy engagement in that of Miss Ellen Terry for the part of Hermione, Miss Viola Tree playing Perdita. The rôle of Autolycus has been allotted to Mr. C. W. Somerset.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Mr. Charles Frohman will produce Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play, The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, rehearsals of which have been in steady progress for some time past, at the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday, the 21st inst. In addition to Mr. Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh, the cast will be a very strong one, including Mr. Aubrey Smith, Mr. O. B. Clarence, Mr. Charles Goodhart, Mr. Charles V. France, Mr. Walter Pearce, Mr. George Trollope, Miss Muriel Beaumont, Miss Henrietta Watson, Miss Elfrida Clement, Miss Pamela Gaythorne, Miss Nora Greenlaw, and Miss Kate Phillips, whose re-appearance on the stage will be very welcome. The present revival of Brother Officers reaches its fiftieth performance to-night, and might have run until Easter at least but for the arrangements made for the new production above alluded to.

Mr. Willard is having one of the most prosperous of his always highly successful seasons in the New England States. He has just concluded his "record" week at Hartford, Conn., and the advance sale of seats for his two weeks at the Colonial gave clear indication that that would be one of his best fortnights in Boston.

Miss Jessie Millward, who begins her season at the Scala Theatre on Saturday with The School for Husbands, has received an assurance from Mr. Stanislaus Stange, who is in the United States, that he will be present at the first performance in this country of his comedy, provided his business arrangements permit of his leaving New York in time.

Mr. J. M. Barrie, whose fanciful pen has yielded nothing since it evolved Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire last April, has provided the Haymarket with a new play, which will form Mr. Frederick Harrison's next production, this time in conjunction with Mr. Charles Frohman. The cast of the new play will include Mr. Charles Hawtrey and Mr. Gerald Du Maurier.

"Peter Pan" concluded his second visit to the Duke of York's Theatre on Saturday amid a scene of great enthusiasm. Mr. Barrie was in a stage box, but made no response to the cries for a speech, contenting himself with dropping a bunch of flowers at the feet of his little representative, Miss Ella Q. May, who came forward and said, "We are all to do it again next year. We all wish we could give you a thimble"—a thimble being, in the language of the Never, Never Land, a kiss. When Peter Pan is revived next Christmas the evening performance will be supplemented by daily matinées, at which the play will be acted by children.

Since the death of Sir Henry Irving new trustees of the Adelaide Neilson Fund for the Relief of Indigent Actors and Actresses have been appointed. They are now Mr. J. L. Toole, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr Beerbohm Tree, and Mr. Arthur Bourchier.

Miss Alma Murray is playing Anna in the provincial tour of The Prodigal Son, that opened so auspiciously three weeks ago. Although this charming actress, so well known to theatre-goers for so many years, has recently accepted engagements to appear in the characters of old women—Mrs. Mayley, in Oliver Twist, at His Majesty's, and now the mother of the hero in Mr. Hall Caine's exciting drama—there is no need for her to do so for a long time to come, for she looks, off the stage, so exactly like the Alma Murray of the good old days at the Vaudeville and the Lyceum, that time seems to have stood still with her. There is also a popular fallacy in regard to Miss Murray's retirement that needs contradicting. She has never retired, and although her name has not been found in playbills so frequently as of yore, every year has brought its work—special matinées, teaching, or opportunities to create new parts. Miss Murray's father was, as everybody knows, the late Leigh Murray, and as the wife of a literary man, Mr. Alfred Forman, she has always had the advantage of artistic surroundings and every encouragement in her profession.

To attempt to give a list of the engagements Miss Murray has filled, and the managers she has known, would fill a column of this page. She has a quaint recollection of her very first evening behind the scenes of a theatre. It was probably at Covent Garden. Somebody gave her a shuttlecock and battledore, with which she played in a fair scene, happily unconcerned with the company or the audience, for she can only remember three people distinctly—a very fat little child, whose name has long faded out of her mind, little Paul Fechter, son of the actor, and the great Fechter himself. Later on she commenced her stage career in earnest, appearing as "Miss Alma," afterwards changed—without her permission by a manager who thought it sounded too childish—into "Miss Almar," until she went under Chatterton's management, and he, being a friend of her late father, and having great faith in the young girl, persuaded her to use her own name in full. All her work has been in London theatres, including a memorable engagement at the Lyceum, when she played Portia and other big parts with Sir Henry Irving. Mr. Pinero's Bygones—one of his successes long before he became "our leading playwright"—owed not a little of its popularity to Miss Murray's fresh and finished performance, and she also did Mr. Louis N. Parker a good service in making so much of the woman's part in his one-act piece, The Sequel, that was revived, by the way, a few years back at the Criterion during Mr. John Hare's season.

There was not a little excitement behind the scenes at the Coronet Theatre during the performance of The Prodigal Son last Monday evening. A piece of scenery caught fire at the back of the stage, luckily unperceived by the audience, and as it happened at the close of one of the acts, the safety curtain was lowered, and prompt measures taken to extinguish the flames. Although the members of the company were somewhat alarmed and agitated—and slightly drenched—they speak in the highest terms of the self-possession and quick action of the stage staff. A possible disaster was averted as coolly and cheerfully as if it were a mere matter of shifting scenery.

The creditors of Andrew Edwin Mackintosh, acting theatrical manager, of James-street, Rugby, held a first meeting at the Official Receiver's Office, Coventry, on Wednesday. The Official Receiver stated that the receiving order was made on the 15th ult. on the debtor's own petition, which he filed in consequence of a creditor having proceeded against him under a judgment summons. He was adjudged bankrupt the same day. Debtor appeared to have commenced business on his own account about six years ago without any capital. He toured the farcical comedy Jane for about twelve months, having borrowed money for the purpose. This tour was not a success, and the money borrowed was still owing. After this the debtor fulfilled various engagements, and in 1904 was general manager of the Brighton Palace Pier at a salary of £300 a year. During 1904 he went on tour with the farcical comedy Oh! Susannah, on which he also sustained a loss. The unsecured liabilities amounted to £465 10s. 6d., including thirteen creditors for loans amounting to £438 and two royalties amounting to £21. Debtor attributed the cause of failure to "general theatrical depression." The deficiency was returned at £465 10s. 6d. No resolution was placed before the meeting, and the case was left in the hands of the Official Receiver, the public examination being fixed for March 12, at Coventry.

Miss Fanny Coleman, whose jubilee on the professional stage is to be marked by a benefit matinée in May, has interesting memories of the last half-century of the drama in London. The old Haymarket Theatre, where Miss Coleman made her first appearance, under the management of Mr. Buckstone, was very different from the present theatre. "In those days," she says, "the curtain always went up at seven o'clock—the company were supposed to be in the theatre at six—and the curtain did not come down till midnight. Mr Buckstone was always quite annoyed if it came down earlier. The programme would begin with a farce, and that might be followed by a five-act play, and after that would come the ballet, and sometimes after that another farce. People did not dine as late as they do now.

"I remember," continues Miss Coleman, "that at the Haymarket nearly all the dresses were made in the theatre itself; there was a dressmakers' workroom, and a tailors' shop where the men's costumes were made. We did not have any Paris gowns then. Salaries, too, were very much smaller then. I remember when £15 a week was the highest salary taken at the Haymarket. But actors and actresses stayed much longer at the same theatre, and the profession was not so crowded."

Mr. Stewart D. Wright, who is an old favourite in Glasgow, both as actor and manager, was, at the conclusion of his pantomime engagement, entertained by some of the "Old Club" boys to supper, and presented with an address, at the Adelphi, on the 21st ult.

Mr. Sterling Mackinlay will give his Twenty-fifth London Recital on the afternoon of May 21, at Bechstein Hall. This will be his only appearance during the coming season, as the number of his pupils obliged him some eighteen months ago to abandon all future concert and theatrical work, in order to devote the whole of his time to teaching singing.

Mr. Daniel Frohman has obtained from Mr. Pinero the American rights of his play, His House in Order, which Mr. George Alexander recently produced with such striking success at the St. James's.

The success of Mizpah, the new Biblical verse play, by Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Luscombe Searelle, which made a great impression on its production recently in America, has been repeated in Boston, the enthusiasm on the opening night at the Majestic Theatre in that city being phenomenal. The play is produced by Mr. Charles Frohman, who is credited with having attained a veritable triumph of stage-craft. Mr. Searelle, who figures both as poet and musician in the play, is about to return to England, and sails from Boston on the 7th inst.

At the meeting of the Swansea Borough Council, held at the Town Hall on the 21st ult., Mr. E. O. Brooks, the manager, applied for the renewal of a licence for the Grand Theatre. The decision given at the previous meeting, when the application for an unconditional licence had been refused by the casting vote of the Mayor, was said to be illegal. Mr. Brooks reminded the council that for a couple of years past he and his partner had been kept in suspense respecting this licence, and they were very seriously thinking of giving up the theatre altogether, unless they received fair and equitable treatment. He took over from his predecessor a full and unrestricted licence, as had always been previously granted. The question as to the legality of the former decision was debated with some warmth by the council, but an unconditional licence was finally granted by twenty votes to seventeen.

Miss Haidee Gunn has been engaged by Mr. J. M. Chute, of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, to play Juliet in his forthcoming revival of Romeo and Juliet, at his Shakespearean Festival, commencing April 23.

The American rights of Judge Parry's and Mr. Fredk. Mouillot's farcical comedy, What the Butler Saw, which ran for over one hundred nights at Wyndham's and the Savoy Theatres last autumn, have been secured by Mr. W. H. Reynolds, of the Garrick Theatre, New York, and the piece will probably be produced some time during the coming season in New York.

Miss Agnes Molteno, the popular prima donna, who is just concluding a four months' tour, has been most successful, and is said by everyone to be singing better than ever. Miss Molteno is specially engaged to sing at the Town Hall, Middlesbrough, on Sunday, after which she will return to town, where she will probably be heard in her scena, The Daughter of the Regiment.

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison will deliver to the members of the O.P. Club, on Sunday, "A Few Unscholastic Reflections on the Greek Chorus." The address will be given at the Criterion Hotel, with Mr. Alfred F. Robbins in the chair. On the following Friday, in the Club Room, an informal debate on Mr. A. W. Pinero's play, His House in Order, will be opened by Mr. W. O. Summers.

Miss Julia Neilson, whose Lady Blakeney is one of her finest impersonations, is now back in the cast of The Scarlet Pimpernel, which reached its 375th performance on Friday, at the New Theatre.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, whose new play, Brigadier Gerard, will be produced at the Imperial Theatre to-night, has a rooted antipathy to taking a call, and nothing in the world would induce him to respond to a demand for the "author." His experience as a dramatist, however, is a very small one, as Brigadier Gerard is the first whole-evening play for which he is entirely responsible. Sir Conan Doyle does not think that the entrance of the novelist into the theatre interferes with the dramatist pure and simple. "A stage taken by a dramatised novel leaves one less for the purely original—that is obvious; but whether a play that is dug out of the entrails of a novel is as good or better than the other sort depends on many things. A play carries with it a big responsibility. The man who writes a novel," adds Sir Arthur sagely, "does not bring down a whole company with him if the public won't have his work."

Mr. Michael Connelly, in terminating a pleasant pantomime engagement as musical director with Mr. Eade Montefiore, received the following testimonial:—"Many thanks for past and present endeavours, and my grateful appreciation of so pleasant an association.—Believe me, yours truly, Eade Montefiore."

Mr. Sidney Dench was obliged to retire from the part of Spider Jack in Rich and Poor of London at the Empire, Dundee, last week, and the rôle was taken up at a few minutes' notice by Mr. Jack Sydney, who was complimented by Mr. Percival, the resident-manager, and Mr. Dench on a perfect rendering of a most difficult part.

The Scenic Artists' Association's first social dinner was given on Tuesday at the Adelphi Hotel, and was well attended, the following members of the Association with their friends being present:—Messrs. Walter Hann, E. G. Banks, Richard Douglass, R. H. Halley, E. J. Hirst, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, George Herbert Wallis, and Harry Woolls (members of the Committee), R. Caney, Phil W. Goatcher, Ernest Hann, E. J. Humphries, Bernard A. Hastain, H. L. Jacobs, J. Johnston, J. Davies Massey, J. B. Morand, R. C. McCleery, H. W. Owen, Herbert Pike, Stanes Prem, Phil Small, George Tweddell, H. Thompson, C. Watson, and the Hon. Secretary, Mr. H. Lawrence Harris. It was arranged to have these social dinners on the last Tuesday in each month at the Adelphi Hotel. The next committee meeting will be held at the offices of the Association on Tuesday at 7.30. At eight o'clock on the same evening an informal conference will be held for the discussion of any matters of general interest to scene painters, and to consider suggestions for enlarging the scope of the aims and objects of the Association. To this conference all scene painters (whether members of the Association or not) are cordially invited.

Mr. T. Edward Ward, the successful touring manager, will revive at Christmas or thereabouts, on an elaborate scale, the Napoleonic play Man and Wife, which will then have had a rest of some four years. Arrangements have been made with the author, Mr. Walter Howard, for the play to undergo a course of reconstruction, which will assure the success of the revival and render it one of the finest romantic attractions on tour. Mr. Howard's latest play, The Midnight Wedding, is developing into an irresistible attraction.

A new theatre is proposed to be built at Reading at the north-west corner of Friar-street and Cheapside. Plans for the erection of the theatre have been submitted to the Buildings Committee of the Corporation by Mr. R. E. Daniel, of Uxbridge-road, London. The Surveyor reports that generally speaking the plan is good, but as some of the sections of the Reading Corporation Act, 1881, and of the Bye-laws have been contravened, the plans should be referred back for amendment.

Ibsen's Ghosts will be produced by the English Drama Society at the King's Hall on Sunday, the 11th inst., the cast including Miss Madge McIntosh, Mr. Arthur Goodsall, Mr. Lumsden Hare, Mr. Arthur Curtis, and Miss Isabel Roland. Ghosts will be preceded by a one-act play, entitled Peter the Great, in which Miss Isabel Roland, Miss Ina Royle, Mr. Bertram Forsyth, and Mr. Esmé Percy will appear. How far the latter play will resemble the five-act drama of the same name by Mr. Laurence Irving, produced at the Lyceum in 1898, is not revealed.

Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy will commence their seventh year of tour on Monday next at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells. During the last three years the piece has made rapid strides, and is without doubt one of the most successful musical comedies of its kind now touring, the company having had only two weeks' vacation since August Bank Holiday, 1903. Mr. J. W. Cordiner, who is still the general-manager, has bookings as far ahead as autumn, 1907.

Mr. Robert Castleton underwent a severe internal operation on the 13th ult., but is going on well, and hopes to be able to accept engagements again about Easter. The Tiger Lily will, he anticipates, be again on the road in the autumn.

Mme. Rejane, who since her return to Paris has been playing in Sardou's successful play, La Piste, is organising a school of acting. Only eight pupils will be admitted—four young men and four young women who have a liking for the stage. There will be four courses of study—viz., a course of diction (classic authors), a course of ancient and modern dramatic literature, a course of modern artistic education, and a course of dancing, deportment, and fencing. Mme. Réjane herself will undertake the course of modern artistic education, so far as the young women are concerned, while M. Dumeny will teach the young men. Each will give two lessons a week.

The candidates for the school will be chosen by a special committee, who, after hearing them, will nominate the eight pupils. Each pupil will receive a grant of £24 for the first year and £50 for the second. At the end of the first school year, the pupils who are definitely admitted to the school, will have to sign an engagement for two years with the Réjane Theatre, all the costumes being furnished gratuitously, and every year there will be two public performances, in which all the pupils will play with Mme. Réjane and her company. The piece played will be by an unknown author, and the proceeds of each performance will be divided, half to the author and half in the shape of several prizes to the pupils, the awards to be made by a public vote.

The Horspool Natural Voice Academy, Limited, was registered on Feb. 22, with a capital of £5500 in £1 shares (1000 6 per cent. preference). The company proposes to take over, as a going concern, the business carried on at Grosvenor Mansions, Victoria-street, Westminster, as the Natural Voice Academy. The first directors (to number not less than two nor more than five) are Professor J. Horspool and others to be appointed by the signatories. There is no initial public issue.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard, whose enterprise seems to be limitless, has arranged with Messrs. Polini and Austin Melford for the rights of The Silver King for all towns not visited by them.

Messrs. Seymour Hicks and Cosmo Hamilton will rely chiefly on the story in The Beauty of Bath, their new musical play to be produced at the Aldwych Theatre on March 19, Mr. H. E. Haines' charming music being made an adjunct to the "book" rather than a peg on which an author has to fit his work. The key to the plot is given just before the fall of the curtain on the first act, when the heroine, played by Miss Ellaline Terriss, is confronted by the man she thinks she is in love with and the man who is in love with her, the two being as alike as the Dromios, but she discovers the deception about to be practised on her, a fact of which the audience is made aware.

Mr. McLeod Loader, the general-manager of the St. Helens Theatre Royal and Opera House, took his fifth annual benefit on the 22nd ult., when a crowded audience supplied complete evidence of his popularity. The pantomime was supplemented by many variety turns, all of which gave the utmost pleasure. Mr. Loader, who was enthusiastically received, delivered a speech, in which he thanked the directors, the artists, and the audience, and outlined his future plans for this and the forthcoming season.

Madame Sarah Bernhardt's feud with the Theatrical Trust in America is unabated, and the determination of the famous actress to play under canvas remains fixed. It has been found that an ordinary circus tent was quite unsuitable for the purpose, and the Messrs. Shubert, who are managing Madame Bernhardt's arrangements in America, have ordered a big tent, 180ft. long and 130ft. wide, with a portable stage and a seating capacity for 4000 persons, for her tour in Mexico and California.

Patrons of the drama in the remoter states of America evidently take the duties of the censorship into their own hands. At Linton, Indiana, recently the leading lady of a Chicago company, in the course of the performance, spoke slightingly of the town, whereupon a member of the audience at the back of the house drew a revolver, and shot her in the leg, inflicting a slight wound. The assailant succeeded in making his escape.

Miss Eva Carrington, the young actress of whose romantic marriage to Lord de Clifford we gave an account last week, is a niece, as well as pupil, of that well-known professor of singing, Madame Helen Townshend.

The action of Parlez-vous Français, the new play which will be produced at Miss Florence Warden's matinée at the Great Queen-street Theatre on Tuesday, is laid in and near Paris, and the hero, played by Mr. Graham Browne, is a young English baronet, who finds himself involved in serious difficulties through his wooing of a French girl while he is but imperfectly acquainted with her native tongue.

Miss Winifred Pearson, who was with Miss Olga Nethersole for five seasons, terminates at Easter a long engagement as Carmen de Saveraux in Mr. Frederick Melville's Between Two Women company.

Messrs. Wheeler are sending out a company to South Africa on Saturday next, with a répertoire including The Beauty and the Barge, The Freedom of Suzanne, Billy's Little Love Affair, and other West End comedy successes. The company, which will open in Durban on April 2, consists of Messrs. Wilfred E. Payne, Fred W. Permain, Douglas Gordon, H. Greville, A. S. Homewood, Rule Pyott, David Miller, and Hylton Wards, and Misses Marie Housley, Florence Le Clercq, Violet Greville, Joan Blair, Gertrude le Sage, and Hilda Vaughan. Mr. Frank Wheeler, who is now in England arranging various matters with regard to his enterprises and theatres in South Africa, is personally organising and superintending the rehearsals, and will probably return to South Africa with the company.

Before the Strand Licensing Bench on Tuesday an application was made on behalf of Sir Charles Wyndham for the renewal of his license for the Crown public-house, St. Martin's-court, St. Martin's-lane. It was urged by the Bench that the house was not in a satisfactory condition, and that there were eight other licensed houses within a distance of 128 yards. Sir Charles Wyndham suggested that the license should be renewed on his undertaking not to apply next year if he had not started building an hotel. The application was granted on this condition.

"The Head Girl" has been selected for the title of the adaptation to be made by Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox of Jules Lemaitre's comedy La Massière, the English rights of which were acquired some time since by Mr. George Edwardes. To suit the tastes of English playgoers the characters have been anglicised and the action laid in England. The plot of La Massière, which was produced at the Paris Renaissance in January, 1905, is largely concerned with studio life and with the rivalry of a father and son for the same woman, and its production in this country may be shortly looked for in one of the West End theatres.

Miss May Chevalier, who will probably appear in London very shortly—for she is far too clever and pretty to be allowed to "rest" for long—possesses a fine collection of curious souvenirs of her long tours in different parts of the world. Beautiful chains of every tint of shells from Tasmania, quaint satchels woven by the Maoris, water-colour sketches of the most lovely scenery in New Zealand, strings of carved wooden beads, ivory ornaments—the rooms of her pretty house in Bedford-park tell the tale of her many travels and keen appreciation of everything that is odd or artistic.

Mr. Robert Arthur was unsuccessful in his appeal in the Divisional Court, presided over by the Lord Chief Justice and Justices Ridley and Darling, on Wednesday. The appeal was brought against the decision of Judge Selfe, in the Brompton County Court, in an action brought against Mr. Arthur by the mother—as next-of-kin—of a young girl who was employed in the 1904 pantomime at Fulham. It was alleged that the girl through being supplied with damp tights contracted phlebitis and phthisis, and the County Court Judge awarded her £50 damages and the mother £35 damages.

Madame Dorina Natalia, the well-known South African contralto, gave her first vocal recital in England at the Theatre Royal, Ryde, on Tuesday. Madame Natalia, by special request, only rendered English songs, though she is able to sing in four different languages. Special praise must be given to the finished and sympathetic rendering of Hatton's "Enchantress" and Batten's "April Morn." Mr. Clifton Barritt gave humorous interludes at the piano, and Mr. P. W. Taylor acquitted himself well in Chopins's valses, and proved an efficient accompanist.

Mr H. B. Irving, who goes to the Imperial in May to play in matinées of Othello, will begin a season at the Lyric Theatre on the 31st inst., under the management of Messrs. Nixon and Zimmerman, the well-known American entrepreneurs. The initial attraction will be Jeunesse, a piece by André Picard, originally produced at the Odéon Theatre, Paris, which is being translated by Mr. Irving himself. Mr. Irving will visit America in the autumn, under the same management, opening at the Amsterdam Theatre, New York, on Oct. 8.

Mr. Charles Frohman returned from America on Monday with every evidence of having spent a busy time in the States. Among the novelties he has secured for London from American sources are Charles Klein's The Lion and the Mouse; Raffles, with Mr. Kyrle Bellew; The Squaw Man, a new play by H. V. Esmond; The Heir of the Hoorah; La Belle Marseillaise, adapted from the French; and Marjory Strode, a comedy specially written for him by A. E. W. Mason, the actor who has just attained to Parliamentary honours. Mr. Frohman's latest success in America was an adaptation by Mr. Louis N. Parker, of the Paris success of Le Duel, a full account of which is given on another page.

Miss Edna May, who has scored a brilliant success in Mr. Frohman's production of The Catch of the Season in New York, sails for London on Tuesday, armed with her part in the new musical comedy shortly to be produced at the Vaudeville, in order that she may study it on the journey. The title of the new play remains up to the present The Belle of Mayfair.

Mr. Norman V. Norman, one of our most earnest and enterprising touring managers, will shortly add to his répertoire Much Ado About Nothing, in which Miss Beatrice Wilson will play Beatrice, and himself Benedick. Mr. Norman's other Shakespearean production, As You Like It, has been exceedingly successful, Miss Wilson's Rosalind being the subject of the most favourable comment from the Press and public. It is interesting to learn that Miss Betty Stannard, the youngest daughter of Mrs. Arthur Stannard (John Strange Winter), has lately joined Mr. Norman's company.

Miss Celestine Bertram, who is playing the boy in The Breed of the Treshams, received the following letter last week at Gloucester:—"Dear Batty,—I am writing to tell you how much we loved you for saving the rat's life. We came to see The Breed of the Treshams for my birthday treat, and we did enjoy ourselves so much. We are having a tea party on Friday, will you come and bring your sword, and we can play robbers? Mother says you are not a little boy at all, but a grown-up woman, but I'm sure she's wrong, as girls are not plucky.—Your loving Freddie." Needless to say, Miss Bertram did not accept the invitation, but her little admirer received by return a portrait of Batty and the sword.

In our notice of the production of Mr. "John Bickerdyke's" new play Her Wild Oats at Wallingford last week we omitted to mention the work of a very charming and talented young amateur, Miss Norah Cook, a daughter of the author, who distinguished herself in the comedy rôle of Doris Brunettière. As a result of the performances of the piece a sum of about £20 has been obtained for the benefit of the Wallingford Cottage Hospital.

At Leeds, on Thursday, before the stipendiary magistrate, at the instance of the London Publishers' Association, acting for Messrs. Chappell and Co., Ltd., the hearing was concluded of the case in which John Owen Smith, alias Major Smith, Thomas Sheridan, and John Watson, alias Walsh, were charged with conspiring to defraud by selling pirated music. Mr. R. D. Muir, for the prosecution, said that Smith carried on business at 52, High-street, Leeds, and Sheridan and Watson also resorted there. Some 1300 copies of pirated music were found in the house by the police, and in addition there were catalogues containing a large number of names of copyright songs which Smith offered for sale. Some letters were also found relating to pirated music. Watson and Sheridan were committed for trial at the assizes, and Smith was remanded until the following day in order that a further charge might be preferred. Each defendant pleaded "Not guilty," reserving his defence. Bail was accepted.

Mr. Joseph W. Worley's tour with A Faithful Friend, by Lewis Gilbert, will start at the Hippodrome, New Brompton, on Monday. A first-class company has been engaged, including Mr. Henry Hatchman and Miss Trissie Humphries, and a completely new production will be presented. The play has been rehearsed by the author, and a successful tour is anticipated. It will be under the direction of Mr. Worley, who will also play the part of Harold Sefton.

Mr. Plowden assumed his most beaming smile on Thursday, when a pretty child dressed in sailor costume appeared in his court with the object of securing a licence to take part in the performance of The Span of Life at the West London Theatre. "Is it a girl or a boy?" inquired the magistrate, genially. "A girl, sir," was the reply; "but she plays a boy's part." "And what is that?" queried his Worship. "Oh, she just comes on and says 'Oh, mother, mother,' and something like that." "Is this the first appearance of this artist?" he continued. "Oh, no," was the reply. "She is an old dramatic hand," returned Mr. Plowden. "Well, I hope some day she will get beyond saying 'Mother, mother.' In the meantime you may have the licence."

Saturday next will witness the first performance of Mr. Brandon Thomas's new play, A Judge's Memory, at Terry's. Mr. James Welch's production will thus coincide with that of The School for Husbands at the Scala, an announcement made some time ago by Miss Millward.

Madame Huita Krautz, whose cultured dramatic soprano voice has been delighting select audiences with excerpts from Faust, Tosca, Griselidis, Lohengrin, Tannhäuser, Les Huguenots, La Princesse d'Auberge at some of the best society concerts, comes as a French and German cantatrice laden with the most favourable criticisms from Brussels, where she has been a most appreciated artist. Her exceptionally fine voice will shortly be heard in London, as important engagements are pending.

Messrs. Beardmore, Power, and Byrne commence a short tour with Man's Enemy on Monday. The company will include Mr. Augustine Knight in his original part, Mr. John Power, Miss Daisy Halling, and other well-known artists. The tour will be under the direction of Mr. John P. Beardmore. The tour of Man's Enemy will be followed by the production in the autumn of a new drama.

An unfortunate mishap occurred during the performance of a play called The Day of Judgment at the Variety Theatre at Rexdorf on Tuesday. An actor, who has to fire a shot, stood behind the wings awaiting his turn to appear, holding the revolver in his hand. In some unaccountable way the weapon was discharged, and the charge hit an actor named Hermann in the face. His eyes and face were terribly burnt, and an eye specialist, who was immediately summoned, declared that the actor would lose the sight of one eye, but that the other might be saved.

Mr. Otho Stuart has postponed the production of Measure for Measure at the Adelphi until Tuesday, March 20, on account of the increased business consequent on the announcement of the last nights of A Midsummer Night's Dream, the final performance of which will be given on Saturday, March 17. The Adelphi acting edition has been specially prepared by Mr. Oscar Asche, and this, with an exact copy of the original, will constitute a little volume, which will be given to every member of the audience on the night of the revival.

"CINDERELLA'S" CENTURY.

Thousands of happy playgoers who have visited Drury Lane Theatre have framed their minds to mirth and merriment. Theirs has been no counterfeited glee. They have shouted approval of jest, song, dance, or topical allusion—all of which are to be found in the happily-inspired version of the immortal fairy story of Cinderella, to which literary elegance and poetic charm have been given by Sir Francis Burnand and Mr. J. Hickory Wood, and the most artistic and brilliant scenic illustration by Mr. Arthur Collins. The pantomime attained its century on the evening of Friday, the 23rd ult., when Mr. Collins gave away as a souvenir a waltz by Mr. Harry Fragson, on the popular duet, "Whispers of Love," and several of the performers introduced new numbers into what is no doubt one of the most successful productions in the muster-roll of Old Drury—a production in which the glories of a magnificent spectacle are united to refined humour. But we have already exhausted the superlatives of praise in speaking of the splendour of its scenic design and the richness of its dresses, and we may therefore devote our space to some further recognition of the clever people who have, by their loyal exertions, done so much for the annual.

Mr. Harry Fragson, the Anglo-French comedian, ingratiated himself with a Drury Lane audience on the opening night, and his popularity is now firmly established. He animates every scene with a humour that is quite spirituelle, and his rendering of the character of Dandigny is a piece of excellent character-acting. On the hundredth night Mr. Fragson introduced some delightful new numbers from an extensive répertory. He illustrated his cleverness as a comedian at the piano in a ditty redolent of the canebrake, introduced into the Baronial Hall scene, which he enriched with a wonderful vocal imitation of a banjo accompaniment. In place of "Pour Elle," he gave a pretty selection, entitled "Lettre Tendre." Giving way to the demand for an encore, he sang his well-known "Mal-de-Mer" song. "Vive le Sport" and "The Parisienne" are other of his contributions that have become extremely popular.

In the pretty duet, "Whispers of Love," the chief honours are taken by Miss May de Sousa, the daintiest of Cinderellas. Her cultured voice enables her to do complete justice to this ear-haunting melody, which is most enthusiastically encored. She is not only a charming singer, but a vivacious actress, and gives delightful prominence to the title-rôle, realising to the full the pretty romance of the neglected maiden of the hearth, who has always been "associated with the grate." From her first entrance until the trying on of the slipper of glass she plays with archness, sincerity, and conviction, and her popularity is well deserved.

Mr. Walter Passmore hits off the burlesque old lady, the Baroness de Bluff, with apt drollery and unctuous humour. Nothing more hilarious could be imagined than the pantomime dame's adventures in the forest, where she falls into the pond through an accidental shot on the part of a sportive daughter. The Baroness has a real sense of the dignity of the ancient nobility, and her efforts to preserve it under difficulties born of impecuniosity and other misfortunes are rich in the opportunities they offer for funny business, of which this resourceful and clever comedian makes the very most.

Mr. Arthur Williams makes a very comic old gentleman of the Baron de Bluff, who was by no means communicative concerning his past when he entered into matrimonial bonds the second time. Mr. Williams never forces the fun in his interpretation of the character, but plays with a quiet strength that is wholly admirable, and that extracts every ounce of humour that there is in the part.

Mr. Harry Randall has not the adventitious aid of even one of his music hall ditties in the part of Alfonso, the page; but it must be confessed that he does extremely well. There is honest heartiness in the fun of his realisation of the precocity and forwardness of the lovesick youth, and he scores a triumph with Mr. Harry Fragson in the rapid transformation illustrative of "L'Entente Cordiale," in which he makes up splendidly as President Loubet; while his associate is quite life-like as Mr. Chamberlain. In his attempts at French pronunciation the comedian is extremely amusing.

Miss Queenie Leighton, a stately, tall, handsome principal boy, has an excellent musical style, a crisp delivery, and an impressive method of acting that makes her an ideal representative of the romantic Prince Jasper. Many and hearty were the compliments bestowed upon her on the evening to which we are now particularly alluding for her capital rendering of a new number, entitled "Hello, little girl"; and she also has a share with Miss de Sousa in the success of "I wouldn't leave my little wooden hut."

Mr. Arthur Nelstone has established himself a favourite by his droll acting as the sentry, and his dance is a remarkable effort in eccentric leg-twisting and acrobatism that invariably brings down the house.

Miss Emily Spiller works loyally to assist the fun in the character of Œnone, the bigger of the ugly sisters; and that excellent comedienne, Miss Pollie Emery, is quaintly kittenish at the other sister, Hippolyta, a lady who evidently sets a value upon her reputation for fatal beauty, that has been lost, alas! in the lapse of years.

Mr. Johnny Danvers as Sammy Snap, the representative of a newspaper, is responsible for some very welcome fun in his one scene with the Baroness; and much the same may be said of Mr. Tom Woottwell in the part of Growler.

Mr. Arthur Conquest as the cat has to follow Mr. Charles Lauri in animal parts at the National Theatre, and we know of no artist who is so capable of wearing the mantle of that lamented pantomimist, who was known as the "Garrick of animal mimes." Mr. Conquest has been trained in an excellent school—that of the Surrey Theatre, where the genius of his father sustained the best traditions of pantomimic art. The Drury Lane feline has evidently studied the ways of Grimalkin, and mimes to some purr-puss, illustrating admirably the affection and playfulness of the household pet of the Baron. Mr. Conquest's excursion round the dress-circle was as heartily welcomed on the hundredth night as it was on the first, and he has established his reputation as one of the first animal impersonators of the present day.

Queen and Le Brun, who appear first as Trim and Trott, and afterwards as the bull, give useful aid to Mr. Harry Fragson in his burlesque Toreador scene. Like Robin, in the famous old song, the bovine is nimble and light on its feet, and its antics are as droll as they can be, the two performers making quite a hit by their whimsical business.

Miss Daisy Cordell cuts an elegant figure as the Fairy Godmother; Miss Minnie Abbey is most effective as Ferdinand; and the few lines of Father Time are given with apt expression by Mr. Alec Davidson; the small part of the Beadle being carefully handled by Mr. Edward Morgan.

Mr. Whimsical Walker, the clown, is an immense favourite with the youngsters, and preserves the traditions of old Drury for a funny and well-conceived harlequinade.

Mr. Sidney Smith, the popular business-manager, is accustomed to the feeling of elation, and he has had great cause for rejoicing during this pantomime season, for Cinderella has drawn excellent houses throughout. Mr. Smith is a most courteous official, and deserves all the kind things said of him.

LEONCAVALLO'S new opera, Chatterton, is to be produced at Vienna in the German translation shortly, and it will be heard here very soon after.

THE ART OF SPEAKING.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier delivered a lecture under the title of "Ars Loquendi: A few words on the gentle art of speaking distinctly," in the Drill Hall, Eton College, Windsor, on the 22nd ult. Mr. Bourchier, who is an M.A. of Oxon, in the course of his address made an amusing example of Jaque's speech, "The Seven Ages of Man," from As You Like It. "Cultivation of the art of speaking distinctly," he continued, "is the very first principle of all oratory. Without it, 'winged words' are of no avail, and the periods over which we have spent so many hours of study are best left undelivered—save, perhaps, in the form of MS. for the reporters! It is not necessary to shout—your slightest whisper will be heard if you articulate properly, and if you remember that in every audience there is an old lady who is slightly deaf of one ear. To get accustomed to the sound of your own voice—that somewhat alarming thing to beginners—it is a good plan to read aloud, say, twenty lines at a time of some familiar author, very carefully and very slowly, giving every syllable in every word its due value and correct pronunciation.

"You will not be able to read well or to speak well unless you breathe properly. The secret of breathing properly is to keep the lungs well filled with air, not expending more breath at any given moment than is absolutely necessary, and refilling them at every possible opportunity. After distinct articulation and correct pronunciation comes Expression, without which all reading or speaking must be unintelligent. Expression depends largely upon proper attention to modulation of the voice, to emphasis on the right word or phrase, and to pause.

By modulation of voice, I mean the passing from one key to another, showing changes of sentiment, changes of thought. To acquire modulation, it is a good thing to practise reading dialogue and dramatic scenes, when you will easily see that the voice must be modulated to suit the different characters.

"Emphasis means the marking by the voice of such words or phrases or sentences as you consider the most important. This you can do in various ways: by an increase of stress upon a particular word or sentence, by variation of tone, or by varying the time in the enunciation of the words. Correctness of emphasis must, of course, depend upon the intelligence of the speaker, for, if he understands his subject right through, he cannot fail to note the right words to emphasise. Incorrect emphasis will make a sentence ludicrous. For example, you all probably know the story of the nervous curate, who, on reading the words, 'And he said unto his sons, saddle me the ass, and they saddled him,' read it thus, 'Saddle me the ass!' Being reproved by his rector, who pointed out that the word ass was the one on which emphasis should be placed, the curate, to be on the safe side, added yet another emphasis, and an amused congregation heard the passage read thus, 'Saddle me the ass, so they saddled him!'

"The value of pause is threefold. It enables you to get breath and, as I said before, to keep the lungs well filled with air; it gives your audience time to consider the full meaning of what you have been saying; and it serves for extra emphasis. In this connection I will quote to you the words of Froude, in illustrating Cardinal Newman's powers as a preacher:

"Froude relates that on one occasion Newman, who was at that time Vicar of St. Mary's, at Oxford, had been describing some of the incidents of our Lord's Passion. At this point, he says, 'He paused. For a few moments there was a breathless silence. Then, in a low, clear voice, of which the faintest vibration was heard in the farthest corner of St. Mary's, came the words, "Now, I bid you recollect that He to whom these things were done was Almighty God." It was as if an electric stroke had gone through the church, as if every person present understood for the first time the meaning of what he had all his life been saying. I suppose it was an epoch in the mental history of more than one of my Oxford contemporaries.'

"Another example of an effective and affecting use of the pause was told me last week. Our ex-Prime Minister, Mr. Balfour, an old Etonian, who in a busy career has always managed to show practical interest in the affairs of this School, was taking leave of the various permanent officials with whom he had been associated for so many years. At the close of a little informal speech, he said: 'Gentlemen, I may be wrong; I may be right; but I've done my best,' and then he paused for a moment 'I've done my best.' None of his hearers can ever forget the simple pathos, the quiet dignity of that pause.

"Among actors of our time, none understood the value of pause more than Henry Irving, who never failed to give it extraordinary significance. It was said of his delivery of certain speeches that the very pauses had eloquence. Next to distinctness, and almost equal in importance, is the art of speaking fluently and with conviction.

"In your choice of words, for the composition of a speech, study the best models, selecting your phrases for their simplicity, and avoiding what Matthew Arnold used to call 'endeavours to make a platitude endurable by making it pompous.' In quoting, be careful to verify your references, and quote the exact words; neglect of this precaution will involve you in many disasters. A good start, too, is everything. The speaker who makes a good impression at the beginning will generally hold his audience to the end. Many a briefless barrister has remained briefless by forgetting this salutary rule. You may remember the story of one who began his defence, 'My lord, er, er, my lord, my unfortunate client.' 'Go on, sir,' purred the judge, 'the court is entirely with you, so far!'"

After making references to famous politicians and barristers, Mr. Bourchier went on:—"Many small hints can be obtained from the rehearsal of a speech before a friendly critic. A different manner, different gesture, different methods of speaking are all necessary, say, in a lecture at the Royal Institution, a speech at the Royal Academy Banquet, a debate in the House of Commons, or in an address to my present audience. Therefore, don't be afraid of criticism. However unpalatable it may seem at the moment, it will generally be salutary, and remember that 'none of us are infallible, not even the youngest of us.'

"Some years ago, when the manager of Drury Lane was rehearsing some particularly complicated piece of scenery—the destruction of the Armada—he was at his wits' end how to make the huge vessels move in a sufficiently realistic manner. A voice from above (where the limelight comes from), 'Try a railway turning-table, Guv'nor!' solved the problem, and you may be sure that the individual who made the suggestion was not forgotten.

"Of course you must choose your critic according to your discourse. If you are to address a learned society, you will turn for counsel to some friend with the ready sympathy and vast store of learning of your tutor or your Headmaster:

'Too true to flatter, and too kind to sneer,
And only just, when seemingly severe.'

"If, again, you are to address a popular audience, you cannot do better than rehearse your speech to your gardener or to your old nurse; if it pleases them you need not be afraid of its effect later. Be careful, too, to suit your wit to your audience; an ill-considered jest, harmless enough in itself, has cost its perpetrator very dear before now. There is the warning instance of the London barrister who, in his courtship of a Scottish constituency, made a jesting allusion to the haggis. It was held that an insult to the national delicacy showed want of taste in more ways than one, and a vote of no confidence in the candidate was promptly passed.

"Finally, in the words of President Lincoln, make your speech 'with malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right,' and always bear in mind those noble words of St. Paul: 'Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are elevated, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are amiable, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, have these in your mind, let your thoughts run upon these.'

"The Duke of Wellington said that the battle of Waterloo was won in the playing-fields of Eton. Other battles have been won here, too. Battles in Parliament and battles in the Law Courts were foreshadowed in the skirmishes of Upper School, of Pop, aye, of our House Debating Societies.

"Has not our Eton record in the Church proved more than worthy of the past? May I venture to hope that our record in Art may prove worthy of the future?

"Gentlemen, 'fair is our lot, and a goodly heritage.' It rests with you that the torch which has been borne aloft by so many generations of Eton orators, from the time of Chatham and Fox to the days of Gladstone, Rosebery, and Curzon, shall burn with undimmed light as long as Eton endures."

A CHAT WITH MISS EDITH GIBBS.

Whatever the strides that have been made in artistic history they can all be traced to the individual efforts of those few earnest men and women, who, ignoring to a great extent mere pecuniary gains and meteoric notoriety, have set themselves to study ab initio the means by which their particular branch of art may be brought as near perfection as possible. In all branches of study one of the most fascinating is the scientific cultivation of that most beautiful of all instruments—the human voice; and amongst those engaged in this delightful pursuit we may mention Miss Edith Gibbs, the well-known teacher of voice-production, elocution, and stage-training, with whom our representative has had the pleasure of an interview.

In whichever of the above branches she undertakes, she proves equally successful. Miss Gibbs says that nothing can exceed the delight she experiences when she has produced a beautiful voice, be it for speaking or for singing. It is needless to say that she is the idol of her pupils, who are unanimous in their praises of her patient and thoughtful teaching. One of her pupils, a leading light in musical comedy, says, "I have quite ceased to be nervous, for now my voice flows out without the slightest effort or strain, and is never tired."

Another of her pupils achieved the most exacting feat of singing Carmen for three nights in one week, and at the end of the third performance said that she felt her voice fresher and stronger than ever.

Turning now to the more technical side of Miss Gibbs's art, Paulatim sed firmiter may be said to be her motto. She first aims at getting the voice from the throat (a too frequent failing in English men and women), and then to bring it out in all its vigorous fullness, with exquisite finish.

Her method necessarily entails inexhaustible patience and perseverance on her part, but the means are fully justified by the results, which include purity and brilliancy of tone as well as ease and silence in breathing. This can only be obtained by one who has thoroughly studied the vocal art in its physiological and scientific aspects. For example, she has cured very difficult cases of "clergy throat," and also of elongated uvula. In short, all her pupils benefit in health, as well as expand in lung and chest, through her instruction.

She has a numerous clientèle in society for the cultivation of a beautiful speaking voice, a charm which is much sought after by the preparing débutante. She is equally successful with her male as with her female students, and is especially proud of the fact that her very first pupil still returns to her for coaching lessons. Indeed, many of her pupils, once their voices are produced, still rely on her coaching for every big event.

Her pupils include brilliant members of society, and also those of the musical, dramatic, forensic, and medical professions. She has pupils playing the principal parts at the leading London theatres. Her studios are at the Bechstein Hall and 60, Berners-street.

MISS AMY ST. JOHN'S monologue, The Man Who Didn't, was recited on Thursday evening by permission at the Chelsea Town Hall, on the occasion of the Chelsea Liberal Ladies' soirée.

THE Stage Society held their annual dinner at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday, under the presidency of the Earl of Desart, who, in giving the toast of the society, said that of the 149 plays submitted to the council last year, 131 were by English writers. Six plays in all had been produced. Personally, he did not much believe in the subsidised theatre, which, he thought, would have in England a narrowing tendency. Miss Gertrude Kingston, in responding to the toast of the "Players," said that every manager in London, instead of throwing obstacles in the way of the Stage Society, ought to do everything in his power to further its work, not only in his own interests, but for the sake of the drama and art.

REOPENING OF THE CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

The happiest auspices attended the inauguration by Mr. J. Bannister Howard, a manager of boundless enterprise, of his lesseeship of the Crystal Palace Theatre, the re-opening of which on Monday afternoon enjoyed the inestimable advantage of a visit by Sir Charles Wyndham and company, in Captain Drew on Leave. During the short time the theatre has been closed a welcome renovation has been effected. The interior has been tastefully redecorated, gold and maroon being the predominant tints, the seating has been renewed, and everything rendered bright and attractive, a group of waving palms, ferns, and flowers at each side of the stage having a charming effect.

The theatre, it may be recalled, was opened in 1870, when performances took place on Tuesdays and Thursdays in each week. In 1872 a series of operas in English, under the direction of Mr. J. A. Friend, was begun, succeeded in the following year by Shakespearean performances, and by operas, in which Miss Blanche Cole, Mme. Ida Gillies, Mrs. Henry Corri, Mr. Fox, Mr. Maas, among many others, appeared, with a chorus from Her Majesty's. Ballad concerts were started in 1875, when Mr. Sims Reeves, Mme. Blanche Cole, Miss Rose Hersee, Miss Alice Barth, Mrs. Aynsley Cook, and Mr. Geo. Fox sang. The same year witnessed a series of dramas and Shakespearean plays, in which Messrs. Henry Neville, Compton, Hermann Vezin, W. H. Kendal, Wm. Rignold, Chas. Warner, Chas. Sugden, Chas. Wyndham, W. H. Vernon, Herbert Standing, Lionel Brough, Edward Terry, George Conquest, Chas. Collette, and H. Paulton, Mme. Stirling, Mrs. Hermann Vezin, Miss Ellen Terry, Mrs. John Wood, Mrs. Kendal, Miss Genevieve Ward, and Miss Carlotta Addison, appeared from time to time. In 1876-7 plays were given under the direction of Chas. Wyndham, including his production of the Greek drama, Alcestis, and a first series of comic operas. Italian opera commenced in 1879, under the direction of Mr. Gye, and dramatic performances, under the management of G. E. Anson, were also given. In the Whit. week of that year, Mr. John Hollingshead brought Miss Nellie Farren, Miss Kate Vaughan, and Mr. E. W. Royce, in many of the Gaiety successes. The year 1880 was notable for the appearance of Mr. J. L. Toole, with Mr. Henry J. Byron and the Folly Theatre company, and for a series of dramatic performances under the direction of the late William Terriss. Dramatic performances, under the direction variously of Mr. Toole, Mr. Hollingshead, Mr. Chas. Wyndham, Mr. Augustus Harris, Miss Isabel Bateman, Mr. J. H. Barnes and Mr. E. Righton, and Mr. C. W. Somerset, continued up to 1885, in the May of which year Mrs. Langtry made her first appearance at the Crystal Palace in Sheridan's School for Scandal. 1886 brought the Hare and Kendal company, from the St. James's Theatre, Chas. Wyndham and the Criterion company, Wilson Barrett, Fred Thorne, and Mrs. Langtry; and in 1887, Mrs. Brown Potter and the Haymarket company made their appearance. In 1888, Mr. Beerbohm Tree and Mr. W. Terriss appeared in Othello; and up to 1891 all the best London companies were engaged. A long and successful season, under the management of Mr. Oscar Barrett, succeeded, when Miss Edith Bruce appeared yearly with great success in pantomime. Sir Chas. Wyndham, it may be noted, has produced no less than three pantomimes at the Crystal Palace, viz., 1876-7, Sinbad the Sailor; 1877-8, The Sleeping Beauty; and 1879-80, Robinson Crusoe. For the past ten years the theatre has been visited principally by touring companies, with melodrama, musical plays, and varied attractions, and each Christmas, up to the present, a pantomime has been produced.

It must be many years since the theatre held such a large and representative audience as that on Monday afternoon. Every seat was occupied, standing-room there was none, and the business of turning money away followed quickly upon the opening of the doors. Those who succeeded in gaining admission lived in an atmosphere of the highest enjoyment during the superb performance supplied by Sir Charles Wyndham and his model company, in Captain Drew on Leave. There is no need to dwell upon the excellences, already so widely appreciated in the metropolis, of the eminent actor's performance of the gallant sea-captain, his buoyant humour, his eloquence, and his fragrant sentiment. It is enough to say that he took instant possession of the hearts of the audience, and won their most enthusiastic cheers. Miss Mary Moore, who it was feared would be too ill to attend, provided a pleasant surprise, and was greeted with the warmest welcome on her appearance as Miss Mills, in which the artlessness of the character, her ingenuous manner, and the varieties of expression captivated all. Miss Marion Terry, who also had a most cordial reception, was in her tenderest mood as Mrs. Moxon, denoting with a finished skill the innocence and purity of the wife and mother tried by sore temptation. The blunt and overbearing Mr. Moxon was realised with his usual thoroughness by Mr. Edmund Maurice, whose make-up, voice, and manner needed nothing to perfect the part. Mr. Yorke Stephens is of the utmost value to the play as the unprincipled Mr. Hassell, his mordant delivery and well-contrasted style giving the character all the significance desired; and Mr. A. Vane-Tempest completed the miniature cast by his clever study of Mr. White, whose jealous perturbation was made constantly the cause of mirth. The maid was gracefully impersonated by Miss Salberg.

The applause, which awaited every curtain, was loud and continuous at the last, until Sir Charles Wyndham at length stepped forward and thanked the audience on behalf of himself, Miss Mary Moore, and company, for the reception accorded them. It was a peculiar pleasure to him to appear after so many years at the Palace, with which he was identified a long time ago in management for four or five years. He thought he might say they had always a most gratifying success, but he did not take the credit for that success. He felt somewhat in the position of the little school urchin, who was asked by his master, "Who made this great and beautiful world?" and was too stupefied with fear to answer. Again was the question repeated, until the boy tremblingly replied, "Please, sir, it wasn't me!" So did he say, "It wasn't me." The success achieved was all due to the encouragement and enthusiasm manifested always during those years by them, and not only by them, but by their ancestors. Among the letters he had received that afternoon was one from his friend, Sir August Manns, still more identified with the building, who gave him a hearty welcome to the Crystal Palace, where they, in the days of old, had done pleasant and useful work by their united efforts. After all, he and Sir August were now, so far as the Crystal Palace was concerned, men of the past. It was his pleasant duty to bring to their notice a man of the future, to whose hands had been committed the destinies of the theatre—Mr. Bannister Howard. To him they would have to look for greater and higher work, and he (Sir Charles) hoped they would make it as pleasant to Mr. Howard as they and others had always made it to him.

Mr. Bannister Howard, who received a hearty greeting, then stepped before the curtain, and said he could only thank Sir Charles Wyndham for coming down and giving them such a splendid send-off, and he also thanked the audience, one and all, for being present. During his management it was his intention to try and revive some of the old days, giving pure and healthy plays by first-class companies. He also intended having a Shakespeare Festival in April, when that fine, wholesome play, A Midsummer Night's Dream, would be given. Mr. Howard then briefly outlined the history of the theatre, as indicated above, and, once again thanking the audience, asked them to spare a few moments, as there was a photographer who would like to take the house on this most interesting occasion. A flash-light photograph was then taken of the whole auditorium.

The attraction for the evening performance was Mr. Hall Caine's play, The Eternal City, performed by Mr. Howard's own company, and staged on a scale of magnificence rare in the suburbs. The play was received with enthusiastic appreciation, the members of the company earning constant cheers. Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp has the part of Bonelli, and gives a clever rendering of a character demanding the utmost power and resource. He makes the rôle especially Satanic, and his striking make-up, and the variations of his voice, help greatly in a picturesque representation. A stalwart and intense David Rossi is found in Mr. Henry Deas, who gains the greatest sympathy for the brave young Italian Deputy, delivering his stirring lines with well-judged emphasis. The classic features of Miss Marie Polini are well adapted to the character of Donna Roma Volonna, and the emotions of the part are skilfully depicted by the popular actress, whose elocution and dramatic skill are agreeably apparent. Mr. George Cartwright gives a striking performance of Bruno Rocco, his interpretation being aided by a voice of rich quality. The appearance of the bereaved father at the military tribunal was a remarkable one, and he put so much energy and force into the scene that he was the object of an enthusiastic recall. Mr. J. Fortescue makes a venerable figure of the Pope, speaking and acting with a restrained force that is very convincing. The tottering gait and quavering voice of the old man are cleverly assumed, and a finished rendering of the exacting rôle is given throughout. Mr. L. St. G. Lowther, who stage-manages the piece, acts the part of Angelelli very effectively; and Mr. Herbert Legerton as Minghelli is the scowling and vindictive police-spy to the life, his acting being dramatic and intense. Mr. Percy is a grave and reverend Father Pifferi; the President of the Tribunal and the Public Prosecutor are well embodied by Mr. Court and Mr. K. Herbert respectively; Mr. E Stidwell plays Felice with undoubted ability; and the English and American Ambassadors are sustained by Mr. A. Jefferson and Mr. Roberts. Miss C. Stephens has a suitably regal appearance as the Princess Bellini; and charming vivacity marks the impersonation by Miss Marie Grey of the maid, Nattalina. Miss Mary Mannering gives an affecting portrayal of Elena, and Miss Goodby is a suitable exponent of Francesca. Mr. E. Comberbach is a commendable Major Doria; and the extensive cast is completed by Mr. R. Walsh as Tomasso; and Messrs. Edwards, Percy Whiteman, P. Reginald, and H. L. Wilson. The motets and choruses occurring in the play, which is produced by Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, are artistically rendered, the serenade in Act 5 being sung by Miss Ethel Percival.

During one of the entr'actes Mr. Howard appeared, and asked the indulgence of the audience for the rather lengthy waits. He thanked them for attending there on that, his opening night, and assured them it was his intention to bring only the best-class companies before them. He felt that, in coming back to the Palace, he was taking on a great responsibility. It had had in the past first-class entertainments, and Sir Charles Wyndham and all the finest artists had appeared in their turn. It was his intention to arrange flying matinées, and he had already had a promise from Mr. Forbes Robertson, and also from Mrs. Langtry, and no doubt the splendid reception accorded to Sir Charles that afternoon would induce other London companies to visit the Palace, and enable him to revive, if not weekly, at any rate fortnightly, matinées of London successes. He once again thanked them, and trusted they would bear with him a little in the lengthy waits, which would not occur again.

Mr. Arthur Howard is the business-manager of the theatre, the orchestra of which is presided over by Mr. Joseph Sainton.

ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

A MEETING of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Thursday, there being present Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, A. E. Drinkwater, Lawrence Grant, Charles Cruikshanks (secretary), and Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Sara Raleigh. The suggested scheme for the qualification and registration of actors was again under discussion, and several important questions in connection therewith were considered, and ultimately the scheme was settled, the promoters being authorised to lay it before leading members of the profession with the view of their forming themselves into the nucleus of a senate to carry the project into effect.

A meeting of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was held on Tuesday last, there being present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), William Devereux, Lawrence Grant, C. Aubrey Smith, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). A circular letter to the members whose subscriptions for the current year are not paid was settled, particular attention being drawn to the insurance scheme, under which every member whose subscription is paid is insured in substantial amounts in case of death or accident, the actual carrying of the coupon issued not being absolutely necessary, though it is advisable to have it accessible for reference in case of need. Other matters in connection with the affairs of the association were considered, and the secretary received instructions on various points.

The Council held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday last, there being present Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Blake Adams, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, A. E. Drinkwater, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, Alfred Kendrick, Fewlass Llewellyn, Quinton McPherson, Walter Russell, Algernon Syms, Fredk. Volpé, and Hubert Willis. Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Saba Raleigh, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. A. E. Drinkwater was unanimously elected deputy-chairman for the ensuing year, and a vote of thanks was tendered to him for his invaluable services during the past year. Rita Everard, Beatrice Chester, Frank G. Holyoake, Mary Conroy, Olive Bashford, Edward Ouston, and Archibald C. Thornhill were nominated for election, and a former member was proposed for reinstatement; in three cases applications for membership were ordered to stand over. The secretary was directed to tender the thanks of the Council to Mr. A. W. Baskcomb for his presentation of a framed programme of a "command" performance at Windsor Castle. The hon. solicitors, having reported progress in several matters, were requested to brief a K.C. as leading counsel in a case now in the list for trial. In a case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre, it was resolved to ask the hon. medical officer of health to visit the premises and report to the Council. Arrangements were made for holding an arbitration between members. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was taken, and a scheme in connection with the agency department and provincial and touring members, suggested by a member of the association, was referred to them for consideration and report thereon.

AMONG the presentations at the King's Levee last Monday we noticed the name of Mr. Wilfred Stanford, the popular acting-manager at the Camden Theatre, who is lieutenant in the 17th Middlesex Rifle Volunteers, and we wish to congratulate him on the honour he has received.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

PLAYERS IN THE PROVINCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is good to know that many of the West-End managers are associating themselves with Mr. Tree's school of acting. It is nice also to see that Mrs. Barrasford will shortly give an opportunity to provincial variety artists to show their abilities in London.

I wonder if any influential person will ever find a means to let provincial dramatic artists (who, notwithstanding years of experience, are still earnest, ambitious, and artistic) have the chance of appearing in the West-End, and so be placed in open competition with their fellows!—Yours faithfully,

CHARLES CARTE.

Marie ..... Fraulein Triesch
Frau Richter ..... Fraulein Lehmann
Oberst ..... Herr Bassermann
Dr. Schindler ..... Herr Reicher
Katharina ..... Fraulein Hofmann
Irene ..... Fraulein Schiff
Förster ..... Herr Rittner
Max ..... Herr Stieler
Albrecht ..... Herr Reuss
Sebastian ..... Herr Fuchs
Soldat ..... Herr Teuber
Cuirassier ..... Herr Borowsky
Zweite Cuirassier ..... Herr Mueller

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, Thursday, March 1.—Herr Schnitzler's latest work met with a cordial reception on the whole. Although a small minority put in a few determined hisses at the close of the last two acts, the author appeared before the curtain several times, and was heartily applauded. It is a "genuine Schnitzler," full of psychological problems, clever dialogue, smart epigrams, "far-fetchedness," and what may be termed a coquetting with love and death. The action passes—as is usual with the author, himself an Austrian—in Vienna. It is the middle of the last century, and war has broken out. The Blue Dragoons have doomed themselves to death for the honour of their name, the same regiment some thirty years back having fled before the enemy, and thereby caused the defeat of the Austrians. The regiment has entreated the Emperor to place it where the danger is greatest, so that by certain death its prestige may be rehabilitated. Old Captain Moser is a terrible tyrant; he keeps his daughter Marie tied to his sick bed, and rewards her with abuse. The girl is twenty-six years old, and longs for a little distraction, or perhaps the expression is too mild. She is in love with Max, a lieutenant of the doomed regiment, and determines to pass the last evening with him. The doctor has provided her with a sleeping draught for her father, and she gives him a dose enough to settle the old tyrant for ever. It has the desired effect, and Marie, when she goes to follow "the call of life," leaves a corpse behind her. The piece is—so to say—full of corpses. Marie creeps into Max's rooms, and is the unwilling witness of a love scene. His colonel's wife has come to visit the young man, too, and her husband presently surprising them through the window, she is shot by his avenging hand. The colonel retires, and Max is about to shoot himself, when Marie comes out of her hiding-place. Leaving Irene's dead body, the guilty pair hasten away to spend the night together, whereupon the curtain falls on the second act. In the last act everyone is dead, except Marie and the doctor—who talks platitudes—and a strapping young forester, whom she will probably marry in the end. Katharina, a young consumptive girl, who also follows the "call of life," is dead, too, but Marie lives on and wonders at herself. The first act—which lasts over an hour—is the best; it is a drama in itself; the others show a distinct falling-off both in language and action. The interpretation was not as good as usual, no doubt because the artists could not feel at home in their rôles. Fräulein Triesch, of course, was excellent, though not at her best.

The Moscow Artistic Theatre Company, under the management of M. Stanislawsky, commenced its season at the Berliner on Friday. These artists have the reputation of being the best that Russia can produce; consequently, the house was filled almost to the last place. Neither were we in any way disappointed. The opening play was Count Alexis Tolstoi's tragedy—in five acts and seven scenes—Czar Feodor Ivanovitch. This particular Tolstoi, by the by, is of another branch to Count Leo, the author of "The Powers of Darkness." He died in 1875, leaving an indelible impression upon Russian high-class poetry and literature. Czar Feodor is one of a trilogy—the second; the first is The Death of Ivan the Terrible, the last Boris, the Czar. They are considered some of the finest political plays ever written, but historically inaccurate. Feodor, the follower of the inflexible Ivan, has always been looked upon as mentally deficient and weak; Tolstoi, however, depicts him as merely weak of will. He is tossed about like a shuttlecock between the parties of his brother-in-law Boris—who intrigues for and finally obtains the crown—and of the statesman, Prince Ivan Schujski, and this conflict forms the theme of the play. It was splendidly acted and staged, M. Moskvin in the name-part, M. Luschskis as Schujski, Mlle. Sjawitzlajas in the rôle of the noble-minded Czarina Irina, and M. Wischnewski as Boris being especially fine. The performance was an even one, such as is seldom seen, each supernumerary playing his part to perfection. Gorki's Nachtasyl is to be given to-morrow, and that play being so well-known here the demand for tickets for the performance in the original language is very great.

At the Théâtre des Westens Miss Isadora Duncan gave one of her delightful dance illustrations on Sunday last. It was a matinée performance, and the large house was well filled with a most enthusiastic audience. The programme was a new one this time. The curtain rose upon a stage which was grey in grey, a grand piano at the side and the accompanist being all that was visible. Miss Duncan entered, her bare feet making no sound upon the carpet. She was clad in a grey Grecian robe, reaching to the knee, and with her classically-formed head looked a veritable Greek goddess that had stepped from her pedestal. She danced four waltzes by Chopin and three by Brahms in her own inimitable manner, which is as chaste as it is graceful. Herr Carl Zimmer accompanied exquisitely, and the audience applauded to the echo. In the second part the orchestra took the place of the piano, Miss Duncan dancing seven waltzes by Schubert, wearing for these a long Empire dress of pink silk, and a white wreath on her dark hair. She was compelled to repeat two of the shorter dances, the audience literally refusing to be quiet. The final number consisted of a couple of waltzes by Strauss, one being the "Blue Danube," in the illustration of which Miss Duncan has attained innumerable triumphs. For these she wore a short Grecian dress of bright red that was eminently becoming. Calls ad. fin. an encore, and flowers formed the conclusion of the successful performance, which lasted nearly two hours. Among the audience was H.R.H. the Princess of Wied—one of Miss Duncan's warmest adherents.

The next novelty at the Théâtre des Westens will be a three-act operetta by Herr Eysler. It bears the title of Pufferl, and is reported to be very amusing.

Mme. Charlotte Wiehe, the well-known French-Danish actress, has been with us again, but in a new capacity. She made her début on Wednesday at the Hôtel de Rome as a singer of national and characteristic songs. Her voice is less pleasing than her personality, which carries all before it. Perhaps Madame Wiehe's best efforts were the coon songs, but she was also successful in a number of clever little French songs. Her husband, M. Berény, accompanied, and the artistic pair were much applauded.

"Sherlock Holmes" has been produced with very great success at the Stadt Theatre at Halle. The author, Herr Albert Bogenhardt, has adapted Sir Conan Doyle's book, or rather parts of it, with a good deal of skill; the audience followed each scene with breathless attention, breaking out into acclamations at the close of the play.

MAURICE HEWLETT'S PLAYS.

"PAN AND THE YOUNG SHEPHERD."

Pastoral Play in Two Acts, by Maurice Hewlett, Music by H. W. Hewlett, produced at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 27.

Geron ..... Mr. Edmund Gurney
Neanias ..... Mr. Henry Ainley
Balkis ..... Miss Ray Rockman
Teucer ..... Mr. Norman Page
Mopsus ..... Mr. Edmund Gwenn
Sphorx ..... Mr. Stratton Rodney
Merla ..... Miss Suzanne Sheldon
Aglaë ..... Miss Grace Lane
Erotion ..... Miss Lillah McCarthy
Sitys ..... Miss Gwendolen Bishop
Geërna ..... Miss Hazel Thompson
Phoeno ..... Miss Gwladys Wynne
Dryas ..... Miss Mabel Hackney
Adora ..... Miss Alice Crawford
Pan ..... Mr. Norman McKinnel

Mr. Maurice Hewlett has not the instinct of the theatre—to use a common expression, he is not built that way; but his pastoral play, if it will never draw the general public to the playhouse, offers a delightful recreative hour to the dramatic student, who will be struck by its many literary beauties, its poetic charm, and its idyllic grace. It reminds one occasionally of an old masque or of such a play as Ben Jonson's Cynthia's Revels; and there is something of the character of Shakespeare's "homespuns" about the mere humans of Pan and the Young Shepherd, which Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker produced at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon. In volume form the work has been before the public since 1897, and therefore many are acquainted with the romantic love of the dreamy young herdsman, Neanias, for Aglaë, otherwise Virgin Dawn, a daughter of the Earth. In the opening scene of the first act the boy talks with his grandsire Geron, a shrewd old peasant, with a keen eye to the main chance, who listens with unsympathetic ear to his grandson's fantasies.

Says Neanias: Did you never dream, in your youth? Did you never dream of women and soft voices o' nights, when the moon is yellow, and lieth low down—and the wind a-getting? Did you never hear the world calling you over the moor?

Geron: Why, to be plain with ye, I never did. Soft voices o' women—gossip of the country! You sit too much with the women—they tell their tales over the kettle. Once I dreamed a dream that a man sold wool by the quart. But I'd had liquor that night; and so I had.

Neanias: Over this ridge there's a tarn, and by the tarn are seven trees. Men call their name the Seven Sisters, and do well, for those are no trees at all—but women. And nights o' the year you may hear them sing—as I have heard them sing—once, yes. once I heard them all sing—all but one.

Neanias goes to seek the Seven Sisters—the Earth Daughters—on the hilltop. and he is not disappointed. They at first form a ring round him, and speak to him in verse—and very musical verse too. They are named Erotion (Warmth of the Earth), Sitys (Bonny Beech Mast), Geërna (Thirsty Corn Ear), Phoeno (Tang o' the Loam), Dryas (Crown o' the Oak), Adora (Morning Calm), and Aglaë (Virgin Dawn). Aglaë sits apart, silent and sad. Of the chatter of her sisters, who rally the young shepherd on his modesty, she takes no heed. She is the youngest of the sisters. Repulsing the amorous advances of Pan, she had prayed to the Earth Mother to keep her inviolate, and the god, in his resentment, had struck her dumb. Neanias is irresistibly drawn to the young girl, and he takes her by the hand. The six sisters warn him that she is banned and that Pan will avenge; but the herdsman lover declares bravely that he "dare do all that a man may dare for the maid he chooseth to wife." How tenderly he woos the dumb maiden—

Stay with me. Your eyes are soft and very gentle, yet wide with waiting for fear! Narrow them, that peace may come in. Do you fear? You cannot fear me. Look at me, Aglaë—are you afraid? You shake your head: you are not! Then I will tell you more. I am here and you are here, none beside us, we two in the open world. Oh, my dear, I love you well! The danger and sick dread are going with the night! Soon you and the day will smile together. The sun will touch the hill-tops, and race down the flanks of the high hills. He will kindle the trees in the valley, and we shall see his light, and the blue smoke make a spire to God. Day will come, day will come! Hark! Is that the priest's bell? Not yet, not yet; courage, wait awhile. Soon will be a wedding, and a bride carried over the threshold to the hearth. You the bride, Aglaë, Virgin Dawn; and I the groom; I, Neanias, son of Balkis. Oh, I would tend you well, Aglaë, and love you dearly! The homestead should flow with milk and honey: I would get you the firstlings of the year, apples, and quinces, and mellow pears. Fine wool should be your bedclothes, all of first-shear lambs; you should be drest in white wool and thin flax. I will teach you love, and love, they say, is life.

Neanias brings Aglaë to his mother's cottage, to the bitter grief of Merla, the life-companion of Neanias, and the girl is blessed both by dame and grandsire Geron compliments the lad on his choice of a dumb wife by saying, "Boy, thou hast a riper judgment than I thought in thee."

In the second act a hidden power draws Aglaë from the cottage. She goes out into the wild November night, and again comes under the spell of Pan. Neanias goes after her, and meets Pan, who tells him "my hand is upon thy flock, and thy kindred, and all that thou callest thine; but chiefest it is upon the rebel whom thou thinkest to have to wife. She is mine: was it not told thee in the beginning? She is mine: thou shalt know it in the end . . . I am Pan, and the earth is mine." But Aglaë is restored to the arms of Neanias, and the sylvan god finds consolation in the love of Merla.

In the last scene, which takes place in the cottage on Epiphany Eve, Aglaë can speak her thoughts, and the play concludes with the singing by Neanias of the Epiphany song.

The music, by Mr. H. W. Hewlett, is cleverly written, but the songs given to the sisters are not melodious, and they did not gain by their rendering on Tuesday. Mr. Henry Ainley made a tender and romantic Neanias, his rich voice and warm, impassioned manner making him an ideal shepherd boy. We wondered, when hearing the delightful love passages of Neanias, where he obtained such a command of elegant language—certainly not from his homespun grandfather, the honest peasant Geron—most admirably played by Mr. Edmund Gurney, who gave excellent expression to the humour of the part. Miss Grace Lane made a pathetic figure of the dumb Aglaë, and her expression of devotion to Neanias was eloquently expressed. Miss Suzanne Sheldon was powerful in her display of Merla's hate towards the helpless Aglaë, and later in the play exhibited a pleasant humour in the homely peasant girl's banter of the god Pan, a part that was represented with much tact and discretion by Mr. Norman McKinnel. Miss Ray Rockman looked rather young for the part of Balkis, but acted with genuine feeling. The village peasants—all of them quite Shakespearean in conception—were impersonated with considerable humour by Mr. Norman Page as Teucer, Mr. Edmund Gwenn as Mopsus, and Mr. Stratton Rodney as Sphorx. Miss Lillah McCarthy, in her representation of Erotion, cleverly suggested the warmth of temperament that possesses the oldest of the Earth Daughters. Miss Mabel Hackney made an interesting Dryas, and Miss Gwendolen Bishop, Miss Hazel Thompson, Miss Gwladys Wynne, and Miss Alice Crawford were seen to advantage in the parts of Sitys, Geërna, Phoeno, and Adora, though their intonation when singing left something to be desired.

A long afternoon wound up with another play by Mr. Hewlett, entitled—

"THE YOUNGEST OF THE ANGELS."

Dr. Dolfino Tron ..... Mr. J. H. Barnes
Mr. Francis Hastings.. Mr. E. Harcourt Williams
Donna Domenica ..... Miss Lillah McCarthy
Nonna ..... Miss Agnes Thomas

This piece is partly adapted by the author from the opening episode of his "Fool Errant." Donna Domenica, the sweet young wife of Dr. Dolfino Tron (old enough to be her father), has, in her coy, artless way, given too much encouragement to the unconcealed admiration of young Mr. Francis Hastings. One night he comes to her as usual for a lesson in Italian, and stays too late. The doctor's footstep is heard on the stair, and the love-sick youth is hustled into a cupboard. Donna Domenica would confess her slight indiscretion to the doctor, but is sent to bed before she can do so. Hastings, however, makes good the omission by emerging from his concealment and letting the doctor know of the perfectly innocent flirtation. The old man would send Donna Domenica home to her mother; but her indignant outburst against his tyranny convinces him that he has been lacking in kindness and consideration for her, who is described, in the phrase of Dante, as "the youngest of the angels." The performance was chiefly remarkable for the excellent acting of Miss Lillah McCarthy as Donna Domenica, Mr. J. H. Barnes as the Doctor, Mr. E. Harcourt Williams as Francis Hastings, and Miss Agnes Thomas as Nonna.

THE SHEFFIELD UNIVERSITY OPERA WEEK.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The opera festival for the benefit of the Sheffield University College, originated by Mr. Charles Manners, proved such an artistic and financial success last year that it was decided unanimously by the special committee to continue the festivals, provided that the music-loving public gave the necessary support. Arrangements were accordingly entered into with the enterprising director of the Moody-Manners Company, Mr. Charles Manners, and the Theatre Royal was again chosen as the venue. Mr. Charles Manners has spared no pains to again make the festival a triumphant success. With a chorus of 95, a band of 60, together with a fine list of principals, all animated with the whole-souled enthusiasm of their devoted chief, there could be little doubt as to the result of the scheme. Special scenery for each opera has been brought from London, Liverpool, and Edinburgh. Many dresses and properties have been specially made, and Mr. Paul Valentine has been hard at work for some weeks with a strong corps de ballet; in fact, Mr. Manners has done all he could to put opera on the local stage as it has never before been seen in the provinces, and Sheffield lovers of music and spectacle will not forget the debt of gratitude they owe to the popular and talented impresario-vocalist. The week's work began auspiciously on Monday with a fine performance of Wagner's Siegfried. Mme. de Vere created a profound impression as Brünnhilde. She sang and acted splendidly, and in appearance truly looked "a daughter of the gods." Wotan was carefully represented by Mr. Charles Magrath. Mr. Joseph O'Mara sang with energy and dramatic expression, and his efforts won cordial recognition. Mr. W. Dever made an effective Albrecht; and other rôles were well sung by Miss Lucie Lever, Miss Olive Westwood, Mr. Bailey, and Mr. G. Renshaw. The orchestra acquitted itself creditably, and Mr. Richard Eckhold, who conducted, received an ovation at the finish. On Tuesday, Carmen was presented, with Mlle. Zelie de Lussan in her famous part of the passionate Spanish girl; and Mr. Joseph Pembroke as Don José. It may safely be said that such a superb performance of Bizet's opera has never been seen before in a local theatre

Tuesday was the "Students' Night," when the students of the University attended in fancy costume, and vocalised between the acts.

On Wednesday night the company were responsible for a brilliant performance of Tschaikowsky's Eugen Onegin, which has never been heard in the English provinces before. Mme. Fanny Moody sang the part of Tatiana, and Mr. Charles Manners sang Prince Gremin, the parts they first sustained when the opera was produced for the first time some fourteen years ago. On Thursday afternoon the company produced for the first time a new opera in one act by Mr. Nicholas Gatty entitled Grey-steel. The programme for the balance of the week was as follows:—Thursday (matinée), Philemon and Baucis, (evening) Tristan and Isolde; Friday, The Flying Dutchman; Saturday (matinée), The Marriage of Figaro (evening) Lohengrin. The Moody-Manners Opera Company have now established a precedent in this respect, and it is hoped that other large cities will, in the near future, have opportunities of hearing the two companies together, giving these magnificent performances, which were so greatly appreciated at Sheffield this week.

THE WALLSEND THEATRE BURNED DOWN.

The Theatre Royal, Wallsend, was burned to the ground on Sunday night. The first sign of the outbreak was reported to the local fire brigade about 10.30 p.m., and a little after midnight there was nothing left but a mass of smouldering ruins. Though the building itself was not valuable, there was a great deal of property and stage effects on the premises, all of which have been lost. During the afternoon Mr. Tony Richardson (the manager) visited the premises, and when he left at about six o'clock everything was in order, and there were no lights. As to how the fire originated, no one has the slightest idea. It appears to have broken out first at the stage end of the structure, and spread with great rapidity. When the brigade reached the scene the interior of the building was filled with dense smoke, and the firemen were greatly hampered in getting to the origin of the outbreak. All the scenery and stage effects of The Prairie Flower company, who appeared at the theatre last week, have been destroyed. In addition there was a considerable quantity of scenery belonging to a company about to play Jeanie Deans, which had been sent on beforehand. Fortunately, the scenery of Guilty Man, which was to have been staged this week, had not arrived. Mr. J. Angus, of Newcastle, is the proprietor of the theatre, which seated about 1200 people. It was partly lighted by gas—perhaps the cause of the outbreak.

It is roughly estimated by the manager of the theatre that the damage will amount to about £3000.

Little Dott Moss is desirous of thanking Mr. Beagle, of the Theatre Royal, Attercliffe, for a handsome bouquet presented to her on Saturday, the 17th ult., as a mark of appreciation of her clever performance of Hannah Spry in the Sin of Her Childhood company.

"A LAST YEAR'S NEST," a play by Lilian S. Arnold, was produced for copyright purposes at the Cripplegate Institute, Golden-lane, E.C., on Wednesday.

MESSRS. HOWARD AND WYNDHAM accorded Mr. Tom E. Murray a double benefit on the morning and evening of the 23rd ult. In addition to the pantomime Mr. Harry Lauder and Miss Josie Collins appeared at the matinée, and Talberto and Douglas and Molly McGuire at the evening performance, the theatre being packed on both occasions.

PRESENTATION.—Miss Lillie Monckton, the Prince Charming in Mr. Herbert Barr's Cinderella pantomime, was, at the conclusion of her engagement, the recipient of a handsome diamond crescent, presented by Miss Kitty Olive, as a token of esteem and appreciation.

AT the Grand Theatre, Leeds, on Saturday, at the close of the successful pantomime Babes in the Wood, the courteous manager, Mr. Edward Cadman, the ballet mistress, Mrs. Royce, and the stage-manager, Mr. McInnes, were the recipients of choice and costly presents from the principals and chorus engaged in the pantomime.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.

Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the Eminent Throat Specialist, constantly recommended Condy's Remedial Fluid to be diluted and used as a Gargle for speedily curing Sore Throat or Hoarseness.

Dr. Walford Harris, in his book entitled "The Throat and its Treatment," says: "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent, many cases being cured immediately."

The late Mr. Sims Reeves, the world-famed Tenor Vocalist, wrote: "'Condy' used as a Gargle clears the voice and braces up the uvula."

Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's."

HOCKEY.

MISS CECILIA FOWLER'S LADIES' TEAM v. MISS WINIFRED BRADLEY'S LADIES' TEAM.

Played near Clifton Downs, on Feb. 17. Misses Ivy Bowman, Cecilia Fowler, and Kit Montgomery, scored for their respective sides. The following were the teams:—

Miss Fowler's Team.—Miss Ethel Bowman (goal), Miss Lilla Carter and Miss Ivy Bowman (backs), Miss Cecilia Fowler, Miss Lillie Belding, and Miss Nellie Bailey (half-backs), Miss Lillie Clayton, Miss Gracie Leonard, Miss Bertha Godfrey, Miss Amy Bernard, and Miss Minnie Leonard (forwards).

Miss Bradley's Eleven.—Miss Winifred Bradley (captain) (goal), Miss Rosie Davis and Miss Minnie Hamilton (backs), Miss Edie Lawrence, Miss Lillie Coles, and Miss Lucy Norris (half-backs), Miss Alice Mitchell, Miss Nellie Lawrence, Miss Jessie Maguire, Miss Kit Montgomery, and Miss Maudie Burgess (forwards).

Referee, Miss Alice Gibbs. Result: Miss Fowler's XI., 2 goals; Miss Bradley's XI., 1 goal.

MR. NORMAN V. NORMAN'S COMPANY v. HARROGATE HOCKEY CLUB.

Played at Harrogate on Feb. 19. The Harrogate, who turned out one of the strongest teams they have been able to put into the field this season, including five of the Yorkshire County team, were too strong for their opponents, and gained a victory by 9 goals to nil. The game was played under wretched conditions, rain falling heavily all through.

MR. NORMAN'S COMPANY.—Alex Cassy, S. Wilkinson, and Murray, backs; C. Freer, W. Marshall, and C. Curtis, half-backs; D. Cleugh, N. Leslie, W. H. Ashley, R. Howard, and N. V. Norman, forwards.

ON Wednesday afternoon, in the Beveridge Park, Kirkcaldy, Mr. Fredk. Melville's Ugliest Woman on Earth company played Kirkcaldy Hockey Club. The game, which was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, was well contested throughout, the actors being rather unfortunate to lose by three goals to one. The theatricals showed some fine touches, and played a good combination game, but the local team had the advantage of being more experienced. Prominent for the actors were Messrs. Edlin, Davonport, and Darien. A collection was taken on behalf of Kirkcaldy Cottage Hospital.

FOOTBALL.

On Thursday, Feb. 15, at the Hoyland Town Football Ground, Miss Lena Stanton's Robinson Crusoe company (captained by Mr. Harry Josephs) opposed Elsecar Thursday, in aid of local charities. The ball was kicked off by Miss Lena Stanton, and after an exciting game the local team won by 5 goals to 3. The ladies of the company made a collection, and this sum, added to the proceeds of the match, were divided between the Barnsley Beckett Hospital, the Hoyland Old Folks' Fund, and Jump Old Folks' Fund.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER.

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

THE MUSIC HALL BARRING CLAUSE.

Never was there a more diametrical difference of opinion than that between the Moss Empires and Associated Stoll Companies and the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association, the International Artists' Lodge, the Terriers' Association, and the Grand Order of Water Rats; and seldom has issue been joined by two parties with greater frankness and decision. The Associated Companies have a straightforward reply to every assertion made by the associations representing the variety artists. The barring clause, say the latter, inflicts a great amount of hardship on performers. If we abandoned the clause, say the companies, no good would be done. If we keep certain artists out of certain halls, we thus make openings for others.

The memorialists go on to claim that notwithstanding the increase in the popularity of music hall entertainments, and the addition to the number of variety theatres, the position of the music hall artist has deteriorated. Not in the least, reply the companies; both the position of the artists and the beauty of the buildings in which they appear are improved, and so are the salaries. Yes, say the memorialists, returning to the charge, but remember how much harder they have to work for it—from twelve to fifteen performances for the same salary as they received for six or seven in the past. To which the companies answer: "Don't forget that the increased number of performances has provided more music halls, and therefore more engagements." Coming to the pith of their memorial, the memorialists say it is not equitable that an artist should be prevented from performing within many miles of a town for eighteen months or two years from the time of signing a contract or until its fulfilment. The answer of the companies to this is decisive. The stringency of the barring clause, they say, has been regulated by experience, and must become more rather than less severe as competition grows keener. Managements must either not book ahead at all, or, if they do, they must protect themselves both by preserving the freshness of particular artists in a particular locality and guarding themselves against making it easy for unfair competition at impossibly low prices of admission starting against them with the very artists whom they have on their books for later dates at high salaries.

This is the very kernel of the debate. The memorialists ask the companies to be content with a barring clause of five miles and six months in the case of provincial halls, and of one mile and three months in the case of London and suburban halls. This the companies absolutely refuse to be content with. So the matter stands.

The reply of the companies amounts to an "ultimatum," though not, we hope, to a declaration of war. And this is not a matter of right and wrong on which it is possible to create opinion, and so influence the action of either of the parties whose interests are—apparently—opposed. The Moss' Empires and Associated Stoll Companies have a perfect right to carry on their halls under what conditions they please. Competition is the soul of business, and the whole system of trade is based upon it. If the companies consider that they are advancing their own interests, and increasing their profits, by using the barring clause, they cannot be blamed for doing so; and to a considerable section of the music hall profession the barring clause makes no difference whatever. The salaries paid to them by the "barring" proprietors are so large, and the engagements so long, that they profit by the system, which suits them completely. The hardship is felt by the second-rate artists, who are really not sufficiently attractive to the public for it to make any real difference if they appear at a rival establishment within the prescribed limit, but are equally subject to the stringent clause in their agreements. We must, however, remember that the salaries paid to second-rate artists have risen with the establishment of syndicates, and that the severity of the barring system cuts both ways. In individual cases it acts cruelly; but it certainly leaves openings at the "one man" halls which would otherwise be filled, and so gives chances of employment to a greater number of artists. It is just as well, as Doctor JOHNSON once remarked, to "clear our minds of cant" in connection with matters of business. If there are two shops in the same trade and in the same street, their proprietors are, in the very nature of things, rivals and opponents. Mr. A may be on the best of terms, personally, with Mr. B; but that will not prevent either of the competitors from undersselling his rival or doing all in his power to attract the public to his own establishment, to the lowering of the other proprietor's profits. As for the artists, they are in the position of the working men of England before the trades unions were established. They are not sufficiently united to "boycott" the Syndicates, because, as we have pointed out above, the barring clause suits the "stars" of the profession well, its hardship being only felt by the smaller artists, and not by all of these. It may occur to one to invite the syndicates, as they are strong, to be merciful to the smaller men, and to make a difference between the famous comedian, whose services it is desired to monopolise for a period, and the medium artist who only helps to fill up a programme. But we fear it would be impossible to make distinctions without causing an immeasurable amount of jealousy and heart-burning. All that can be done by the artists, as the companies cannot be coerced, is to endeavour to conciliate them; and we congratulate the M.H.A.R.A., the International Artists' Lodge, the Terriers, and the Water Rats upon the manly yet moderate tone of their memorial. The ventilation of the subject which has been caused by its presentation will, we hope, do real good. It is, after all, merely a question of the degree of stringency of a clause which the artists agree to be reasonable; and perhaps the Companies may be induced to reconsider their decision.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

The Shrove Tuesday fancy dress ball at Covent Garden has become quite an annual institution, and the latest of these festivals attracted a very large attendance. That the pancake would figure among the fancy dress designs goes without saying, and from Mr. Clarkson's well-known establishment there came a costume representing "Shrove Tuesday, or the Greatest Fryday of the Year." The dress was of pale pink satin with painted panels, and a head-dress representing a kitchen. In her hand the wearer carried a frying-pan with pancakes, and the effect of the whole was accentuated by the lavish use of electric lights. "Spring on the Riviera" was another effective design, and so was "Goosey, Goosey, Gandy," the cloak of the latter being made of white feathers, which gave a very pretty appearance to the costume. Among other notable creations were "Riviera Rambles," "Shooting Big Game in the Rockies," "The Home and Haunts of Bobbie Burns," "The Far East," and "Falstaff." The prizes included a silver tea and coffee service and tray for the best fancy costume, a silver toilet set in case for the most original dress, and about twenty others. These were awarded about half-past two in the morning, when there was a grand march past the judges' box. Mr. Dan Godfrey's band occupied the stand, and dancers were able to appreciate to the full the effect of the new arrangement, whereby the sound of the music is directed into the ball-room.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 26, the Comedy,
by Edward A. Parry and Frederick Mouillot, entitled
"WHAT THE BUTLER SAW."

Mr. Robert Arthur has provided an excellent attraction this week at the Kennington Theatre by the engagement of Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche in the clever comedy What the Butler Saw. Mr. Charles Fawcett is one of a very excellent company, acting the part of the young Irishman Jack Barrington to the life. Miss Ada Blanche is delightful as his young wife, speaking with an American accent that adds agreeably to her clever performance. Mr. Lionel Rignold is extremely humorous as Pink, the butler, who saw it all, and his presence on the stage is never unaccompanied by laughter. Sir Charles Foden has an excellent exponent in Mr. Reddick Anderson, who possesses a brisk, cheerful delivery. Mr. George Ascott is good as the fighting general who lost his regiment; Mr. Harry Rignold makes a very good Jew financier; and the parts of Sydney Clifford, his son, and Vere Bogins, an actor of the old school, are adequately enacted by Mr. George Beale and Mr. Alec Davies respectively. Mr. Roy Byford makes Professor Shale exceedingly humorous. Dr. Clayton, of the Hydro, was in the excellent hands of Mr. Frank Elton. Miss Marie Daltra is crisp and vivacious as Miss Foden, and her parrot's behaviour is very creditable. Nora, Miss Foden's companion, is successfully undertaken by Miss Grace Richardson; the sisters Dunlop are represented by the Misses Maud Evelyn and Minnie Willet; and Miss Edith Blanche is duly concise as Mrs. Fleming-Smyth. Mrs. Hake, a plain widow, is well played by Miss Annie Goward; Sophonisba Hake, her daughter, is brightly represented by Miss May Hart; and the Misses Dorothy Garth and Violet Gould are good as the maids Maria and Emily. The play is well received, laughter being the order of the evening throughout.

MR. CHARLES HANNAN'S new three-act comedy, United States, is due for production on Monday evening at the Opera House, Crouch End.

MR. GILBERT TRENT is engaged to recite at the National Sunday League's concert to-morrow evening at the Chelsea Palace.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at any of Smith and Sons' bookstalls throughout the provinces.

"Such a gettin' upstairs, and a stoppin' in the middle; such a gettin' upstairs I never did see!" runs the old nigger song; and seldom have the legs of a company been more exercised than in All-of-a-Sudden Peggy at the Duke of York's Theatre on Wednesday. The telling of the story involves an immense amount of running up and down a practicable staircase "at back," giving the members of the company a great deal of healthy exercise. The ways in which the different characters took the flight were characteristic. Some went up at a gallop and some at a trot; the servants only ascended with calm dignity. As far as the stairs were concerned, the piece had certainly plenty of "movement." The general impression created by the production was that of an amusing "notion," treated with a certain amount of inexpertness, but prevailing by dint of its essential fun and frolic. Rattled off in the brightest of styles by the most competent of casts, All-of-a-Sudden Peggy had an enthusiastic reception, the advent of the author—who did not appear—being loudly demanded. The piece is one of those pleasant, lively, unpretentious comedies, whose fate seems to depend entirely on the caprice of the public. We have seen no better pieces run for scores of performances; and we have known works no worse to be taken off in less than a month. These little plays, like little books, have their fates.

The central character is Peggy O'Mara, an impulsive Irish girl, whose habit of acting on the spur of the moment causes most of the complications of the plot. She and her mother are staying at the country house of Anthony, Lord Crackenthorpe, a middle-aged peer, with a mania for entomology. His mother, Lady Crackenthorpe, is afraid of Anthony's falling in love with Peggy, and persuades her younger son, the Hon. Jimmy Keppel, a tea-planter, home from Ceylon on a holiday, to "dazzle" Peggy, and distract her attention from the too-susceptible spider-catcher.

Jimmy finds that he has met his match in the quick-witted Irish girl, who is not to be dazzled; but an affectionate feeling springs up between them, and Peggy confesses that she would like to see her mother married to Lord Crackenthorpe. If, thinks the girl, she pretends to elope with the Honourable Jimmy, her mother, thrown for consolation on the artless Anthony, will be able to capture him. So off Peggy starts for Jimmy's flat in London, to find that he is not at home. She falls asleep on the couch in his room; and there Jimmy finds her when he arrives next morning. Peggy has telegraphed home that she and Jimmy have been married at a registry office; and his uncle, Major Archie Phipps, has put an advertisement of the wedding into the Morning Post; so that the situation is sufficiently awkward. What follows is a combat of "fine feelings" on the parts of Jimmy and Peggy. He has grown really fond of her, and she of him; but when the blundering old Major arrives, and lets out that Jimmy's first overtures were false ones, Peggy, of course, is highly indignant, and believes she is still being trifled with. When, however, she finds that the result of her hasty refusal to marry Jimmy is that he will injure his prospects by declining an excellent offer made to him by his rich friend, Jack Menzies, she relents; and, in the last act, the see-saw of misconception is kept working till at last the lovers comprehend each other, and are united.

Miss Marie Tempest as Peggy was the heart and soul of the play, acting throughout with a vivacity and a piquancy which were delightful. Her sparkling animation and exuberant vitality kept the audience in great good temper; and while she was on the stage—which was almost all the evening—things went most merrily. As the active, energetic, and impulsive Irish girl, Miss Tempest put another to the list of her successes; and her Peggy O'Mara will certainly add to her popularity with her public. Particularly good was her treatment of the love scenes, in which the daintiness of her method, her arch humour, and her quaint comicality were employed to immense advantage. Without Miss Tempest there would certainly have been scenes in Mr. Ernest Denny's piece which would have made a much less alluring impression than they did at the Duke of York's on Tuesday. It must be added that this charming comedienne looked particularly smart in some quite becoming dresses. Mr. Eric Lewis had not many chances for the employment of his famous finesse and polish as Lord Crackenthorpe, the part being a rather empty one; but all that could be done with it Mr. Lewis did in the best style of his art. Mr. Gerald du Maurier had an exacting but effective rôle in that of the Hon. Jimmy Keppel, and played it with remarkable tact and appreciation, never forcing the note, yet always sufficiently emphasising his points. Mr. du Maurier's "form" is always excellent; and this, combined with a rare intelligence and a technique which is always improving, ensured the success of his creation of the Honourable Jimmy. Mr. Alfred Bishop is such a consummate exponent of elderly gentlemen on the stage that in the part of the fussy Major Phipps he could hardly go wrong. His make-up, manner, and method were alike unexceptionable. Mr. Charles Bryant made quite a hit by his bold and "breezy" performance of the part of Jack Menzies—a character sketch of a buoyant and boisterous, good-natured gentleman which evidently pleased the audience greatly. Miss Kate Serjeantson, with her stately grace and refined dignity, looked every inch the proud and picturesque Lady Crackenthorpe, and acted with all the aristocratic ease demanded by the rôle; Miss Beatrice Beckley was bright, pleasant, and lady-like as the Hon. Millicent Keppel; and Miss Ethel Matthews, looking sweetly pretty in an exquisite costume, expressed languid indifference admirably as the luxuriously-affected Mrs. Colquhoun; Miss Florence Wood contributing a hearty and natural embodiment of the Irish matron, Mrs. O'Mara. Mr. W. Hann's scene for the first and last acts was a marvel of realistic fitting and fine furniture; and his bachelor's room for the second was very well-appointed and up-to-date. Mr. Dion Boucicault's careful stage-management ensured the complete smoothness of the production.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, March 1.—For some unknown reason Camille Saint-Saëns and Victor Massenet, our two great composers, prefer to have their new works launched in the Monte Carlo Theatre. Last year it was Massenet, who brought out there his Cherubin, and it now being Saint-Saëns' turn, he gave us L'Ancêtre, for which M. Augé de Lassus wrote the libretto. As usual, all the critics were invited, and they readily responded to the call. L'Ancêtre is a sombre Corsican drama, the story of a vendetta, wherein we are shown the unsympathetic figure of the grandmother (l'Ancêtre), the implacable Nunciata, who never forgives. In the first act we are in the mountains in Corsica. Raphael, a hermit, owns many bee-hives, and, like Francis of Assisi, calls the bees his sisters. But if peace reigns in the hives, the same cannot be said of the village, where a blood-feud exists between the Fabianis and Pietra Neras, whose dead fill the little churchyard. Tébaldo, a young officer in Napoleon the First's army, then makes his appearance. Tébaldo, born in the village and brought up by Raphael, is a Pietra Nera; and Margarita and Vanina, the two sisters whom we see rush at him and seize his hands, are Fabianis. Both love Tébaldo, but he has lost his heart to Margarita. Now that Tébaldo has returned the two families can bury the hatchet, and they send for Nunciata, who, as head of the family, alone can declare peace. The half-blind old woman, still mourning the loss of her son, Margarita and Vanina's father, is led in by her grandson Leandri. But, unforgiving and shaking with rage, she will not hear of any reconciliation. The scene of the second act is laid in Nunciata's cottage, where Vanina is waiting for her brother Leandri. A distant noise is heard; as it draws nearer we distinguish the chant of the "Requiem," and Leandri's corpse is brought in. He, too, has been murdered; and Nunciata makes Vanina swear to avenge her brother's death on the Pietra Neras. When, however, Bursica, the swineherd, says that Tébaldo committed the deed Vanina trembles. Yes, Tébaldo is the murderer; but, as he informs the hermit, he had to defend his life against Leandri, who had trapped him. The hermit implores the young officer to leave the island, and makes hurried preparations for Tébaldo's and Margarita's marriage. Vanina, meanwhile, has stealthily followed the youth. She does not want to kill him; yet, when she overhears him speak to her sister her jealousy is roused, and she grasps the pistol. Then she again hesitates; the weapon drops from her hand, and old Nunciata, seizing it, fires. But the bullet strikes Vanina, who has rushed forward to warn Tébaldo. This silly story has not even the merit of being original, for the author has borrowed it from a collection of Corsican adventures, published as far back as 1856. M. Camille Saint-Saëns, strangely enough, was satisfied with this libretto, and enlivened this series of melodramatic incidents with music that came upon us like a surprise. In these three acts the inevitable cavatinas, duos, trios, &c., are introduced; and, departing from his usual method, the composer has gratified us with some daring dissonances that will probably delight the admirers of the very advanced school. M. Saint-Saëns is hardly himself in this work; yet we detect the master hand in the delicate instrumentation of Raphael's ode to the bees; in the way we are reminded of the "Marseillaise" when Tébaldo mentions the Emperor; and in the love duet of Tébaldo and Margarita. L'Ancêtre was well mounted, and fairly well interpreted; but it will hardly rank among the great French musician's best productions.

AT Antoine's Le Vieil Heidelberg has well caught on, and is played there nightly to crowded houses. The great playwright here who betted that the piece would not reach its hundredth performance now regrets his rashness.

M. MIRBEAU'S Les Affaires sont les Affaires has also, what we call here, come to boiling-point—i.e., it has appeared for the hundredth time on the bill.

THE 104th celebration of Victor Hugo's death has been celebrated at the Comédie-Française in a worthy manner. Ruy Blas was given in the afternoon, and Les Burgraves produced in the evening, with MM. Mounet-Sully, Albert Lambert, Paul Mounet, Mmes. Lara, Segond-Weber, Faylis, &c. The crowning of the poet's bust raised, as usual, great enthusiasm. The total receipts on that day amounted to nearly £700.

MME. LE BARGY'S rather high-handed proceeding in throwing up her rôle in La Rafale has produced a painful impression in theatrical circles. It is a heavy loss to M. Franck, of the Gymnase, who, since Mme. Le Bargy left, has seen his receipts suddenly drop from £150 to £68. Mr. Henry Bernstein, the author, fumes and rages, and wants M. Franck to bring an action against the talented young actress. But M. Franck is a philosopher; he hates law-suits, and, although legally in the right, he does not want to bring the matter in court. "Mme. le Bargy," he says, "was wrong in leaving me at a moment's notice whilst the piece was making money, under the pretence that she had a better engagement in England. I have, however, no intention to proceed against her. All I hope is that it will be a lesson to my colleagues, who will know in the future how to protect themselves." Mme. Le Barby was paid at the Gymnase at the rate of £400 a month.

IF Mme. Réjane really carries out her scheme to start a private conservatoire, she will be able to do plenty of good work. Her intention is to try the experiment with four girls and four young men who show decided talent for the stage. She will teach the girls, and the boys will be taken in hand by M. Duménv, the well-known actor. Many years ago Mme. Sarah Bernhardt also wanted to open a kind of conservatoire, and had even drawn up an elaborate plan. But, as she afterwards remarked to one of our confrères, "She did not want to be bothered with it," whereupon the matter dropped.

AT the closing performance of the pantomime Robinson Crusoe at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, on Saturday evening, the principals of the company and not a few of the members of the ballet were the recipients of floral and other gifts. Mr. Ernest Carpenter, in a neat speech, said the pantomime season just closed had beaten, financially, their last year's record, and he gratefully acknowledged the support he had received from the zealous and whole-hearted company, the staff of the theatre, Signor de La Camera and his orchestra, and his friends in front. He presented his manager, Mr. Ben Court, with a tantalus from the principal members of the company, and a silver-mounted umbrella and cigar-case from some friends in front; Mr. J. D. Newton (stage-manager) with a silver fountain pen, and Signor de La Camera with a silver cigar-case—both from the principal members of the company; and Mr. Edgar Budden with a portmanteau from some of his friends in Brighton. Mr. David Young (scenic artist) presented Mr. Ben Court with a gold watch on behalf of the general staff in front of the house; Mr. Court presented Mr. Carpenter with a portmanteau and dressing-case combined from the permanent members of the staff; and Signor de La Camera gave him a portrait and sketch, the work of Mr. Alan Wye.

"BEAU BROCADE," a romantic play in four acts by the Baroness Orczy and M. Barstow, was produced for copyright purposes at the Coronet Theatre on Thursday.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

THE thirteenth anniversary of the Oxford will be celebrated on Friday, March 16, when Mr. Albert Gilmer will present a festival programme, to which all the variety stars in London will contribute.

MR. HARRY BAWN has resigned his position under Mr. Walter Gibbons, as general-manager for that gentleman's London circuit. Mr. Bawn is by way of taking a short holiday before he seeks another sphere for his business energy.

MR. JAMES HOWELL, of the Tivoli, has been associated for over a quarter of a century with popular entertainment in London. He dates his connection therewith back to the Polytechnic Institute quite thirty years ago. For some years he was at the Alhambra, and afterwards followed the late Charles Morton, father of the halls, to the Palace Theatre. During his many years' service he has never taken a benefit, and therefore we feel sure that his approaching bespeak on the afternoon of Monday, March 26, will be a bumper. Neighbouring managements at any rate are adopting a most friendly and courteous attitude towards the popular beneficiaire, and the "barring clause" will be kept in abeyance for an hour or so in order that the large number of star artists who have volunteered their services may be able to fulfil their kindly intentions of appearing at the Tivoli.

MISS MAUDE COURTNEY, the pretty American girl who tells stories so wittily, has returned from the Rand, where she became such a favourite at the Empire, Johannesburg. Miss Courtney sails this week for her native land, but will return on May 7 to open on the Moss and Stoll tour. In August and September she will be at the Palace and the Oxford.

THE sale of the late Mr. Herbert Campbell's "effects" took place at the auction rooms of Messrs. Phillips, Son, and Neale, 73, New Bond-street, on Thursday afternoon. We failed to recognise any prominent theatrical or music hall people, and the disposal of the various lots excited no curiosity whatever on the part of the public. A large presentation salver, weighing 97oz., realised £16 3s. 4d. The tray possessed a certain interest, and bore the following inscription: "Presented to Herbert Campbell by the directors of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, Limited, as a mark of their appreciation, esteem, and friendship on the unique occasion of his 21st birthday or coming of age in pantomime at Old Drury.—March 28, 1903."

MR. BERT FELDMAN, the well-known music publisher, bought several small lots, including a plaster statuette of Sir Augustus Harris, three smaller statuettes, a majolica jardiniere, a carriage clock, a leaded glass panel, and a leather case, all of which went for 16s.! No sensational prices were secured for any of the articles. Portraits of theatrical celebrities, many of them looking much the worse for age, went in their dozens and scores for a few shillings.

MR. WILL OLIVER on the 23rd ult., his fifty-fourth birthday, received no fewer than 168 telegrams, including eighteen from his brother agents, and a large number of letters, cards, &c., of which he of course feels very proud. The presents were both costly and numerous, and his chat in The Era brought him numerous letters from old friends of over thirty years' standing.

CORAM, the ventriloquist, was initiated into the fraternity of Terriers on Sunday, the ceremony being performed by Terrier Fred Neiman, a brother polyphonist. Mr. Neiman is too good a judge of his art not to recognise the ability of his latest comrade.

"NAUGHTY NERO," at the Oxford, on Monday, is a respectful perversion of Stephen Phillips's play at His Majes-Tree's Theatre, by Adrian Ross, music by Augustus Barratt, in which Mr. Arthur Roberts will sustain the title-rôle, supported by Miss Ruby Celeste as Agrippineapple, Mr. Stanley Damerell as Aniseedus, Miss Yates as Poppy, and Miss Frances Kapstowne as Rule Britannicus. The whole of this elaborate burlesque is produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Albert Gilmer. Mr. Augustus Barratt, the composer, who wrote that fine song "The Mermaid," was responsible for the music of Mr. Arthur Roberts's skit on Mr. Tree as D'Artagnan in The Three Musketeers.

REHEARSALS have been in full swing all this week. Mr. Arthur Roberts believes in working at his productions till the eleventh hour, for he aims to be not only up to date, but down to the minute. It will not be the first time that Mr. George Womack, the energetic young stage-manager at the Oxford, has "lived through" a big first night, for he took up his responsible position at the time when Mr. Joe Elvin first put on 'Appy 'Ampstead. Mr. Womack, who has only just resumed his duties after a long term of illness, is deservedly popular behind the scenes—from the stars to the first and last turn on the programme.

WE are desired by Mr. Alfred Butt to state that before Miss Millie Legarde sang "How'd you like to spoon with me?" at the Palace, the management purchased all performing rights in the song within a six-mile radius of the theatre from Mr. Jerome D. Kern, the composer, and that permission to sing the number elsewhere within that area should be obtained from the Palace management. Mr. Butt is naturally anxious to avoid unpleasant proceedings against artists or brother managers.

MR. ALFRED LESTER, who has made such a big hit with his Scene-Shifter's Lament, returns to the Palace Theatre on Monday, with a new political skit, entitled The Labour Candidate.

MRS. DOUGLAS STUART, the wife of the popular secretary of the M.H.A.R.A., underwent a serious operation on Saturday, at St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington. The many friends of the lady will be glad to hear that she is progressing favourably.

MR. R. L. ADKIN has resigned his position as manager of the Islington Empire, of which popular hall Mr. Walter Gibbons is the proprietor.

MR. HARRY WRIGHT was presented on Friday, the 23rd ult., with a case of briar root pipes in crocodile hide case by Mr. R. Crossman, proprietor of Dick Whittington pantomime, in which Mr. Wright is playing Emperor.

MR. H. LYNDON (Fitzwarren) was married on Wednesday to Miss Yates (Princess Loo). Several presents were made by the members of the Dick Whittington company, and a substantial cheque was given by the proprietor, Mr. R. Crossman.

THE creditors met on Thursday in the case of Edwin Cleary, lessee and manager of Olympia, who recently filed his petition. The debtor said that he opened Olympia on Dec. 22 last, having invested about £2,500 in it. The takings from the very first were insufficient to cover the outgoings, and the General Election and the recent bad weather had affected adversely the business. A draft statement of affairs showed ranking liabilities £9,469, and net assets £582. A resolution was passed to wind up the estate.

MR. H. E. ANGLESS, the popular lessee of the Pier Pavilion, Southend-on-Sea, has been granted an extended term of tenancy for seven years by the local corporation. Capital bookings have been arranged for the coming season, including some of the best companies touring the provinces.

SIR SAMUEL AND LADY SADLER, accompanied by a party of a dozen ladies and gentlemen, visited the Empire, Middlesbrough, on Tuesday evening, and thoroughly enjoyed the performance. The party arrived before the close of the first performance, and were much interested and surprised to see how quickly the house was emptied and filled again. Lady Sadler on entering her box was presented with a beautiful bouquet by Mr. Charles Rembjes, the courteous and genial manager of the Empire.

THE new Palace Theatre of Varieties at Carlisle, a full description of which will be given in our next issue, will open its doors on Monday. The fine and spacious building, which has been erected from the designs and under the supervision of Messrs. Owen and Ward, the well-known architects of Birmingham, will accommodate about 2,000 people. Signor R. Pepi, who already controls the Hippodrome, Blackpool, and the Tivoli, Barrow, is the managing-director, and Mr. A. E. Nicholls, of Blackpool, the acting-manager. The hall will be run on the two-houses-a-night system, and the following turns will appear on the opening night:—Bella and Bijou, Marion Scott, Tom Stuart, Barney Vox, Georgina Leonard, Lieut. Albini, the Brothers Redmond, Ike Scott and Son, and Vernon's Bioscope.

THE Liverpool Theatrical Gala took place on Wednesday, the 21st ult., in glorious weather, in the presence of about 6000 spectators, at the Liverpool Football ground, Anfield. The event was a great success financially, this being in no small degree due to the efforts of the Brothers Egbert (the Happy Dustmen), who are appearing nightly at the Shakespeare Theatre as the robbers. Their tableau of a dustcart and twelve dustmen was the success of the show, and as they drove along the rank the well-known "gag" "Hurry up, Walter," was shouted time and again from the thousands of spectators lining the streets. As a result of their untiring energy and efforts they have handed over a good sum to the hospital committee.

MISS LIL HAWTHORNE, having concluded a highly successful pantomime engagement in Manchester, was retained by Mr. Oswald Stoll for a special week each at the Hippodrome and Ardwick Empire. Her three songs, "The Gal of Tennessee," "Springtime is ringtime" (written specially for Miss Hawthorne by J. P. Harrington and the late Geo. Le Brunn), and "Don't cry, little girl," proving enormous successes. Miss Hawthorne will now take a well-earned rest, visiting the Continent.

THE accident that we reported last week as happening to Willie Ara (of Ara, Zebra, and Vora), during the performance of the troupe in Indian Pastimes, was not at all serious. The clever combination showed in the second house, on the same evening, and scored a big success, which has been repeated this week at Manchester. The troupe is engaged for Madrid by Mr. William Parrish for the coming season, which is to be followed by a tour in the South of France.

THE Palace Theatre, Greenock, which has been closed for a fortnight owing to financial difficulties, was reopened on Monday night. It will in future be known as the Pavilion, and will be under the direction of the Glasgow Pavilion Co. Mr. Samuel Lloyd is general-manager. The hall was handed over to Mr. Lloyd on Thursday last, the 22nd ult., and between that day and Monday he had the interior painted and thoroughly cleaned. He had also to engage the staff and book artists. He managed the whole business, and opened to packed houses on Monday, much to the surprise of all.

THE many friends of Mr. Harry Downs, the popular manager of the New Alhambra, Belfast, will be pleased to hear he has now quite recovered from the severe attack of sciatica which has prostrated him for the past two weeks.

MR. BARNEY ARMSTRONG is more than justifying his existence in Glasgow as a caterer for public amusement. Since his return to that city he has not only placed the Queen's Theatre on a sound financial basis, but he has just entered into a contract with the proprietors of the Tivoli, Glasgow, whereby he will hold a lease over that property. It should be distinctly understood that his management has nothing whatever to do with the late tenants, Messrs. P. Mackay Findlay or S. King Alexander, and that he is not, and has never been in any way, responsible for the conduct of this theatre whilst under the management of those gentlemen.

IT is Mr. Armstrong's intention to run the Tivoli in conjunction with the Queen's on the same principle as that operating in the London halls. Artists going to Glasgow will work three shows a night, twice at the Queen's and once at the Tivoli. Their appearance at the Tivoli is for four nights a week only, as it is the intention of Mr. Armstrong to take advantage of the present craze for boxing in Glasgow by devoting two nights exclusively to that sport. As an earnest of his desire to raise boxing and other forms of athletics to a higher scientific level, it may be mentioned that on Monday next the world-renowned Jabez White is billed at a considerable cost to meet all the best Scottish boxers.

LES VALDOS conclude to-night a successful ten weeks' engagement with the Mother Goose pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford. They are also re-engaged with Mr. John Hart for next season, 1906-7, and open on Monday at Rochdale, and are booked at most of the premier English and Continental halls.

So much of the success of the popular production at the Theatre Royal, Bristol, of Goody Two Shoes has depended upon Dave O'Toole, that a packed house for his benefit on Tuesday might have been taken as a foregone conclusion. He has been an unqualified success, and his reception was correspondingly enthusiastic. Messrs. Harrigan and Holt, the popular knockabouts in the same pantomime, were given a "benefit" on the 23rd ult., when a large audience assembled to show their appreciation of the good work done by the pair.

DR. WALFORD BODIE has been creating a great sensation again in Liverpool at the Lyric Theatre, where he has been performing to packed houses for the last two weeks, all the best seats being booked in advance. Close on 1,600 patients have passed through his hands. He returns again to Liverpool at an early date, making his eleventh visit. Dr. Bodie, with characteristic generosity, has sent 100 shillings to the Treasurer of the Music Hall Home Fund.

MR. FRANK COYLE last week, at the Palace, Blackburn, sang fifty-six songs at the night shows and two days shows. He is doing the same this week at the Palace, Bradford.

THE latest quotations of music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1⅛; Canterbury, 1½; Empire, (15s. paid) 1½, (10s. paid) 1⅛; Gaiety, 1½; London Pavilion, Ordinary 4½, Preference 4⅜; London Coliseum, 1⅛; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss' Empire, 4, Preference 3⅞; Oxford, 6⅜; Palace, 10s. 6d.; Tivoli, 5⅛; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 15s.

THE following pathetic notice on black-bordered paper was posted inside the stage-door of the Palace Theatre on Saturday evening:—"Jack passed away peacefully to-day—a noble dog, a dear companion, whose place can never be adequately filled, and a loyal and industrious servant to the Palace Theatre.—THE MANAGEMENT.—Feb. 24." Jack will be mourned far beyond the Palace Theatre. In his walks abroad he made a vast number of friends, particularly among policemen and children.

THE principal new feature of next week's programme at the Palace Theatre will be Madame Lingerie, the musical comedietta, the production of which had to be postponed from last Monday. Alfred Lester, the "scene-shifter comedian" (who was first "discovered" by the Palace management last autumn at a suburban theatre), will begin a return visit with new material, as also will J. P. Ling, with his imitations of musical instruments.

"CASEY'S COURT," a street urchin's idea of a first-class music-hall entertainment, has proved such a colossal success that Messrs. Cadle have had to suspend bookings for the present in order to straighten dates out, as they have had offers for no less than sixty weeks, in some cases four for the same week.

MR. REX KING, whose turn is entitled "The One-man Programme," met with well-deserved success at the Glasgow Empire, where he opened on Monday. This versatile artist impersonated no less than fourteen characters in less than the same number of minutes, and delighted an enthusiastic audience with his rapid changes, his clever facial expression, and his masterly elocution.

MISS JESSIE PRESTON has recovered from her severe illness under the careful treatment of Dr. G. de G. Griffiths, and we are glad to announce that she will again be delighting Tivoli audiences nightly. Miss Preston has undergone a serious operation, and Dr. Griffiths marvels at the suddenness with which she is resuming business.

MR. W. H. BERRY, who plays Shingle in The Little Cherub at the Prince of Wales's, is able to entertain music hallgoers at the Empire, too, thus following the example that was set some time ago by Miss Ada Reeve, and lately by Miss Kate Cutler.

MESSRS. FRED O'MALLEY AND BILLY BROWN have been engaged by Mr. Fred W. Warden for his forthcoming Easter pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Belfast. They have also been specially booked, to appear in single turns, during the week commencing March 12 at the Parthenon, Liverpool, where they will also rehearse their new comedy-act, The Day I Came Back, from the pen of Mr. Johnny Danvers. This will be something fresh in the double-turn line.

THE twenty-second annual entertainment in aid of the Metropolitan and City Police Relief Fund will be given on Friday evening, March 23, at the Holborn Empire. Several star artists will be added to the current programme on that evening. The fund was founded by the benevolence of an influential gentleman interested in the welfare of the members of the Metropolitan and City Police, and affords immediate assistance to such of them who by sickness, death, or other domestic affliction are placed in urgent need.

MR. JAS. E. DONEGAN, Australian sport, and his talented and world-famed Dunedin troupe of cyclists, leave Waterloo railway station this morning by the 8.30 train. They are bound for New York City, on board the Philadelphia, of the American line. They open in Chicago at the Ringling Brothers' Circus. Mr. Donegan, professionally known as J. E. Dunedin, wishes, in saying au revoir through the columns of The Era to his many friends among proprietors, managers, agents, and professionals, to thank all and sundry for their many courtesies to him and his troupe during the past, and he trusts he may grip them by the hand in 1908, when he returns to the old country.

THE Elliotts and Savonas are doing very big business in Northampton. They have just received from their works in Middlesbrough, known as Elliott and Sons, engineer and boiler makers, a very fine 1½ horse-power motor engine, to drive the huge pair of twin bellows that supplies the wind to their beautiful pneumatic triplet organs. It is a marvel of ingenuity in mechanism, and was designed specially for all currents and voltages by Mr. J. B. Elliott. It has been tried on the following voltages, 100, 110, 200, 220, and 420, and works equally well on all. It is an excellent engine, and is quite an acquisition to their colossal entertainments.

MISS ADELE DE FRECE, who returned from South Africa last December, and made such a big success as Cinderella at the Coliseum at Christmas, has since then been delighting huge audiences with her charming and artistic rendering of that popular song, "Rainbow," the beautiful limelight effects and chorus making this one of the most pleasing items in the programme. Miss de Frece, who will conclude a twelve weeks' engagement at the Coliseum on March 10, is now studying a new scena.

THAT well-known writer for the variety stage, Fred Murray, has joined hands with Charles Hilbury, and the two have written a song for Miss Marie Kendall, entitled "A flower by any other name——," which Mr. David Day is publishing. Mr. Arthur Aldridge, the tenor, has likewise acquired a ballad from the same pens, entitled "I've left my heart in the Lotus Land."

IN reference to the George Le Brunn Fund, Mr. H. J. Preston, of the Royal York Hotel, Brighton, desires to state that two guineas of the three guineas sent by him were subscribed by Mr. Charles Blacklock.

MISS HETTIE LEE returns to town after a most successful tour of twelve weeks. She has produced a highly successful song entitled "English Girls," published by Messrs. Francis and Day.—Miss Florrie Bray, comedienne, will make her first appearance in London on Monday at the Chelsea Palace.

ARTISTS in want of first-class song novelties would do well to carefully peruse Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford's list of "free" songs enumerated in their advertisement on the back page of this number.

THE one and only Marie Lloyd is the chief star at Shepherd's Bush Empire next week. To speak of Miss Lloyd's attainments is like attempting to paint the lily; but apropos of her experiences, the following anecdote may be repeated. Miss Lloyd was once visiting Liverpool at the same time as the late Sir Henry Irving. The two stars of such very different firmaments met in an embarrassing way. Miss Lloyd had heard that an old friend of hers, Mr. Joe Elvin, was staying at a large hotel in the town, and she called there to see him. After she had sent her name up, however, the hall porter returned, and said: "I'm very sorry, but he says he hasn't the pleasure of your acquaintance." Miss Lloyd thought that her old friend was joking, so she said, "I am going to see him," and forced the reluctant porter to show her into a darkened sitting-room, exclaiming as she entered, "Now, then, Joe, what's the meaning of this?" A tall, thin figure advanced, and a well-known voice demanded coldly: "To what am I indebted for the pleasure of this visit?" The porter had mistaken Sir Henry for Elvin!

AT the last meeting of the Committee of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, the Committee investigated thirty-five applications for relief, and granted assistance in thirty-two cases.

CRUIKSHANK, who is descended from a family that won fame in the arena, is one of the few comic men who have successfully migrated from the ring to the stage. That he is a humorist has been discovered this week by delighted audiences at the Empire, New Cross, where his well-told jokes have caused screams of laughter.

MISS MARGARET ASHTON has been unable to appear this week at the Metropolitan owing to a severe cold which she unfortunately contracted at the end of last week. The popular American soprano, who has been in the doctor's hands, hopes to be able to resume her place during the coming week, when she will introduce Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford's dainty song, entitled "Redbreast," which seems likely to prove extremely popular.

AS ANNOUNCED last week, the recent football match at Liverpool between George Robey's XI. and the Everton team resulted in a gate of £405, but it should also have been stated that the committee was able to hand the whole of that sum to charity in consequence of Mr. Robey defraying out of his own pocket the whole of the expenses attaching to the match—a not inconsiderable sum. This action on the part of the well-known comedian, entirely unexpected, has vastly increased his popularity, already very great, in the Mersey city.

MR. ROBEY, by the way, takes his benefit at the Royal Court Theatre on Friday next, the evening before the termination of The Queen of Hearts, a pantomime which has proved perhaps the most successful of all Mr. Robert Arthur's previous annuals.

IT was mentioned in The Era a fortnight ago that the management of this theatre had offered two money prizes for the best sketches of "Mrs. Simpkins" (a mythical personage like unto Sarah Gamp's "Mrs. Harris"), to whom Mr. Robey, as the Queen of Hearts, makes frequent allusion. No fewer than 150 drawings were sent in, and these being shown in the foyer of the theatre for a week the audience were requested to vote upon their respective merits. The winner of the first prize was Mr. Alfred H. Dutton, 31, Great Charlotte-street, Liverpool; and of the second, Mr. William Nickson, 32, Clifton-road, Birkenhead.

ON Sunday the Terriers will give their fifth social concert of the season at the headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel, Westminster-bridge-road. Coram, the ventriloquist, is the latest to join the fraternity.

MISS MAUDE MORTIMER, we are sorry to hear, had to undergo a serious operation last Saturday; but we are pleased to learn from a friend who saw her on Wednesday at the St. Thomas's Home, that she is very bright and out of danger. If all goes well, she will be convalescent in two or three weeks. Miss Mortimer will be glad to see or hear from any of her old friends. Her address is St. Thomas's Home, St. Thomas's Hospital, Westminster.

MR. JOE ELVIN'S No. 2 company, in 'Appy 'Ampstead, has made a phenomenal success at the Islington Empire, Mr. Walter Gibbons having booked it for his circuit. It will be presented at the Ealing Hippodrome next week. Mr. Maitland Marler has made a decided hit in Mr. Joe Elvin's part of Tommy Flipper, the retired bookmaker. "Ain't it all right, eh?"

MESSRS FRANCIS, DAY, AND HUNTER have in the press for immediate publication two new songs by J. Francis Lambe and Tom Mellor, entitled respectively, "They were thinking of home, sweet home," and "I'm longing for someone like you." A limited number of free singing rights for both songs will be given by the publishers, early applications being necessary.

THE vocal scena Jack Sheppard, written by Albert Voyce (Verno and Voyce), has made a decided hit during this week at the Hippodrome, Hounslow. Mr. Theodore Jones as Jack, is well supported by Mr. Arthur Cartwright as Blueskin. Managers and agents who want a first-class scena cannot do better than to secure it.

IT is now some twelve years ago that the Messrs. Hyman opened their first music hall in South Africa, for on Dec. 3, 1894, the old Globe Theatre at Johannesburg was opened as the Empire Palace. What strides have been made in supplying South Africa with the best possible talent can be seen by comparing the amount of passage-money paid to the Union Castle S.S. Co. for taking out artists. In the first year of their business, the Messrs. Hyman paid the company under £1,000, but for the year 1905 the amount reached something like £12,000.

IT was only about twelve months back that this go-ahead firm of South African entrepeneurs took over the handsome new Tivoli Theatre at Cape Town. Not satisfied with this extension, they are now building a new Empire at Johannesburg, to take the place of their present theatre, which they find is not up to date or large enough, and will open it on May 14 next, with Miss Ada Reeve as the principal star. It is considered to be one of the most handsome places of amusement in the world. In order that everything should be as up to date as possible, Mr. Edgar M. Hyman, in 1904, made a tour of all the important cities of this country, the Continent, and America, and carefully studied the construction of all the latest theatres built.

MISS LILY BURNAND, the fascinating burlesque artist, has returned to London after a successful provincial tour, and will sing her successful song, "The Stowaway," next week at the Cambridge and Collins's.

MR. DAN ASHTON, comedian, who has been unable to appear since his accident on Nov. 18 last, resumes business at the Beswick Co-operative Hall, Manchester, where he takes a benefit on Thursday next.

THE Monte Carlo Publishing Company, of Berners-street, have this week accepted for publication a new song of a romantic character, jointly written by F. J. Barnes and R. P. Weston, and composed by Maurice Scott, entitled, "If you set me free." For this song, which is of the semi-free variety, this enterprising publishing firm has already found several prominent singers.

MR. TOM CRAVEN'S sketch, The Lady in Red, will be produced for the first time at the West End at the Lyceum on Monday next.

FRED SINCLAIR AND GRACIE WHITEFORD, after staying two weeks at the Lyceum, were offered by Mrs. Barrasford another week, which they were unable to accept.—Mr. Harry Nation returns to town after having a successful initial booking tour, he having booked over thirty artists of every description.—Mr. Alf Maynall, who has just concluded ten weeks with Mr. Fred Warden's Cinderella pantomime at Belfast, Dublin, and Cork, has been engaged by Mr. Henry Kemble, of Palace Theatre, Cork, to open at that hall on Monday.—Stern and Stern, who conclude their fourteenth pantomime engagement to-night, have been re-engaged by J. Gar Kiddie for pantomime, 1906-7.

AT the meeting of the International Artists' Lodge at the Hôtel Provence on Sunday President Konorah gave a report of the conference of the four music-hall societies which had been taking place the last few Sundays. He said:—"The final meeting of the conference took place this afternoon, and was not the meeting of any organisation, but purely a conference where all acted as delegates from beginning to end. A previous meeting had considered the establishment of a new society, which was to provide for the establishment of old-age pensions, loan funds, and a newspaper, the profits of which were to go to the funds of the organisation. To-day we considered the entrance-fee and dues, and after discussion the entrance-fee was fixed at 2s. 6d. and the due at 6d. per week. These were to be arranged so that artists would find them very easy to pay. They could pay them either to the offices of the organisation or to members of the executive or agents appointed. It was further agreed that a system of legal protection be adopted. The constitution of this is practically the same as that of the I.A.L., and the expression of it almost verbatim from the rules of the I.A.L.

"THE next point was the affiliation with the I.A.L., and this has been agreed upon as suggested by the Executive Committee of the I.A.L., because it is taken almost word for word from my letter. Any member of the one organisation will be able to attend the meetings of the other, where he will have voice, but no vote. Members of the Executive Committee of the one will be able to attend the Executive Committee meetings of the other. Further, any information possessed by the one will be at the disposal of the other.

"ONE important point is this. It is intended to establish a safe system of legal protection. We have it already, but it can be simplified by there being two organisations. It will make it possible for this organisation to attend to many legal affairs for us here, which it would not be so easy for us to do. Loans will be extended to members mutually. Naturally expenses will be reimbursed by the organisation for whom the expenses are incurred. Naturally there will be limits, and if the expenditure exceeds a certain amount, the home organisation shall be asked for their permission. With this the conference was ended this afternoon."

MANY members again asked for details of the new schemes, and another discussion on the subject ensued. The president explained these points, making the position quite clear, and suggested the necessity of looking at the question in a broad light. He quoted the first paragraph of the rules and regulations, saying that the aim of the I.A.L. is "to advance the moral and material welfare of the profession," and we shall be willing to support anything which does this. The motto of the affiliation should be, "Both shall be be as one and one shall be as both."

BROTHER 1211 proposed following resolution:—"That greeting be sent to the new organisation (the Variety Artists' Federation) as follows:—'The meeting of the I.A.L. in London on Feb. 25 having heard the report of the I.A.L. to the conference of the four music-hall societies, heartily welcome the V.A.F., and will assist it in every possible way as long as the V.A.F., while furthering their own interests, advance the moral and material welfare of the music-hall profession at large.'" This was seconded by Brother 1302, and passed. The Legal Committee for the month was then elected. The next point was the report of an interview which the President had had with the London solicitor, which was satisfactory. There was some discussion over this, and owing to the lateness of the hour the meeting then adjourned.

A NOVEL wager was decided this week at the Hippodrome, Eastbourne. On Monday evening during the turn of Mlle. Von Etta, the lady illusionist and quick-change artist, two members of the audience had a difference of opinion, one asserting that there were two ladies working the turn—Mlle. Von Etta having a double—the other insisting that it was the same lady all the time. A bet being made, the gentlemen appealed to Von Etta's manager, who, out of courtesy, allowed them to decide the wager without further argument. Needless to say the lady has no double.

SCHEMES designed to popularise Southsea as a seaside resort are being pushed forward. A new theatre is in course of erection, and a winter palace is also projected. The South Parade Pier, in all probability, will pass into the hands of the Corporation and be equipped in a thoroughly modern style, while the new entertainment committee is considering the provision of a variety of outdoor festivals. Plans have been approved for a new Hippodrome and Coliseum.

THE affairs of Tom Leamore, the well-known music-hall artist, were investigated at the London Bankruptcy Court on the 23rd ult., when he was publicly examined. His real name is H. T. Lee, and he recently presented his own petition. The accounts filed showed liabilities £904 (£664 unsecured), and assets nil. He stated that he had been a music-hall artist for the last twenty-two years, and he attributed his failure to the adverse result of an action brought against him by Mr. Stoll, of Moss' Empires, for breach of contract by performing at a hall within two miles of an "Empire."

MISS MAY HENDERSON wishes to thank everyone concerned in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, for the kindness shown to her during her three months' engagement. Mr. Ben Zieber has offered to re-engage her for the Apollo Theatre, Vienna, but she has been secured by Mr. John Hart for next year.

MESSRS. JOHN P. HARRINGTON and Jas. W. Tate have just equipped Mr. Edgar Romaine with a new comedy chorus song, entitled, "Come in the corner, Lucy," and Miss Claire Romaine has also accepted two new numbers from the same prolific author and composer, entitled "Built wrong" and "Lum-ta-tiddley-ay."

MISS FLORRIE FORDE has achieved an instantaneous success on tour with Paul Paulton and Arthur Van Dixie's chorus song, "Any old place where the sun shines," and although only just published in the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "sixpenny successes," the trade demand has already been abnormally great. Pierrot troupes are eagerly snapping this number up for forthcoming seaside exploitation

MR. BERT GILBERT, who has been playing the part of the lovesick and jealous private soldier in The Blue Moon, will on Monday resume his original part of King Encyclops in Among the Stars at the London Hippodrome. His part has been admirably filled in the interim by Mr. W. T. Volt, who will remain at the Hippodrome for the next production, entitled The Flood.

"MA HAVANA QUEEN," one of the most successful songs ever sung by Mr. G. H. Elliott, the "Chocolate Coon," is now "free" for the halls, and artists wishing to sing this delightful number should write to the publishers, Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, for the necessary permission. The author-composers are Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE EMPIRE.

A world of delightful notions delightfully carried out, and you have the ballet divertissement The Bugle Call, still running its graceful and æsthetic course at the Empire Theatre. The prettiest of love in the prettiest of makings, the not unnatural accompaniment to that love of green-eyed jealousy, the mischievous doings of practical jokers, the doings of all manner of persons appropriate to their peculiar characteristics, form part of this story told without the aid of words. But the motions of the different actors in it are executed in such an explanatory way that the plot, such as it is, is rendered understandable. What could excel in its pleasing effect the exquisite dancing of Mlle. Zanfretta in her rôle of the Lady of the Manor, or of Miss Elise Clerc as the pert and engaging Bugler Boy? And if you desire comedy that is not spoken but is merely acted with such striking truthfulness that no language of the voice is required to interpret its meaning, there is Mr. Fred Farren's clever representation of the character of the Colonel de Mille Tonnerres. The artistic eye revels in the beautiful pictures of life and colour presented during the progression of the divertissement, and the very effective dances catch one's fancy.

One way of imparting a humorous rendering to what would otherwise be a serious song is for the same artist to sing it partly in the tone of a tenor and partly in the tone of a sweet-voiced soprano. But voice dissimulation is a power that very few people possess, therefore one can all the more congratulate Taciana upon the ownership of really remarkable gifts. Attired and made up as a not unhandsome woman, he gave a capital rendering of a French ditty, as well as of "Sweet, sweet love," his voice alternating with each few lines with masculine and feminine enunciations, each being performed most naturally. Aerial and other gymnastics of an original order by the D'Osta troupe form an extremely interesting feature of the programme. With wonderful neatness and precision do these three young people perform various feats, such as rapidly turning from back to front, and catching hold of the trapeze while swinging to and fro in mid-air. The two boys give an astonishingly smart exhibition of jumping, turning, and gliding on and about the cushioned floor. Mac Turc appears in an intensely laughable juggling act. One wonders how he manages to balance a hat upon his face while he divests himself of his coat: There is drollery in everything he does; he even instils the spirit of whimsicality into his manipulation of the tennis balls which he tosses in the air and catches so skilfully.

Mr. Burt Earle might not inaptly be termed a burlesquing banjoist. With the assistance of the instrument, in the handling of which he is quite a master, he describes how the lines beginning "For he's a jolly good fellow" are sung in different stages of intoxication. This item in Mr. Earle's turn is a clever bit of instrumentalism. When he comes to soberer things, we get an exceptionally fine interpretation of a popular Hungarian rhapsody. "Cycling extraordinary" is the keynote of a very attractive entertainment furnished by the Barber Ritchie Trio. One sees curious makes of machines never met with before. The comical member of the little troupe rides on a quaint "velocipede" at the rate of about two miles an hour, the back wheel of this fearful contrivance consisting of boots attached to spokes. It would, indeed, be difficult to describe some of the other strange vehicles used by the Barber Ritchie Trio. We should imagine that the absurdity of locomotive invention has scarcely been exceeded than in this case. The whole display is full of diverting incidents, while all the performers exhibit marvellous agility and adroitness in their control of the cycle. A dainty singer of dainty themes comes along in the person of Miss Sybil Arundale, and one feels quite refreshed after hearing her voice the praises of the sweet denizens of Nature's nursery. Another talented vocalist is Miss Marta Cunningham, whose rendering of chansonettes is most captivating. The fairy ballet in four tableaux, Cinderella, in which Mlle. Adeline Genée explains in such fascinating manner what the singer meant when he referred to "the poetry of motion," holds the audience entranced with its pretty story and scenes.

THE OXFORD.

Since our last visit to this popular central hall, Toffy's Trotter has been withdrawn, but Mr. Elvin, the chief comic man of that sketch, has been retained, and is presenting nightly the farcical domestic playlet, Obedient Billy, which first saw the footlights at the Canterbury at Christmas. In the household where Winkle (Mr. Joe Elvin) is engaged, the young wife is expecting the brokers hourly, and instructs him to kick them out, and throw their belongings after them. Billy, as Winkle is renamed, is enjoined to strictly obey orders, and does so, his first victim being his master, whom he had not seen previously. A respectable stockbroker, who had come to the house at the summons of an elderly female relative, wishful to help the young couple, is also "chucked," and the home broken up by "obedient Billy." Some amusing conversation is carried on by him and the elderly female referred to, who is anxious for his moral regeneration; and in Billy's examination there is an excellent opportunity for the addition of up-to-date gags. The extravagant nature of the knockabout business reminds us of one of Mr. Elvin's earliest successes, and the fun of the whole thing lies as much in the oddities of speech and manner of the chief interpreter, as in what may be called the "turn him out" incidents. The farce thoroughly justifies its production at the Oxford, where audiences are convulsed nightly by Mr. Elvin's vagaries as Winkle.

Wanted, a Divorce, a new duologue given at the Oxford for the first time on Monday, bears internal evidence of its American origin. It is played—and well played—by Mr. Stone and Miss Lulu Evans. The former represents Lawyer Legalbrief, who is within sight of bankruptcy, being unable to pay his rent. Even the telephone people have removed from his office their apparatus, which is ingeniously replaced by a disused receiver, to which is attached a bicycle bell. By these means Legalbrief is able to vamp up replies to imaginary messages from celebrated people in order to impress his clients (when he has any) with the importance of his connection. His only client is Mrs. Cleopatra McMuggins, who seeks a divorce from her husband, from whom she is estranged through various farcical reasons. She gives the lawyer a retaining fee for £150, and instructs him to sue for £200 a week as alimony. This is as far as we get in the way of plot; for. Mr Stone and Miss Evans break into a duet, and the lady afterwards indulges in wild snatches of song, and a very vigorous dance, with which the piece of nonsense concludes. Miss Evans is a lively and entertaining comedienne, and Mr. Stone has a command of dry humour which should be a sure passport to the favour of English audiences.

A Yacht for Sale, another duologue, is repeating at the Oxford the success it scored at the Metropolitan a few weeks ago, when we fully noticed the amusing nature of the imbroglio, and the excellent acting of Mr. Royston Keith and Miss Alice Yorke. Early in the evening Miss Dolly Harmer hits off with much cleverness the various turns in a music-hall entertainment—the comic singer, the coster comedian, the coon singer, and others. Miss Harmer is not too extravagant, but just extravagant enough, and puts just the necessary touch of burlesque into her mimicry, which always has the saving grace of humour. Mlle. Eugenie Fougère, in a much less refined way, burlesques the method of Otero, the Spanish singer and dancer, whose diamonds dazzle Paris audiences more than they do London. The French chanteuse is termed charming by the compilers of the Oxford programme. Perhaps her charm is to be discovered in the action of slapping her bust—plentifully displayed—and saying (in French) that it is the gift of her mother.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar appears in quite a protean entertainment. The clever lady seems to gain in vivacity and versatility as she gains in years. The first item in her own particular programme is an amusing imitation of a French comic singer, after which we are treated to a number of funny stories, personal experiences, and otherwise. Miss Dagmar's mimicry of "Good-bye, my lady love," as sung by a lady with a double voice, is a capital feature of her turn, which concludes with two or three verses about "A message from the dead." The song begins quite seriously, but when Miss Dagmar goes on to describe an egg thrown at a music-hall performer as a message from the dead, the audience are seized with an irresistible fit of laughing.

Mr. Mike S. Whallen has come back from the States with some new and amusing gags, and makes a tremendous hit, as usual, with his extempore verses on members of the audience. Mr. Jack Camp, who has happily recovered from his severe illness, has some amusing wheezes concerning his reception in various towns, and tells stories against himself with great gusto. He is quite an original humorist, and his turn is all too short. Miss Marie Lloyd, who is fulfilling a special engagement, is delighting Oxford audiences with the three numbers that have won for her at the Tivoli such a success, which is sure to be repeated here.

A remarkable exhibition of animal training is shown us in Wylie's Dog Circus. The poodles and terriers perform in an arena, with a number of wooden dolls, representing an audience in the first three tiers of seats, the remainder of the spectators being cleverly painted on the back cloth. The canines box, dance, turn somersaults, and altogether give a circus entertainment that is very gravely and amusingly carried out. Mr. Morris Cronin and Company are responsible for a marvellous juggling act, in which Indian clubs figure mainly. Two footmen and a couple of boys in buttons seem to be as expert at the business as their instructor; but Cronin himself is a remarkable example of imperturbable calm, and his impassiveness when accomplishing the most difficult tricks adds much to their effectiveness. The show is pretty, and it is prettily set.

Classical pianoforte selections are played by Kopski, who chose on the night to which we are now alluding the last movement of Mendelssohn's E minor concerto, which was loudly applauded. Early in the evening Orpheus shows his versatility as an instrumentalist; and other attractions on the bill are Mr. Edgar Romaine, comedian; Mr. V. L. Granville, impersonator of character actors; Jury's Bioscope, with a delightful series of coloured films illustrative of "A Butterfly Ballet; or, the Conversion of the Entomologist; Mr. Arthur Reece, vocal comedian; Doody and Wright, who are responsible for drollery as Australian comiques; and Lockhart's elephants.

THE MIDDLESEX.

The Would-be Actors, an amusing "skit" that has been meeting with decided approval in the provinces, was given for the first time in London on Monday, and the hearty and almost continuous laughter it evoked at the Middlesex must have been very gratifying to the trio responsible for the making of the fun. The cast is as follows:—The Heroine, Miss Lilian Rosebery; the villain, Mr. Albert Mason; the hero and any other character, Mr. Carter Livesey.

The "would-be actors" are a young lady and gentleman anxious to distinguish themselves on the boards. Added to her personal attractions, the lady apparently has money, for she readily satisfies the demands of the theatrical manager whom they interview; but the swell does not prove such a "prize packet." The manager, however, agrees to forego payment for a time, and the pair are given their "parts," and proceed to the rehearsal of a melodrama immediately. It is at once seen by their tutor—and the audience—that he has exceptionally "raw" material to deal with. The lady, who is to impersonate the sorely-tried heroine, is told to make her entrance as if exhausted and faint, but the impression she gives is that of semi-intoxication. She has to try again, with only slightly better results. Much laughter is created by the cruel treatment meted out to Little Willie, her baby—being only a rehearsal, a cushion has to do duty for the infant—who is placed in all sorts of awkward positions, and is finally flung across the stage, such is the lady's disgust at her inability to satisfy the patient manager. Equally provocative of mirth are the efforts of the gentleman who has to portray the villain. His numerous "Ha! ha!'s" fail to strike terror in the heart of the heroine, as intended; and his lunges into space with a wooden dagger are absurdly funny. Both aspirants to histrionic fame, too, will persist in including the stage instructions in their lines; and the rehearsal concludes with a terrific explosion, the villain having dropped the "bomb" at the wrong moment, much to the disgust of the manager and his own discomfort. One can give no idea of the humour of the trifle in print; but it is one laugh from beginning to end, and the fun is such as will appeal to any audience. Mr. Carter Livesey gave a clever and quietly humorous impersonation of the much-worried and patient manager, also enacting the hero, the father, and other characters, and worked hard and successfully throughout for the success of the skit. Mr. Albert Mason admirably indicated the awkwardness and "woodenness" of the representative of the villain; and Miss Lilian Rosebery is to be highly commended on her refined performance as the heroine, aiding largely in the hilarity created without making the part appear too absurd, which might easily have been the case.

Duologues and playlets occupy the greater portion of Mr. Graydon's attractive bill this week, a cordial greeting being extended the familiar coster episode, Me and 'Er, so admirably presented by Duncan and Godfrey. Frequently as is this well-written and amusing trifle seen in London, it always compels attention throughout; and there is no sign of staleness in the acting of the happily-associated couple who are responsible for it, the pathetic finish being especially well played. Laughter of the heartiest is evoked by Athas and Collins, in their comedy duologue, Four Bob, the acrobatic and clever dancing of the pair aiding considerably in its success; and yet another mirthful morsel is Her Ladyship, humorously played by Evelyn and Yates. An entertaining item is The Lie Alarm, a miniature comedy presented by the Smythsons; and the programme is concluded by George M. Marriott and his combination, including the accomplished actress, Miss Edith Finley, in a sensational playlet, A Woman of the World.

Amongst the single turns no artist is received with greater approval than Miss Lily Burnand, a vocalist with a fine presence and an admirable method of delivering her songs. She has a popular and tuneful song in "Don't care for Rosie," the audience joining in the refrain with evident enjoyment; and her second item, "Stowaway," in which she wore a handsome principal boy's dress, also enabled her to secure applause. Mr. Herbert Rule, a comedian who employs an eccentric style that largely contributes to the humour of his effusions, moved his auditors to merriment with "Why?" and another comic song; Miss Lily Flexmore warbled pleasingly "They always come out in the sun," and was rewarded with much applause for some really extraordinary leg-twisting and acrobatic dancing; and Hall and Earle were likewise the recipients of a flattering reception for their quaint antics as a Chinaman and an eccentric, who also indulge in marvellous somersaulting, jumping, and other acrobatic feats—a turn full of surprises and one of genuine cleverness. Edie Grey and her white coons were listened to with pleasure and loudly cheered for their harmonious renderings of a hunting and other songs; and the Ten Dixie Girls presented a very attractive and tuneful scena, The Silver Coon, and are also to be complimented on their neat dancing. One of the number scored greatly for her rendering of a verse of the familiar "Sing me to sleep," and other much appreciated songs were included in their keenly-enjoyed interlude. Miss Cissie Scofield, comedienne, succeeded in arousing mirth with her two low-comedy impersonations, her funniest item being "I lost him at half-past nine"; Rose and Lewis, American comedy musical artists, submitted an enjoyable turn of mirth and melody, the male of the duo being applauded for some clever dancing; and Dolly Denton, comedienne, and the New Bioscope also contributed to the success of the entertainment.

THE CANTERBURY.

Aerial performances have always been in favour at the Canterbury, and there are few, if any, of the most famous gymnasts who have not taken their flights beneath the roof of the old-established hall. Interest in the art has been revived this week by the appearance of the Peerless Potters, a quintet of ladies and gentlemen, described with no little truth as the most startling and fearless performers in the world. During the time they occupy the spacious auditorium they are continuously engaged in a number of extraordinary feats, single and double somersaults, from hand to hand, being done with marvellous intrepidity by graceful young ladies, one of whom, on leaving her partner's hands, rises in the air, and turning a double somersault, descends to the performer hanging from the bar below. The show is a sensational one, and wins many hearty cheers. Price and Revost are a pair of skilled athletes, one of whom turns his abilities to very comic account. He is an eccentric of a delightfully fresh and novel character, with an ingenuous smile, which remains with him even while he tumbles over chairs and tables, quite regardless of a broken neck or limb. His partner supplies what is technically termed the "straight" show, and straight as an arrow he is in double and pirouette somersaults and hand springs, his work being so cleanly executed that nothing but admiration can be conceived. Roars of laughter alternate with enthusiastic applause during the progress of the interlude, to which the name of "Bumpity Bumps" is fitly applied.

The art of the acrobat is also worthily practised by the Garganis, whose ground and lofty tumbling is of a startling kind. Their top-mounting and shoulder-work is artistically done, one clever member of the trio, who is remarkably sure-footed, taking possession of a private box on the first tier, and leaping thence on to the shoulders of his partner on the stage. Recalls are numerously bestowed on the well-trained performers, who also combine an agreeable amount of humour with their skilful feats. The marionette is put to new uses by Mr. Laurie Wylie, who places his own head upon a wooden figure, and gives imitations of popular artists. Mr. Fred Wright, jun., is the first subject to be mimicked, followed by Mr. George Robey as "The Prehistoric Man," and by Mr. Harry Lauder in "Killiecrankie." Mr. Wylie comes as near as possible to the originals, so far as the humour of the impersonations is concerned, and quite surpasses them in the dance which concludes each item. Merriment is abundantly created during the turn, which is presented on a miniature stage, effect being given by a droll figure, who changes the numbers at the wings.

A welcome of the most cordial character is given to Mr. Herbert La Martine, who may be said to have grown up in the favour of lovers of variety. "I want to be a soldier, too," possesses just the right kind of sentiment to please, and Mr. Martine sings it so sympathetically, and with such expression, that the audience are compelled to join him in the melodious refrain. Mr. La Martine embellishes a coon song with his speciality dances, the variations of which are truly remarkable, displaying both skill and agility and securing him the highest admiration.

The moving pictures shown on Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope are extremely interesting, the launch of H.M.S. Dreadnought by the King being a particularly striking film. A tinted view of a waterfall is also well appreciated, and another successful picture is a quaint series of different styles of hair dresses, in which pretty faces are seen surmounted with all manner of hirsute adornment. A novel turn is that supplied by Boswell's Stage Circus, in which a stud of educated ponies and dogs combine with a cantankerous donkey to give untold delight. The mnemonic powers of Datas are familiar in every hall, and his remarkably tenacious memory well wins him the title of "The Living Almanack." Mr. Mike S. Whallen is rich in story and clever in impersonation; Fraser and Haley indulge agreeably in vocal selections; and other numbers in the programme are those of Vona and Merle, singers and dancers; the McConnell Trio of singers and players; Miss Rosa Rosetti, in a musical act; and Frank and Free, speciality performers. Mr. Fred Miller remains with credit in the position of general-manager; and Mr. Archie Howell's direction of the orchestra helps considerably towards the harmony that prevails.

THE SURREY.

Fun, fancy, and thorough enjoyment, with unceasing variety, are the dominant note of Mr. Frank Macnaghten's entertainment here, and twice nightly a clientele that fills every part of the vast and brilliantly-illuminated auditorium testify with no uncertain voice their enthusiastic approval of the bill of fare. That the love of drama has still a firm hold on the affections of the Surreyiters is evident by the absorbing interest they take in Fergus Hume's thrilling dramatic military sketch, The Last Shot, admirably played by Mr. James C. Aubrey, and an excellent company. In a camp on the Sabi River, Matabeleland, we find Gerald Baird, a war correspondent, and Lieutenant Wilfred Tarver, with a handful of men holding out against fearful odds. They have fully made up their minds that theirs is a forelorn hope, and in their interchange of confidences they find they are both in love with a girl named Helen. Tarver is badly wounded, and entrusts to his friend a package to give to his aged mother should he go under. News is brought to the camp that the dread Matabele have raided a town close to the camp, and carried off the womenfolk, and, much to Baird and Tarver's astonishment, a lady nurse is seen approaching the camp as an envoy. Baird recognises her as his fiancée, Helen Dudleigh, and learns from her that the Matabele will spare all the lives in the camp but his—he being a non-combatant—if they will haul down the British flag and surrender. Tarver comes on the scene, and Baird soon discovers that his Helen is Tarver's Helen also, and in accusing her of coquetry he learns that she really loves Tarver and only respects himself. Baird, to save the lives of all in the camp, rushes to the flagstaff and lowers the flag; but, just at that moment, Helen sees a relief column coming, and Baird, while hoisting the flag again, receives the Matabele's "last shot," and falls dead at Tarver and Helen's feet. As Gerald Baird Mr. J. C. Aubrey invests his character with a devil-may-care nonchalance; Miss Jennie Armstrong as the nurse acts with tender feeling and grace; Mr. Cecil Newton is manly and earnest as Lieutenant Tarver; and Mr. John Miller as Sergeant Mac O'Neil gives just the one touch of humour that is necessary.

John Tiller's energetic eight champion expert dancers soon sing and dance themselves into favour, and whether with skipping-rope or sleighbells, they, with perfect time and tune, demonstrate that they are thoroughly proficient in the art of Terpsichore. Arthur Elvey, the up-to-date tipster, introduces a novel turn in a racecourse scene, and gives infinite delight to the sporting members of the audience by imparting to them the contents of a wire received from a well-known sporting prophet, the value of which can be judged by our readers, for on the occasion of our visit it gave "John, M.P." for Thursday last at Sandown Park, and "Roman Law" for the forthcoming Grand National. In a neat little recital Mr. Elvey humorously and cleverly manipulates the names of many well-known racehorses. Charlie Jerome, with a style and method suggestive of our only 'Gene Stratton, in a pretty sylvan scene, sings a charming ballad, "Letty," and dances with unabated activity to its bewitching melody.

Roars of merriment follow the course of Alec Hurley's Friendly Lead, a striking and realistic episode of coster life, which, although it has been seen in nearly every variety theatre in London, is so full of clever character studies that it always claims the attention and interest of the audience. Opening with a pathetic little domestic scena, this unrivalled exponent of coster life touches the hearts of his hearers in the simple little ballad, "I love her as my life," and easily turns tears to laughter in "The Friendly Lead" scene, wherein we are introduced to a rollicking company of costers and street sellers, who demonstrate that, under their rough exterior, there lies the true spirit of sweet charity. The Four Jumells easily assert their title as expert banjoists, for this gifted quartette of male and female instrumentalists give a musical entertainment of rare merit. Opening with a skilfully-played series of popular airs on mandolines, they soon demonstrate that they are as efficient on the banjo by giving a smart operatic selection, and as a finale they play "The Lost Chord" with charming effect and perfect expression, on a combination of phonograph harmoniums, with bell accompaniment. Milner Verren is the fortunate possessor of a clear light tenor voice. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, with its series of three animated pictures, is a turn that is always highly appreciated. The first film shows in marvellous detail all the exciting incidents of a "Fox Hunt," and makes every member of the audience long to be bounding "o'er the green turf" to be in with the hounds. The second depicts "That Awful Mother-in-Law," who, in providing a "hot time" for her son-in-law creates roars of laughter. The Greys (Adah and Lucien) are well received in their duet, "Farewell"; and L. B. Athol wins many friends by his rendering of a sentimental ballad.

THE EUSTON.

The approach of the Lenten season has somewhat dulled business at the halls, but the Euston scarcely depends on the fashionable folk, and the toilers in the neighbourhood, staunch to their local variety theatre, have been crowding it twice a night to assist at the really admirable entertainment provided under the direction of Mr. George Adney Payne. The chief attraction of the current bill is Mr. Joe Elvin, in a revival of the successful sporting sketch, Over the Sticks, which, on its first production at the Oxford, proved to be one of the most successful spectacular playlets that had seen the footlights. The stage of the Euston is fortunately equal to the reproduction of the famous racecourse scene at Kempton Park, where Plodder Pilks, "to oblige his brother," wins the Sunbury Hurdle Handicap. Realistic illustration of the humours of a racecourse are supplied by a typical turf crowd, and there are well-known jockeys, trainers, bookmakers, punters, &c. The racehorses—a likely looking lot—are supplied by Thomas Hales, and the excitement and bustle of an equine contest are well sustained. Mr. Elvin revels in the humours of the amateur horseman, his comicalities being heartily roared at by the Eustonians. Mr. Elvin is well supported by a capable company, whose names, unfortunately, do not appear on the programme, and the sketch is admirably staged.

Early in the evening appear Walker and May, a couple of interesting darkies, whose entertainment is characterised by comedy of the broad, obvious type, so dearly loved by music-hall audiences. They indulge in a deal of good-humoured cross talk, which is followed by a capital dance. The difficulties of Mr. Walker as a dancer are much increased by the infirmity of blindness, but his cheerfulness is beyond question, and the pair score most unmistakably. Comedy acrobats loom large in the bill. First we have the Five Bon-Bons, who exploit a deal of fun in various ways, being especially expert in their somersaults on a spring mattress. Fun is in the ascendant, too, when they sit down to a comic meal, or when the head of the troupe burlesques the ventriloquial business. Tate and Tate are termed comedy trampolean acrobats, and have plenty of quaint business to justify the title. The lady of the pair does her spiriting in skirts, and the mere man just turns fifty forward and backward somersaults on a spring mattress, and brings down the house.

Mr. Tom Costello ever rejoiced in parody, and he has an excellent subject in "Teasing," in which he sketches with much drollery the extraordinary adventures of an unattached Gorgonzola. The audience demanded another song from the popular comedian on the night to which we are now particularly alluding, but time did not permit of a second contribution. Miss Rosie Lloyd, a scion of a famous family, had an excellent coster ditty, entitled "Never introduce your bloke to your lady friend," an excellent companion to Mr. Elen's famous song, "Never introduce your donah to a pal," which considerably helped to establish the fame of that comedian. Let us hope that Miss Lloyd's song may be instrumental in advancing an already well-established reputation. She does it full justice, and her success in it was assured from the first night she sang it. Her other number, "A bungalow for two," is a pretty bit of sentiment. A solid attraction of the bill is Young Colossus, a Hungarian youth of eighteen, who weighs 35st. The Czech is a mass of adipose tissue, and his measurements are commented upon by a lecturer, who also describes his companion, a miniature man, the contrast between the two being very marked. Selbo, the other turn in the programme, is a clever club juggler. Cline and Clark, American sand dancers, are good. Mr. Victor Opferman's orchestra is an excellent combination; and Mr. Charles C. Wellman is an energetic aide-de-camp to the courteous manager, Mr. Fred McAvoy.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

A new performer, who elects to be known as Volta, contributed a remarkably unique and interesting exposition of the wonders of electricity and its effect on the human body at the above popular hall last week. Volta, through the fluent gentleman who introduces him, claims to accomplish many startling and hitherto considered impossible feats by the aid of electricity. The stage is completely filled with electrical appliances, making quite an impressive array, and when the young and ascetic-looking performer steps forward to commence his task, there is an expectant hush. Volta takes up a position inside a coil of wire, through which the voltage is reckoned by the million, and becomes so charged with electricity that sparks and flames are emitted from everything he touches. Another feat is to recline on a "live" electric couch, very heavily charged, and to ignite paper and other materials by mere contact with his clothes, boots, or even his bare arm. Volta also lights a cigarette electrically, lights gas jets with the tip of his tongue, and performs many like feats, to the amazement and wonderment of the audience. The performance is not without its comic side, and roars of merriment are aroused at the lively capers cut by those intrepid members of the audience who, on Volta's invitation, appear on the stage, and accept as a gift the articles he disposes on a tray—provided they can remove them. The performance is undoubtedly a very arduous one, and Volta well merits the applause showered upon him at its conclusion.

The Delevines, now four in number, appeared in quite a new style of entertainment in The Bell Inn, which introduces some very clever leg-mania dancing and laughable knockabout business, by the three gentlemen of the troupe. The act is highly diverting, and was heartily applauded. Gertrude Bradshaw, who possesses a most agreeable soprano voice, though she has something to learn in the important matter of enunciation, gave a very pleasing rendering of "The Children's Home," and afterwards sang in tasteful fashion, "Mary of Argyle." A most entertaining pair are the Brothers Warsaw. One appears in exaggerated military attire, and the other in spruce officer's dress, and their amusing by-play and clever manipulation of various instruments won them a cordial reception. The Twin Sisters Anderson secured plenty of applause for their nimble and rhythmical skipping-rope dance, and these tastefully-attired young ladies were also very successful with a duet and dance. Charles J. Butler and John Josey appeared as "The Two Cavaliers," and contributed a very interesting and artistic act; Walter Munroe brought into play his ripe experience as an Irish comedian with the happiest results; and Frank Darwin had a capital lilt, dealing with the fair sex, which went exceedingly well.

The Brothers Artois were prime favourites with their expert triple bar act, with which is blended some capital comedy business. The pictures on the bioscope are always popular, and last week's series, including "The King's Opening of Parliament," proved no exception. The aërial strong act, contributed by the Three Renards, was much enjoyed. The selection by the orchestra, under Mr. Augustus Greco's skilful guidance, is much appreciated by early-comers; and the comfort of the audience could not be in better hands than those of Mr. T. S. Mayne, the popular and assiduous acting-manager.

THE EMPRESS.

Paramount in the programme at the Empress this week is the sketch The King's Minister, which Mr. Cecil Raleigh has written for Mr. John Lawson. Produced at Hounslow a fortnight ago, it has this week come within the metropolitan area, and a verdict of unqualified success must be pronounced. Written in Mr. Raleigh's best style the piece has strikingly original situations that appeal both to lovers of the sensational and to those who can discern the finer qualities of dramatic construction, and the final scene is of such strength that the audience is wrought to the highest pitch of excitement. The plot, details of which were given in our columns on the first production, has for its central figure no less a personage than a Prime Minister of England, whose identity with the late Disraeli is thinly veiled under the name of Lord Draconsmere. Anxious to secure some letters written by his daughter many years ago to a music-master, with whom she imagined herself to be in love, the Prime Minister pays a visit to a restaurant in a shady quarter of Soho, and obtains the compromising missives from the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozler, who had purloined them from the musician. Lord Draconsmere bestows his pocket-book upon the lady, the contents of which excite the cupidity of Milano, the proprietor of the house, who strangles her, gives the alarm, and attributes the crime to the mysterious stranger who had that evening dined with the murdered woman. The pocket-book, which bears its owner's name, is secured by Milano, who carries it to Lord Draconsmere, and threatens to accuse him of the murder unless he reveals the secret of the State cypher, which will enable a revolutionary society, of which he is a member, to strike a blow at England. Paternal love and patriotism are thus opposed in the breast of the Minister, whose conviction of the crime of murder would wreck the happiness of his daughter betrothed to a gallant young officer, but he solves the problem by shooting himself with Milano's pistol, and with his last words branding him as a murderer.

Mr. John Lawson, in the title-rôle, marks another upward step in his career, his impersonation of the Prime Minister being one of remarkable power and resource. He delivers an eloquent tirade against the gambling craze that depraves society, and his simple earnestness when pleading to Mrs. St. Ozler to relinquish the habit is very effective, no less convincing being his advocacy of the merits of the Jewish race. The scene in which the Premier, thinking only how to secure the happiness of his daughter, and leave his honour unsullied, takes the most extreme measure, is acted with a remarkable degree of intensity, that made the audience thrill with excitement. Mrs. Lawson acts with great delicacy and charm as Muriel, the handsome dress worn by the Prime Minister's daughter well becoming her. The two other parts were admirably sustained, and the sketch is mounted on a complete scale seldom seen on the variety stage, the State-room in Carlton House being a remarkably brilliant set, in which no expense has evidently been spared.

Phenomenons of humanity are introduced in the persons of Young Colossus, a Hungarian giant, who is eighteen years of age, close upon 36st. in weight, and measures 77in. round the chest, and 35in. round the knee, and L'Homme Miniature, twenty-five years old, and 2st. 6lb. in weight. Colossus is a ruddy-complexioned youth, dressed in a child's frock and pinafore, and his companion, a weazened little fellow, attired in a velvet suit and a high silk hat, who puffs a cigarette and throws kisses continuously at the audience. Their appearance side by side has a most ludicrous effect, and is a sight that no lover of the extraordinary should miss.

A star position in the bill is occupied by Mr. Tom Leamore, who is cordially welcomed, and keeps his hearers in constant laughter by his account of "Eliza," his courtship and wedding, and his subsequent misfortunes. Atroy juggles with his customary finish and accuracy, the articles which he utilises being varied and comprehensive. He wins frequent applause, most of which is bestowed upon his concluding feat, in which he sets a heavy table revolving on a chair, which, in turn, is made to spin upon his chin. A dainty scena is presented by Maud and Sidney Wood, who sing a duet of "A Chinese Honeymoon," and also render a verse of the "Bamboo Bungalow." The costumes are appropriate to the songs, and the dance which is added to each number is neatly executed, and wins many recalls. The Montague Brothers appear in a new sketch, called The Sculptor's Dream, in which statues come to life, and go through a number of tableaux, afterwards performing feats of strength with barbells, one of the performers sustaining four men on his prostrate body, stretched across the backs of two chairs. The Lurins supplement their sketch, The Abode of Love, with a clever medley of popular choruses; Mountford and Walsh give an amusing performance, in which smart sayings are prominent; and Violi, lady instrumentalist; Hector, the wire king; Valazzi, in a pot-pourri act; Charles Mildare, whistler and bird imitator; Hill and Hull, comedians; and Amber Austa, coon singer and buck dancer, also contribute to Mr. Nelson Francis's programme, which is completed by up-to-date pictures on Ruffell's Bioscope.

Mr. F. H. Pedgrift is the hon. treasurer, and he will be pleased to receive filled-up subscription cards addressed to him for publication at 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Plymouth Palace of Varieties was on Friday (Feb. 23) the scene of an interesting function, the Administration Committee of the Matinée Distress Fund presenting Mr. J. Field, the popular manager, and Mr. Carlton, the genial treasurer, with illuminated letters of thanks for their very successful efforts in connection with the performance arranged by them in aid of the local fund. The ceremony took place during the interval between the first and second performances.

To Mr. Skinner (stage-manager of the Empress, Brixton) a purse of gold was handed on Monday by Mr. W. Grimes. Mr. Joe Elvin headed the list.

The Montague Brothers and company, who made their first appearance at the Empress, Brixton, on Monday, in a new sensational scena, entitled The Sculptor's Dream, are a distinct acquisition to the variety theatre. Mr. Montague, while studying statuary in Rome, met a sculptor who related to him a most remarkable dream. The idea seemed so original that Mr. Montague decided to produce it in the form of a sketch. All the properties and scenic effects have been expressly designed, and are exact reproductions of the handiwork of the greatest masters of sculpture in the Roman Empire.

Undoubtedly one of the biggest "song-hits" of the present season is Messrs. Lawrance and Mellor's ear-haunting song, "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you," published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "sixpenny successes" series. Not only is it sung by a great number of music-hall artists, but it is also "featured" in no less than three touring musical comedies, and sung nightly by Park's Eton Boys and Cardow's Cadets. It bids fair to be one of the favourite pierrot songs of the year.

CHAT WITH WALKER AND MAY.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER).

A turn that has proved greatly to the tastes of variety audiences is that of Walker and May, the coloured comedians, who hold quite a unique position in their own particular line upon the music hall stage. Mr. Charles W. Walker and Miss Ida May—the couple are in private life man and wife—have been recognised in America as champion cake-walkers and coon singers and dancers, and, although they have only been in England a little over two years, their work has brought such strong appreciation in its train that these clever artists have been rebooked wherever they have once appeared.

A pathetic interest attaches to the performances by Walker and May, inasmuch as Mr. Walker is totally blind—the result, it is believed, of a four years' stay in a climate much hotter than that to which he had been accustomed. The early stages of the trouble made themselves apparent when he was performing at the Melbourne Opera House, and in order to obtain expert advice he sailed for England. Shortly afterwards he completely lost the power of sight, but, on arriving in London, a specialist afforded him some consolation by holding out the hope that he might, after a lapse of two or three years, regain the faculty of seeing.

Mr. Walker, however, despite his infirmity, appeared for one week at the Oxford in September, 1903, presenting his usual business, that being the first time he went on the stage absolutely blind.

One wonders how it is possible to work under such a serious handicap, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Walker engages both in a single as well as a double turn. Miss Ida May opens the act with her coon song, "Don't get funny, Mr. Johnson," and her "Chocolate-drop" ditty, after which she treats her audience to a delightful nigger dance. Mr. Walker then comes on with his verses about "My Evelyn," which are followed by a smartly-executed dance. His lady partner then joins him, and together they speak a lot of amusing patter.

MR. CHARLES WALKER and MISS IDA MAY.

"Do you still feel that old instinctive grip upon your audience—an audience whom you cannot now see?"

The reply came readily enough, "Yes, and do you know, that 'grip,' as you call it, has become intensified. The magnetic current of mutual recognition which draws the artist to the audience seems to have become stronger and better defined than in the old days, when a glance revealed a smiling and interested 'house.'"

"How can I dance in the way I do without getting too far out of position on the stage?" he went on, in answer to another query. "Well, at first, I certainly was very nervous; but my wife arranged a series of signalling touches, and we got on so well that, in some of the theatres, the people never knew I was blind. I can generally find my way to the wings, but I had a funny experience at Sunderland a little while back. At the rehearsal, the stage-manager was not aware of my condition, but being informed at the Monday evening's performance that I could not see, he very considerately pulled away the wings, so that I should have a free passage. What was the result? I was feeling all over the walls, trying to find the wings! Of course, I study everything before I go on the stage, and I talk much louder than I did before."

Mr. Walker could not have a more conscientious partner than Miss Ida May. That lady has only been connected with the profession some seven years, and since she was married. In America they used to give cake-walk exhibitions, and it was for this style of business that they were specially engaged for Australia, where they remained for four years and seven months, under the management of Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Harry Rickards.

"We were to go back in two years' time," remarked Miss May, "but my husband's blindness now precludes our doing so."

No two people could be more loyal to each other than are these performers.

"I could not work good without seeing him at the side of the stage," said Miss May; "in fact, if anything should happen to him I'm afraid I should be quite helpless. But it's wonderful how he knows everything that goes on on the stage. If I make ever so slight a mistake he tells me of it.

Mr. Walker made a start in the profession when quite a youngster. He was about nine years of age at the time, and appeared at concerts in his native town of Riverside, in America. He has toured all over the States with coon dances and songs, and he tells us that he was the first coloured man to produce the cake-walk. That was sixteen years ago, and since then he has been presented with many prizes for dancing.

"I must say that I like the English music halls better than the American," said Mr. Walker. "An artist gets more money in the States, but then he has to do three or four times as much work as he would be called upon to do in this country; so that if a comparative analysis were drawn, it would be found that the English manager paid at a higher rate for his talent. Of course, if you had a continuous show, as we have in America, a re-arrangement of salaries would become necessary; and while the performers might receive a little more money, they would undoubtedly have to work infinitely harder."

"I am a great admirer of the British orchestra," he went on. "In America the orchestras consist of from eight to twelve instruments, rarely more than the latter number. The Americans, however, make up in quality what they lack in quantity, for their bands are only manned by good musicians, who are, by the way, mostly of German nationality. At the same time, the English orchestra is a much more thorough concern, both for the number and the nature of the instruments."

"We have been very successful in England," he concluded, "and are nearly booked up for the whole of this year. The managers have been very good to myself and the missus."

LATENT TALENT.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.)

Sir,—Miss Marion's letter in your last issue is of great interest to variety artists. My experience has been just the same. I have been trying for two years to book our turn. Mr. Sparrow gave us a week at the Camberwell Palace, and evidently did not consider the turn worthless, for he gave us three return dates. Still, we cannot get a London agent to come and see us. It is most disheartening. Sometimes you cannot get a return because your manager does not like you, and sometimes you cannot accept the offer because he does like you too well. I saw a paragraph in The Era about a year ago, saying that a certain London manager would see any turns willing to come to one of the band rehearsals. I wrote, asking permission to do so. I enclosed stamped, addressed envelope. I still await his reply. We tried doing extra turns. Went to the Britannia, and were told we were to go on at 6.50. We were kept standing about on a winter night till 10.10. We had seven instruments to take care of, as it is no one's business to help that unfortunate pariah, "the extra turn." After we had done, we were told to call the next day at the office. After waiting there for an hour, we were told to come again next week, and, so far as I can see, we could have gone on calling till now, with the same result, although our turn went well.—Yours faithfully,

AMY CLYDE.

(The Clydes, Comediennes and Instrumentalists.)
Royal Albert, Canning Town, Feb. 26, '06.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.)

Dear Sir,—I am pleased to see that a lady has had the pluck to take up the cudgels on behalf of her sister artists of the smaller fry. Let the managers say what they please about latent talent. One may be a clever performer, and have all the talent possible, but if only a small-salaried turn, your talent is never allowed to shine; or, if by chance you get a look in, and make a success, it is quickly nipped in the bud, and you find yourself very small beer for the rest of your engagement. The reason of this is easily explained. Managers will not allow the small turns to upset their star. Here is a point in fact. A small-salaried speciality act, which always went big everywhere, was offered to a manager by an agent. The manager said, "Oh, yes; I know the act well. It is a first-class one, but I don't care to book it." "Why not?" said the agent. "Put my big-salaried star turn in the shade," said the manager, "the last time I had it here, so I shall bar it in future." This will show that the small turn has no chance, however clever he or she may be; for, should you make a success, it means that on the next night's programme you find yourself No. 1, and down for five minutes. This is how the small turn is treated, and perhaps never gets a return date with that same manager. How dare a small turn make a success equal to the star, who is paid £40 or £50 a week.

Now, I contend that the Syndicate directors would save their shareholders thousands every year by putting on a good all-round company of acknowledged artists, and allowing each to do a full show. But, no; the manager does not bother himself about the small fry, nor will an agent take the trouble to see their turn, yet that same agent will rush all over the country to see a new foreign act. Look at the programmes of the London and provincial halls. Half of them are made up of foreign acts, all receiving big salaries; yet if they were to take a run round the provinces, they could pick up heaps of English artists working similar, and equally as good, acts, at about a third the price of the foreign artist.

I am one of the small fry, and it has been my ill-fortune to make a success at several halls, where they have given me time and opportunity, and I have been served in the manner I have stated above. I plead guilty, and beg of those managers I have offended to forgive my past offences, with the assurance I will not again offend.—Yours faithfully, ETHEL LLOYD.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—With regard to the article by Miss Marion, although not on the music-hall stage myself (but I have been nine years on the dramatic and comedy stage), I quite agree with her statement that her remarks apply to the theatrical as well as the music-hall side of the profession; and they are so very true, especially the remarks referring to managers not answering letters.

When one writes to a manager soliciting an interview, however good one's credentials, 99 out of 100 have not the courtesy to reply. I know of a case where a certain actor was specially recommended to two managers, to whom of course he applied for a post then vacant. But although highly spoken of by men of good standing and irreproachable character, they (the managers) ignored his application. Doubtless, if this same actor was in good circumstances or recommended by some titled person, the managers would have been eager enough. It grieves one to see that such snobbishness is so rampant in this profession, especially in the higher grades, which reduces a noble art to the lowest depths of vulgarity. While managers pander to such things provincial actors will never get a proper chance, because instead of ability the chiefs make money and influence the one and only consideration, so the ordinary good, competent provincial actor must give place to the moneyed and influential amateur.—Yours faithfully, E. S. R.

London, W., Feb. 26.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I read with interest the letters under the above heading in your last issue. Besides a great number of good turns which have never appeared in London, there are, I think, a great many talented artists who are new to a number of provincial towns—who work decent halls and book returns, but are unable to obtain dates at other towns simply because they are not known. Agents will not book a turn without first seeing it, and managers prefer to book through a reliable agent rather than run the risk of being bitten; and no one can blame them for this. I think it would be a good idea if a form of recommendation were to be drawn up and artists were to get this signed by four or five managers for whom they had worked. Surely this would be a sufficient guarantee to other managers that the turn was worth one week's engagement, and I am sure in many cases return dates would follow. I am confident if this plan was adopted many deserving artists would not be out of work so often, and a number of managers would discover some really good new turns.—Yours faithfully, A PERFORMER.

Feb. 28, 1906.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Like many others, I have read in your indispensable paper the interesting controversy anent Mr. Will Dalton and latent talent. Now, Sir, I have had long experience in almost every branch of our precarious business—from the orchestra to fit-ups and theatres, four seasons in the principal theatres of America, long stock seasons with the late lamented Andrew Melville. I then started an artistic act on the variety stage, and did very well for some years, but was often asked when we were going to do something new. An original idea was suggested to me last summer in production of a musical romance, or the story of a once eminent but now decrepit violinist. The story was well written, a special scene was painted, excellent properties made, a thousand lithographs printed, and a theatre engaged for rehearsals. Everybody eulogised the act, appealing as it does to one's better nature; and, in conjunction with a really great violinist, two ladies, and myself, the new romance, or episode, was engaged by Mr. Broadhead for his Hulme Hippodrome, and re-engaged the next week for Bury.

Mr. Will Dalton wrote us asking for terms, dates, &c., acknowledging that he had seen the act twice at Hulme; and in a few days he (Mr. Dalton) kindly sent us two contracts with long journeys between. Meantime we could book nothing ourselves, and in consequence we were among the unemployed for six weeks. We then filled the two dates with success—in fact, bottomed the bill at one hall under a very strong programme. Now these two said dates being at Christmas time lost us a good pantomime engagement, which we had to refuse, thinking of course that we should get booked up, having a fair start, and the unprecedented tour of two consecutive weeks made by a reputable and energetic agent (after seeing the act). But we heard no more—at least, only the usual promise, and it does seem hard, after all our experience, work, and anxiety that a really good thing should be cast to the four winds of heaven, as it were, for the want of a fair chance of being seen, yet managers are always asking for something new and novel.

And it is a well-known fact that there are hundreds of excellent turns in the provinces struggling for a mere existence, who would, if they had a chance in London, revolutionise some of the stereotyped programmes presented year after year to one of the best audiences in the world.

But we must all submit to the inevitable, and sometimes sink into oblivion, if only to make room for antiquated mediocrity or a galaxy of Continental numbers.—Yours faithfully,

FRED C. BROOKS.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.)

Sir,—I have read Mr. Dalton's letter re latent talent; also Miss Marion's. The latter seems to me to have hit the bull's-eye.

Having been some years in this business, I find it more puzzling every year. We have held two dates with Mr. Oswald Stoll, and have done immensely well on each occasion; but have received no further contracts. Why? We have always had returns on other acknowledged circuits. It seems to me the better your act goes the less chance you have of a return date.—"It's all a muddle."—Yours faithfully,

THE M.H.A.R. ASSOCIATION.

The 452nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held at the offices of the Association on Tuesday afternoon. The members present were Messrs. Joe O'Gorman (chairman), George Gray, J. E. Dunedin, Wm. Lee, Charles Pastor, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The secretary reported that the weekly financial statement showed an amount of £33 7s. 6d., and that twenty new members had joined during the week.

The secretary read a letter from a member stating that he and other artists engaged at a certain place of amusement in Paris had been left stranded, and suggesting that a warning should be posted at the offices of the Association.

The secretary was instructed to issue a notice requesting artists who had been offered engagements at the music hall in question to consult him before accepting the offer.

The secretary read a letter from Mr. Frank Gerald reporting the death of his father, and on the proposal of Mr. Gray it was resolved that the secretary should write to Mr. Gerald expressing the sincere condolences of the members of the Association at the loss he had sustained. It was also agreed to send a wreath if time permitted.

On the proposition of Mr. Lee, seconded by Mr. Dunedin, it was resolved that the minute removing the name of Mr. C. Bartram from the list of voters be rescinded.

The Chairman said that the next business was with reference to the return of Mr. George Gray's cheque of £1,000, as proposed at the previous meeting by Mr. Blake.

Mr. Gray:—I don't see how you can return it without consulting the Association. You think differently.

The Chairman:—The sub-committee think differently. It was decided not to use your cheque, as there was a possibility of losing a part or the whole of the money, which they could not see their way to refund.

Mr. Gray:—I think it is a matter for the Association to deal with.

The Chairman:—It was left to a sub-committee.

Mr. Gray:—Yes; to go into the details of the scheme.

Mr. Lee remarked that £1,000 was a lot of money; but it appeared to him that the matter was entirely in the hands of the sub-committee, who had considered the proposals, and had come to the conclusion that they were absolutely impracticable, though Mr. Gray's offer was admittedly a very generous one. There was no necessity to appeal to the Association as a body, or to call a general meeting, which would involve a good deal of unnecessary expense.

Mr. Gray:—The intellectual members of the Association were in favour of accepting the cheque.

Mr. Lee:—It's rather a tall order for anyone to say which is the intellectual portion of the Association.

Mr. Gray:—I think the members should know that the cheque has been refused.

The Chairman:—Your only supporter was Mr. Gerald, and now he is in favour of another scheme.

Mr. Gray:—Have the delegates reported the result of the conference that has been held?

The Chairman:—Yes; they have reported to this committee.

Mr. Lee:—I think you can safely say that most members of the music-hall profession know what has been done. A new society, to be called the Variety Artists' Federation, has been formed.

Mr. Gray:—Then it ought to be publicly reported to this Association.

The Chairman:—Do you mean that we should circularise the whole of the members of the Association?

Mr. Gray:—No; but I say it has not been given publicity.

The Chairman:—I may say it has been proposed that the new society should be affiliated to this Association.

Mr. Lee:—The proper time to bring the matter forward will be at the next general meeting of the Association.

After some further discussion it was agreed on the motion of Mr. Lee that the further consideration of the subject should be deferred until the next meeting

There are a number of new turns opening at the Tivoli on Monday. First and foremost Mr. Harry Lauder (fresh from his pantomime triumphs) arrives with new songs. Mr. Ernest Shand, another favourite, returns; and then again the Follies come back with their clever burlesque of a pantomime. Karno's screamingly funny sketch, The Mumming Birds, is an attractive item; and Dan Crawley, Ella Retford, and the Norman and Leonard Trio, &c., complete Mr. Joseph Wilson's strong bill.

Mr. Harry Liston's song "Pork Pie" (a parody on "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye") has been a phenomenal success at his provincial concerts.

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

A case of great importance to the profession came before Sheriff Fyfe on Wednesday at the County Buildings, Glasgow, when an application for interim interdict was presented at the instance of Moss's Empires, Limited, to prevent Miss Marie Kendall from appearing during the present week at the Queen's Theatre of Varieties, Glasgow Cross. Mr. Barney Armstrong, the proprietor of the theatre, interposed by caveat.

The applicants were represented by Mr. Jubb, writer; while Mr. Angus Campbell appeared for Miss Kendall and Mr. Armstrong.

In the course of a somewhat lengthy argument in favour of the petition, Mr. Jubb stated that the contract was entered into in 1902, whereby Miss Kendall was to begin a nine weeks' engagement in September next. The effect of that contract was to shut her out of nine of the cities named therein until the completion of the period of nine weeks.

Sheriff Fyfe remarked that that was unreasonable, as it meant that for practically four years she must not appear in any of the towns scheduled. She would require extensive remuneration to warrant that.

Mr. Jubb pointed out that Miss Kendall was getting a salary sufficiently remunerative to meet the case.

His lordship said that what was wanted was an interim interdict. You want me (he said to the agent) to kill her engagement.

Mr. Angus Campbell: And in the middle of the week, too.

The Sheriff added that such an application, although in the form of interdict, was in fact taking money out of her pocket. Supposing he granted that, and supposing he was wrong, she would not get her money back. She might get it out of applicants, but not her earnings. Interdict, he pointed out, was a very drastic remedy—the stopping of a person's bread and butter. The agreement was not sufficiently clear to enable him to take the responsibility of applying such a drastic remedy, and accordingly his lordship refused the application.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

Extremely varied and interesting is the programme submitted at the Holloway Empire this week, and if the entertainment does not quite include Shakespeare and the musical glasses, it may be said to contain many compensating attractions. Amongst these Manning's Entertainers, in a second edition of The Hotel Boots, can with confidence be recommended as an effective antidote to melancholia. Mr. Manning, himself in the title-rôle, may be relied upon to evoke hearty merriment by his quaint manner and comical expression of face. He is assisted by a comedian who undertakes several characters, and a couple of youths who are very smart acrobats. All sorts of devices are introduced with the object of causing merriment, and there is not a pause in the flow of fun from beginning to end. An infant is deposited in a machine labelled "Baby Incubator," and after a time emerges a full-grown man, with hoary locks. Many other ludicrous incidents help to strengthen the predominant comedy elements, and altogether one's encounter with the Hotel Boots is a decidedly amusing and pleasant experience, which can safely be recommended to the dyspeptic and the depressed.

Quite a remarkable performance is given by Mme. Marzello's birds, who display all the intelligence seen in carefully-trained trick dogs. The cockatoos seem to take the lead in the show. One of them picks out the letters, which spell the words, "King Edward," and another wonderful accomplishment is the selection of the flags of various nations. Another cockatoo throws all the flags on the stage except the Union Jack, for which, explains Mme. Marzello, the bird entertains too much respect. A miniature cannon is next produced, fired off, and one of the feathered bipeds falls down apparently dead. The body is placed in a tiny hearse, which is propelled by several of the survivors. A trained black cockatoo is quite a novelty, and so, too, is a bird belonging to the same family that does backward somersaults. This is, we are given to understand, the first bird that has been taught to perform this trick. Lastly, several of the birds enjoy the delights of a roundabout drawn by a small dog in the guise of a pony, while a cockatoo turns the handle of a miniature barrel-organ. Mme. Marzello, at the beginning of her entertainment, introduces a number of pigeons, who settle upon her head and shoulders, and when thrown into the air at once return to her.

Mr. R. H. Douglass, the clever comedian, is here this week, appearing in his latest character, that of Dedshaw, the private detective, who narrates marvellous incidents illustrative of his sagacity and perceptive powers as a follower of Sherlock Holmes. In the pursuit of his investigations he adopts various disguises. He gives three specimens, appearing first as a masher, next as a curate who speaks in the sing-song style characteristic of his kind, and, lastly, as an old miser who gloats over his gold, after the manner of Gaspard. Mr. Douglass, as usual, works hard, and his efforts are crowned with complete success. Miss Hetty King, fresh from pantomime successes, is both clever and attractive, and her latest songs are received with demonstrations of delight. She appears first as a young man about town, and sings "When a fellow's twenty-one" with much spirit. She next represents a sailor lad, with an appropriate ditty, "Jack's Ashore," and a hornpipe. Lastly, Miss King appears as a smart young officer in the army, who is also given to song and dance. Mason and Bart, in the rôles of Captain Kettle and the tourist, deserve every credit for an exceedingly clever gymnastic performance on the bars; and Lady Fauntleroy successfully introduces her ventriloquial chum, "Dan, the Blue-coat Boy," whose remarks are very pert and to the point. Mr. Burt Shepard, comedian, is good both in song and story. He has a neat parody on "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye," and altogether is assured of a cordial reception. Miss Marie Collins sings "My Juliette" with much spirit; Mora and Lola do very well in their musical act; and the Reid-Oetzman troupe cause much laughter in their bustling pantomime, On Tour in the Tyrol. The orchestra, under the musical direction of Mr. Henry W. May, deserves a word of praise; and Mr. Chas. W. Adams, the acting-manager, is making active preparations for the forthcoming benefit performance in aid of the Great Northern Hospital.

MESSRS. MASKELYNE AND DEVANT, of St. George's Hall, are offering a prize of £50 for the best title for a new trick which they have just invented. In the course of the trick a man is securely fastened to an iron frame, which is so constructed that the captive is bound round the neck, wrists, waist, and feet to a heavy iron bar. The locks and fastenings of the frame may be freely examined by the audience. The iron frame, with the man attached to it, is then placed in a small box, which is put together on the stage. The box is then suspended in mid-air, and while it is in that position something happens. Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant wish to keep the conclusion of the trick as a little surprise for their audiences, and the prize of £50 will be awarded to the sender of the best title which describes the trick without indicating exactly what happens in the performance. We may add that the "occurrence" is quite different from that which usually brings a trick of this kind to a close. The first performance of the trick will take place on Monday afternoon.

"VARIETY FAIR."

MR. ARTHUR SHIRLEY'S 100TH "BOOK."

Novelty is the keynote of the new production down for March 12 at the Coliseum. It is entitled Variety Fair, and is Mr. Arthur Shirley's 100th "book." The idea of the play, which will last two hours, is the outcome of efforts Mr. Oswald Stoll has for some time been making to get variety turns to alter their business more frequently than they do. As the head of "the largest aggregation of variety theatres in the world," Mr. Stoll gets frequent letters of complaint from patrons because, year after year, artists go round the tour giving the same business. As one correspondent recently wrote, "What would you think of me if I insisted on telling you the same old story every time I met you? Again, what would you think of me if every time I told you that story, I charged you a shilling for it?"

Accordingly, in Variety Fair, Mr. Arthur Shirley has devised a plot in which it will be possible for first-class variety artists to join forces with "legitimate" actors. The former will be required to go upon the stage at any and every time required by the action of the piece, and deliver whatever lines may be allotted to them. This, of course, is nothing more or less than the same artists are required to do in the pantomime season

The interpreters of Variety Fair will include the old Savoy comedian, Mr. R. Morand; Miss Millicent Marsden, not so long since seen as Mrs. Madison Crocker, in The Prince of Pilsen; Miss Clarissa Talbot, who took the part of Nance, in Orlando Dando; Mr. Charles Trevor, so popular at Drury Lane; Miss Millie Hylton, of Gaiety and music hall renown; the famous Boisset Troupe of Pantomimists; the American comedienne, Belle Davis, and her piccaninnies; George Lashwood, than whom none other is better fitted to take the part of "the man about town"; Mr. Eugene Stratton, "the dandy-coloured coon"; and a couple of comical Welsh servants, Ted and May Hopkins, who promise to show audiences what a wooing in the Land of the Leek is like.

In the first scene Mr. Juffins, a most conventional suburban villa resident, imagines that by an accident he has murdered his best friend. He insists on his wife and daughter leaving the country immediately with him. They pack up whatever luggage they can, and drive to the nearest railway terminus. There they get mixed up with a touring theatrical company, which is setting out for a Midland town. How Juffins is mistaken for a celebrated actor, and made to attend a dress rehearsal at a well-known theatre, whilst he is in an agony of fear lest he should be arrested, is the axis on which many amusing situations are made to revolve.

Mr. Shirley's life has been full of incident. He was educated at a collegiate school, where the head master wrote plays which the pupils acted. At sixteen Shirley was packed off to Paris to learn French. This he succeeded in doing chiefly in the pits of minor theatres. A few years later he became interpreter to the Comédie-Française. At the end of that season Mr. Shirley made up his mind to become an actor, so he took what turned out to be a very unprofitable engagement with a bogus manager, and was promptly stranded. After many wanderings and hungry moments, he found himself at Southend. Hamlet was being played at the local theatre. Laertes fell ill, and Mr. Shirley applied for the part. He got it, and made "good." Having played some 200 parts in Shakespeare, old comedy, modern drama, and farce, Mr. Shirley next wrote melodramas industriously for the Elephant and Castle Theatre. The late George Conquest, of Grecian and Surrey fame, next commissioned him to write a drama, which is now known as The Grip of Iron. This was ultimately sold for a trifle, and has been played over 5000 times. This fact worries Mr. Shirley to this day for obvious financial reasons.

Collaboration has always been a strong point with Mr. Shirley. Once he wrote his share of three plays at one time. This is how he did it: From 11 to 1.30 he worked with Collaborator No. 1; from 3 to 5 he was conferring with No. 2; and from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. with No. 3. Among his collaborators have been Messrs. George R. Sims, Benjamin Landeck, and many other dramatists

"MALUMA," "Farewell, my little bushmate," and "Why don't you paddle your own canoe?" are the respective titles of three songs by Lawrence, Gifford, and Mellor. They may be sung without fee on application to Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

A ROLLICKING sea song, entitled "A jolly little sailor boy," by Francis Barron and J. Airlie Dix, has been acquired by the Charing Cross-road music-publishing house.

MR. HARRY REYNOLDS, the proprietor and originator of Reynolds's Anglo-American Minstrels, is introducing a minstrelsy turn with great success in the halls. His quintet of melodists appear with black faces, and their choice blending of melody and mirth is making a big hit on the Barrasford tour.

MR. GEORGE W. BYNG'S fine orchestra at the Alhambra has during the current week been performing Reginald Allan's fine valse "Congratulations." Mr. James M. Glover's beautiful music in the grand ballet Parisiana was orchestrated by this rising composer, who is a younger brother of the late Ernest Allan.

THE Music Publishers and Concert Assistants' Provident Society will hold its annual Bohemian concert on Thursday evening next in the Queen's (small) Hall. Ladies are specially invited. The proceeds are in aid of the benevolent fund attached to the society.

THE PRODUCTION OF BALLETS

CHAT WITH MR. CHARLES WILSON.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

"What should be the first object of a ballet?"

Mr. Charles Wilson, the inventor and producer of many successful "divertissements" at the Alhambra Theatre was not slow to answer the question.

"When the board of directors have decided that a new ballet shall be put on, the first thing I do is to consider the subject as if I were an ordinary member of the playgoing public. I realise that a man does not pay to go into a theatre for the purpose of being instructed. He wants to be amused, and therein lies the object to be aimed at."

"You then have to decide upon a period of history which will allow you to use your stage as a show-ground for the costumes and scenic effects. Another most necessary thing is such an arrangement of the dances as will give the musical composer an opportunity of relief in the style of his composition. But, after all, the main consideration never to be lost sight of is this:—We are trying to play for the public, and the public tastes must be studied. A ballet is the most difficult form of entertainment in the world so far as securing the attention of the audience is concerned. In the case of a musical comedy you have songs which will bolster up the story and make up for a weak plot. It is a very different matter with a ballet, where you depend so much upon action, dresses, scenery, and music. Then, as you know, we are not allowed a plot or anything in the nature of a continued story. We must simply have little passing events, and if our ballet consists of four or five scenes there must be no continuity between any of the different scenes. We have to be on our p's and q's on this point since the legal trouble over Carmen."

"The chief difficulties of production, Mr. Wilson?"

"Money is the primary one. You must find out how much a generous board will allow you. As a rule, a definite sum is stated. Next you must get hold of an idea or a theme—preferably new or novel, if there be such a thing in the world—which will be interesting to the public and which will afford you an opportunity of a display of costumes framed in by good scenic effects. It is important, too, as I have already stated, that the composer of the music be given scope to display his talents. And now you have it in a nutshell—money, music, and costumes are the three absolute necessaries."

"May I pry into the question of the cost of a ballet—the initial production only, I mean?"

"£4,000 to £7,000. If you have a ballet divertissement with only one scene the cost might not exceed £4,000, but where there are three or four scenes you can go far towards doubling that amount. The dresses, which are always elaborate, account for a good deal of the money."

"The idea of writing and inventing ballets," said Mr. Wilson, in reply to another query, "came to me quite suddenly, although I had been intimate with this form of entertainment for several years, as during my association with the Italian Opera Company a ballet was always considered an adjunct to the programme. When Mr. C. Dundas Slater took over the management of the Alhambra I joined him. The directors at that time considered that ballets were either unremunerative or were not wanted by the public, and it was generally thought that they intended to abolish them. However, business not improving to the extent anticipated, the directors held a special board meeting, and decided to produce a ballet. I was allowed four weeks in which to produce it. I looked through all the papers at the Alhambra in the hope of finding a suitable scenario which someone might have sent in on spec., but not one could I find. I told Mr. Slater of the enormous difficulties which lay in my path, and his reply was that he had promised the directors that the ballet should be put on at the date they specified, and he left it to me to make all the necessary arrangements. Well, to cut a long story short, it struck me, while riding in a cab, that I might make up some sort of a story out of the death of Nelson, and I hung on to the idea until I felt absolutely certain that a divertissement could be invented out of it. In three hours I had written the scenario of Jack Ashore, opening out a new and original plan in the direction of speaking and singing parts. That was the most successful ballet we have ever had at the Alhambra, and it formed the foundation of putting the theatre on a proper definite footing so far as this class of entertainment was concerned. And since then, mind you, we have had no two ballets of the same type, our aim being to do something as different as possible from what we have done before. Notions as to other ballets have occurred to me in various ways. I was once on a visit to Scotland and saw the name of Gretna Green at one of the railway stations. A pretty story immediately suggested itself to my mind—and you know what was the outcome of it. The Devil's Forge owed its origin to a picture I was looking at a couple of years ago."

"What about your present ballet, Parisiana?"

"Well, so far as the opening is concerned, I have taken a leaf out of the book of Dumas, and the first scene will play on the doings of the Comtesse de Chaney. Then we wander away from that character, because we are not allowed to have anything like a story."

"Foreign ballets of any description are much more elastic in the way of treatment than English ballets. You have better opportunities for scenic effects and costuming by placing the story of your locale on the Continent. If you keep to the up-to-date English ideas, you are outclassed. Modern women's dresses are old-fashioned in six months' time in this country."

Mr. Wilson's professional career has been a pretty eventful one. He commenced in 1872 at Drury Lane as chief librarian for the Italian Opera Company under J. H. Mapleson, sen., the conductor of the orchestra at that time being Sir Michael Costa. After a tour as assistant stage-manager for Sir Augustus Harris, he became, through a rather strange series of circumstances, appointed stage-manager. The Italian Opera Company were announced to appear at Liverpool, and Harris, owing to his having had a dispute with a certain prominent gentleman, refused to enter the theatre. The piece was William Tell, and Harris, not wishing that the performance should be a bad one, stood outside the stage-door and gave instruction to Mr. Wilson, who was obliged to keep running in and out. Leaving Sir Augustus, Mr. Wilson went to America with Mr. Mapleson, again as librarian, afterwards joining Mr. Henry Abbey as stage-manager for his season with Madame Patti in Mexico, California, and the States. He was then offered the stage-management of the Empire Theatre, London, where he remained for four years, afterwards accepting a tempting offer from Mr. Oscar Hammerstein for the Manhattan Theatre in New York, which house, amalgamated with Koster and Bial's, was eventually turned into a music hall. Mr. Wilson was associated with that place of entertainment when Mr. Albert Chevalier and Miss Cissie Loftus made first appearances there. Returning to England some time later, Mr. Wilson was engaged by Mr. George Edwardes to look after the latter's touring companies, only severing his connection with the famous Gaiety manager to take up the position of stage-manager at the Alhambra shortly after Mr. C. Dundas Slater entered upon his duties as manager.

HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS.

No. 4.

MR. WILLIAM BARBOUR.

Mr. William Barbour, the electrician at the St. James's Theatre, comes of a theatrical family. His father was master gasman at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, for twenty-five years, and invented the limelight tank and the medium sliders used for footlights in place of the old argand burners.

Mr. William Barbour commenced his theatrical career when only thirteen years of age, first as "call boy," and then in the gas department, at the Royal Theatre, under his father. He was there six years, and went from that house to the Royalty Theatre, where he was gasman for six years. While at the Royalty Theatre he got employment in the day-time with the old Brush Electric Light Company to learn all he could of electricity. Mr. Barbour left Glasgow to take charge of the electricians' department at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, for Messrs. Howard and Wyndham. While there he was engaged by Mr. H. J. Loveday to join the late Sir Henry Irving's staff for an American tour, and was in charge of the limelight effects during the tour of Faust. Mr. Barbour was with Sir Henry Irving for four years, during which period he toured four times through the United Kingdom. In 1890 he accompanied Sir Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry on an eight weeks' reading tour through the provinces, when they recited the tragedy of "Macbeth." The footlights and battens used by the late Mr. Charles Dickens in his tour round the world were used in this tour. On the termination of the tour Miss Ellen Terry gave Mr. Barbour a handsome present.

Mr. Barbour left the Lyceum Theatre, London, to take up the position of electrician at the St. James's Theatre for Mr. George Alexander, a position he has now held for some twelve or thirteen years. He has toured the United Kingdom nine seasons with Mr. Alexander, with whom he has also been to Balmoral. He was also a week at Sandringham with the late Sir Henry Irving. Mr. Barbour claims that the St. James's Theatre has one of the most effective switch-boards in London. It carries 600 ampères, four colours throughout. The electric battens can be worked from any angle. A special independent switch-board under the stage may be used to give separate control of the footlights. By means of this switch-board floats may be cut out and the number of lights and the colours regulated. The St. James's Theatre is provided with the most modern heating, cooling, and ventilating apparatus. Hot-water pipes heat, when necessary, every part of the house, hot baths are provided for the use of members of the company. Cold air and fresh air can be distributed, and the air that is not fresh can be drawn from the theatre. This plant is under the supervision of Mr. Barbour.

Mr. Barbour is a man of considerable practical experience, to whom the scientific and artistic side of his profession is attractive. His skill as an expert in stage lighting has elicited praise from some of our more famous scenic artists.

Mr. Barbour is one of the founders of the Heads of Departments Association, for which he has been one of the honorary secretaries since its formation. He has also taken an active interest in the theatrical sports and concerts, and other efforts to establish good feeling among all ranks of the stage staff, and to provide means for their mutual benefit. As a conscientious and experienced master in his profession he is deservedly esteemed by all who know him.

THE NEW EMPIRE, JOHANNESBURG.

The new Empire, Johannesburg, that is being built by Messrs. Hyman will be in the heart of the city, standing on an entire block, bounded by Commissioner, Market, and Kruis Streets. The architects are Messrs. McIntosh and Moffat, and the contractors Messrs. Gabriel and Ballantine. The buildings will be completed on May 1, and will comprise a three-tier music hall, with shops and offices. On the ground floor extensive fauteuils are provided, and orchestra stalls; on the first floor are to be boxes and dress circle; and on the top floor a magnificent gallery. There are eighteen boxes, backed by a beautiful foyer, a special entrance to this part of the house being provided in Kruis-street. The building will be entirely fireproof, and is constructed on the latest cantilever principles, there being in the whole pile but two columns, and these are so disposed as not to obstruct the view of the stage. The whole of the interior decorations will be in fibrous plaster; the scheme of colour is green and gold; and the bar fittings, and the whole of the interior woodwork will be in Australian cedar. The main entrance (which is 25ft. wide and 35ft. long) is in Commissioner-street. Opening out of it is the handsome vestibule of white marble, which will form an antechamber to a magnificent crush-room, fitted with every convenience, such as writing tables and materials, a public telephone, and lounges. Leading from this on either side are retiring rooms, ladies' boudoir, &c.

The whole of the stalls, and, in fact, the whole of the building, will be carpeted with a specially-woven green Wilton carpet, of which no fewer than 2,000 yards will be required. The fauteuils and boxes will be furnished luxuriously, the latter having lounge chairs and tables. On each floor have been fitted up very handsome promenades. That on the stalls level is 56ft. by 120ft. The four bars on the same level are 40ft. by 30ft., and, as far as the visitors' comfort is concerned, are absolutely perfect.

The ceiling will be handsomely frescoed, and the friezes artistically panelled. There will be 250 hidden lights, arranged in such a way that, although they cannot be seen by the audience, they will cast a reflection over the entire auditorium. The tops of the boxes are illuminated with 100 lights in a similar manner, by which means a beautiful effect is obtained. Nernst lamps will be employed in theatrical lighting for the first time. Over 1,500 incandescent lamps will be required in the whole building, and there will be arc lamps outside, and 70 Nernst lamps for the foyers and bars. 120 lamps will be fitted into the ornamentation around the balcony, and 16 of the arc lamps referred to will be employed for the illumination of the spacious verandahs. The stage and dressing-rooms are being fitted up on the latest principles, and each of the latter is supplied with hot and cold water, and a suite of furniture. All the dressing-rooms are also carpeted, and the lamps are portable and protected. A handsome green room is fitted up at the side of the stage for the exclusive use of artists while waiting their turn. This room is 35ft. by 24ft., and is fitted up with every convenience. Particular attention is being devoted to the ventilation. Large fans will be worked by motors behind the stage, and these will force air of any required temperature into the building. The temperature will be kept at the same level all the year round, and so that there shall be no draught, the floor under each seat will be perforated with small holes, through which the fresh air will be forced. The foul air will be drawn out by two immense fans in the roof. The entrances and exits are the most complete ever put into a South African building. The occupants of the stalls will have four—one into Market-street, one into Commissioner-street, and two into Kruis-street; the circle, one into Commissioner-street and two into Market-street; and the gods exeunt into Kruis-street and into Market-street.

The building and ground are costing £120,000. The whole of the ground floor, which will seat 400 people, is fitted with handsome lounge arm-chairs. The circle, which will seat 275, and the gallery, which will accommodate 300, are fitted with tip-up seats, and the eighteen boxes will take from four to seven persons each. The whole of the seating throughout the building is covered in handsome embossed green pegamoid.

A LOAN AND PROVIDENT FUND has been started by the staff of the Walthamstow Palace. Mr. Arthur J. Barclay is trustee and treasurer and Mr. A. E. Hill (box office) secretary. Only members of the establishment will be eligible to join.

MISS WINIFRED HARE'S new "march" song, "The girl he left behind him," with which she will shortly open at the Tivoli and Oxford, has been specially written and composed for her by Messrs. John P. Harrington and Jas. W. Tate; while the two other numbers she will produce at the same time, viz., "Gentle Genevieve" and "One little lonely star," are also from the pen of Mr. Harrington, the music having been composed by the late Mr. George Le Brunn.

MISS LUCRETIA has been re-engaged by Messrs. Moore and Kennedy for the part of principal boy in their pantomime, 1906-7, at a big increase of salary.

THROUGH FIRE AND WATER.

"FI-WA" IS THE ONLY CLOTH

Which will withstand the Wear and Tear of all the Elements, and is the Ideal Cloth for

UNIFORMS and LIVERIES

For THEATRICAL ATTENDANTS, DOORMEN, FIREMEN, &c.

"FI-WA" signifies "Through Fire and Water."
"FI-WA" is so named because of its being proved to be specially suitable for "Fire Brigade Uniforms," and its capacity to resist the wear and tear of the elements, being superior to any other cloth at present before the public.
"FI-WA" is impervious to wet, and has come unscathed through fire and water, resisting the great strain of many successive years' wear even of a fireman's duties.
"FI-WA" is unequalled for strength and durability, and is indispensable to Seamen and Firemen, and all who are called upon to do battle with the elements.
"FI-WA" has stood the test of electrically-driven Goodbrand's machines, the most powerful Government test extant (as disclosed by the "Bradford Conditioning House" Certificates in our Catalogue).
"FI-WA" being pure indigo dyed, will never change its colour, and is guaranteed fast against sea air and sunshine, and has stood the Nitric Acid test, the true test for pure indigo.
"FI-WA" is the ideal cloth for Uniforms and Liveries. Shipping and Railway Companies, Corporations, Theatre and Music Hall Proprietors, Motorists, &c., &c., will find nothing to equal it in quality or price
"FI-WA" makes the finest attire for everybody requiring clothing that will resist the strain of all weathers and climates.
"FI-WA" is not more expensive than ordinary cloths, yet it lasts three times as long.
"FI-WA" is supplied direct from MANUFACTURER to WEARER, thus saving all intermediate profits, and enabling "H. & E." to offer all Uniforms, Garments, &c., made therefrom at a price that places it within the reach of all.
"FI-WA" is only obtainable from the sole manufacturers.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The Guild executive, having shown their determination to carry the matter through to a finish with the Pontefract Corporation over their proposed Bill dealing with the show business, now find that negotiations with a view to a settlement are possible. This of course is good news; but it only proves what we have said over and over again, and showmen ought to make a note of, that public bodies will not surrender to reason and compromise until they find that the game of bluff and evasion is played out.

If the issues were not too serious for jesting, it would be comical indeed to notice the surprise and consternation of the official mind, when they find that the organised showmen have followed up their words by action, and the petition is not only lodged in proper order and form, but that its very reasonableness is likely to impress the Private Bills Committee.

Our point of serious moment to showmen is that they must never relax their vigilance or determination to oppose all restrictive measures against their business. The official mind will in the end grasp the truth that clauses for additional powers to restrict the show business, or to abolish public holidays, will be met and defeated in every case. When this is clearly understood, then will come peace in the showman world; until then, it is war, war, and a fight to a finish.

As an example of the evasive tricks of the official mind, we give the quite recent case—the proposed abolition of Shipdham Fair, a small pleasure fixture in Norfolk. The local showmen and their friends sent the newspaper-cuttings on the matter to the Showmen's Guild. The executive officials, in order to have both sides of the subject, asked the clerk to the local authority to furnish them with the official reasons of the District Council for taking the serious step of petitioning the Home Secretary to abolish the fair.

Knowing full well that in less than a week the Home Office would deal with the matter, the clerk returned the baldest acknowledgment of the receipt of the letter from the Guild, and the polite assurance that he would lay it before his Board at their next meeting. The object of this was obvious—it was to put off the showmen preparing or stating their case until it was too late and the matter had been closed against them.

This policy of evasion has frequently been tried by public bodies when dealing with the Guild. In no single instance, however, has it succeeded, for the Guild have gone forward on their own lines, independent of lack of information from official quarters. The Guild executive know with whom they have to deal; but we can well imagine how misleading this policy of official put-off would be to an individual showman trying to get justice done without the aid of a powerful trade organisation and expert advisers. The end would be injustice and the triumph of narrow-minded faction against the time-honoured pleasures and holidays of the people, and the showmen, their servants.

In no single instance has the Guild incurred the cost of petitioning without exhausting all the means of correspondence and interview with corporations and their officials, and we regret that, in many cases, the most scant attention and courtesy have been shown the pacific efforts of the Guild, until the petition has been actually lodged, and large official expense incurred.

Every pacific effort has been made, both by showmen residents and by the Guild officials, to come to working terms with the New Brighton authorities, to drop their penal clauses in the Wallasey Bill, to be considered in the House of Lords; but with no satisfactory result. The petition against it reads as follows:—

To the RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORDS SPIRITUAL AND TEMPORAL of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in PARLIAMENT assembled.
THE HUMBLE PETITION of PATRICK COLLINS, HENRY JAMES WALLIS, FLORA COLLINS, PATRICK COLLINS, Jun., and JAMES RAVENSCROFT.

Sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter referred to as "the Bill") is now pending in your Right Honourable House, intituled "An Act to authorise the Wallasey Urban District Council to construct tramways street improvements promenades and a marine lake and to make further provision in regard to their gas water electricity ferries and tramways undertakings and the health local government and improvement of their district and for other purposes."

2. The promoters of the Bill are the Urban District Council of Wallasey (hereinafter called "the Council").

3. Your Petitioners are proprietors of travelling shows, &c., and for the purposes of their calling have resorted, and still do resort, to the Urban District of Wallasey. Your Petitioners, their property, rights, and interests are injuriously affected by the Bill; and they object thereto for the reasons hereinafter stated.

4. By Clause 21 of the Bill it is proposed to be enacted as follows:—

"The Council may make by-laws for the preservation of order and good conduct among persons resorting to the foreshore and seashore in the district and to the open lands adjoining the same and for the regulation or prohibition of the placing of stalls or stands or of hawking thereon."

5. By Clause 122 of the Bill it is further proposed to enact:—

"(1) No person shall in any street or public place or on any land adjoining or near to any street or public place use or play or cause to be used or played any steam organ or other musical instrument worked by mechanical or other means to the annoyance or disturbance of residents or passengers.

"(2) Any person who shall offend against this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds."

6. Your Petitioners humbly submit that no necessity can be made out for the enactment of any further or other provisions than already exist for the preservation of order and good conduct among persons resorting to the foreshore and seashore within the district of the Council. And they also submit that power should not be conferred upon the Council which would enable them to prohibit the placing of stalls or stands on the said foreshore and seashore.

7. Your Petitioners further submit that any annoyance or disturbance arising from the use of steam organs or other similar instruments can be dealt with under the existing law, and that any further provisions in that behalf are unnecessary.

8. The preamble of the Bill is unfounded and incapable of proof.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray your Right Honourable House that the Bill may not pass into law as it now stands, and that they may be heard by themselves, their Counsel, Agents, and Witnesses, against the Preamble and Clauses thereof, and, in the event of the Preamble being proved, then in support of such Clauses and Provisions as may be necessary for their protection and benefit, and that your Right Honourable House may grant to your Petitioners such further and other relief in the premises as to your Right Honourable House may seem meet.

And your Petitioners will ever pray,

PATRICK COLLINS.
HENRY JAMES WALLIS.

JAMES RAVENSCROFT.

A case of considerable hardship to an individual showman has been engaging the attention and enlisting the active assistance of the Rev. T. Horne, the hon. chaplain of the Showmen's Guild.

For many years past Mr. Ellis, a highly-respected London showman, has had a set of steam-gallopers at Chingford, a well-known pleasure resort in Epping Forest. This machine has been a source of delight to thousands of schoolchildren taken to the Forest for their annual outing, hundreds of thousands of visitors, mainly school and Congregational parties, using Chingford for this purpose every summer, children from the East and North of London largely predominating. Until this year Mr. Ellis has had his licence to run the machine from the Verderers of the Forest without denial or delay; for some unknown reason this has been now refused, and an intimation given him that no roundabouts will be allowed on the open pleasure spaces in the Forest.

No reason is given. No complaint against Mr. Ellis nor grievance by the people of Chingford has been alleged. Nothing but the arbitrary fiat, "No roundabouts will be licensed." Mr. Ellis, however, is not without friends and local influence. Amongst these friends of the showman he told his case to Mr. Horne.

The immediate result was a conference of Mr. Ellis's friends at The Era offices, and the arranging of a plan of campaign with the object of getting the Verderers of the Forest and the City Council Committee of the Forest to reconsider its adverse decision.

A numerously signed petition is to be presented by an influential deputation at the next meeting of the Verderers.

Mr. Horne has had the most hearty co-operation of clergy in all parts of London, not only in signing the petition for a renewal of the roundabout licence, but also in strong expressions of satisfaction with the special care and attention that Mr. Ellis and his son (who is with him in the business) give to schoolchildren. The head teachers of large schools readily endorse these encomiums of the clergy, and the opinion is universal that the withdrawal of the roundabouts from the pleasure spaces in the Forest will greatly depreciate their value as holiday resorts for schools.

Mr. Ellis has the sympathy of the whole body of open-air traders and the residents of Chingford, where he has resided for many years. We sincerely trust that the efforts now being made on his behalf will be crowned with success.

Negotiations of a most hopeful kind have been opened by the Showmen's Guild with the Corporation of Pontefract. A full and frank exchange of views has led to a better understanding on both sides, and, as we have already said, the aspect of affairs is hopeful.

Pontefract is an old—very old—Charter Fair, in addition to which there are races three times a year and the Statute Hiring Fair in November. The Charter Fairs date from the reign of Richard III., and are set out in the charter as follows:—"Yearly two fairs there (to wit), the one fair of them upon a Palm Sunday in Quadragesima, and to continue for six days next proceeding, and the other fair upon the Feast and Lord's Day of the Holy undivided Trinity, and to continue for six days next proceeding, together with all liberties, rights, privileges, and appurtenances, to these fairs."

The Statute Hirings are held on the first Thursday in November, and this fair has become for many years past the principal one, although good business may be done on the race days. We are informed that at the Statute Hirings the concerns fix up a few days before and continue for several days after the fair, although the Statute only provides the one day.

This has been done with the hearty consent of the Corporation; the only embargo that has hitherto been exercised was over show and other erections on the race days.

That old and tried friend of the showman Mr. C. D. Williams, of Wooburn Green, sends us the following warning note about the fair:—

TOLLS FOR WOOBURN FAIR.

The Council discussed for some time the question of fixing tolls for Wooburn Fair, held on the Village Green, which has come under the control of the Parish Council. On the proposition of Councillor Eccles, seconded by Councillor Child, it was resolved to charge the following tolls:—Traction engines, 7s. 6d. each; stalls, 6d.; caravans, 6d.; roundabouts, 2s. 6d. It was pointed out by the Clerk and the Chairman that the glass-bottle shooting galleries did a lot of damage by the broken glass, and that after the show people had left, a large quantity of broken glass had to be cleared away. The Chairman expressed an opinion that people with such galleries ought to pay more toll, but the Council did not fall in with the suggestion. On the motion of Councillor Norman, seconded by Councillor Eccles, it was unanimously decided to charge a toll of 1s. each for all kinds of shooting galleries, swings, and cocoanut shies, and 2s. 6d. each for exhibitions.

The Clerk was instructed to send copies of the list of tolls to the Van-Dwellers' Association and to Mr. Watson Wright, the solicitor to the same.

The very useful booklet of Cattle and other Fairs and fixtures issued by the Publicity Department of the Great Northern Railway is to hand. We recommend showmen and other amusement caterers who desire to break new ground, or who wish to arrange for possibly vacant dates in their yearly route, to send to the General Manager's office, King's Cross, for a copy. It is supplied free. Besides cattle and horse fairs there are exhaustive lists of agricultural shows, dog and poultry shows, and racing fixtures. The 1906 edition of "The Showmen's Year" is now on sale at The Era Offices. Price to non-subscribers to the Guild funds, 1s.; to Guild members and subscibers it is issued free. There are only a limited number of copies available for the general public.

There are many new and useful features in the 1906 issue. Principally amongst these will be found a short appreciation, with portrait, of the veteran showman, Lord George Sanger, the President of the Guild and doyen of the circus world; portraits, with short biographies, of Messrs. Hurst, Hartshorn, Payne, Tom Norman, and R. Mackney; portraits of the Rev. T. Horne and F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., of The Era; British shows and showmen; the story of the rise and progress of the Showmen's Guild; a concise synopsis of by-laws affecting the show business; the constitution and rules of the Guild; general and local fair lists; and many other items of exclusive information and original and copyright matter.

With Lynn Mart the great round of English fairs begins. From Lynn, the next fixture in Norfolk is Downham Market, then on to Wisbech. In Lancashire we have the opening of the season at Bury on the 5th, followed by Colne, and the spring fair at Stockport, dated for the 15th; then Congleton and Clitheroe.

The Roundabout Proprietors and Showmens Union have a business meeting at Bury this week. For place, and time of gathering, see their advertisement.

This Union also controls the spring fair at Stockport, dated March 15-22. See their announcement on the matter.

SHOWMEN OF TO-DAY.

(By the Rev. T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain the Showmen's Guild.)

WILLIAM CLARK.

The Clarks are a numerous clan in the Showman World of to-day, "even unto the third and fourth generation."

The great progenitor of the race, Wm. Clark, sen., a nonagenarian showman, is living in honoured retirement in Manchester, from which the race sprang.

The greatest showman of the clan is the subject of this short appreciation, professionally known on the fair-grounds of the kingdom as Colonel Wm. Clark, of cinematograph celebrity.

The story of the rise and progress of the Clark family in the Showman World is a typical example of scores of families who have reached the top of the ladder of success in the fair-ground and open-air-amusement catering business.

The writer of this notice has far-away memories of the Clark family stretching over a period of nearly half a century.

These are the rungs of the ladder that the Clarks have successively and successfully mounted. From shooting gallery to peep-show, from peep-show to mechanical exhibition, from mechanical exhibition to wild-beast show, thence to waxworks, on to the great ghost illusion, and by natural order and sequence to cinematograph and its latest development, the portable coliseum of varieties and theatre of animated photography.

All through this story of the rise and progress of a typical show business the showman of the family par excellence has been the one and brilliantly successful "Colonel" Wm. Clark.

At the present moment the "Colonel's" clever son, another Wm. Clark, is in Scotland, running his own high-class cinematograph show.

It is a truism that "history repeats itself," for young Wm. Clark is enacting over again the memorable triumphs that his father achieved in Scotland some twenty years ago.

Colonel Clark's show takes the great Lancashire round, and is the universal favourite with the cotton workers in the great districts of Manchester, Oldham, Bolton, Wigan, Blackburn, Burnley, Stockport, Bury, and a score of other places in the Cotton Belt.

Wm. Clark has been identified with the Showmen's Guild from its very earliest days, and has done yeoman service, both as a public speaker and an executive officer. He is a vice-president, and a generous contributor to its funds.

In the winter season he stays with his first-class show for many weeks at a time in great centres of industry, and so popular is the entertainment he provides that he has crowded and appreciative audiences every night.

So creditable and acceptable is Clark's show, that upon many occasions he has received the patronage of the Mayor and Corporation in the towns he has visited.

He has not forgotten to support by numberless benefit performances local charities, and has thus endeared himself to the hearts of Lancashire folk, and has elevated the profession of the travelling showman in public esteem.

Although the father and grandfather of showmen, he is still in the prime and vigour of life, the Clarks being a long-lived family, as testified by the full ninety years of the head of the race, William of Manchester.

Messrs. Henry W. Iles and Co., the well-known concert agents, launched on Monday a new enterprise, "The St. Louis Animated Pictures." The opening took place at the Swimming Baths, Swindon, and to say that success was achieved would be but to mildly express it. The evening's show was a veritable triumph for all concerned. "The St. Louis Animated Pictures" will make a noise in the world—in fact, they have done so already—for every night this week Swindon's audiences have heard, as well as seen, that wonderful invention of Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co, "The Chronophone."

Mr. Henry Iles and his able manager, Mr. Hook, are enterprising men, who can see ahead, and have equipped their exhibition with his latest triumph of scientific and mechanical skill. On Monday night a crowded audience applauded the talking and singing pictures vociferously; in fact, so great was the demand for encores, that the operators often found it difficult to proceed with the next picture. Amongst the pictures reproduced by the Chronophone were Mr. R. G. Knowles singing some of his most popular songs; Mr. Joe Mack singing "Walking home with Angeline," "The Swing Song" from Veronique, "The Twin Duet" from The French Maid, and "The Whistling Bowery Boy." The Chronophone is assured of success, and will prove a big drawing card wherever exhibited. The ordinary pictures were all of them excellent, Elge films predominated—L. Gaumont and Co. again. Later reports to hand state that the bookings are phenomenal, and crowded audiences every night have given their unanimous verdict that the Chronophone is "the show" and the novelty that managers have so long been waiting for.

At the Hyde Borough Police Court on Monday, Wiliam Flaxman, a showman, employed at Sedgwick's Menagerie, which is at present on the Market Ground, was committed to Knutsford Quarter Sessions on the charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm upon Harry Williamson on Feb. 24. Williamson, who is a lad of eleven years of age, was peeping through the canvas to catch a glimpse of the animals, when it was alleged that Flaxman, who was working inside, stabbed him with a hay-fork, inflicting a dangerous wound on the forehead.

With Shrovetide, the great Midland route of fairs commences, under the management of P. Collins, Ltd. This round is fully set out by the enterprising Walsall firm in our showmen advertising columns.

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The Duel, a play in three acts, by Henri Lavedau, translated into English by Louis N. Parker, was produced by Mr. Charles Frohman at the Hudson Theatre on the 12th inst. It has aroused more than ordinary interest, and will undoubtedly prove one of the strongest attractions of the season. The duel is between two brothers, Daniel and Henri Morey. In his youth Daniel was a profligate; but he repented, joined the Church, and became the Abbé Daniel. Henri, on the other hand, was pious; but he also changed and became an atheist, taking up the profession of a doctor. Grown to manhood, the brothers are implicated in the affairs of the Duchess de Chailles, who has made an unfortunate marriage, her husband being a mental and physical wreck from taking morphine. He is an inmate of Dr. Morey's asylum, and the Duchess and the physician fall in love with each other. The unhappy woman seeks strength and comfort in the confessional, and the priest is the brother from whom Dr. Morey has long been estranged—the Abbé Daniel. Here, then, is the duel. The physician and atheist fights for the body, and the priest for the soul of the woman. There is no happiness but love, is the religion of the physician. There is no happiness but faith is that of the priest. The brothers meet and their relative positions are disclosed. In three strong scenes they struggle for supremacy, each in accordance with his own view, the drift of the drama being mainly argumentative, dealing as it does with the old warfare of religion and science. In the second act, Dr. Morey interrupts an interview between the Duchess and the Abbé Daniel in the latter's study, and is moved to frenzy at the discovery that it is not only a priest that has come between him and the woman he loves, but that the priest in question is his own brother. In the midst of a heated argument the Abbé is called to the bedside of a dying parishioner, and during his absence the doctor presses the arguments of natural human affection against those which he regards as mere mummery and superstition. The Duchess, apparently weakening, finds new strength when the Abbé returns, and departs, leaving the two men alone. Then the Doctor turns upon the Abbé, finally intimating that his brother's interest in the Duchess is not so spiritual as he would have himself believe. This suggestion is especially horrible to the Abbé, since it begins to dawn upon him that there may be a grain of truth in it. He replies vigorously, however, and finally, in a burst of impassioned eloquence, drives his brother from the room. In the last act, the Abbé, having decided to go away, advises the Duchess, who has contemplated entering a nunnery, that she is not fitted for the spiritual life. But, in her determination not to become a nun, she is influenced not by priestly admonition, but by the timely information that her husband has ended his miserable existence, and that the only real obstacle to her union with the physician has thus been removed.

Mr. Otis Skinner gives an earnest and impressive portrayal of the Abbé Daniel; and Miss Fay Davis depicts with much fidelity the emotions of the Duchess de Chailles. Mr. Guy Standing's Dr. Morey is an extraordinarily fine performance, and one that has earned much favourable comment. Mr. Eben Plympton's Monseigneur Boléne deserves high praise.

"Mr. Hopkinson," R. C. Carton's farce, made an instantaneous hit at the Savoy Theatre on the 12th inst., being delightfully acted by the English company sent over by Mr. Frank Curzon, by arrangement with Mr. James K. Hackett. The farce was received with much laughter, and the newspapers coupled its success with that of the immortal Charley's Aunt. Mr. Dallas Welford, literally "a stranger in New York," awoke the next morning and found himself famous. His "Hoppy" is a distinctly clever and amusing characterisation, and it has made its mark. From the moment of his first entrance it was evident that the audience was going to be immensely tickled by his life-like imitation of a contemptible little "bounder" breaking into society. Miss Annie Hughes gave an excellent impersonation of Eliza Dibb, and was an important factor in the success of Mr. Carton's play. Miss Elinor Foster, who has a gracious personality, created a very good impression as the Duchess of Braceborough. Miss Olive Temple as Lady Thyra Egglesby played the part of a handsome well-bred English girl to perfection. The Duke of Braceborough, admirably represented by Mr. H. Stephenson, was an interesting figure; and the Lord Gawthorpe of Mr. Howard Sturge was a praiseworthy portrayal. Mr. Fred Lewis as the Earl of Addleton, Mr. Charles Crawford as the Hon. Otho Dursingham, Mr. Hubert Druce as Mr. Smethurst, and Mr. Lewis Fielder as Parbury, were all very successful in their respective rôles.

Mr. Welford has introduced a new expression which is likely to become a catch phrase in New York. It is "Bunkey doodle." Every time that "Hoppy" said it the audience roared. Americans are fond of slang, and always keep a liberal supply on hand; but they appropriate a strictly English bit occasionally. There is certainly room for a little reciprocity, for while the Londoner's colloquialisms are largely local, the majority of the slang phrases used by Englishmen are unquestionably of American origin. And one has only to listen to the "up-to-date" dialogue of such plays as Mr. Hopkinson to discover that the use of American slang in England is decidedly on the increase. If this sort of thing goes on, the "common speech" so frequently referred to by the post-prandial orators on both sides of the water will soon be something more than a polite fiction.

Another London success, Mr. Sidney Bowkett's Lucky Miss Dean, has not been so well received here as it was on "the other side." Produced at the Madison-square Theatre, the comedy has just been withdrawn after a fortnight's run. The best feature of the performance was Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk's Wilfred Ashmole. His impersonation of that mercenary individual, with a facial make-up that betrayed his character, placed another clever bit of work to his credit. Mr. Gottschalk's portraitures are never lost in their settings. Miss Helen Grantly in the title-rôle, and Mr. William Courtleigh as Frederick Ware, won favourable mention; but the critics found the comedy "too thin," and only "mildly diverting."

Messrs. Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie visited Ilkeston on Monday, and gave two shows, which were largely attended.

Bostock and Wombwell's No. 1 Menagerie opened at Rovers' Ground, Eastville, Bristol, on Tuesday afternoon. There was a very large attendance from all parts of the city, and much interest was taken in the splendid and extensive collection, some of the exhibits being very rare. It is about five years since this menagerie visited Bristol.

The old fair at the City of Lichfield was held on Shrove Tuesday, being duly proclaimed by the Mayor and other civic authorities. The market square had been let by the City Council to Messrs. P. Collins and Co., Ltd., who provided a capital array of attractions, including their own cinématograph theatre, No. 1 cockerills, &c. Unfortunately the weather was bad, a snowstorm preventing all attempts at opening until late in the day.

Mr. John Whiting begins his round of spring fairs in the second week in March, and runs right away up to Easter, when he opens his well-known Easter round at Ordsall-lane, and carries it forward to the May Day Festival, at Knutsford, with other fixtures, linking up with the greater Manchester cycle of wakes under his control. See Mr. Whiting's advertisement this and following weeks.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

The meeting of Theatrical Carpenters, held last Sunday, was well attended. It was decided to hold the annual dinner on a Sunday evening next month. Representatives were appointed to a meeting which is being arranged in connection with the Theatrical Sports. The officers and committee of the society for the ensuing year were appointed.

Mr. Lionel Belmore has consented to take the chair at the annual dinner of the General Theatrical Operatives Sick and Benevolent Society, to be given on March 18 in the Salisbury Hotel. A few tickets, price 2s. 6d., are still available, and may be obtained from Mr. A. E. Wood, master carpenter, the Shaftesbury Theatre; or from Mr. Philip Thomas, Alhambra Theatre.

Arrangements are being made to form a branch of the National Association Theatrical Employées in Leicester. Local stage employees who are interested in the matter are invited to communicate with Mr. Branson, 212, Welford-road, Leicester.

The date fixed for the fourth annual dinner of the Heads of Departments Association is Sunday, April 8, and the dinner will be given in the Georgian Hall, New Gaiety Restaurant. The annual general meeting of members of this Association will be held next week, when the officers and committee for the ensuing year will be elected and other important business dealt with.

At a meeting of the General Staff Branch of the N.A.T.E. on Wednesday evening the question of the Theatrical Sports was considered. Messrs. Thorogood, Thomas, Porter, and Johnson were appointed to confer with representatives from other societies with regard to the arrangements for the Sports.

A meeting in connection with the Theatrical Regatta for 1906 will be held at the Freemason's Arms, Long Acre, on Sunday, at 8.30, to elect officers for the ensuing year. A cordial invitation is extended to all London and suburban theatres.

Mr. Albert Bushell, who manages the Birmingham Gaiety so wisely and well, was accorded a benefit on the 20th ult., when an audience of gigantic proportions testified their appreciation of the beneficiaire, and also their satisfaction in the programme, which comprised turns from all the local pantomimes and halls, in addition to the Gaiety show. Mr. Bushell was also supported by the leading proprietors, managers, and agents, and was presented, through Mr. Councillor Marsh, on behalf of the committee, with a case of cutlery, a pair of fruit spoons, a spirit flask from Mr. A. W. Matcham (Empire), a match-box and cigarette-holder, a silver egg-stand from the staff, a clock, a diamond ring, and a cheque from his directors. A cheque from his admiring friends was also forthcoming. Mrs. Bushell, for her amiable qualities, received a ruby and diamond ring, and Mr. Bushell presented umbrellas to Messrs. Camp, McCloud, and Smith. This was his sixth benefit, and Mr. Bushell, who is nothing if not genial and jocular, trusted "they might never turn him away," and so said all of the audience right heartily.

The Sheffield Photo Company, of 95, Norfolk-street, Sheffield, the makers of the famous "S.P.C." films, in order to cope with their increasing business, have taken over much larger premises at the West End, a large open-air theatre, new printing, developing, and operating rooms having been erected at the Bioscope Works, Upper Hanover-street. Facilities have now been obtained for turning out three times the quantity of films, and clients are invited with confidence to inspect the new showrooms.

Some of the "Friends of the Empire," including Mdlle. Genée, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hitchins, and Mr. Walter Dickson, were present at the birthday dinner given to their intimates by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hayes at the Cavour on Monday. The guests numbered about twenty, and Philippe's chef excelled himself, particularly in the omelette en surprise, which one diner pronounced a "dream."

At present rehearsals are in full swing at the Empire of both the forthcoming ballet Coppelia and the new revue Venus, 1906, the first being produced by Mr. Alexandre Genée, the well-known ballet director, and the other being under the care of the author, Mr. George Grossmith, jun. The ballet, the delightful music of which is well known, is by Léo Délibes, and is in two scenes, the first dealing with the tiff of a couple of lovers over a mechanical doll, the second somewhat reminiscent of La Poupée, of which Coppelia was the forerunner, showing how the misunderstanding is cleared up. Mdlle. Genée plays the part of Swanilda, and will present a character giving her more chances of showing her great talent as a dancer than she has had recently. Other principal characters in Coppelia are Franz, the sweetheart; Coppelias, the old doll-maker, and a burgomaster.

Next week there will be a considerable change in the programme at the Empire. Among the new turns are Signor Ancilotti and his clever dog, discovered in Paris by a well-known London clubman, who was so struck by their performance that he wrote and recommended them to the directors; the Three Braggs; the Otrebs, eccentric pantomimists; and Kelly and Rino, who describe themselves as comedy acrobats. The programme at the Empire still includes the ideal ballet Cinderella, with Mdlle. Genée in the chief part; The Bugle Call; Miss Marta Cunningham, a dramatic soprano; Miss Sybil Arundale, whose Irish songs in character seem to have caught on; and new pictures on the Biograph. Mr. Bransby Williams, who was to have returned to the Empire on Monday, has been so successful in pantomime at Liverpool that he has been given a fortnight's longer leave.

Selma Braatz, a young lady who has in an amazingly short space of time made herself specially famous as a juggler in this and other countries, is about to enter on an extended tour round the word, sailing on April 25 for America.

After an absence of four years from America, Paul Cinquevalli, the world-famed master of the art of juggling, who originated many of the most daring feats in his line, has been scoring a triumph at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre, New York.

The real or assumed ignorance of judges was once more exemplified at North London this week when Mr. George Gray applied for the licence of a little girl to play in The Road to Ruin at Hackney Empire. The magistrate insisted that a girl of eighteen or so was suitable to the play, and, when this contention was proved erroneous, he snapped out, "The smaller the girl, the smaller the salary, I suppose."

Regan and Ryan are again in a record pantomime success this year at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, which makes their eleventh consecutive year in record successes.—Haig and Novel deputised at the Empire, Leicester-square, for the Brittons, and were instantly booked, owing to their success.—After a successful run of five weeks at the Palace Chirgwin has been re-engaged for another five.

A CHARMING COMEDIENNE'S TESTIMONY TO PHONOZONE

MISS LILY STEWART, the well-known artist, was suffering from hoarseness, caused by having to scream in parts. After trying one bottle of PHONOZONE she wrote for a further supply, saying: "Please send me on a bottle of your medicine, Phonozone, as I find it very favourable for my voice."—Signed, LILY STEWART.

PHONOZONE is a refined and delicate tincture, having a marvellously restorative effect on the voice.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906. The thirty-ninth issue of "The Era" Annual has just appeared, and once more it supplies a useful record of the theatrical year. An editorial note reminds us that among the contributors to the first number, that of 1868, were E. L. Blanchard (its editor), Charles Mathews, T. W. Robertson, Andrew Halliday, H. J. Byron, Watts Phillips, and Dion Boucicault—a brilliant band indeed. The contributors to the present issue are almost exclusively actors rather than literary men, but upon the whole they make a very fair show; while the lists of plays produced in London and the provinces, and in Paris and Berlin during the twelve months under review are distinctly useful. There are a number of photographs including an exceedingly fine one of the late Sir Henry Irving.—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 22.

FRED KARNO'S COMPANIES.

Unprecedented and instantaneous success of the Military Burlesque entitled:
"THE THIRSTY FIRST."

EXTRACTS FROM PRESS OPINIONS.

Era, Feb. 3, 1906.—Brimful of bustle and excitement, there is no departure from so welcome a rule. . . . . With such a wealth of elaboration it was nothing less than remarkable that the fun—all performed in dumb show—should be kept going so briskly. . . . . The sketch was received with uproarious laughter, and forms a successful beginning to Mr. Karno's new enterprises.

Daily Telegraph, Feb. 6, 1906.—"The Thirsty First," which is the leading item in the Canterbury programme this week. . . . proves very good fooling.

Entr'acte, Feb. 10, 1906.—The name Karno has become quite a Hall mark of excellence in connection with Music Hall Burlesques. There are plenty of laughs in the new production, which is of the pantomimic order—not a word being spoken throughout the three scenes. The idea is a burlesque upon Tommy Atkins—the Tommy Atkins of the comic papers. The fun is kept going by an efficient company, and should be another "screamer."

South London Mail, Feb. 9, 1906.—"The Thirsty First" will bear favourable comparison with any of this "fun" merchant's previous efforts. . . . . For sheer merriment this production will long remain the funniest sketch seen on the variety stage.

Eastern Post, Feb. 17, 1906.—"Fred Karno's latest pantomimical production, "The Thirsty First," is really worth everybody going to see."

In active preparation.

THIS WEEK TOPPING BILL AT THE BRITANNIA.

Standing room only at every performance.

There are more hearty legitimate laughs with this act than any of the fancy priced shows. Not a vulgar saying or action.

All the "Live" Managers who say they want novelties and will take the trouble to go and see one, have secured it.

To secure 49 weeks' work before the show is two weeks' old, and four offers for March 12th, speaks volumes.

Monday Next, RICHMOND.

I'VE LOST MY EYEGLASS.

The morning coffee. Short-sighted gentleman loses his eyeglass. It is not to be found either on the table or the floor or under the carpet. No time to wait. The gentleman rushes off to keep an appointment, and his short-sightedness causes many amusing and somewhat painful collisions. Unable to bear anything further, he bribes a woman with a truck to give him a lift, and after some hard work she shoots him out at his destination. He arrives home at last, and when drinking his coffee discovers the missing eyeglass, which had fallen into the cup. His great joy at the recovery is laughable to behold. About 275ft.
The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

THE LOVE-LETTER.

Amusing attempts of a soldier to write a letter to his sweetheart. A novel blotter. His heart is hers. Now for dinner! The discovery in the dish. Trouble in the ranks. The spoilt repast. Splendid expressions. About 131ft.
The Subject, £3 5s. 6d.

HALLO! SCISSORS GRINDER.

On the look-out for the grinder. Missed him. Must be found somehow. The chase, helped by the neighbours. Collisions. The crowd takes up the pursuit. Captured. The crestfallen pursuers. Police help wanted. Very laughable. About 180ft.
The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

LIFE ON BOARD SHIP.

Scenes in the daily life of the different class passengers. Through the Suez Canal. Scenes, views, and objects of interest along the banks. Sighting other vessels. About 540ft.
The Subject, £13 10s. 0d.

WHEN THE MASTER'S AWAY.

Dressing for the theatre. Departure. The servants' jolly half hour. Making free with the master's good things. The "professor" at the piano. A lively dance. The lost necklace. The search. The return home of the master and mistress. Grand collapse of servants. Very amusing. About 180ft.
The Subject, £4 10s. 0d.

THE MINIATURE THEATRE.

The boy's visit to the toy bazaar. The purchase. The miniature theatre. Invitations to the performance. The stage, showing a fine selection of mechanical toys, all working. The devastating motor car; its journey through the country, up and down hills, over bridges and precipices. It runs through a barber's shop, and finishes up by dropping through the roof of a dancing academy. Arrest of the chauffeur by the police. Trial and sentence. This is a most ingenious arrangement of mechanical toys, amusing and interesting to old and young alike. About 344ft.
The Subject, £8 12s. 0d.

THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

The lazy servant and the dusting brush. A fit of energy. The dancing chairs and statues. The revolving table. The disappearing meal. Attempted capture and very amusing result. Funny throughout. About 180ft.
The Subject £4 10s. 0d.

THE VOICE OF CONSCIENCE.

Conjugal honour. What happened while the husband was absent. Discovery. Involuntary murder. Conscience speaks. Visions of the murdered husband gradually cause the insanity of the lover, who ultimately dies, killed by his conscience. About 275ft.
The Subject, £6 17s. 6d.

LATEST ANIMATOGRAPH FILM

THE DOCTORED BEER; OR, HOW THE COPPER WAS COPPED.

Showing two burglars attempting to break in the window of a bar parlour. Suddenly they hear the approaching steps of a policeman. One of them quickly places a tempting bottle on the window-ledge, and they both run round the corner to hide till the danger is over. The constable coming along notices the bottle, and, thinking it has been placed there for him, does not hesitate to drink the contents. The two men see this from their sheltered hiding-place, and with great satisfaction notice that the drugged beer is taking effect, as the constable staggers about, and then collapses on the ground insensible. The burglars at once come out, and one proceeds to enter the house, while the other puts numerous empty bottles all round the policeman. They then both make off with their pilfer. The landlady, however, has been disturbed, and she rushes to the window crying for the police. An inspector and constable come along, and the former despatches his man after the burglars, whilst he roughly brings the unconscious man to his senses. As the burglars are rushing away from their pursuers they come to two empty houses with the doors open. One man rushes into each house, and the inspector and constable pass the house. The first policeman, coming along, asks some boys where the two men have gone. Having received his information, he knocks at the door of each house. The burglars open both doors at the same time, so that they meet, thus imprisoning the constable. They lash the doors together, and treat their prisoner to a scuttle of coals, a bucket of water, &c., and then make off. The inspector and other policeman, returning unsuccessful in their chase, notice the imprisoned man, and, after releasing him, they give him a good rating, and march him off.

LOST IN THE SNOW

A Most Effective Picture entirely taken in the Snow.

Little Nell leaves home to take her Father's dinner accompanied by a faithful Collie dog. Afterwards the little girl and dog become separated and Nell loses her way in the Wood. Starved and exhausted she falls asleep in the snow. When night falls and she does not return, a search party is organised, headed by the Collie. The dog eventually leads the party to some bushes where Nell is found. At finding his companion he shows his delight in a most affectionate manner. (The latter portions are magnificently tinted, blue for night effect). Highly recommended, Length 250 feet. Price £6 5s. Code word "Lost."

PRUDENTIAL

CHIEF OFFICE:
HOLBORN BARS, LONDON.

Summary of the Report Presented at the Fifty-seventh Annual Meeting, held on March 1, 1906.

ORDINARY BRANCH. — The number of Policies issued during the year was 75,293, assuring the sum of £7,211,427, and producing a New Annual Premium Income of £395,029.

The Premiums received during the year were £4,123,318, being an increase of £154,302 over the year 1904.

The Claims of the year amounted to £1,812,618. The number of Deaths was 7,437, and 7,775 Endowment Assurances matured.

The number of Policies in force at the end of the year was 773,051.

INDUSTRIAL BRANCH. — The Premiums received during the year were £6,139,050, being an increase of £159,715.

The Claims of the year amounted to £2,261,748. The number of Deaths was 238,220, and 3,344 Endowment Assurances matured.

The number of Free Policies granted during the year to those Policyholders of five years' standing and upwards who desired to discontinue their payments was 123,586, the number in force being 1,102,267. The number of Free Policies which became Claims during the year was 24,698.

The total number of Policies in force at the end of the year was 16,065,268; their average duration is eleven years.

The Assets of the Company, in both branches, as shown in the Balance-Sheet, are £59,464,376, being an increase of £4,104,871 over those of 1904.

The Staff Provident Fund, which was founded in 1898 for the benefit of the outdoor staff, shews a satisfactory increase for the year, the total amount standing to the credit of the Fund being £148,941.

Since the completion of the Valuation the Actuary has reported that in his opinion a general increase of two-and-a-half per cent. could, with safety, be granted under the principal Industrial Branch Tables if provision were made for an increase in the liability of £750,000. The Board have accordingly revised the Tables as from March 1, 1906, and have made provision to meet the increased liability by the transfer during the current year of £750,000 from the Reserve Fund to the Life Assurance Fund in the Industrial Branch, leaving this Reserve Fund at £1,000,000. The Shareholders will be glad to know that this revision affects nearly Thirteen Million Policies; and of this number over Ten Million Policies receive an immediate increase in the sum assured.

GENERAL BALANCE-SHEET of the PRUDENTIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED, being the Summary of both Branches, on Dec. 31, 1905.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

KIMBERLEY, Feb. 5. — Messrs. B. and F. Wheeler have again been relieving the dullness of our evenings by the presentation of such ever-welcome favourites as The Toreador, Three Little Maids, and The Country Girl, all of which were most cordially received, though the business done was hardly such as the merits of the company—the Wheeler-Edwardes No. 2 Musical Comedy Company—deserved. Mr. Herbert Walton (nephew of Witty Watty Walton) is the principal comedian of this company, a position to which he is thoroughly entitled, his work throughout being of a high order. Though young in years, Mr. Walton has had a lengthy theatrical experience, and hard work, combined with his natural gifts as a comedian, have within the last year brought him to the front. Whether as Barry, Sammy Giggs, or Cupid, Mr. Walton was always at home, full of go from start to finish, and frequently bringing down the house with his fun and apt gagging. Mr. H. Lane Bayliff is also a comedian of considerable ability, his stage Johnny being irresistibly amusing, and as clever a piece of characterisation of that cult as one can conceive. In addition to enacting one of the principal rôles, Mr. Bayliff also undertakes—and most satisfactorily, too—the onerous duties of stage management. Mr. E. C. Carter acts and sings well, and is particularly good as Brian Molyneux in Three Little Maids. Mr. Sydney Mannering puts in excellent work as August Traill, De L'Orme, and Geoffrey Challoner, his singing never failing to elicit encores. Messrs. Theo. Leonard and Lucien Kesney also display much talent in their respective rôles; whilst minor parts are capably filled by Messrs. J. Needham and L. Slater. Among the ladies, the Misses SylviaMay, Ada Edney, Gertrude Parker, and Nellie Wilson form a charming quartette, their acting and vocalisation leaving nothing to be desired. Miss Parker was perhaps at her best as Susan in The Toreador, Miss Wilson making her biggest hit as Donna Teresa in the same piece. Miss Ada Thompson, too, deserves the greatest praise for her acting and singing, her rendering of "Under the Deodar," proving particularly pleasing. Miss Alice Rex is another clever artist of whom mention should not be omitted; whilst a small but efficient chorus deserve congratulation on their efforts. Mr. Harry Burton must also be complimented on the effective discharge of his onerous duties as musical director. The company, for which Mr. P. F. Thompson is business-manager, entrained on Sunday en route for Vryburg, Mafeking, Bulawayo, &c.

The D'Oyley Carte company open here on Tuesday with The Mikado, to be followed by The Yeoman of the Guard and Iolanthe.

KIMBERLEY, Feb. 12. — After altogether too long an interval, Kimberley has again been given an opportunity of renewing acquaintance with the delightful operas of Sullivan and Gilbert, the principal D'Oyly Carte Opera Company having commenced an all too brief season here on Tuesday last. The company opened with The Mikado, followed by The Yeomen of the Guard, both of which were played two nights, and Iolanthe, which drew a packed house. The performances throughout have been noteworthy by reason of their uniform excellence, the perfect vocal and histrionic interpretations of the respective operas, and the careful attention given to every detail of stage management, having won the highest encomiums from delighted and enthusiastic audiences. As regards the individual work in The Yeomen of the Guard, that of Mr. Fred Billington as Wilfred Shadbolt and Miss Jessie Rose as Phœbe Meryll was most conspicuous, their respective performances being in every way admirable, and impossible of improvement. Mr. C. H. Workman gave a thoroughly artistic interpretation to the rôle of Jack Point. The Elsie Maynard was Miss Nancie Freyne, who sang charmingly, though obviously handicapped by a cold. Mr. Pacie Ripple was a most satisfactory Colonel Fairfax, using his voice with the happiest results. Miss Theresa Rassam as Dame Carruthers, Mr. Albert Kavanagh as Sergeant Meryll, Mr. Blake Johnston as Leonard Meryll, and Mr. Leicester Tunks, were alike excellent in their respective parts; and the remainder of the cast was also in thoroughly capable hands. One of the most enjoyable features was the chorus-singing, though of course this was but a natural sequence with that old Savoyard, Mr. François Cellier, as musical director. Mr. Fred Leon should not, as stage-manager, be omitted from the general praise in respect to the success of the D'Oyly Carte Company.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, Jan. 23.—Mr. Alfred Dampier is ordered, for his health's restoration, a long sea voyage, so he leaves shortly for England. The managers of the theatres and their companies arranged a testimonial entertainment on the 19th, when Mr. Williamson's Theatre—Her Majesty's—was filled with an enthusiastic audience. The artists appearing belonged to Mr. Williamson's Royal Comic Opera Company, Mr. Charles Holloway's Criterion Dramatic Company, Mr. William Anderson's Theatre Royal Dramatic Company, and Mr. Rickards' Vaudeville Company, from the Tivoli. A long and interesting bill was provided, and the audience was highly delighted. Mr Dampier's doctor forbade his being present, so Mr J. C. Williamson returned thanks for him in an excellent speech. An eloquent telegram from Mr. Bland Holt—now in Melbourne—was read, and loudly cheered.

Mr. Charles Holloway's latest production, The Rogues of the Turf, is still drawing crowded houses. The cast remains unchanged, and the capital acting of Mr. Charles Holloway, Mrs. Holloway (Miss Alice Deorwyn), and Miss Beatrice Holloway, stands out. But every member of the company is so loyal and industrious that not one dull moment obtains from the rise to fall of the curtain. Mr. Edwin Geach, under whose direction this Criterion season is being run, deserves the good luck which is attending his venture. Shall We Forgive Her? is to follow.

Mr. William Anderson's pantomime shows no decrease in attendance in the auditorium or interest in the performance. Early nights for suburbanites are arranged, as also special hours and performances for juveniles. This is a public that rewards being humoured and paternally catered for. Sinbad the Sailor will run for some time, and then be taken to New Zealand, the stage being occupied by a comic opera company, in a revival of La Fille du Tambour Major. For this production Miss Maud Amber, Miss Ivy Scott, and Mr. Winfield Blake are specially secured.

The Tivoli has a big bill, including the Jackson Family, Hill and Whittaker, the Eight English Primroses, Miss Florence Challis, the Cathedral Choristers, Post Mason, A. G. Spry, Olive Lenton, Maggie Ogilvie, May Dagmar, and Baby Watson. An excellent and amusing performance is that of Mr. Fred Graham and Miss Nellie Dent, in their screaming sketch, Packing Up. Mr. Percy Coward, male alto, having seceded from the Westminster Glee Singers, created quite a sensation by his wonderful voice and artistic singing.

Mr. Harry Rickards has engaged the Queen's Hall, to present his recently-secured Urbanora Bioscope. Miss Hilda Lane, the well-known soprano; Mr. Walter Keer, ventriloquist; Mr. Harry Rochefort, baritone; and Mr. Harry Hart, tenor, assist.

Messrs. Meynell and Gunn's J.P. company will return to the Palace on the 27th, headed by Miss Florence Lloyd and Mr. J. J. Dallas.

The Maney Water Chute, now owned by Mr. Lewis de Groen, has had attractive features added of late. The Gothams and the Georgia Coons, directed by the sable comedian, Charles Pope, appear every day and night.

Little Gulliver died at Dunedin, New Zealand, on Jan 11, from pneumonia. His private name was John Bromelow; and, as a dwarf who sang, danced, and acted far beyond the ordinary, he was a great attraction in every performance which included him. He is said to have been twenty-nine years of age: a pigmy in height, but strong, and marvellously active, he was very useful in pantomime. Visitors from the Old Country will remember his Cat in Dick Whittington.

SYDNEY, Jan. 30.—Her Majesty's (Mr. J. C. Williamson, Lessee and Manager; Mr. G. L. Goodman, Business-Manager). — Veronique was staged on the 27th with a refreshing brightness which captivated a crowded house.—Mr. W. R. Coleman was responsible for the exquisite scenery, and Mr. Spencer Barry for the production, of the dainty French opera. Miss Florence Young was Madame Agatha Coquenard, and her singing and acting were admirable. Miss Margaret Thomas made Helene de Solanges (alias Veronique) arch and winsome, and, whether singing alone or with Mr. Haigh Jackson, the petite contralto was delightfully tuneful. Miss Clara Clifton as the Countess, with her rich voice and ripe humour, added to the value of the performance. A crisp performance was that of Miss Connie Milne, who sang and spoke with enjoyably clear enunciation. This young lady made the garter-matching episode as little objectionable as possible. Mr. George Lauri had an appropriate rôle as Mons, Coquenard, no point being missed. Mr. Haigh Jackson sang daintily and in exquisite taste the music allotted to Florestan de Valiancourt; and Mr. W. S. Percy made a prominent figure of Seraphin, the groom. A ripe and unctuous Mons. Loustot was Mr. C. R. Bantock, laughter-compelling and never vulgar. Miss Kattie Potter gave a quaint portraiture of old Aunt Benoit.

Criterion (Frank Musgrove, Lessee; under Direction of Edwin Geach).—Mr. Charles Holloway began the last week of his season with Shall We Forgive Her? The revival was quite up to Mr. Holloway's original production of this play. Miss Mabel Russell made quite a success with her strong acting as Johanna. Miss Beatrice Holloway was a bright, winsome Nellie West. Mr. Robert Inman's parson was artistic and correct. Mr. H. O. Willard returned to Sydney to enact one James Stapleton; and Mr. Godfrey Cass achieved another success as Oliver West. The play will run up to and on Feb. 1, and next night Mr. Holloway's season will close with Two Little Vagabonds, in which Miss Beatrice Holloway will again be Dick.

Palace Theatre (Mr. Edwin Geach, Lessee).—Messrs. Clyde Meynell and John Gunn and their Strand Theatre comedy company came here for a two weeks' season. The J.P. was revived, with Miss Florence Lloyd and Mr. J. J. Dallas in their old favourite parts. Mr. Barnes is business-manager, and all goes merrily and profitably.

The Tivoli (Mr. Harry Rickards, Sole Proprietor and Manager).—On Saturday Mr. Harry Rickards opened the budget of new songs which he brought from England. His welcome was hearty enough, and his songs, "Give my regards to Leicester-square," "The best, best world," and "'Arf a pint of ale," went with the old-time vim and energy. Urquhart Mackinnon's Scottish Meisters introduced an enthusiastically cheered turn. Miss Florence Lorrimer sang "Listening" most acceptably.

Theatre Royal (Mr. J. C. Williamson, Lessee; Mr. William Anderson, Sub-Lessee and Manager; Mr. Julius Grant, Business-Manager).—The second edition of Sinbad the Sailor finds Miss Marie Campbell and Miss Celia Mavis singing new songs, and new items are introduced, freshening up the pantomime.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee of the Actors' Association held their usual weekly meeting on Tuesday, there being present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, A. E. Drinkwater, A. E. George, Lawrence Grant, Mrs. Cecil Raleigh, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). Mr. Henry W. Mote being in attendance, certain legal notes were considered and settled. It was agreed that in future the meetings of this committee should be held on Saturday mornings, at 11.30, and that at the next meeting Miss Vera Leslie's scheme as to subscriptions, etc., should be considered. A project submitted by Mr. Llewellyn E. Eykyn, in connection with the working of the agency, was considered, and it was agreed that at present it was impracticable, and the secretary was directed to file the papers for future reference.

The usual weekly meeting of the Council was held on Tuesday last, there being present Messrs. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Blake Adams, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, C. Hayden Coffin, F. Cremlin, A. E. George, Douglas Gordon, Lawrence Grant, Quinton McPherson, and Spencer Trevor; and Mesdames Kate Phillips and Saba Raleigh, and Mr. Charles Cruikshanks (secretary). The committees dealing with questions affecting copyright in photographs, payment for rehearsals, and other matters were amalgamated with the "Special" Committee, and Messrs. Clarence Blakiston, C. Hayden Coffin, Lawrence Grant, Arthur Holmes-Gore, M. R. Morand, C. Aubrey Smith, and Mrs. Cecil Raleigh were elected as members of that Committee. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. The secretary reported the result of the arbitration recently held. Dr. F. H. Kyngdon, of Cargate Lodge, Aldershot, was elected as an hon. medical officer, and the address of Dr. O'Connor, late of Aldershot, was altered to Queen's House, St. James's-court, Buckingham Gate, S.W.

The following nominations for election to the Association were made:—Ursula Geoghegan, Beatrice Egerton, Harry Averell, and Henry W. H. Reade, and a former member was proposed for reinstatement. The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. A case referred to arbitration was withdrawn, the claimant having abandoned her claim. The committee appointed to carry out the details in connection with the amateur billiard handicap in aid of the Actors' Orphanage Fund reported that the handicap was concluded, and resulted in a net profit of £108 6s. 2d., which amount had been handed to the treasurer of the fund. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Messrs Thurston and to the committee (Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford and Thalberg Corbett).

AMUSEMENTS IN GLASGOW.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson opened here on Monday for a season of the "legitimate," their first production being Much Ado About Nothing. Mr. and Mrs. Benson repeated their well-known renderings of the parts of Benedick and Beatrice, and Miss Tita Brand gave a clever performance as Hero. Mr. Cyril Keightley made a handsome Claudio, and Mr. Clarence Derwent acted well as Don Pedro. As the scheming Don John Mr. George Buchanan played his part capably, ably supported by Mr. Philip Sanders as Borachio. Mr. B. A. Pittar as Leonato and Mr. Reginald Davis as Antonio contributed two clever studies of old men. Two particularly good performances were the Balthazar of Miss May Melley (with songs) and the Boy of Miss Leah Hanman. Mr. George R. Weir gave with stolid unconsciousness the humorous sallies of Dogberry. For the remainder of the week, The Merchant of Venice, As You Like It, Merry Wives of Windsor, Twelfth Night, Macbeth, and Julius Cæsar formed the programme.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Mascard.—The three weeks' season of the Carl Rosa Opera Company commenced auspiciously on Monday last, when a splendid all-round performance of Tannhäuser was given before a large and very appreciative audience. Herr Julius Walther appeared in the title-rôle, and sang and acted throughout with conspicuous success, and for the part of Elizabeth another accomplished Wagnerian artist is found in Miss Hanna Mara, her rendering of the part being well up to the best traditions of the company. For the character of Wolfran Mr. Charles Victor is in all respects eminently suited, and as the Landgrave the voice and bearing of Mr. Arthur Winckworth are again all that could be wished. Miss Grace Nicoll is a valuable addition to the company, her performance as Venus being of outstanding merit; as the Shepherd Boy Miss Ina Hill sang with great taste. The parts of the Knights, Biterolf, Reinmar, Walther, and Schrieber, were well filled by Messrs. Frank Arthur, C. Brierley, Edward Wynn, and Albert Felton respectively. Mr. Eugene Grossens was conductor, and received a hearty call at the close of the performance. During the week Carmen, The Marriage of Figaro, Faust, Rigoletto, and Bohemian Girl were performed; and to-day (Saturday) Beethoven's Fidelio, which has not been played in Glasgow since 1877, is being revived.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdock.—Mr. Morton Powell's company is here with a finely-mounted drama, called The Woman Who Gambles, in which the title-rôle, Countess Steinbach, is sustained by Miss Ada Roscoe, who acts with intense dramatic power. Miss Jessie Darrington gives a pleasing representation of Cora Gouldhart, Miss Florrie Hall is effective as Mlle. Zila Zeyelda, and Miss Brenda May is good as Zanette. The part of the villainous Baron is forcibly played by Mr. Horatio Sinclair, and Mr. Charles Calvert introduces much amusing comedy into the rôle of the Hon. Bertie Bray. A fine character is that of the hero, Count Steinbach, strongly depicted by Mr. Edward E. Ashley, and that of his friend Lieut. Karl is well rendered by Mr. Fred L. Lawrence. Mr. Fred Price scores as Count Von Hoomboog. Mr. Waldon's benefit on the 2nd inst. was marked by a big audience. Among the extra attractions was the "Man you know." Mr. W. F. Frame, who had a warm reception, and gave one or two of his inimitable impersonations. The pantomime came to an end on Saturday evening after a run of twelve weeks.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's powerful company are paying a return visit with the drama, Two Little Drummer Boys. The rôle of the hero, Captain Carsdale, is admirably suited to Mr. William Vane, and Miss Violet Langley acts with much earnestness in the part of Alma Kingsley. As Eric and Jack, the two Drummer Boys, Miss May Smart and Miss Eva Norman sustain their respective parts with credit. Mr. Andrew Money displays sound ability as the unscrupulous villain, Captain Darrell, and the exacting rôle of Margaret Rivers is cleverly undertaken by Miss Ruby Handley. Mr. H. Imbert causes much merriment as Quincy O'Quirke, as also does Mr. Horace Custins as Timothy Trimmer. Miss Edie Maclin is very amusing as Molly Meadows.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Uncle Tom's Cabin is being played here by Mr. Charles Harrington's company, which includes Mr. J. Carr as Uncle Tom, Mr. J. H. Rogers as Legree, Miss Ethel Mildmay as Cassy, Miss Hettie Johnston as Eliza Harris, and Miss Annie Watson as Topsy. Some excellent singing is introduced by the coloured choristers.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District Manager, Mr. Sam Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—A capital programme is presented this week, Brown and Le Clercqs topping the bill in Black Justice, the two comedians having a very hearty reception; Margaret Ruby and Ernest Laws are seen to advantage in a smart sketch, entitled Cora's Visitors, in which the latter performer makes some clever quick changes; Griff is as clever with hoops as ever, his very smart patter being an enjoyable feature, and he has a dexterous assistant in Alpha; Paul Pelham is a first-rate comedian, and is a favourite to boot; at the piano, Miss Nina Gordon is very successful in a series of imitations, which please greatly, notably Harry Lauder's "I Love a Lassie"; the Empire Comedy Four well sustain their reputation in a selection of serious and grotesque harmonies and suitable business; Elsie Hill and company, in Fanny's Flat, delight in a sketch of some merit, which they perform with much nerve and vivacity; the Marchanis are very pleasing in folk songs and operatic airs, and add a nice touch of variety to the programme; juggling and comedy are suitably mingled by the Wally Host Trio; and the Bioscope is popular still.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Mark Melford provides the chief turn this week with his humorous sketch entitled Black and White. He is assisted by a company of capable artists, and the sketch proved highly successful. The Stelling troupe give an amusing act entitled Fun at the Masquerade Ball, and work in some clever horizontal-bar business. Playfair and Nikola do some marvellous tricks with paper, and their paper pictures are really artistic. Stidder and Dunbar are another clever pair, their musical items being very well received. Fancourt and Ruble give an amusing comedy-act entitled Out of Barracks. Other good items are presented by Robb Gilmore, comedian; A-Bo-Kon, juggler; Pat Rafferty, Irish comedian; and Lilian Warren, with her illustrated songs.

Pavilion, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Bessie Featherstone, fresh from her pantomime triumphs at the Royal, is a prime favourite, and sings numerous songs. Theo Hardeen, the handcuff king, still mystifies the audience by his dexterity at escaping from all sorts of fetters. Nat Clifford as a comedian and dancer proves a great success. Baroni and Kemp contribute a wonderfully smart quick-change turn. Bayne and Hope in their Napoleon scena act well and are heartily appreciated. Hallam and Stanton give a clever musical sketch A Broken Journey. The programme concludes with a smart playlet in three scenes, entitled The Phonograph Girl, presented by George Leyton's company, which includes many favourites from the recent pantomimes, headed by Miss Ida Gladstone, Mr. Frank A. Wood, Miss Florence Lelgardo, &c.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. B. G. Maclachlan.—Variety and merit are the outstanding features of this week's programme. Charles Magilton's company in The Runaways, by Fred Locke, give an elaborate comedy sketch. It is full of fun and quaint situations, and proves very successful. Regan and Hall are a couple of clever acrobatic comedians, the audience thoroughly enjoying their efforts. "The Royal Six," clever lady cyclists and singers, are very successful. Driscoll and Beattie present an amusing sketch with their usual cleverness. W. H. Clemart, ventriloquist, is also another smart performer. Hetty King male impersonator, sings some rollicking songs, and the reception given must have been very gratifying to the performer. The Picquays give a wonderful display of head and hand balancing, some of their tricks being decidedly new. Frazer and Mac, comedy artists, and Miss Foy, a smart dancer, complete a most enjoyable performance.

Palace.—Proprietors and Managers, Rich. Waldon and Thos. Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—The place of honour here this week is allotted to Lawrence Barclay, comedian, who made a welcome appearance on Monday night. The Sisters Hall, comediennes, also make a good impression. Other notable turns include Alma Gray, Australian dancing girl; Lily Flexmore, attractive dancer; Casselli and James, banjoists; Ross and Taylor and Miss Elvio, comedy artists; Tom E. Hughes, character comedian; Sherlock and Van Dalle, sketch artists; Mulvey and Miriam, in a musical duologue; Rastus and Banks, American entertainers; and the Animatograph with a series of up-to-date pictures.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. B. M. Armstrong.—This hall opened under auspicious conditions on Saturday, when a well-diversified programme was submitted, and various artists from the pantomimes lent their friendly aid. On Monday the regular bill included many excellent turns, notably Martin Conway, always a favourite here; Kitty Marrion, a clever and handsome serio; Two Whites, a very smart American duo; Hughes in Codology; T. C. Jacques, Geo. Westland, Denby and Dent, Marco, the Moxon Family, and Wright and Elton. In addition a boxing display is given by Jabez White. Under the new management this comfortable hall looks like resuming its proper place in the long list of Glasgow amusements.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERAVON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. D. Jones; Manager, Mr. J. Corlass.—Mr. Fred Kirke's musical comedy company is delighting the patrons of this theatre this week with a repertoire, including The Naval Detective, Our Sailor Lad, and In Old Madrid. A very capable company includes Mr. Kirke as a breezy representative of the sea. An exceptionally smart dancer is found in Mr. Mark Practice, Mr. Harold Wallace is an excellent villain, and the comedy of the piece is well sustained by Miss Edith Clarris. The American sisters, Gladys and Elsie Allen, appear in a series of varied turns.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah, C.A.—Mr. George Dance's company is appearing this week in The Duchess of Dantzic, which proves highly popular. Miss May Glen makes an admirable appearance in the title-rôle, and the part of Marshal Lefebvre is powerfully played by Mr. L. T. Griffiths. Napoleon and Papillon are capably represented by Mr. Gilbert Yorke and Mr. Arthur Paterson, and Miss Buena Kent sings very tastefully as Lisette.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—The most sensational turn this week, which is called "Whirling the Whirl" is contributed by Mr. Tom Davies and his assistant, whose daring cycling feats are followed with breathless interest. The Stack and Milton Trio are highly successful with their "comedy flying act," and Mr. Harris L. Bell and Miss Lily Pearl cleverly present a humorous sketch, A Bit of String. Mr. J. H. Millburn is cordially welcome as usual, and Johnny Holland and company again make a hit with their comedy sketch The Millionaire. The Llewellyns are operatic artists of marked ability, Miss Edna Payne is a dashing male impersonator, and Mr. Leon Rolfe a smart ventriloquist, while the Bransbys show themselves to be versatile comedians, and Mr. E. W. Selman is applauded for his quaint patter and capital dancing.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. A. Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. George W. Ventom.—Miss Winifred Maude is paying a welcome return visit with The Sins of a City. The piece is admirably played, especially noticeable being the performances of Miss Maude as Seaweed and Norah, and Mr. Victor H. Cane as Isaac Levi. The humorous element is well sustained by Miss Amy Coralie. On Thursday and Friday The Stowaway was played.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—This week Mr. Walter Reynolds and company present Mr. Smith. The title-rôle is in the capable hands of Mr. Stephen T. Ewart, whose resonant voice and restrained acting add a charm to his impersonation; Mr. Russell Norrie submits a powerful delineation of the Earl of Oxted; Mr. W. Edwyn Holloway is a finished actor; Mr. H. Carter Bligh gives a pleasing reading of Jack Berkeley; Mr. T. Darvell is highly amusing as Herr Deidrich Anheuser. The ability of Miss Elisbeth Dudgeon as the Duchess calls for more than ordinary comment; Lady Mary finds a charming representative in Miss Rosamond Rokeby; Miss Daisy England may be complimented on her natural performance of Mrs. Smith; Miss Fife Alexander makes a good impression in the part of Ruth Anheuser.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—At the above hall a pleasing bill was presented on Monday. Haley's Prize Juveniles call for special comment, their carnival scene being very good; Rappo, a wonderful gymnast, is ably assisted by Mlle. Ella; Jake Euston is a smart dancer; Hess and Lisbon submit a clever grotesque speciality; a word of praise should be given Sydney Garden and Lulu Zesch for their sketch; Charlie Williams is well received, and Gerald Mount is a clever mimic.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sonnes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Life of a Showman—an interesting novelty drama—is being presented by Mr. Geo. Testo Sante's company. Mr. Sante himself takes a prominent part in the performance, and is assisted by a capable company, whose efforts are highly appreciated throughout. Mr. Logan Darra is capital as Marais, Mr. Edward Warden's Arliss is good, and Messrs Frank Sante, J. Sante, and Charles Osborne are indispensable in their parts. Misses Enid Trench, Amy McNeill, May Warden, and May Neilson are seen to advantage in their respective rôles.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—A drama of the domestic and sensational order, entitled The Village Blacksmith, is being presented here this week. The company is a very capable one. Mr. Sam Livesey plays the part of the blacksmith with fine dramatic fervour and discrimination; the villain of Mr. Jos. Carter is of the audacious and callously cruel kind, and he is vigorously hissed by the audience; Miss Laura Hansen, as the blacksmith's wife, is sympathetic and tearful; Miss Cassie Edwards plays the part of a betrayed woman excellently. Capital impersonations of female characters are also given by Miss E. Giddens and Mrs. T. C. Livesey, and the child of Strong, the blacksmith, is a precociously clever piece of acting by little Bertha Hanbury.

THE EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The artists in this week's list include Little Tina, the dainty juvenile vocalist; the Ringlings, American eccentrics; Mabel La Blanche, ballad vocalist; Witty Wattie Walton, an old favourite; the Four Juggling Geraldos; the Falcons, novel strong act, The Benches in the Park; Dot Stanley, with characteristic ditties; the Canadian statuesque comedienne, Vera Mayne; and Lachie Thompson's top-weights, Tom and Neil, in boxing, wrestling, and club swinging.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. H. Beagle.—Mr. Frank Bateman's convict drama, Sentenced for Life, is this week being presented here by a good all-round company, under the direction of Mr. Bulmer. An excellent exposition of the hero, Lieut. Roy Stillwell, is given by Mr. T. Arthur Ellis; a fine interpretation of the Rev. Martin Orris comes from Mr. T. C. Glenville; Miss Gladys Hawthorne is sympathetic and forcible as Lady Stillwell; and comedy finds able exponents in Mr. Arthur Keand and Mr. Reg. Oldroyd as Bill Sharkley and Toby respectively.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—This week's programme is provided by the following: C. Wordley Hulse and company in an exciting dramatic sketch, The Fight in the Forge; Mr. Frank Boyce, an excellent character comedian; the Two Rubies, clever and refined comediennes; Mr. Ben Harris and his Nippers in a sporting speciality A Promising Pupil; a pleasing selection of pictures by the Palace Claytograph; Mr. Frank Bertram and company in The Chaperon, and the Three Henres, jugglers.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and company have paid this town a return visit with The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Brough is excellent in his impersonation of the Frenchman, Le Baron de Longueville. In his artistic hands the character becomes the outstanding one in the piece. Mr. Henry Hampton's Dick Whortles, and Mr. Percy Marshall's Joseph Carbury are particularly well-played parts; the same may be said of the Dorothy Whortles of Miss Moyra Creegan and the Matilda Carbury of Miss Dorcas Corsbie; while as Millie Grace Miss Emlyn Ormonde gives a delightful rendering, and Mr. Harold M. McNay as the prize fighter, Toby Krockitt, is exceedingly quaint and funny. For the remaining three nights of the week the Leopolds in New Frivolity will occupy the theatre.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. F. B. Woulfe's Répertoire Company commenced a week's engagement here on Monday with Lady Godiva. Miss Josephine Colona imparted to the title-rôle the full charm of her personality, and she was ably supported by Mr. James Duncan, a dignified Leofric, and Mr. Alfred B. Adams, a capable Elgar; Mr. F. B. Woulfe as Tom of Coventry had a part for which he was in every way suited; and Mr. Clifford Marle gave a careful portrayal of Edgar the Nameless; Mr. Ernest Hamilton as Unwolf Unwolfson made the most of that character. Miss Gwen Stewart enacts the part of Lady Aldyth with success. The lighter scenes of the drama are safely entrusted to Mr. Dan F. Roe as Robin Shacklebolt, and Miss Edith Loraine as Elfrida. Jane Shore was billed for Friday evening.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean Company is here, and opened with The Taming of the Shrew. Petruchio of Mr. Henry Herbert was in every way a fine performance, and Mr. Bernard Limpus was a pleasing Lucentio, while Mr. Gerald Ames was a noteworthy Hortensio; the Traino and Biondello of Messrs. James Armand and Alfred A. Harris were bright and virile impersonations; Miss Kate Turner made a winsome Bianca, and Miss Dorothy Green was a spirited and interesting Katherine. Other plays billed are As You Like it, Macbeth, Hamlet, and Merchant of Venice.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Morton Powell's company in the drama Honour Thy Father is here this week. Mr. J. W. Evelyn as Gabriel Garth makes a manly hero, and plays the part in a clever manner; Mr. Douglas B. Watson represents Captain Jack Halyard with much feeling; Mr. Clavering Craig gives a capital rendering of Duncan Bly; Miss Winnie Donovan as Mercy Merry and Miss Mabel Coleman as Lillian Garth display some clever acting, and are well received.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Austin and Cowan are the top of the bill here this week, and their fine voices are heard to great advantage; Sandford and Lyons, comedians, are successful; the Alaskarno Trio, tumblers and Risley artists, give a good show; the Two Dixons are expert dancers and banjoists; Harry Tomlinson sings in good style, Irene Rose is a charming comedienne, and Mr. H. B. Almon gives a novel hand-balancing act.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—The popular musical play Three Little Maids is again occupying the boards here, the presentment on this occasion being entrusted to Mr. Chas. Macdona's well-balanced company. Mr. W. Stevenson has a difficult task in following his predecessor in the part of Lord Cheyne, but comes through the ordeal with flying colours. Mr. Wilfred Heath, the fortunate possessor of a rich, full baritone voice, makes an excellent M. de L'Orme. Mr. Edward Drake gets plenty of fun out of Cupid the Caddy, his nimble dancing, in conjunction with Miss Laura Wright in her old sketch of the Dutch maid Gretchen, bringing down the house. The trio of maids have bright and engaging representatives in Miss Vera Vallis, Miss Cora Lingard, and Miss Edith Collev, who quickly win their way into the good graces of the audience. Lady St. Mallory is sustained in attractive style by Miss Kate G. Beck, whose three protégés are successfully impersonated by the Misses Grace Hardy, G. Bruce, and Mabel Sarl. Two gentlemen who deserve cordial praise are Mr. Garnet Wilson (Brian Molyneaux) and Mr. Chas. Leverton (Rev. Branscombe).

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Charles Scuthbert.—There are several good things in this week's bill. As pedestal and Risley acrobats the Dayton Family do many new and extremely difficult feats in a finished manner. It is a pleasure to again welcome Addie Dorina in her quick-change duologue How It was Done. Helen Charles gives a delightful drawing-room act, the Society Quartette shine individually and collectively in some energetic dancing, George Newburn mimics "stars" with life-like effect, his efforts winning him much favour, Johnny Walker is an eccentric comedian, and Fifi Gordon, comedienne and dancer, is well received. On Wednesday the Bath Cycling Club gave their patronage to do honour to Mr. Macnaghten for the assistance he always extends to the local charities during the winter.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty.—Miss Annie Bell is starring here in Sapho, and her Fanny le Grande is a powerful and thoroughly capable performance. Mr. Pringle Roberts plays Jean Gausin admirably—he is thoroughly in sympathy with his part. Messrs. Chas. M. Daly and Francis Serle give satisfactory rendering of their respective parts.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Charles Price's company in the pantomimical farce The Shop Boy. Mr. Harry Pleon is an excellent Sarsaparella Smith; Mr. Jack McKenzie also helps to keep up the fun of the piece as Mrs. Septimus Green. Mr. Paul Belmore is a successful Frank Counter-jumper, and Mr. Claud Aymond capably sustains the part of Victor Victorine; Miss Bessie Rignold scores in the rôle of Denise Victorine, Miss Celia Kent is an exceedingly lively Blighted Biride and an expert dancer; Messrs. White and Jerome afford good entertainment with their comedy singing, and the Alexander Troupe of Lady Dancers execute some graceful dances. The piece is preceded by a sensational episode entitled The Club Raid, in which Mr. Paul Belmore, Mr. Jack McKenzie, and Mr. Chas. Gladwell are seen to considerable advantage.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company opened here on Monday with the successful comedy Dr. Wake's Patient. A decidedly clever impersonation of Dr. Wake was submitted by Mr. Douglas Vigors; it would indeed be difficult to excel Miss Olive Terry's delightful interpretation of Lady Gerania; her charming acting won all hearts. Mr. Arthur Willoughby was all that could possibly be desired as the Earl of St. Olbyn; and one of the best impersonations was that of Duff Wynterden by Mr. Herbert Ross; Mr. Alfred Wellesley must be congratulated on his unqualified success in the rôle of Andrew Wake. Miss Amy Fanchette was good as Mrs. Wake; and Mr. Alfred Phillips was a realistic Bishop of Selby; Miss Ina Pelly was admirable as the Countess of St. Olbyn; and other rôles were capitally presented by Miss Beatrice Webb, Miss Amy Townsend, Miss Dorothy Gordon, and Messrs. H. P. Owen, Cecil Yapp, M. Wilson, H. Martin, and Thos. Pegg.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Edwin Leslie.—The chief attraction here is the grand pantomime entitled Little Dick Whittington. Miss Crissie Leonard was a delightful Dick Whittington, and Mr. Kennedy Allen was admirable as Idle Jack. Miss May Davis was a charming Alice Fitzwarren; and Mr. Linslie Burton was capital as Eliza the Cook. Mr. Tom Gilmore as Thomas the Cat was excellent, and the cast was completed by Messrs. W. Alfreton and Wm. Clark. Mr. Billy Tucker, described as the "champion ball puncher," upholds his reputation; and the Tokio Troupe of Japanese artists amaze with their startling and daring performance; Miss Alice Hollander, operatic comedy artist, is well received; and also appearing are Mr. Sam Redfern, "the Black Philosopher"; Cyclumina, introduced with great effect by Mr. Hubert Adams; Mr. Will Van Allen (tramp musician), Mr. Richardson Taylor (mimic), and the Palace pictures.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John A. Walker.—O'Gust, the Continental mimic, heads the bill, and his imitations have been enthusiastically received; Mr. Bert Woodward's extraordinary bicycle act is well received; and Miss Olive Marston is a charming comedienne; Brooks, Dale, and Blitz, comedy artists, introduce their well-trained mule; and Mr. Chas. Russell, a clever comedian, appears to advantage in his original vocal scena The Bravest of the Brave; the Three Missouris are smart acrobats; and much praise is due to Seeley and West, the droll comedians; Mr. Walter Stanley, comedian, is certainly funny; and the talented duo Mezzetti and Mora in their unique gymnastic performance complete the programme.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Dean Tribune Trio head the bill, and present with unqualified success their amusing sketch entitled Applicants; a big hit has been made by Mr. Charles Diamond, harpist, and the clever saxophone soloist Miss Beatrice; Mr. Robert Gilbert's troupe of dogs and cats execute some extraordinary feats; and the original Wallys, comedy jugglers, gain nightly a good reception; the Bros. Zampah, one-legged equilibrists and dancers, furnish a capital performance; and the Alhambra Bioscope is warmly welcomed. Also appearing are Minnie Mace (comedienne and dancer), Nash and Noel (comedians and dancers), and Mr. Tom Yorke (comedian).

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley have brought their company to present A Sister's Sin. A very competent hero is seen in Mr. William Vane as Harold Raymond; and excellent work is done by Mrs. Kimberley (Miss Lottie Addison) in the rôle of Minnie Hastings; Miss Augustus Tullock does well as the gipsy Charzel; and Miss Violet Langley is effective as the gipsy Redempta; Miss Elsie May in the character of Jack is well placed; Mr. Kimberley is brimful of humour as Larry Murphy; and the Misses Edie Macklin and Alice Granville create fun as the rival lovers.

BIRKENHEAD.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—A really perfect representation of the musical play A Country Girl, by Mr. George Dance's principal company, has naturally been enthusiastically greeted by large and fashionable audiences. The production is well costumed and staged. The Geoffrey Calloner of Mr. J. Warren Forester is in every respect a praiseworthy performance. Mr. J. Rooney gives a capital rendering of the Rajah of Bhong, and Sir Joseph Verity is amusingly impersonated by Mr. Arthur Jackson. As Nan, Miss Masie Gay plays with great piquancy, Miss Nancy Rossiter is fascinating and effective as Marjory, and Miss Daisy Davies, as the Princess Melanah, enacts the part with a finish and thoroughness, both vocally and histrionically, which are much admired. Much of the success is due to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. Jack Crichton, who, as Barry, invests the character with an irresistible fund of humour, and in conjunction with Miss Addie Leonard, the excellent Madame Sophie, scores heavily.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. George Gilbey, the popular comedian, than whom there are few greater favourites at this hall, is on a welcome return visit. Miss Florrie Gallimore, a talented and charming comedienne, is again here, and meets with her usual big reception, and Verno and Voyce, the versatile vocalists and sketch artists, are also reappearing with their usual distinction. The Brothers Hannaway, resourceful comedians and dancers, are also a leading feature, and Miss Josie Delaine (comedienne), Mr. Andy Higginson (comedian), Miss Edie Rivers (a pleasing serio), and an up-to-date display by the bioscope complete the programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The last nights of Aladdin are now announced, and on Monday next Mr. Philip Rodway, who has been testimonialised by the Press, and is admired by the public, takes a well-deserved benefit in his capacity of acting-manager. On Friday last week the medical students visited the pantomime in high spirits and gorgeous raiment, and Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like some of these. Miss Ada Reeve dispensed medals for the best costumes, while the medicos assembled at her back made a fine stage picture in their brave dresses, making presents to the artists in return.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Cinderella vanishes to-night (Saturday) after a most successful eleven weeks' run, on which management and artists can look back with wholesome pride. Miss Lelia Roze's benefit on Friday last week evoked an enthusiastic and also substantial response, Miss Ada Reeve and others rallying to her support, while Miss Roze, in her new venture A Dressing-room Dream, approved herself an actress and an impersonator of rare merit, scoring an indubitably big hit. Mr. Mark Sheridan took his benefit last night (Friday), when the witty and subtle farceur would certainly get a bumper.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Bernardo.—Blue Beard reaches its final performance on Saturday next, when it will have attained a tremendously successful run of three months duration. All available seats have been booked for this final performance, a "last night" at the Alexandra being regarded as a festival, and is attended as such. On Tuesday last Mr. Collingwood gave a charity matinée, for which Miss Lelia Roze, Harry Tate, Mark Sheridan, Harrison Brockbank, Regan and Ryan, Tom Foy, Florence and Lillian, and the Anartos appeared in addition to the pantomime. On Wednesday the members of the Rocket Club attended in their customary full force, and bestowed presents and favours on all and sundry of the artists.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville.—The Trumpet Call completes a very successful stock season, in which several reputations have been made or added to. Mr. Felix Pitt has done monumental service, and this week his striking aptitude and utility is proven in the rôle of Sergeant-Major Milligan; Mr. Fredk. Sandy gives a polished study of the villain, Richard Featherstone; Mr. Ernest Witham shows to special advantage as the hero, Cuthbert Cuthbertson; Miss Frances Ruttledge acts with fine pathos as the heroine, Constance; Miss Florence Nelson displays dramatic genius as Astrea, and the Misses Doris Lorraine and Polly Hughes deserve commendation for their clever acting as Mary and little Cuthbert respectively. Mr. Andrew Emm, as Professor Ginnifer, is highly popular for his droll acting, in which he is supported by Mr. Alic Macmillan, Miss Edie Martin, and Miss E. Marrable.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—In Holy (?) Russia is the title of the week's fare, which shows Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company to advantage. As Sir Henry Beresford, Mr. Frank Copeland makes a powerful and successful appeal; Mr. Louis Norman looks and acts the part of the villain, Michael Natolski, to the utmost degree of satisfaction; Miss Beatrice Western endows the vindictive Catska Lavotski with a fine voice and presence; and Mrs. J. Rice Cassidy as Renee Rubinoff is charming. Mr. J. Rice Cassidy provides true Irish comedy as Micky Nolan, and Mr. Arthur Stratton as Colonel Forrest, Mr. Tom G. Warry as Petrolski, Mr. Carl Rovinelli as Steragoff, Mr. Jno. Chesterfield as Overitch, Mr. J. Cuthbertson as the Chief, Miss Alice Marsden as Madame Natolski, and Miss Alicia Stratton as Mrs. Forest do well.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Power of the Cross is drawing crowded houses nightly, the capable company being under Mr. Lingford Carson's banner. The Baron Woulfe Curzola, an old Hungarian legendary character, is played with excellent dramatic effect by Mr. Hartwell J. Kirby; Mr. Fred W. Goddard cleverly enacts the rôle of Gerald Fairfax; Mr. Horace Denton as Dr. Leslie Fairfax is manly and convincing; Miss Cissie St. Elma is successful as Rita Lascelles, and Miss Lilian Ross capably fills the heroine's rôle.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—The electrical display presented by Volta is the big attraction this week, the coloured Meisters are more popular than ever, their well-harmonised glees being loudly applauded, Kitts and Windrum have an excellent musical sketch (The Cuckoo), Cardow's Cadets are highly entertaining, Elsie Roby in her slavcys' "At Home" wins applause, a smart gymnastic act is given by Lydia and Albino, Kelly and Ashby are clever billiardists, and Edie Veno (comedienne) and Charles Lilburn come in for a large share of applause.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The diversified and well-arranged programme this week is headed by Tom Foy, who scores as the Yorkshire lad, Florence and Lilian are responsible for a really clever musical entertainment, a clever acrobatic act is given by the Mahomed Ben Mahomed troupe of Arabs, the Two Anartos, Harry Bedford, and Morris and Morris are all amusing comedians, Charles Johnson is smart at the "cake-walk," the Sisters Wingrove (duettists and dancers) have had a hearty welcome, and Martine and Son render their illustrated songs with effect.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—John Tiller is presenting a bright rollicking extravaganza, Red Riding Hood, which goes with a swing all through. Miss May Terry (title-rôle) and Miss Bessie Cohen (principal boy) play with spirit and artistic finish, while the Poppy Quartette and Excelsior Troupe of children added largely to the success of the entertainment. The comedians provide many opportunities for laughter, Gus Garrick is more humorous than ever, Frances Letty and Dorothy Gould contribute their songs in their happiest manner, and Edney and Wade are refined vocalists and dancers.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The Brothers Leslie are making a big impression here with their musical eccentricities, the Arthur Lloyd Trio are seen in a comedy playlet Little Charlie, Frank Rose and Overy Calvert add to the mirth of the audience, the Hans Hansen Trio of acrobats are decidedly smart, Harry Drew renders his songs with effect, the Princess Pauline is a dainty comedienne, Ted Cowan is a popular comedian, and the bioscope depicts the replayed Cup-tie football match.

BISHOP AUCKLAND.—EDEN THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Fred Granville's drama For Better or Worse. Mr. Edwin Clive undertakes the rôle of Captain Frank Hilliard in a manly and spirited fashion; Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh is exceedingly good as Ned Earnshaw; the villainous character of Major Gerald Crawshaw is well played by Mr. Ellis J. Preston; Mr. H. C. Lovell does well as Lieut. Hector Dalrymple, and Mr. Edward W. Cudd as David Heathcote is seen to advantage. Miss Chrissie Dunbar is effective as Olive Heathcote; Miss Annie Lovell is attractive as Dollie Delaney, as is also Miss Leslie Cudd as Aunt Gertrude; Miss Amy Vennimore as the unscrupulous Belle Baverstock makes her mark. Humorous power is shown by Mr. Willie Black as Horatio P. Rantor and Miss Eva Reed as Melinda Lovell.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—That evergreen drama The Silver King is being played at this house by Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, and judging by the audiences on the opening nights the play's popularity is still assured. The company is a fully efficient one, including as it does Miss Daisy Scudamore (a niece of the well-known playwright), who plays Nellie Denver with a sweetness and pathos which go to the hearts of her audience. Mr. Herbert Ford as Wilfred Denver gives a fine portrayal of the tribulations and the heroism of the Silver King; Mr. George's Jaikes is as full of vitality as ever, despite the fact that the number of times he has appeared in the character runs far into the thousands; as the Spider, Mr. Algernon J. Hicks is all that is required; while the part of Elijah Coombe is in the very capable hands of Mr. Arthur Wright. Mr. E. A. Palmer, Mr. Byron Pedley, Mr. Eric Store, and Miss Amy Wood all deserve special mention for good work in their resepctive parts, while Miss Amy Manfree and Master Jack Evan as Cissie and Jack Denver act very prettily.

NEW PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company are here in The Still Alarm. There are some old favourites in the cast, including Miss Hettie Zillwood as Carrie Wilbur, Mr. Fred Osmond as Doc Wilbur, Mr. M. H. Glenville as Jack Manley, and Mr. Cecil Du Gue as John Bird. A special word should be said for the staging of the piece, the fire-station scene being especially good.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The management are providing their numerous patrons with excellent entertainment this week. A big success has been scored by the Brothers Huxter, acrobats and tumblers of a very high order; the performance of Mr. Ed. E. Ford, "the Australian sundowner," whose facial contortions are extremely amusing, is marked by a continuous roar of laughter; Miss Adeline Yohle, a charming soprano vocalist, quickly establishes herself a first favourite; and Marba and Verity, humorists and acrobatic dancers, who are old visitors to the Palace, repeat former successes; Ivan Tschernoff is responsible for a clever and interesting animal turn, his exhibition including performing ponies, dogs, and pigeons, which gave numerous evidences of careful training; Jimmy Shields, a one-legged dancer, and Kathleen Gray, comedienne, contribute to the general success of the entertainment, which, as usual, is brought to a close by an exhibition of living pictures by Raymond's biograph.

EXCHANGE HALL.—Lessee, Mr. W. Kenyon.—The New Century Animated Pictures are fulfilling a week's engagement at this hall, and crowded houses are the rule. The programme includes the latest pictures of the Royal visit to India, opening of Parliament by the King, and a good selection of comic and other films.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Ian Maclaren Shakespearean and Classical Repertoire Company has possession here this week. Hamlet was the piéce de resistance on Monday, with Mr. Maclaren as the Prince, on which part he brought to bear considerable histrionic ability. Mr. B. Iden Payne did well as Polonius, and Mr. Francois Cellier, jun., was not bad as Laertes. David Garrick was cordially received on Tuesday, with Mr. Maclaren, of course, in the title-rôle. The Merchant of Venice was given on Wednesday, when Miss F. Glossop Harris very successfully played Portia. The Corsican Brothers, Romeo and Juliet, and The Three Musketeers have also had a place in the bill.

GRAND THEATRE.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Monsieur Beaucaire, carefully enacted by Mr. Norman Macowan and company, is the attraction here. In the title-rôle Mr. Macowan has a part to which he is admirably suited, and he acquits himself with the utmost credit. Mr. Murray Halthorn contributes a careful portrayal of the Duke of Winterset, and Mr. Arthur Somers ably assumes the part of Major Molyneux. Miss Marguerite Cellier as Lady Mary Carlisle is likewise very successful, and wins the warmest encomiums. Mr. P. Ramsay Forman as Captain Badger, Mr. Leonard Laurence as Bean Nash, Miss Annie Windsor as Lucy Rellerton, Miss C. Howard Medley as Lady Rellerton, and Miss S. Izzard as the Countess of Greenbury also deserve credit for careful work.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—G. W. Hunter heads the bill here this week; Oliver Conroy, Downes and Langford, Edwards and Espinosa, Lizzie Kirk, Harry Morris, the Olive Trio, Will Onda's combination in Motor Maniacs, Frank Leon, Happy Tom Parker, and Vernon's Bioscope complete the list.

BOOTLE.—MUNCASTER THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Pennington; Manager, Mr. H. Pennington; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert E. Wilson.—Mr. F. H. Neville's company is here this week with the historical drama A Queen's Vengeance. Mr. R. Grasswell gives a good rendering of Henry II., and Mrs. Walter Bentley makes a bold Queen Eleanor. Mr. F. H. Neville submits a capital performance of Sir Rupert Warriner, Miss Nelson Ramsey is very sympathetic as Mistress Clifford, and Miss Mildred Monteath is a pleasing Janet. Mr. Gifforde Reynolds is good as Gilbert Ormonde. Bibeau, the Court fool, is in the capable hands of Mr. Ulick Burke. The bioscope between the acts adds interest to the performance.

BOSCOMBE.—HIPPODROME.—Joint Proprietor, Mr. Fredk. Mouillot and Mr. Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Ball.—The programme this week is a popular one. Mr. Claude Ginnett's equestrian sketch, Rejected Mounts, heads the bill, and proves a great attraction; Mahatma completely mystifies the audience by her extraordinary powers of second sight, Miss Edith Sylvester is a clever contortionist, Miss Flo Schuberth (burlesque actress) and Wal Robbins (a black and white comedy instrumentalist) are well received, Joe Mack is a popular comedian and dancer, the Four Olympian Stars are exceptionally good vocalists and dancers, and Ruffel's Imperial Bioscope shews some interesting pictures.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. Louis Calvert's clever company in The Duffer, under the direction of Mr. William Giffard, received a hearty reception here on Monday. Mr. E. H. Wynne, in the title-rôle, gave a capital study of the part, Mr. F. Pennington-Gush was easy and natural as Charles Chester, and Mr. Whitford Kane as Paul Martin. Miss Margaret Montrose as Lady Amelia, and Miss Mabel Taylor as Miss Hillier were clever.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—The regular dramatic season was commenced on Monday evening by Mr. Charles Macdona's company with the bright farcical comedy Are You a Mason? It is a return visit, and the piece was heartily welcomed by a large audience. Mr. E. H. Paterson elicited much laughter by his capital impersonation of Amos Bloodgood, and he has able support from Mr. H. Langdon Bruce as Frank Perry. Mr. Allan is very funny as George Fisher. Amongst the ladies of the smart company Miss Adelaide Grace earns distinction for her excellent acting as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, and Miss Mabel Younge is charming as Mrs. Perry. A Bad Penny is the curtain-raiser, in which Mr. E. H. Paterson in a clever character sketch is well supported by Mr. Percy Bell, Mr. H. L. Tracy, Mr. O. Smith, and Miss Mabel Jowett.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—Dick Whittington is still running with undiminished success, although the end of its career is in sight. Benefits are the order. On last Tuesday evening the charming principal girl, Miss Edith Ager, appealed to her numerous friends, when Mr. Fred Kitchen, the comedian from the Fred Karno's Company, lent valuable aid for the occasion.

THE EMPIRE (Moss' Empires, Limited).—Resident Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Laughter reigns supreme here this week, and for this Fred Karno's company are mainly responsible with Moses and Son. Mr. Fred Kitchen, who takes the part of Perkins, is simply irresistible, and he has fine support from the numerous gentlemen of the clever company, and from a bevy of charming ladies. Miss Godwynne Earle, the principal girl of the Royal pantomime, scores heavily in capital songs; the Hardinis, a quartette of accomplished violinists, contribute an excellent musical turn; Helene and Emilow are very expert and graceful in a performance on the trapeze; Chris. Richards, "the man with the hat," is wonderfully smart, and an exceedingly funny comedian; the Rohda Bros. are a couple of muscular gymnasts, who introduce many novel features into their performance; Viviana, the charming dancer, is the very essence of grace, and those clever aquatic performers, James and Marie Finney, are again giving their turn in the tank with all their accustomed grace and success.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—There is an attractive programme here this week, Alfred Cyclo heading it with some clever trick riding on the bicycle; Tiny Arnold, a di applause on Mr. Carpenter mentioning several well-known names, and he was loudly cheered on leaving the stage. On Monday evening there was a large attendance, when The Price of Her Soul was staged. The play is mounted in a very satisfactory manner, both scenery and dresses being on a liberal scale, and Messrs. John B. Shinton and Alexander Greenwood's company is a competent one. Mr. John B. Shinton acts well as Lord Rolf Mandeville, V.C.; Mr. Annesley Hele displays power as Major Ivan Skoboloff; and both Miss Mona Gray and Miss Ida M. Ryder give excellent performances of their respective parts of Olga Lanovitz and Countess Ines Steinmitz. The comic parts are successfully taken by Mr. Will Percy, Mr. Maurice de Sage, Mr. Edwin Coates, Miss Tina Frank, and Miss Ada Arnott; and the remaining characters are all in very able hands.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Musical Johnstons present a pleasing and refined musical entertainment, being described as "America's Foremost Xlyophone Artists." Keen and Waller are smart and amusing acrobatic comedians; Leah Arden is a capable ballad vocalist; the Donovans are pleasing vocalists; Kitty Glover and company score in their sketch, Mistaken Identity; Fred Laud, eccentric comedian, obtains applause; Hughes and Elliott are expert sand dancers; and Billie Burford (a lady) is a pleasing comedienne with some entertaining songs. "Quarter Day," by the Barrascope, concludes the entertainment. Mr. Frank Weston, the manager here, takes a well-deserved benefit on Friday evening, special attractions being announced.

Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Moran and Marreece Quartette head the programme with a good musical turn, with electric effects, and a lightning transformation of both costumes and scenery. The Brothers Kroney are smart in their eccentric contortionist act, London's Lazy Coalmen, the stage setting being also exceptionally good; the Deer Family have an interesting and well-mounted sketch, Indians of the Past; Boyd and Gilfain please with a diverting operetta; La Danseuse (a clever juvenile dancer) has a pretty act, Noel; or, A Child's Christmas Story; Mansona does some capable juggling; Bliss and Bliss amuse as eccentric comedians; Blake and Granby obtain applause for their comedy duologue, The Man in Possession; and the performance concludes with "The Train Wreckers," projected by Vernon's Bioscope.

BROMLEY. — Lyric Theatre. — Lessee, Mr. A. Carlton; Manager, Mr. H. Strong.—On Friday, March 2, Mr. Rutland Barrington gave a very successful humorous musical and dramatic recital, including the "Vicar's Song" from The Sorcerer, and also some of his own composing, notably "The Silent Way," a musical sketch, entitled The Two Troubadours, and a recitation written by himself and set to music—"At the Ball." Miss Robertson Grimston charmingly rendered "Orpheus with his lute," "My heart's at your feet," and "Under the Deodar." The concluding item was a musical duologue, written by Mr. Barrington and composed by Mr. Frederick Rosse, entitled The Turncoats, which was smartly played by Mr. Barrington and Miss Robertson Grimston. Mr. Harold Grimston presided at the piano, and during the evening executed two artistic pianoforte solos.

BROUGHTON.—Victoria, Limited.—Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company in the American drama At Cripple Creek, by Hal Reid, provided a capital entertainment for a large audience here on Monday. Joe Mayfield is a type of manly miner who has earned the nickname of "Parson," and Mr. Hilliard Cox ably sustains the character. Miss Vera Fordyce as Dynamite Ann shows histrionic ability, Mr. Will Hook as Reggie Harwood and Miss Ella Dixon as Maggie Mason work well in the comedy business, Mr. Walter Thornton as Martin Mason and Mr. C. Douglas Carlyle as Manuel Alvarez are well placed, and Mr. Albert Rogers is funny as the nigger Ben White.

BURNLEY.—Victoria Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Mr. William Mollison and company are here playing Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush, a charming Scotch love story. Mr. William Mollison is accorded a hearty reception for his clever portrayal of Lachlan Campbell, Mr. Allen Thompson makes a delightfully jovial William Maclure, and Mr. Durward Lely is excellent as the Rev. John Carmichael. Lord Hay is in the able hands of Mr. A. Chappell, and Mr. F. M. Paget is a typical Earl of Kilspindie. Mr. Alec F. Thompson as Wee Posty is highly praiseworthy, and Mr. Kendal Chalmers is very good as Tammas Mitchell, Miss Evelyn McNay is a charming Flora Campbell Miss Josephine Woodward is quite a Scotchwoman as Margaret Howe, Miss Edith Blair-Staples is admirable as Annie, and Miss Alice Francis is a prepossessing Kate Carnegie. The two children Geordie and Jeannie are capitally rendered by Miss Martha Stewart and Miss Jeannie Fitzgerald respectively. The play is beautifully mounted, and is preceded by A Happy Pair, in which Miss Alice Francis and Mr. Durward Lely are at home.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General-Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culeen.—Popular audiences here are paying much attention to Mr. Lingford Carson's company in A Modern Adventuress.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner.—Bernar heads the bill here this week with his performing marionettes, and is highly appreciated; George Reeves is quite as funny as ever, the Clavers are much applauded for their smart juggling, and the Sisters Cora are an acceptable pair of dancers. Dent and Harris give a funny sketch, Mary and the Squire, Frances Drew is a charming comedienne, and Edna, the whistling girl, is a good turn. Mona McDonald, comedienne, sings well, and the Urbanora pictures are of unusual excellence.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — New Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company, with The Sin of Her Childhood, occupies the boards this week. A most pathetic picture of the heroine is given by Miss Mary Fulton, an emotional actress of exceptional ability; the drunken vindictive stepmother, vividly portrayed by Miss Jenny Douglas Hicks, creates a feeling of abhorrence in the audience; Mr. Charles Fancourt assumes the rôle of Anglican priest, a character for which he is eminently suited; the villain is played with dramatic power and intensity by Mr. E. St. Clair Forbes; a soldierly figure is that of Mr. Fred Lloyd, who is a distinct success as Captain Thornton; the Irish humour of Mr. Hugh Brady (Barney) and his vivacious sweetheart (Eliza Muggins) affords relief to the tension of the drama, while Little Dot Moss, an extremely clever little lady, soon sings and dances herself into favour. Little Edyth does well in her dual rôle of Little Mary and Eric Dugdale.

BURY (Lancs).—Theatre Royal and Opera House, Ltd.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—The Face at the Window is being played here this week by Messrs. Armadale and Warren's company. Chief parts are well played by Mr. E. Hogan Armadale, Mr. T. W. Dunscombe, Mr. Geo. Phythian, Mr. G. Hall, and Miss N. Thorn Hallam.

Circus of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Zarmah heads the bill, and goes through a remarkable performance with lions, bears, and boarhounds. The Bouncing Dillons (gymnasts), Scottish Waifs and Strays in a sketch, Forest and King (comedy dancers), Harry Varden (ventriloquist), A. P. Boswell (comedian), and Nellie Shannon (vocalist) are also in the bill.

The Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead; General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—A good programme includes Horace Sade (dancer), Chas. Baldwin's comedians in The Bank Clerks, Knockabout Arleys, Grapho and Jackson (comedians), Bert Kemp (impersonator), Alice Townend (vocalist), and Clifford and Gibson (eccentric comedians).

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—Athenæum Hall.—Manager, Mr. E. Arnold Crack.—Mr. Albert Chevalier has been here for one night, meeting with an enthusiastic reception from a house filled to overflowing. Mr. Chevalier's inimitable impersonations are, of course, the chief attraction, but he is supported by artistes of high capability.

CAMBRIDGE. — New Theatre. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—On Monday Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company opened here with a return visit of Floradora. Mr. T. Albert Bruno is funny as Anthony Tweedlepunch; Frank Abercoed is well played by Mr. Henry Crosland; Miss Gladys Elvey, though suffering from cold, looks and acts the part of Dolores to perfection; Miss Florence Hersee makes a winsome Angela Gilfain; the Lady Holywood of Miss Kate Leicester is excellent; and Mr. Harry Perry fills the part of Captain Arthur Donegal ably.

CARDIFF.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Mr. Wm. Greet's principal London company returns this week with The Earl and the Girl. The cast includes the same artists as on the previous visit, and crowded audiences have been the rule nightly. Mr. William Stephens in the part of Jim Cheese gives one of the funniest delineations possible; as Dick Walgrave Mr. Percy Carr is another conspicuous success; Miss Aimée Grey gives a captivating portrayal of Elphin Haye, and scores in her well-rendered songs; Miss Florence Imeson depicts Daisy Fallowfield very charmingly; Mr. Will Hindson's performance of the American solicitor is exceptionally smart; Mr. Percy Wright distinguishes himself in the rôle of the Hon. Crewe Boodle, and Miss Dot Carey displays talent as Liza Shoddham. Other notable contributions are given by Mr. Geo. H. Curzon as Bunker Bliss, Miss Gladys Fontaine as Mrs. Black, Miss Helen Langton as Virginia Bliss, and Mr. J. Graves as Mr. Talk; while the large and well-costumed chorus are in no small way responsible for the phenomenal success of the piece, which is under the able general management of Mr. Geo. Highland.

King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business-Manager, Mr. Reg. Grant.—The Power of Gold occupies the boards here, being presented by Mr. Frank Ayrton's No. 1 Company. The hero, Paul Jutson, is interpreted by Mr. Tom Ronald in a very effective manner; Miss Georgina V. France undertaking the arduous task of the heroine Meg. Miss Lilla Wilde portrays Lady Brandon in a particularly clever manner; Mr. Charles Whitlock makes a great success of the character of Madji Zambra; and Mr. Frank Ayrton as Sammy Smudge and Miss Madge Seymour as Norah Donnelly are responsible for some capital and wholesome comedy.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The Russian Giant Machnow is causing a sensation and drawing packed houses by his huge proportions. The clever and humorous Artois Bros. in their smart performance on the triple-bar put in a welcome appearance; Walter Munroe goes down with his well-rendered songs; Jordon and Harvey are excruciatingly amusing in their Jewish impersonations; and the Bros. Warshaw prove a very entertaining couple of musicians; Chas. J. Butler and John Josey as the Two Cavaliers in jest and song; Louie Counsell and Oscar Mills, in On the Stage; The Delevines, in a new and original comedy sketch; and the Three Renards, in an aerial strong act, appear with much success; while the Bioscope with very attractive pictures completes a more than usually good programme.

CARLISLE.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Lessees, Trustees of Mr. R. S. M'Kim; Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Stanley.—Mr. Fred Benton's powerful and interesting drama A Life's Story is this week presented to Carlisle playgoers for the first time by a strong and well-balanced company under the direction of the author and Mrs. Fred Benton. Mr. Charles E. Linney as the hero, Captain Jack Temple, R.N., makes an ideal sailor, and contributes an impressive and satisfactory performance. The polished villainy of Count Bergen is admirably depicted by Mr. Max Coutts, an incisive and clever actor, who gets full effect out of the many dramatic scenes in which he appears. He is ably supported by Miss A. Harrison-Tate, whose Zeika is a meritorious performance; Mr. Fred Benton, always a favourite here, has a part in Tom Berry, the detective, that exactly suits his robust and humorous style; and Mr. Seymour Perry and Miss Ruby Hamilton Belasco have excellent comedy parts which are smartly played, and each contributed songs which were favourably received. Mr. A. L. Baron in the dual part of Frank and Max Clifford shows considerable versatility and resource.

Algie's Hippodrome. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; General-Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—Topping the bill here this week are those clever foot equilibrists the Three Sisters Anderson, and the reception accorded them is of the most flattering description. The Four Aces in a refined comedy acrobatic performance score a great success; Miss Alexandra gives a clever and graceful performance on the wire, and is much appreciated; the musical act submitted by the Royal Zerbinis is one of the prettiest and most brilliant ever seen here; Lade Henderson is the possessor of a fine baritone voice, which he uses with great effect in a couple of songs; Sam Shipley is a funny comedian, and scores immediately; Rabbit, the clown, is still here, and as funny as ever. Payne's Bio-photoscope, with new films, complete a most interesting entertainment.

CASTLEFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. J. A. Campbell opened on Monday night with his company in The Little Bread Winner. A capital sketch of Lord William Dorrington is given by Mr. J. A. Campbell; Richard Lawrence is well interpreted by Mr. David Gordon; Mr. Scott Leighton is a painstaking actor, and makes a real success of Joseph Prior; Mr. Allen Charles is responsible for much hilarity in the character of Charles Prior; as Margaret Daventry Miss Maud Hastings plays with grace and feeling; Miss Jenny Bostock makes the most of her opportunities as Bridget O'Flanaghan; a word of praise is due to Miss Emmie Thomas for her remarkably clever and telling portrayal of Meg, the little bread winner; an excellent Kate Cherry is seen in Miss Maud Buchanan; while Ruth Cherry finds a capable exponent in Miss Emmie Litchfield; Miss Lissa Young plays in a painstaking manner as Bobby Trott.

CHELTENHAM.—Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Messrs. Murray King and Clarke's company in Bluebell in Fairyland is charming patrons here this week. The little heroine is impersonated by a very clever young actress in Miss Gladys Cooper, whose performance is daintily graceful throughout; Mr. Lawrence Emery acts pleasantly as Dicky; Mr. Shirley Lea as the Stout Policeman and the Reigning King in the dream is excellent; Messrs. H. C. Morton and E. Cossart as the Footmen, afterwards Blib and Blob, get through a great amount of comic business in fine style, and Mr. Stanley Crisp is very funny as the wonderful cat. Peter. Miss Muriel Juin doubles the parts of the Queen and the Water Lily, singing with much success "My Irish Molly" and "Glow-worm"; Miss Annie Blanchard dances very daintily as Autumn Leaf; and Miss Rubie Carter as Will o' the Wisp is a perfect little exponent of terpsichorean art; Miss Connie Emerald and Miss Marie Edmonds act prettily as Bluebell's sisters; Miss May Casson sings charmingly as the Thrush; and Mr. Percy Farimond, as the Singing Collier, uses his remarkable voice with effect. Other parts are well sustained by Mr. David Cruickshank (the Merchant), Mr. Fred F. Allen (the Sleepy King), Mr. Edgar Pleon (the Yellow Dwarf), and Master Harry Pleon.

CHESTERFIELD.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company provides the attraction here with Life's Sweetest Sins. The chief female rôle is forcibly delineated by that gifted actress, Miss Marie Daventry, who is ably supported by the other members of the company. The piece is well staged, and the scenic effects are exceptionally good.

CHORLEY (Lancs.).—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Clay.—Mr. William Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl is here this week. The company, under the courteous management of Mr. Francis Hawley, is an exceptionally fine one, and the staging exceptionally good. Mr. Alfred Donohoe sustains the character of Jim Cheese with much humour; Mr. Leslie Gaze as Dick Wargrave, is well placed; Mr Thomas Kennard is good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; and Mr. A. E. Wilson as A. Bunker Bliss, Mr. Percy Bronson as Downham, and Mr. Sam Lysons as Mr. Talk are capital in their respective rôles; Mr. Greville Hayes successfully undertakes the part of Mr. Hazel; Miss Hylda Dugdale gives a charming rendering of Elphin Haye; Miss Ida Shatham, vivaciously presents the part of Daisy Fallowfield; Miss Minnie Plumpton is effective as Miss Virginia Bliss; and Miss Lina Hicks (Lizzie Shoddam) and Miss Beatrice Anderson (Mrs. Shimmering Black) render adequate service.

CLYDEBANK.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Carlo.—The attraction here this week is the Elster Grinie Grand Opera Company. On Monday Maritana was presented to a good house. Mr. Payne Clark, vocally, was a decided success as Don Cæsar de Bazan; Mr. Michael Kemble did good work as Don Jose; the title-rôle was in the safe hands of Miss Marie Elster, who did every justice to the part, her numbers being especially well rendered; Mr. Gilbert King gave a dignified impersonation of the King; Miss Edmee De Dreux was well placed as Lazarillo; and other parts worthy of mention are Mr. Tom Patridge as the Captain, Miss M. Quilliam as Marchioness, Mr. H. Murphy as Marquis, and Mr. C. Cook as Alcade. The Bohemian Girl, Faust, The Lily of Killarney, and La Fille de Madame Angot are also billed.

COATBRIDGE.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Coatbridge Theatre Co.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Commins.—The boards are this week occupied by Mr. T. Edward Ward's company in Her Wedding Day, and a large audience welcomed the artists on the opening night. Mr. Percy Brown as Harold Saxby is excellent in a difficult rôle; Mr. S. Herbert Humber is prominent with a clever portrayal of Weedon Kenyon, and Mr. T. Edward Ward is both forceful and convincing as Seth Mayson; Miss Ward brilliantly sustains the part of Madge Conway; Miss Eva Bertram is good as Dora; Miss Beatrice Sinclair is praiseworthy as Dolly Klink, and Mrs. Caccles receives careful attention at the hands of Miss Ettie Spalding.

COLCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. John A. Thompson's Aladdin company opened, before a good house, on Monday night, and the feature of the pantomime was the high-class varieties introduced in the second act. They included among others, Abex, reputed to be the strongest youth living; the Verona Troupe of acrobatic dancers; Dale and D'Argan grotesque tumblers and contortionists; Chas. Wood, an exceedingly clever quick change artist; Ernest Douri, a pleasing siffleur; and the Sisters Isabelle, specialty artists. As Aladdin, Miss Beatrice Varley was unquestionably a big success; and Mr. Albert Williams made a most becoming Widow Twankey; Mr. Ernest Douri was an extremely agile Vizier; while the wickedness of the scheming old uncle was well depicted by Mr. Chas. Wood.

CONSETT.—New Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company is paying a welcome return visit here this week in the romantic play, A Heart's Desire. Mr. Arthur Hinton is an excellent Lord St. Ives, and as Luke Forrest Mr. Travis Green is really good. Eric May is well played by Mr. Gerald Byrne. Miss Florence Zillwood is a capable Hon. Elsie Beresford; as Gwendolin Rose Miss Lydia Andre gives entire satisfaction; as Olga Miss Leila Zillwood is the recipient of well-deserved applause. On Wednesday and Friday night The Sorrows of Satan was played.

CORK.—Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—An excellent turn is provided here by the Akimoto Troupe of Japanese Equilibrists. Cul Pitt introduces some smart sleight-of-hand tricks, and is a good quick-change artist; the Five "M.P.'s" are musicians of ability; the Three Schaffers perform some remarkable feats of strength; George Prince is a first-class comic singer; Molly Doon sings her songs with much taste; Daisy Almer sings and dances capitally; and Alf Mayall is a comedian of ability.

COVENTRY.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—One of the most successful turns on the programme presented this week is Arthur Rigby, whose songs are capitally rendered; J. E. Coyle, another comedian, is likewise successful; Kahn and Kahn, described as modern necromancers, give some exceptionally clever and well-thought-out tricks; Dunning is a skilful ventriloquist; the Sisters Chester prove to be excellent singers and dancers; John Fossett's miniature circus, includes dogs, donkeys, &c., who give some very clever tricks; George Collins is a comedian whose capabilities are beyond doubt; Harry and May Kent cause amusement in a comedy act; the Hippodrome pictures conclude the performance.

Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr Wm. Bennett.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company in the always popular play East Lynne is meeting with success this week. Mr. Alfred Beaumont makes a most effective Archibald Carlyle; Miss Julie Kennard gives a sweet and pathetic rendering of Lady Isobel; Miss Violet Dunn does full justice to the part of Barbara Hare; and Miss Ethel Hardacre and Miss A. Byron are both successful as Cornelia Carlyle and Bryce respectively; Mr. Eric Mayne is to be commended for an admirable rendering of Francis Leveson; Mr. Geo. Jarvis wins full credit as the wronged son of Justice Hare.

CRADLEY HEATH.—Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. John H. Morton.—We have a welcome return visit of Messrs. E. E. Knight and George Denham's company this week with The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell is in his favourite rôle of Jagon, alias Simmonet, the Strangler, a part which, after his 5,000 times of performance, seems to have become almost second nature to him. Miss Mildred Cottell takes the rôle of Cora Simmonet, and plays it with grace and feeling. Mr. Harry Scott has a difficult part as Paul Blanchard, and Miss Nellie Fletcher is very good as Sophie Blanchard, his sister. Miss Hilda Baynton gives a pleasing rendition of Marie Guerin, whose father, Captain Guerin, is ably portrayed by Mr. Charles Mackay. Mr. Leonard Howe as Robert de Belfort deserves special mention, as also do Mr. John Brittain and Mr. Harry Agar Lyons, who as Dodot and Alphonse de Concow cause much amusement by their quarrels. Mr. Richard Ferris has the heavy part in Lorentz de Ribas, and it suits him capitally. Mr. George Child is a dignified M. de Beaudin, and Mr. Geo. Denham is particularly well suited as Lonstalot, the Smiler.

CREWE.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in Hall Caine's play, The Christian, opened here on Monday for three nights. The part of John Storm is in the capable hands of Mr. Alfred Goddard, who does full justice to it. Mr. Harry Colbeck gives a dignified portrayal of Father Lamplugh, and Mr. Colin Johnston is well suited as Archdeacon Wealthy. Mr. Percy Twyman proves himself an able exponent in the rôle of Lord Robert Ure, and Mr. Duncan Yarrow as Horatio Drake contributes a good representation. Mr. Anthony Rawles as the Faro King, Mr. Jack Hames as Mr. Lorimer, and Mr. Charles Stafford as Brother Paul successfully sustain their alloted parts. Miss Laura Walker is both graceful and clever as Glory Quayle, whose varied moods are faithfully rendered. Miss Violet Vivian displays ability as Mrs. Callander, and Miss Florence Radcliffe as Polly acquits herself well. Miss L. Kingston, Miss Phyllis Leslie, and Miss Eileen Barry as Netty, Betty, and Letty respectively deserve notice. Mr. W. H. Kirby's company in Somebody's Sweetheart is billed for the remainder of the week.

CROYDON.—Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh are presenting Wilson Barrett's last play, Lucky Durham, here this week. Mr. Edmund Kennedy gives point to the character of John Durham; Mr. Benson North submits a genuine performance as Lord Mountfallon; Mr. Arthur Leigh is quite in his element as the Hon. Reginald Steighton; Mr. A. E. Walker makes a suitable Mr. Vallerton; Mr. Campbell Goldsmid gives a smart sketch of Ben Verstein; Mr. John Hartt is excellent as Tasker; Messrs. Sydney Bancroft and Charles Phipps put in good work as Mr. Mintborough and Mr. Lubenham; and Messrs. George Lake (Jarvis), Bert Gunter (Little), and Eric Wynne (Paddon) deserve praise. Miss Gertrude Robins gives an artistic performance in the rôle of Helen Vallerton; Miss Frances Wolviston is commendable as Lady Mountfallon; Miss Florence Dulhunty merits congratulations as the Hon. Margaret Steighton; Miss Louise Gourlay is a womanly Mrs. Durham; and Miss Kate North is adequate as Miss Premore.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Herrick.—Mysteries of London is the draw at the Royal this week. Mr. F. Morgan gives a consistent performance as Victor Levigne; Mr. F. Stone appears to advantage in the dual rôles of Sam Conway and Phillip Conway; Mr. C. A. East is invaluable as Bill Rawson; Mr. Joe Monkhouse is invigorating as Dick Coppem; Mr. Harvey White makes capital out of the part of Robert Best; and Mr. J. E. Manning is good as Franz Muller. Miss Ida Phillips gives a faithful portrayal of Lena North; Miss May Seton is well placed as Liza Stumps; and Miss Marie de Roos skilfully enacts the character of Sybil Grey. Minor parts are neatly played by Mr. H. Scott and Miss Nell Gillmore.

DARLINGTON.—Theatre Royal.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—The attraction this week is Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee. Miss Cecile Beresford is charming as Nanoya; Mr. Walter Champney an amusing Chambuddy Ram, is ably supported by Miss Katie Yates; Mr. Hugh Webb, as Boobhamba, is capital, and his rendering of his topical song causes him to be recalled; and Mr. Courteney Comber, as the tea planter, plays well. Miss Mona Grey, as Lady Vereker, is graceful; Miss Florrie Treseder as Angy Loftus, is excellent; Mr. W. Bosco, as Sir Peter Loftus, gives a clever impersonation; and Mr. Arthur Foote, as Bobby Warren, is to be congratulated.

DARWEN. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robinson. — Delighted audiences are witnessing the performances of The Girl from Japan. Miss Dorothy Glenton gives a charming impersonation of Violet; Miss Mabel Kerridge undertakes Polly Perkins in a capable manner; and Miss Jeannie Holmes does well as Lady Flippington. Miss Josephine Ellis is a dancer of exceptional ability; Mr. Percy Baverstock makes a capital old General Baugh; Mr. Ernest Spalding sustains the rôle of the Rev. John Smith in good style; Mr. W. H. Moore is capable as Horatio Binks.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Denley; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—The Milton Rays' Company in A Hot Night were to occupy the boards this week, but owing to the illness of Mr. Milton that engagement fell through. Mr. George Kirk and Miss May Neil's company are consequently producing Charles Darrell's play, Her Luck in London. The romantic and at times pathetic adventures of Nellie Harborne, the Belle of Meadowfield, impersonated by Miss May Neil, were closely followed by Monday night's audience, and the performance has in it much to commend it to popularity, the acting being of a high standard. The hero is well played by Mr. Charles Leicester, who does full justice to the rôle. Mr. Stephen Crossley as Richard Lenowen, proprietor of the Hilarity Lounge, creditably accounts for an unpopular character; a pleasing performance is given by Mr. Douglas Tremayne as the Rev. Lionel Strong, who is in love with Lilian Harborne, a character capably portrayed by Miss Frances Waring; some fun is caused by Mr. Chas. Digby as Algie Kirkcumbrie (a broken-down swell), Mr. J. Tilley Dillson as Jerry, and Miss Florie Groves as Maud Gladys (a dairymaid and servant); a good performance is that of Miss Ella Vane as Ruth Harborne; and Mr. Tyrone Power enacts her outraged and long-suffering husband, Stephen Harborne, with ability.

Palace.—Lessee and General Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Taylor.—An attractive star turn is provided this week by Sinclair and Whiteford in their pleasing monologue entitled Getting Even. It is a clever little sketch, admirably acted, and causes hearty amusement. Sterling and Love appear to advantage in a vocal and instrumental comedy act, and are well received; Fred Hallam, a popular comedian locally, is well to the fore; Ralston Bros. sing very acceptably; Nellie Chandos is a pleasing comedienne and clever dancer; Fred Gilbert proves himself an expert on the high, unsupported ladder; and Mlle. Thelma as a clay modeller is excellent. The Palace Bioscope is responsible for several amusing pictures.

DEWSBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Herbert Asquith.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is presenting here this week the exciting drama, The Midnight Mail. Mr. George Harvard submits an earnest performance of Harry Steyne. A fine study is that given by Mr. F. G. Evison as Billy Brewer, while Hassan and Leonard Royle are in the capable hands of Messrs. C. P. Wentworth and Austim Mortimer. Miss Mildred Carr is a lively Nancy Brewer, and Miss Grace Lester scores as Mary Steyne.

Hippodrome and Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. George Weldon.—The bill here is occupied by turns of all-round excellence, notable among them being, Lord, Murray, and Lord in a pot-pourri gymnastic entertainment. Pueblo and Cropp, speciality artists, are smart; the Three Clarions, patterers, cause much amusement; Hyam Long and Harry Zeter, eccentric comedians, are worthy of note; and others included in the bill are Babs Lloyd, baby coon, and Wat Tyler, character vocalist.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Opera House, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The romantic military play Revenge was well received here on Monday. Mr. E. Hill-Michelson was capital as Prince Orloff; the Captain Lario Vanessa of Mr. Wellesley Draper was vigorous; Mr. Theo. Balfour acted with dignity; Mrs. Edward Lowris made much of the part of Count Mussant; and another vigorous and breezy rendering was the Captain David Carr of Mr. Edwin Jenner. Miss Grace Amero scored as Lieutenant Maurice, and the Jim Jennings, A.B., of Mr. J. Russell Bagne was effective. Charming and graceful, Miss Violet Carlyle's embodiment of the Queen was a triumph.

DOVER. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Ltd.; Chairman of Directors, Mr. B. Carter; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred C. Dew.—Mr. John Lawson and company opened a successful week's engagement here on Monday. Three sketches have been played nightly—viz., A Bride for a Living, The King's Minister, and Humanity. In the first-named Miss Cissie Lawson easily gains chief honours for her consummately clever rendering of Louie, Mr. E. S. Vincent playing the part of Lucus Poulton with great skill, the others in the cast assisting admirably. Mr. John Lawson is, of course, seen to most advantage in The King's Minister, his capital acting as Lord Draconsmere meeting with universal appreciation. Miss Lawson appears as Lady Muriel, and plays with much grace and feeling. The part of the Hon. Mrs. St. Ozier could not have a more capable exponent than Miss Ethel Gordon Paull. Mr. Arthur Royston's portrayal of Milano is a powerful and effective piece of work, Mr. Ommanney making a success of the small rôle of Lord Arthur Lincoln. Between the sketches several variety turns were introduced, including the Brothers Tarrant, patterists; Miss Louie Belrose in the scena, The Man in the Moon; the Sisters Valasco, graceful Spanish dancers; and Miss Paull, who sang "The Shepherd's Lullaby" most artistically. Mr. Lawson took his benefit on Friday night, when The Monkey's Paw was played.

The Empire Palace.—Proprietors, The Empire Palace Co.; Manager, Mr. P. G. Wraith; Secretary, Mr. Chas. R. Standfield.—At the head of the bill this week is Miss Carlotta de Yonsen's company, including Mr. Chas. A. Carlisle, in a sketch entitled Blue River Valley. Billy Munro is an amusing comedian; Jessie Hart sings and dances well; Omeg and Lux are responsible for much hilarity; Will Kendrick is clever; Lucy Lucelle sings coon songs in a fascinating manner; and the Two Wiltons win popularity with their duets and dances.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Hyland.—Mr. Edmund Tearle and company, including Miss Kate Clinton, commenced a week's engagement here on Monday night, when Othello was produced before a large and appreciative audience. Mr. Edmund Tearle in the title-rôle displayed his usual striking abilities, and the Desdemona of Miss Esher Tearle was a praiseworthy performance. Iago was capably sustained by Mr. Richard Vane, and Miss Mary Cleveland effectively portrayed the rôle of Julia. Mr. O. V. Crabtree enacted the part of Cassio in an admirable manner, and Miss Mary Campbell was excellent as Emilia. Mr. A. Wynne, Mr. Spencer Geach, Mr. T. W. Benson, Mr. Clifton Marle, Mr. James Skea, Mr. Joseph A. Keogh, Mr. Richard Melton, and Miss Clare Armitage were all creditable in their respective parts. The Three Musketeers, Virginius, Macbeth, and Richard III. were also billed.

Theatre Royal. — Managing Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—A new departure was made here on Monday night, when a huge entertainment was presented to a crowded house. One of the most attractive features of the programme was that of Madame Alice Esty, assisted by Mr. Elliston Webb, in the Miserere scene from Il Trovatore, which was loudly applauded. Captain Max Gruber with his elephant, horse, and pony provides an interesting turn; the American Comedy Four cause no end of laughter in their scene, Outside Ye Olde Bulle and Bushe; the Athos Troupe give an original and clever acrobatic show; the Sisters Reno are vocalists and dancers of more than ordinary merit; the latest American sensation known as the "Globe of Life," in which Wizard Strong and Miss Irene Strong appear, is a thrilling performance, and merits applause; Les Rupertos appear with success as equilibrists; Hanover and Lee are expert jugglers; Will Driscoll wins favour as a comedian; the Three Laurels' speciality act on the ping-pong table is well enjoyed; and the Animated Pictures are up to date.

Empire.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Marsh.—The premier position is allotted to Julie Mackay, whose vocal numbers are nightly encored. A favourite comedian in the person of Mr. Russell Wallet is also here, and keeps the audience highly amused; Nellie Farrell, comedienne, meets with a warm reception; the Fitzroys are clever male and female gymnasts; Irving Jones is a humorous comedian; Sinclair and Parr in their vocal entracte meet with success; Stephens and Rennio are acceptable comedy artists; Les Gittis are well received; and Hector, wire walker, and the Empire Pictures complete the programme.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Leoni Clarke with his performing cats, monkeys, rabbits, &c., heads the bill here this week, and provides a marvellous display of animal training. The sensational somersault and pirouette act of the Alexander Trio elicits applause; Charles Woodward is an exceedingly good actor-vocalist; M. Slippere, blind pianist, scores a success, as does also Kavados, juggler and cannon ball manipulator; Tokio is a capital mimic; and George Le Wist, ventriloquist, meets with approval. Other turns which are well received are those of Ferris and Farnley, patter comedians; Vasey and Ramsey in their comedy dancing act; and Harry Cotton, eccentric comedian.

World's Fair and Music Hall.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The company engaged here include Mme. Hypa, thought-reader; Percy Anderson, conjurer and ventriloquist; Lottie Haven, serio and dancer; Mike Murphy, comedian and dancer; and Leopold Llama, American musician.

Samuels' Exhibition Palace.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The following artists are appearing here:—Sisters Du Barrie, male impersonators; Lily Wallace, serio and dancer; Paul Vincent, musical expert; Madge Seymour, comedienne and dancer; James Foy, comedian; and Brothers Bailey, musical grotesques.

DUDLEY.—Opera House.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Charles Harrington (of Uncle Tom Cabin's fame) and a specially selected company are giving The Sailors of the King for the first time in Dudley. Mr. Harrington takes premier honours as Admiral Drake and Mr. Harry Douglas quickly wins favour by his manly rendering of Dick Drake. Mr. F. Vernon Travers is quite convincing enough as the villain Orrel Drake, and he is ably seconded, or rather led, in his vill which brings it to Edinburgh for the first time. Mr. William Fagan in the arduous part of John Edmunds bears the main burden of the piece in very convincing fashion; and he is sympathetically supported by Miss Muriel Dean and Miss Marion Ryder as the wife and child; Jonas Deane and Edward Langley find well-contrasted exponents in Mr. Gordon Kay Bull and Mr. A. E. Enroblem; the Rev. Frank Selby is well portrayed by Mr. F. Gilbert Fenn, and Mr. Harry F. Wright gives a delightful study of an old physician in the part of Dr. Gaye. Other excellent bits of character acting are the Jem Price of Mr. Frank Gordon and the Ratty Gibbit of Mr. Harry G. Wright. Miss Kitty Lofting and Miss Emil Leslie have the difficult rôles of Constance Howard and Nellie Hallett, which they play with artistic discrimination. The comic relief afforded by Sam Hallett and Jane Adelaide is in the hands of Mr. Chris. Mason and Miss Evelyn Shaw, who carry it through in a fine, breezy style which is vastly appreciated. Smaller parts are capably filled, and the stage setting, which includes about a dozen highly effective scenes, is most creditable to the management.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—The Moody-Manners' Opera Company began an engagement here on Monday evening last before a crowded audience in Mozart's Marriage of Figaro. This opera, which had not been heard in Edinburgh for some time, received a fine rendition by a cast which comprised several of the ablest artists of the company. Madame Fanny Moody, who was in magnificent form, sang with delightful expression, and acted with great vivacity as Susanna; Mlle. Zelix de Lussan's Cherubino was characterised by immense sprightliness, and she sang with the brilliancy which marks all her performances. In Miss Kate Anderson the company possesses a valuable recruit, and her fresh, well-trained voice was heard to advantage in the music of the part of the Countess, while her acting was graceful and dignified. Mr. Lewis James is another decided acquisition; his Figaro was distinctly clever, alike from the vocal and dramatic standpoint, and the enthusiasm of the audience was well deserved. Mr. William Dever was excellent as the Count Almaviva; Mr. Charles Macgrath was an amusing Dr. Bartolo, and the remaining parts were filled with effect by Mr. H. Bailey as Don Basilio, Mr. G. Renshaw as Antonio, Miss M. Baker as Marcellina, and Miss Cadman as Barbasina. The choruses were sung with power and precision, and the orchestra under Herr Richard Eckold played with really admirable expression. Carmen was produced on Tuesday, Miss Zelie de Lussan repeating her dramatic impersonation of the title-rôle, and singing with her customary charm; Mr. Joseph O'Mara as Don José and Mr. Lewis James as Escamillo sang and acted in a finished style; and Miss Kate Anderson scored another success in her sympathetic performance of Michaela. Mr. Cuthbert Hawley was a masterly conductor. Eugene Onegin, the opera which made Tschaikowsky famous when produced at the Moscow Conservatorium in 1879, was given for the first time in Edinburgh on Wednesday. Tannhäusser, Lucia di Lammermoor, The Huguenots, and The Bohemian Girl have also been played during the week.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—Mr. J. H. Savile's short season with The Sleeping Beauty pantomime closes this week. The production has had a very successful run, thanks to the inherent merits of the piece and the ability of the performers. Miss Marie Adair as the Beauty and Miss Ethel Wilson as the Prince have earned a full measure of public favour, and Mr. Peter Bermingham has established himself as a most acceptable Scotch comedian; Mr. Dan O'Connor, Mr. George Hestor, Mr. William Garvey, and Mr. Arthur Ferris also distinguish themselves in their respective rôles; while Miss Alma Evelyne as the Queen and other ladies in less exacting parts acquit themselves successfully.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. J. Cawood.—The programme at the Empire this week introduces one or two clever artists new to Edinburgh. It is pleasant to listen to a singer so good as Mr. George Ridgewell, whose baritone voice was heard to much advantage in several solos; Holden's Marionettes provide an entertainment which is really admirable; the Matwcef-Hugoston Troupe give an exhilarating exhibition of Russian songs and dances; and Prince Fee Lung shows what a Chinese juggler can do in exhibiting mystifying feats; Miss Katie Rutler's songs are well received; Goggin and Davis give an amusing acrobatic sketch; Mr. Harry Clifford is a capital comedian; Flem and Brok evoke applause by their aerial pugilistic act, and the American Bioscope adds variety to a programme which has as its concluding item the musical and dancing sketch of Haley's Novelty Transformation Company.

EXETER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Mr. John A. Thompson's No. 1. Company opened on Monday with Dick Whittington and His Cat. Miss Ida Kessenly was smart in the title-rôle, and Miss Ella Wilmer was an attractive Alice Fitzwarren; her songs and dances evoked continued applause. Miss Ella Rose was a charming Princess, and Algy and Polly were prettily portrayed by Miss Lily and Violet English. The comedians were very good, especially Mr. Fred Anderson as Pimple, Mr. Edwin Dodd as Idle Jack, Mr. Ross Warren as Fitzwarren, and Mr. Harry Harcourt as Betsy Jane. Mr. Syd Morrell was comical as Captain Bunting. Both Mr. Hubert Davis as the Cat and Mr. Albert Hammond as the Demon Rat were effective. A special attraction was provided by the appearance of Mlle. Florence and her astounding feats on the rolling globe.

FARNWORTH.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—This week Mr. Frank Bateman's company is presenting the play No Wedding Bells for Her. Mr. Stuart Lomath as Frank Hatherleigh is to be congratulated on his thoroughly artistic rendering of the part; a fine character sketch is forthcoming from Mr. A. Balfour Mackay as the old actor, Horatio Fane, and the audience are not slow in recognising the many good points it contains; as Harold Treveley Mr. Edward Louis is all that could be desired in the part. Miss Lizzie Montague as Lola Delaspierre proves herself a very capable actress, and her interpretation meets with well-merited approval; Miss Ida Mackay gives a clever representation of the part of Doris Fane.

FOLKESTONE.—PLEASURE GARDENS THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—For the first part of the week Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Gertrude Elliott were here in The Light that Failed and Mice and Men. In the first-named piece Mr. Forbes Robertson's characteristic rendering of Dick Heldar evoked loud applause; Mr. Ian Robertson acted with good taste the part of Torpenhow; Miss Gertrude Elliott as Maisie, played with pleasing tenderness and skill; Miss Auriol Lee was seen to advantage as Bessie; Miss Gertrude Bibby as the Red-haired Girl, was thoroughly efficient; and Miss Minnie Griffin did well as Mrs. Haines. The play was preceded by Miss Clara Alexander in songs and stories from Dixieland. Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company in The Manxman opened on Thursday.

GAINSBOROUGH.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Arthur Carlton Theatres, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Robt. Kirk.—For the last three nights last week we had Messrs A'Dell and Chabot's company in The Romany's Revenge. Mr. G. Austin was good as Archibald Heath; Mr. H. C. Robinson was a powerful David Renard. The comedy element was in the hands of Mr. D. Hamilton as Bobby Bloom and Miss F. Wallace as Polly Pluck. This week we have Mr. Robt. Perris's company in the sensational drama A Fight for Millions, in which Mr. Perris gives a manly rendering of the hero, and Mr. Percy Ballard an excellent portrayal of the villain Richard Dudley. On Monday night a bright little musical sketch was produced as a curtain-raiser entitled The Brigand Chief. This was well put on, and will doubtless soon become a favourite. Mr. Perris in the title-rôle made a dashing brigand, and amongst other songs introduced with good effect was "The Bandoliers." Miss Eva Purcell was also responsible for some effective numbers. The other characters were played by Mr. Karl Edwards and Mr. Arthur Clifton.

GATESHEAD.—METROPOLE THEATRE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's company in The Christian is proving a great attraction here. Miss Grace Chalmers plays Glory Quayle, and on this, her second visit to the town within a few months, has added to her already large number of admirers. Mr. Frank Tennant repeats his excellent portrayal of John Storm; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe's impersonation of Father Lamplugh leaves nothing to be desired; and Mr. Jackson Wilcox's Horatio Drake is a finished piece of work. Mr. Chas. E. Dering depicts the snobbish Archdeacon Wealthy with skill, and Mr. T. Renaud Lockwood is well fitted for the part of Lord Robert. Mr. Wilfred Blumberg's portrayal of Brother Paul is telling, and Mr. Oswald Marshall is successful as Mr. Lorimer. Miss Molly Hayden has, in Mrs. Callander, a part which suits her well; Miss Vashti Wellborne is an emotional Polly Love; and the Misses Bella Moody, Dorothy Clifton, and Edith Huntley do well in their respective parts.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Miss Nettie Ware and Millar Anderson's company is presenting here the drama When Woman Hates. Mr. Jerrold Heather is a manly Fred Rokeby; Mr. Millar Anderson presents an excellent picture of the scoundrel Godfrey Lawton; Mr. Chas. Herbrante makes the most of the part of Sir Henry Rokeby; Mr. Frank Litchfield extracts all the humour possible from the part of Pat O'Brien; an amusing character is that of Alphonso Picolot, which is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. H. Hughes; Mr. Alfred Grenville makes the most of his few opportunities as Hiram Vancuston; and Mr. Geo. Stone is an excellent Bill Smasher. Miss Mabel Mannering is a powerful Cora Daintry, Miss Maud Townsend a successful Marie Rokeby, and Miss Gladys Lloyd an effective Edith Rokeby. A special word of praise is due to Miss Dorothy Lupone for her conception of the rôle of Nellie Rokeby. Miss Eleanor Papera as Mrs. Sally Potts and Miss Helen Richmond as Miss Sally Potts cause considerable amusement.

GILLINGHAM (KENT).—THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Monti and Co.; Lessee, Mr. D. S. Cooper; General-Manager, Mr. Roy Cochrane.—The attraction here is A Faithful Friend presented by Mr. Joseph W. Worley's company. Mr. Henry W. Hatchman gives a meritorious performance as John Tollerton, a Yorkshire millionaire, and becomes a great favourite; Mr. Joseph W. Worley gives a commendable impersonation of Harold Sefton, the villainous nephew of Squire Somerset; as Antonio Orsini, Mr. Robert W. Lynn makes a typical Italian artist; Sir Thomas Jones, a retired pork butcher, is humorously portrayed by Mr. John Cullen; Mr. James P. E. Hussey is well suited as Augustus, the nephew of Sir Thomas; Mr. James Stevenson, jun., plays well as Squire Somerset, and the same remark applies to Mr. William Annesley as Harry Somerset. Miss Trissie Humphries arouses the sympathy of the audience as Mildred Marsden, the fiancé of Harry Somerset; Miss Hilda Franks is distinctly good as the aristocratic Lady Jones; Miss Esther Ohlson is well adapted to the character of Cynthia, the artist's model; and Miss Florence Garner deserves praise for her rendering of the persecuted Ruth Mayfield.

GLOSSOP.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Sydney Spenser.—Miss A. F. Hermann's company in None but the Brave is here this week. Captain Frank Forrester meets with an excellent representation at the hands of Mr. George Herbert; Mr. Stanley Bedwell is seen to advantage as Lal Ray; Mr. George Herbert is well placed as Zeke Whittier; Mr. Charles E. Sutton is successful as Major Euriquez de Vampas; and Mr. Bert Ratcliffe is prominent as General Sylvarez. Mr. Eric Hudson is a realistic villain as Emmanuel de Solis; Mr. John Bolton as Pablo causes much fun; Miss Francesca Strickland wins the sympathies of the audience as Nellie Whittier; Miss Madge Devereux proves herself a capable exponent of the part of La Tarantina; and Miss Amy F. Hermann as April Showers, is full of energy.

GLOUCESTER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—A Noble Brother is the bill of fare this week, the principal character being taken by Mr. Charles Carte, who as Jerry the Tramp has a part that allows him full scope for his undoubted ability. Miss Doris Brookes wins approval by her rendition of the heroine Nana Leigh; Mr. Arthur Gilroy capably personates the villainous Henry Travers; Mr. Maurice Jones submits a clever performance of Colonel Richard Leigh, and Miss Kate Cameron is good, especially in her dancing, as Rosie Ranide. Jack Elsworth has an affective representative in Mr. J. Andsell Wilson, and Miss Alice Ballard is noticeable as Mrs. Leigh; Mr. Alexander Haviland is commendable as the Strange Preacher, as is Miss N. Faithful as Claire Florence. Mr. Payne Reynolds as Moss, a policeman, and Mr. Gerald Weston as Mr. Pipps complete the cast.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—ROYAL AQUARIUM.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale—A return visit is being paid by Mr. C. Watson Mill and company with the picturesque melodrama A Wrecker of Men. Mr. Mill gives an effective study as the burglar, Jim Murley; Mr. Gilson Brooke is admirable as Railton; Pharosaphus is ably played by Mr. Milner Noble; Mr. Percy Horton is excellent as Guise Strange; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter capitally depicts the Hon. Reggie Verincourt, and Karnaphus and Eric Melville are capably represented by Mr. Henry Rutland and Mr. Alfred Maurice. Miss Rosalind Tate gives a vividly realistic picture of Risca Mallison; Doris Melville is efficiently represented by Miss Cissie Podmore, and Miss Beatrice Reynolds submits a clever character study as Marion Isaacs.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Gilbert.—An exceptionally strong programme has been provided for this week. Miss Fanny Wentworth is first favourite with her capital musical sketch; W. Salmon does wonderful things as a trick cyclist; the Sisters Judge win loud applause with their performing cockatoos and parrots; Viviane pleases with her dancing, and the Avolas excite astonishment with their dexterity in throwing double somersaults from perpendicular poles. Comedy is provided by the New Hulines, Miss Jessie Albini, Emma Don and her black and white quartette, and Dan Gregory. Up-to-date pictures are shown by the Bioscope.

GREENOCK.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—This week's attraction here is The Swiss Express, played by Messrs. C. and F. Renad's company. The funny performance of Mr. Charles Renad as James and of Mr. Frederick as John is too well known and appreciated to need further comment. A capital piece of acting is submitted by Mr. Herbert Lewis as Dr. Gull; a first-class representative of Rollingstone is found in Mr. George Martin, and Mr. Owen Remonde ably fills the rôle of Dudley Green. Miss Jessica Ford makes a captivating Virginia, and is applauded for her singing and dancing; and all the other parts are well filled. The Edene Troupe of vocalists and dancers makes a successful appearance.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Mr. Skivington has brought an excellent company here this week. Renyon, champion cyclist, assisted by Violet Whitworth's Cycling Girls, heads the bill, and gives a most interesting performance; Lozelle gives a very clever gymnastic display; the Brothers Dean give a very fine dance turn; Wyndham and Waters, comedy vocalists, are very funny; Burnetti, character musician, is very good; Evelyn Taylor, comedienne, sings nicely, and the Zaras, acrobats, are seen in a first-class turn.

GREENOCK PAVILION.—Proprietors, The Greenock Pavilion, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—Barrett and Knowles top the bill here, and their performance is very enjoyable; excellent turns are also given by Ada Twibell, burlesque artist; Lottie Siegenberg, quick-change artist; the Terres, in a clever knockabout act entitled Acrobatic Pastime on the Promenade; Ted Young, comedian; Mayon and Marle, comedy duologue artists, and the Webb Brothers, musical comedians.

GRIMSBY.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Miss Mary Austin has paid another welcome visit, and has presented two plays during the week, the favourite drama The Cotton Spinner and W. S. Gilbert's comedy Pygmalion and Galatea. In The Cotton Spinner Miss Austin played with her customary success the part of Mary Prescott, and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds once more gave a pleasing representation of Arthur Northbury; whilst Mr. John S. Haydon's delineation of the Lancashire cotton spinner John Prescott proved as popular as ever.

THE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Daring acrobatic feats have been accomplished by the Borghetti Troupe, whose work is characterised by exceptional neatness; Ben Hur has proved a great attraction, his exhibition of strength and physical development being very interesting; Bert Marsden has caused much laughter by his comic mimicry; whilst comedy was also presented by the Bros. Harrison, Dan Pollard, and Carlo and Maie, the last-mentioned couple including a wire performance. The Dagodets contributed pretty dances and songs, and Howard Reynolds gave popular ballads.

CURRY'S TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Harry Freeman's engagement has proved very popular, his comedy being of a quiet but highly entertaining character. Much laughter was also caused by Harry Tate's Motoring sketch; Les Ltrams have given an excellent gymnastic performance, including something special in the way of head-balancing. Another sketch, Ferdie's Ma-in-Law, given by Mr. Flockton Foster, was also productive of amusement; whilst others who contributed were Carl Verdi, a versatile instrumentalist; Billy Burns, a singing collier; Oakley and James, comedy artists; and Ruth Lytton, a charming Scottish comedienne.

HALIFAX.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—That delightful comedy, The Little Michus, is here this week, and is being artistically presented by Mr. Geo. Dance's company. Foremost in an exceptionally strong company is Mr. Leslie Holland, whose conception of General Des Ifs is exceedingly funny. Mr. Gerald Clifford is an excellent Gaston Rigaud, and sings with taste and judgment; Mr. D. FitzGibbon scores as Aristidevert, and Mr. Cecil Clayton makes the most of his opportunities as Bagnolet. Miss Alice Coverick as Marie Blanche, and Miss Gracie Sinclair as Blanche Marie, are both charming, and sing in a manner that wins unstinted applause; they are equally successful as dancers. Miss Flo Hylton is a winsome Guardian. Mdlle Marjirie, who sustains the captivating rôle of Mdlle. St. Cyr, is a marvellous dancer.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Robinson; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Winks.—The Penalty of Crime is being played here by Mr. J. Leicester Jackson's company, and the performance, taken as a whole, is very creditable.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—Alethea is delighting audiences here with her wonderful contortionist feats. Another prime favourite is Frank Coyle, whose whimsicality and quaint singing are greatly appreciated. Dunningarto performs some astounding sleight-of-hand tricks, Nat Watkins (the peculiar comedian), Hick's Clerks (vocalists, comedians, and dancers), together with the Bros. Ashley in their comedy boxing act, and Violet Stockelie and May Moore-Duprez, the jolly Dutch girl, submit turns well above the average.

HANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Chas. Howard. — Veronique is filling the house nightly here, and is brilliantly played by Mr. Geo. Dance's company. The music is delightful. Miss Rita Leonhardt, in the part of Helene de Solanges, has a pretty soprano voice, and acts admirably; as Florestan, Mr. Roland Bottomley is excellent, his vocal items calling for loud applause; Miss Florence Alwyn is distinctly successful as the Countess, her song, "The Garden of Love," being deservedly encored; Agatha finds a highly capable exponent in Miss Florence Lee, who acts cleverly, her singing of "The Apple Tree" being much appreciated; Miss Neste Laurel as Denise is well placed, her contribution, "My Little Hubby," being most pleasing; Mr. Ellis Holland introduces a deal of humour into the part of Coquenard; Loustot finds an admirable representative in Mr. Ivan Berlyn; Mr. Tom Shelford as Seraphin contributes successfully; and much praise is due to Mr. Leonard Leslie for the admirable work of the orchestra.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—The Eight Mascots contribute a pleasing turn of dancing; the Arthur Saxon Trio of strong men have few rivals; Frank Maura is a clever equilibrist; the Mayvilles in their smart lilliputian novelty act are much appreciated; George Formby is most successful in his items; and Charles Coborn once more proves himself to be an artist of ability in his excellent songs. The Redferns are smart banjoists and dancers; Maxwell and Frances provide a capital turn; and the pictures are quite a feature of the programme.

HARROGATE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's company in Somebody's Sweetheart paid a return visit in the early part of the week. As Lulu Miss Dot Reeve, who made herself a prime favourite here in pantomime at Christmas, was delightful, her singing and acting alike being admirable. As Zora Miss Cordelia Knight acted with verve and sang well; Martin Blabbs as portrayed by Mr. W. H. Kirby was extremely funny. On Mr. Kirby's shoulders the success of the piece depended, and he kept the house in roars of laughter. Mr. E. H. Bertram is good as Stanton Ashleigh, his singing of Mascheroni's "Soldier's Song" being worthy of special note; Mr. Percy Maitland as the villainous Stephen Leverton acted with energy, being well supported by Mr. Geo. P. Lester as Lem Lee. Speciality dances were introduced by the Three Gibson Girls. On Thursday Mr. Robert Parris and company paid a return visit with A Fight for Millions.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—The principal attraction for the week is the wonderful exhibition of acrobatic cycling by the Cumberlands. Ralph Moore, "the boy Patti," is the possessor of a rich soprano voice; Cliff and Kean, in a smart singing comedy and novelty dancing act have a good reception; Fraser and Haley, harmonising lady vocalists, sing with engaging sweetness; Happy Attwood is popular; the contortionist feats of Mephisto are done with ease and dexterity. Frank Whitely, a perfect master of the bones; and the Bioscope are other attractions.

HASTINGS. — GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr H. W. Rowland: Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scuit.—On Monday Mr. A. B. Cross and company paid a return visit with The Manxman. Mr. Cross has thoroughly identified himself with the rôle of Pete, and plays the part convincingly; Miss Minnie Watersford is powerful as Kate Cregeen; Mr. Sydney C. Kearns does well as Phillip Christian; Mr. A. D. Leyland gave a good sketch of the avaricious Cæsar Cregeen; and Ross Christian is effectively played by Mr. George Marriott. Miss Mona Spearing is well placed as Miss Christian, and Miss Nancy Mitchell is an excellent Nancy. On Thursday Mr. Forbes Robertson's company opened with The Light that Failed.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General-Manager, Mr. Harry Day; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Ewing. — The attractive actress Miss Florence Hill opens the programme here. An extravagant burlesque is laughingly performed by Charles Vandyke and comapny; Mr. Jack Foley, comedian, gives a good turn; the sorightly burlesque artist Miss Louie Herman finds plenty of admirers; Valvero proves himself remarkably smart as a novelty painter; Mr. Harry Desmond is successful as a comedian; Miss Marie Reeve obtains a flattering reception; the bioscope exhibits a great variety of interesting and up-to-date pictures. The entertainment concludes with a screaming absurdity, Sensations.

PIER PAVILION.—Pier Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. A. Hamilton Warden's No. 1 company is appearing here in the domestic drama entitled A Woman's Past. The piece is exceptionally well mounted. The impersonation of David Heath by Mr. Stanley Carlton is very natural; Mr. Charles Sandford treats the rôle of Frank Dellanoy quite sympathetically; Mr. Hamilton Warden puts plenty of healthy vigour into his embodiment of Clement Harper; a sturdy and convincing rendering of the despicable Uriah Craven is given by Mr. Oswald Cray; Bessie is admirably depicted by Miss Maisie Hanbury; Miss May Dallas makes a charming Dorothy Heath; the highest praise can be awarded Miss Olive Adair for her conception of the unthankful part of Clara Darrel.

HORWICH.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessees, The Provincial Theatres Co.; General-Manager, Mr. C. E. Bradley; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Hawke.—Mr. J. H. Clyndes and company are here with A Royal Revenge, a musical play brimful of exciting incidents. Mr. Clyndes' portrayal of the adventurer Estevan Alvarez in the prologue is very fine, and in his later rôle of Pedro De Castro Marquis of Santiago, his rendering is artistic and powerful. Mr. Herbert M. King plays the King of Spain skilfully; Mr. Arthur Chisholm is a capable exponent of Manuel Mondega; Mr. Fred Rivers as Azar Ben Musid, afterwards Count Ulric Uzeda, is decidedly good; Mr. Leslie Parker as Friar Dominic scores; and Mr. Wilfred E. Brandon as Michael Sancha the inn-keeper and Miss Celestine Brandon as Paquita are responsible for the comedy, their dancing and singing being vigorously applauded. Miss Enid Edoni's impersonation of Inez Alvarez is followed with great interest; Miss Aimée Grattan plays Cora Casilda in a graceful and sympathetic manner; and Miss Evelyn Derwent's Mother Superior is excellent.

HOYLAND.—THE METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Geo. S. King.—On Friday last, at the above theatre, a benefit was given by kind permission of the management for Mr. Sam Guest, late proprietor of Hoyland Theatre. On Monday Mr. Evan Roland's The Guilty Man company opened to a good house. Mr. Harold Lewis is a manly George Seymour; and as James Redman, Mr. A. D. Adams is all that can be desired; much amusement is caused by Mr. Edmond O'Grady as Esau Hebron, and Mr. Evan Roland as Paddy Crowe; Miss Lily Lewis is a charming Audrey Priestly, and Miss Muriel Inglis gives an excellent rendering of the trying character of Nell Radford; Sukie Barton is well represented by Miss Sybil Haughton.

HUDDERSFIELD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Mr. Herbert Ralland's company is playing La Poupée, and in the hands of the thoroughly capable cast engaged, the comic opera is as enjoyable as ever. The singing is notably good, particularly of the numbers falling to Alesia (daintily represented by Miss Dot Stephens), to Lancelot (cleverly played by Mr. W. M. Everard), and to Father Maximo (played with distinction by Mr. Walter Belfour). Mr. Fuller Allen and Mr. Arthur Dennis lend adequate support as Chanterelle and Loremois; Miss Edith Hunter has the right note of maternal solicitude as Mme. Hilarius; Mr. Fred Seymour plays Hilarius with irresistible humour. The chorus is good, some finished part singing being contributed by four members of the male section. Scenery and dresses are beyond reproach.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson. The combination here is proving a great draw. At the top come the Ritchie Trio of trick cyclists in their unique performance; Miss Maggie Grimshaw is a smart little male impersonator; and Donna and Cliffe prove to be a pair of clever young singers and dancers. Mr. Walter Hast and Miss Peggie Lennie appear successfully in a dainty and original interlude called The Sea Nymph; Redfern's Nippers are seen in their sketch Bedtime; Cliff Ryland creates unbounded mirth with his string of funny stories; Miss Nellie Martell is an expert dancer; the sketch Did He Deserve It? is cleverly played by Misses Violet Carr and Lydia Hart, Mr. James Willard, and Master Willie Atom, not forgetting the fine mastiff dog "Tiger"; and the Hippodrome pictures are also in the bill.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—The enterprise and foresight of Mr. Morton have been thoroughly justified by the large audiences which have this week assembled to witness the new allegorical play When It Was Dark, presented by Mr. Walter Maxwell's talented and well-selected company. Mr. Leslie Carter, who, in the prologue, impersonates Satan, has a powerful and resonant voice, which is most impressive. In the play Mr. Carter fills the rôle of Constantine Schuabe with the utmost skill, and acts throughout in a most realistic manner. Mr. H. Athol Forde is well placed as Sir Robert Llewellyn, and plays this difficult rôle with great care. An admirable representative of the Rev. Basil Gortre is found in Mr. Rupert Lister, who presents the heroic parson in a thoroughly convincing manner. Miss Margaret Damer shows great ability, and gives an artistic and finished portrayal of Gertrude Hunt. The Helena Byars of Miss Hope Mayne is also a marked success. Mr. Frank Melrose, Mr. Stanley Lathbury, Mr. Herbert Chown, and Miss Hilda Forbes Phillips are excellent in their respective parts.

GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The sparkling musical comedy Morocco Bound, under the personal direction of Mr. Arthur Branscombe, is here this week. Mr. John Wilkinson sustains the rôle of Squire Higgins in a droll and humorous manner; Mr. Paddy Duprez is equally successful, and gives a clever performance as Spoofah Bey; Little Tony is a distinct acquisition in the part of Lord Percy Pimpleton, his eccentricities being most amusing; and Mr. Frank Barclay is capital as the Grand Vizier. Miss Margery Gray and Miss Dolly Doyle are well cast as the Hon. Misses Sportington; and Miss Gipsy Tonseau as the Countess de la Blague is all that could be desired. Other members of the company who contribute to the general success are Mr. Vernon C. Booth as Vivian, Mr. Walt. Westwood as Josiah Higgins, and Mr. Herbert Shine as the butler.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietors, Morton's, Ltd.; Resident-Director, Mr. George Morton.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in the sensational drama Her Forbidden Marriage is proving a successful attraction here. Mr. Albert Ward plays the hero, George Maddison, in a creditable manner; and Mr. Lionel d'Aragon in the villainous rôle of Charles Devereux is quite successful. Mr. Eric Campbell plays forcibly, and makes a good impression as Sir Geo. Lancaster; Miss Isla G. Vane, who impersonates the heroine, Lucy, gives a very pleasing and sympathetic rendering; and Miss Eugenie Magnus interprets the rôle of Lady Lucretia Lancaster in a manner deserving of great praise. As the Mother Superior Miss Barbara Gott makes a strong appeal to the audience, and contributes a very capable performance. A good deal of amusement is caused by Mr. Fred de Vere as Timothy Tuttut, and Miss Sybil Hammersley as Pattie Lovejoy.

NEW PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Jno. S. Barnett.—The Novellos and the Uessems are the two principal turns here. Lidden and Hayward in a musical absurdity, The Midnight Express, take well; Baker and Lynn are an amusing turn in a sketch The Brainless Boy; a good quartet of singers and dancers are the Stuarts; La Tostia, Florrie St. Clair, Jessie Merrillees, T. C. Callaghan, and Frank Seeley all contribute in a successful manner.

THE HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Tom McIverney, the wrestler, is drawing big houses. Margaret Ismay and Piccannies are very popular; Cullen and Carthy provide an excellent turn; Maude Lord, Bob Hamilton, Sisters Terry, Harry Walker, Will Walker, and Carina Sisters render a good account of themselves.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—After a long absence Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer is paying another visit here with a well selected company in the following plays:—Mary Queen of Scots, Nell Gwynn, Hamlet, School for Scandal, Sapho, and Jane Shore. Mary Queen of Scots was chosen for the opening night, and Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer played the title-rôle admirably, hearty applause greeting her from all present. Mr. Montagu Lane exhibits great ability as Earl of Leicester, whilst the part of Sir Edward Mortimer is represented in good style by Mr. Matthew Boulton; Mr. George Munro as Earl of Shrewsbury, and Mr. Leonard Lorraine as Earl of Kent, are very praiseworthy exponents; Sir Amius Paulet loses nothing at the hands of Mr. Robert Pittard; Miss More Dunphie is effective as Hannah Kennedy, nurse to Mary; Mr. Sydney Bland is entrusted with the part of Lord Burleigh, to which he does great justice, and as Elizabeth, Queen of England, Miss Katherine Herbert presents a very fine performance.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Knightall.—Robert Grieve, singing ventriloquist, heads the programme here; Messrs. Denny and Weston are clever comedians and dancers; Tessie Vandean, vocalist; Nora McEvoy, serio; T. W. Lenner, comedian; and Florrie Wright, comedienne, also appear with success.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Jennings.—The play called The Bank of England has been performed here during the week. Mr. Charles Lester played the part of the famous detective, Sherlock Holmes, in a cool and calculating manner. He was well supported by the other members of the caste, which included Mr. Walter Bentley, an orthodox villain, Mr. Henry Compton, Mr. Percy Braithwaite, and Miss Phyllis Orme and Miss Ellen Mosley. The piece was well staged.

HIPPODROME (St. Nicholas-street).—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—At this place of amusement Mr. Gus Hindell contributes a descriptive song in good style, and Wal Grove and Jenny Chalmers render a song and dance sketch; a young American baritone, named Percy Hannan, shows good vocal powers in his various songs; Miss Nelly Coleman, termed the female Dan Leno, justifies her claim to that title; and Mlle. Lumière gives a serpentine dance of a novel character; the Philline Brothers display some clever hand balancing, and the Four Massanos gain applause in their eccentric musical business.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. G. Jefferson.—This week's attraction is a juvenile pantomime company in Beauty and the Beast. Miss May Gibson is good as Silver Star, and Miss Maggie Adair is quite at home as Evil Heart; Miss Kittiy Trewhitt makes an ideal Prince Charming, Miss Mona Townshend is a capital Will Scarlet, Miss Dodds does full justice to the part of Beauty, Master Will Kay makes the most of the Baron Mumps, and Master Freddie Bentley and Fred Ellis are funny as Dressalinda and Marigolda. The parts of Flip and Flop are well sustained by Master Paddy Mill and Master Tot Hunter. Excellent dances are contributed by La Bella Sylvia, Dolly Brough, and the Margueritta Quartette.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—Manager, Mr. L. F. Sanderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Wallace.—The following artists are appearing here this week:—Los Granadas in an original comedy act; Dan Merrett, drummer; Winnie Scott, vocalist and dancer; Gillin, ventriloquial humorist; James Lowery, the original singing furnace man; Vowles and Byran in a comedy act; Walter Payne's biophotoscope; England's premier burlesque trio in their latest success, The New Man; Devoy, Hurst, and Ricks, and the Negro Trio.

JERSEY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's company opened here on Monday night with The Executioner's Daughter. Mr. W. S. Stevenson was excellent as Kretch; Mr. Juan de Alberti as Felix Marino was the ideal melodramatic villain; and Mr. Roy Milton was equally commendable as Paul Rovel; Mr. Duncan Bell was good as the executioner, and Mr. Willie Hickes was particularly useful as Tom Holmes. Miss May Rosine, as Sally King, was the cause of much laughter; Miss Beattie Moore gave a pathetic rendering of the cripple step-daughter; Miss Amy Robson did well in the unthankful rôle of Felice, and the heroine was ably portrayed by Miss Dorothy Riddle.

KEIGHLEY

Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—Pantomime still reigns at this popular house, the successful run of Jack and Jill which terminated on Saturday being followed by Mr. Fred Karno's finely staged and amusing production of Cinderella. The title-rôle is played by Miss Lulu Louden, who captivates the audience from the first. Miss Annie Purcell is a refined Prince Alexis, and sings sweetly, being especially successful in her "Glow-worm" song. Miss Lilian Lea is a vivacious Dandini, and makes the most of her opportunities. As Baron Pennywise Mr. Alex. Keith keeps the house merry with his dry humour, and is ably assisted by Mr. Fred Winn and Mr. Austin Lenton as his two ugly daughters. Mr. William Gourlay is original in the part of Pepper the Page, giving quite a burlesque melodramatic touch to the part. The Flying Ballet is a distinct attraction, and Miss Alma Mary gives a charming pas-seul in the first part of the pantomime.

Queen's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. Chas. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—Miss Lancashire, Limited, is a new musical farce, and in the hands of a capable company has attracted large audiences to this theatre this week. The central figure is Mary Thompson, a Lancashire lass, and in this rôle Miss Florence Baines displays much ability. The vocal work of Miss Jennie Hallworth as Eva Lancashire is also very good; Mr. David Donaldson acts with conviction the part of John Higgins; and other big parts are capably presented by Mr. Patrick Evans, Miss Mabelle Clinton, and Miss Hattie Groves.

Empire Palace.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerad Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—Richard Sawade presents here his wonderful animal show, and the turn is much enjoyed. There is no more popular entertainer visits here than Albert Whelan, and this clever sifflеur and mimic has again received a warm greeting. The return of Jake Fiedman with his humorous contribution, The One-Man Opera, is also very welcome; Palles and Cussick are a comical pair, their burlesque boxing act being especially funny; an expert and daring trick cycling act by the Aurora Troupe is unique in its way; Terley secures marked favour with her novel and lifelike impersonations; a clever comedian, Fred E. Terry, is in the bill; the Rinaldos have a comic acrobatic speciality; and the Howards again please with a fine musical turn.

Tivoli.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—Dr. Walford Bodie, the famous electric specialist and entertainer, is on a return visit, and the wildest enthusiasm is manifested over the remarkable cures and wonderfu mesmeric feats accomplished by him. A good variety company supports, Tom Norman Mills doing specially well with a military scena. J. A. Dunn, comedian; Bella Skene in vocal scena; Signor Bandoni, the one-man band; Lambeth and Harris, sketch artists; and Helen Henri, operatic vocalist, are also appearing with success.

City Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. S. Jones.—A remarkably fine exposition of rifle-shooting by Lillian and Vera is the main attraction this week, and arouses much enthusiasm. The farcical sketch Barmaids by Harry Lowther and company is vastly amusing, as also is the eccentric comedy turn by Larry Lewis. Anna Kenwick, a clever comedienne and danseuse, proves a popular favourite; Beatrice Renee secures notice for a similar attractive turn; Craig, Roze, and Craig do novel gymnastic feats in great style; whilst Ray and Miles, comedy jugglers, and Barney Stuart, actor-vocalist, also have a big reception.

LEICESTER.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—The energetic new management here are making excellent headway with the redecoration of the front of the house, which promises to be extremely pretty and artistic. This week's attraction is provided by a first visit of Mr. Percy Hutchison and Miss Emma Hutchison's company in Public Opinion. Mr. George Giddens, in his original character of Horace Wibsey, is to be highly complimented on a very clever and amusing portrayal, Mr. William Hargreaves is seen to considerable advantage as the Hon. Mr. Justice Mulley, and as Sir Babington Mulley, Mr. George Mallett is capital. Mr. Ernest Ruston is excellent as Spencer Traughton, Miss Emma Hutchison as Lady Diana Caldershaw makes a welcome appearance and is a conspicuous success, Miss Lilian Hallows is attractive and clever as Pansy Bligh, and Miss Mary Mallalieu is very pleasing in the rôle of Phyllis Dagenham. Both Mr. Harold West as Viscount Poffley and Mr. Templer Powell as Lord Percy Kilgour sustain their parts in a most satisfactory style. The one-act comedietta The Stratagem precedes, Miss Lilian Hallows, Mr. Harold West, and Mr. Templer Powell all acquitting themselves admirably. The staging is well done.

Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—This theatre is now beginning to present a much smarter and attractive appearance in consequence of the redecorations, etc., that are being rapidly proceeded with. Home, Sweet Home is being presented here this week by Mr. Frank Lindo's excellent company. In the part of Stephen Armitage the author makes a striking impression, and the same remark applies to Miss Marion Wakefield as Joan. Mr J. W. Henson is very good as David Armitage, and Mr. Wilson Coleman as Lucas Lyle and Capt. Gerald Gambier as the Duke of Ancaster are successful. Miss Daisy Rochefort is to be highly complimented on her portrayal of Dora, Miss Hettie Webster plays well as Sybil Fay, a music-hall star, and others who give meritorious performances are Miss Mary Denver, Mr. Sydney Bryant, Mr Geo. Overs. Mr. Ernest E. Owen, and Mr. T. Lewis. Mr. Tom Lewis introduces his "bones" speciality in the first act.

Palace Theatre, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Andrews.—The drawing powers and immense popularity of Vesta Tilley are the special features of this week's enjoyable programme, which is full of clever people. It is no exaggeration to say that no lady artist is more beloved here than Miss Tilley, whose appearance is the signal for a rousing reception. She renders her songs in as dainty and artistic a style as ever, and is not allowed to retire before she contributes four, and then the audience crave for more. The Five Bellatazers win unstinted applause for their unique, clever, and smart acrobatic feats; Amann and Hartley give the sketch The Naughty Professor to the accompaniment of hearty laughter; Dravee, Frisco, and Hambo are most amusing in their comedy juggling act. Stewart and Morgan, in Leaving Ireland, introduce some melodious singing, which is well received; the Mannons, in their absurdity Uncle Yank, create great merriment; the Sisters Finney, in their exhibition of swimming, diving, etc., in a tank, are seen to great advantage; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Finden play well in their amusing sketch A Desperate Remedy; and W. H. Downs, the coloured tenor, also entertains with success.

Pavilion Theatre.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—A capital bill here is headed by Marie Santoi and her merry Japs, who are most entertaining in an elaborate scena A Japanese Tea Garden by Night, in which some pretty and well rendered songs are introduced. The dresses are smart. Geo. M. Schilling, who has walked round the world, gives a graphic description of his experiences, with a series of lantern pictures. Fred Bronte, actor-vocalist, sings his songs in good style; the Sisters Brenton are capital duettists and smart dancers; Walker and Lake are amusing patter comedians; Lil Esplin, character comedienne, is well received; Charles Ray creates much laughter, and Roose, a clever contortionist, also lifts a couple of chairs with his teeth.

LEIGH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Dewhurst.—Messrs. Griffin and Drake's company is this week occupying the boards here with the pantomime Cinderella, which is full of fun and frolic, and is meeting with success. Mlle. Du Roche is an excellent principal boy, and is loudly encored for her popular songs. Miss Ivy Dawn is a charming Cinderella, singing her songs sweetly. The Brothers Lang make a great hit as Flip and Flop, their patter and amusing antics creating roars of laughter. Mr. Walter Griffin and Little Freddie Graham are amusing as Cinderella's sisters. Mr. Clifton Hall does well as Demon Dischord, his vocalism being much enjoyed. The Sisters Le Graham are greatly appreciated for their singing and dancing; the Sisters Silza go through a daring trapeze performance in good style; Messrs. Harland and Robinson, musical specialists, are loudly applauded; and Marlow, juggler, is very smart. The scenery and dresses are good.

Ohmy's Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. King Ohmy; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Prince.—The Bellong Brothers are an immense and sensational attraction here this week with their great balancing act; the Sisters Rizarelis give a daring display on the revolving trapeze; the Mayon Troupe of acrobats are deservedly applauded; Miss Ena is very clever on the tight wire; Mr. Cattle is greatly appreciated for his ladder performance; Misses Ada, Lily, and Mr. Claude Ohmy are loudly applauded for their feats of horsemanship; and the irrepressible August and September as usual play a prominent part in the evening's performance. Some good humorous and sentimental films are exhibited on the Bioscope.

LEITH.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—Florodora is among the musical comedies which have come to stay, and the popular piece has been warmly received this week at Mr. Buchanan's Leith theatre. A goodly company, organised by Mr. Bannister Howard, gives an enjoyable rendering of the well-known work, everything being carried through in a bright and attractive manner. The drolleries of Anthony Tweedlepunch are irresistibly displayed by Mr. Daley Cooper, who secures hearty recalls. Mr. R. C. Dutton as Lord Abercoed sings delightfully, and Mr. Stanley White is excellent as Cyrus Gilfain. The songs allotted to Dolores are charmingly sung by Miss Leonora Grieve, who uses a sweet and tuneful voice to advantage. Miss Edith Housley gains well-merited applause for her impersonation of Lady Helyrood, and another cultured vocalist is found in Miss Lily Gullick, who makes a sprightly Angela Gilfain. Arthur Donegal and Leandro are ably represented by Mr. H. St. John and Mr. Oxlee.

LINCOLN.—Royal.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank King.—Napoleon the Great is being presented here by Messrs. Granville and Barker. Napoleon is well portrayed by Mr. Hugh Montgomery; Mr. F. W. Thorne is good in the humorous rôle of an armourer who invents a bullet-proof coat; Mr. Phil Harper is a manly Jules Meuron; and Mr. Henry Earlesmere makes a sinister rascal of Colonel Lavarennes. Miss Leslie Warner as Marie Walewska and Miss Maud Russell as Leonie Marbœuf are also commendable.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—Crowded houses twice nightly are testifying approval of Mr. Frank Macnaghten's latest bill of fare. A welcome is accorded Maggie Walsh, the Lancashire mill girl; Speedwell's lightning portraits; and Arthur Hartley's marvellous leaping have hosts of admirers; and the equilibrism of Les Hemis is also a great success. The Five Casino Girls score as a brass band; George Grogie is good as a bucolic comedian; the Smythsons make for fun in A Tea House Flirtation; and a capital programme is wound up by Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

LIVERPOOL.—Rotunda Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. Montgomery, jun.—The drama The Great Awakening is paying a first visit to this theatre. Miss Maud Hildyard undertakes with satisfaction her original part of Lola Selby; in the dual rôle of Sir Henry Merton and Jack Merton, Mr. Bernard Copping acts with discretion; Mr. Julian Hartleigh makes an excellent Guy Rogan; that capable actor, Mr. James E. Page, shows his ability as Richard Wilson; Miss Nina Blake Adams is successful in the character of Molly Merton; while Mr. Willie Scott as Billy Brass and Miss Isa Bellington as Selina Worts handle the comedy in a most creditable manner.

Lyric Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—An attractive programme is topped by Rosina Casselli with her tiny performing Mexican dogs; the Three Romans, gladiatorial marvels, are loudly applauded; Allis and Cassati give an original and highly amusing turn; the Waldrons are old favourites here; Tennyson and Wallis come in for a good reception, and others who add to the evening's entertainment are Gracie Lawn, Lily Black, and Gilroy and Cross.

Star Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt and his company are here this week with The Temptress, which has proved a strong attraction. Miss Blanche Steele in the title-rôle plays with considerable dramatic force; Mr. Frederick Ross, as Lucas Denbigh, makes a capital villain; Mr. Robert Wilton presents a finished type of clergyman; Sir Oswald Fordyce is in the good hands of Mr. C. James Ashworth; credit is due to Mr. George D. Daiper for his Philip Welford; and the lighter parts are ably presented by Mr. Oscar Power as John Gregory, Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Bob Tanner, and Miss Lizzie Chambers as Rhoda Brown. Miss Mabel Scudamore played sweetly as the heroine, Marion Fordyce.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Lingford Carson; Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—This theatre is noted for the introduction of new plays to Liverpool, and this week we have a well-written one with the title A Gambler's Daughter, presented by Adria Hill and R. Ayrton's company. The work is well staged, and was received with warm approval, the story being a most interesting one. In the dual rôle of Mildred and Miriam Grant (mother and daughter) Miss Hill played with much pathos as the grief-stricken mother, and with liveliness as the happy girl of after years; Mr. Ayrton's picture of the good-hearted Desmond O'Dare earned for that able artist hearty recognition; Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner made an excellent villain, Stephen Brand; Mr. Alfred Sanders caused much amusement as a typical Jew; the rôle of Ralph Gillman, the rich American, was well placed with Mr. Harry Rutland; Mr. Frank Wheatcroft gave every satisfaction as Captain Stanhope, and Miss Ida Fane roused much merriment as the negress Zeb.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Cole.—Principal in the bill here this week are George Gray and Co. with The Road to Ruin, which has afforded considerable satisfaction. The Spessardy troupe of trained bears and ponies are a capital turn, their remarkable tricks being watched with great interest; W. H. Fox ("Paddiwhisky") scores at the piano; Hays and Sunits as duettists and dancers provide a good turn; some capital singing and dancing come from the Three Sisters Slater; Florence Esdaile sings sweetly; Cora Caselli is a clever comedienne and dancer; a smart musical act is given by the Korries; and McPhee and Hill also appear.

Royal Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—A large and diversified programme is given here this week. At the top is Harry Lamore, the silent comedian, who performs many clever and amusing tricks on the slack wire; the Harvey Bros. provide a humorous sketch in the boxing line; an acceptable dramatic episode, The Right Road, is submitted by Warden-Reed and company; George Barron is extremely eccentric; the quickly-produced pictures in oils by Vandinoff elicit loud applause; a deal of smart patter came from George Penn; Gus Lennard, as "Hermann the second," contributes some clever conjuring tricks in an amusing style; Anthony performs others in all seriousness; from Harry Allister came several smart character impersonations; a most enjoyable turn is that given by Walton and Miss Ella, with their trained dogs; the Passparts, as fancy and comedy dancers, are good; and Estio Leuigy, eccentrics, also appear.

New Parthenon.—Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W. Smith.—At the top of the bill here this week are the Two Kelsos, the favourite Irish-American knockabout comedians, fresh from pantomime. They had a cordial reception. Jack Hylton, an eccentric comedian of ability, comes with fresh business; Ventom Swift, the "Piccadilly Coon," proves very amusing; Herbert Madden, a favourite character vocalist, is a good turn; the Sisters Poole (Ada and Letta) are a pair of neat singers and dancers; and Chrissy Handley is a pleasing comedienne and dancer.

Royal Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—Mr. Percy Boucher and his able dramatic stock company continue to do good business at this popular East End house. This week Brought to Justice has been staged, the principal parts in which are undertaken by Mr. Boucher (Bob Lucifer), Mr. Harry Tresham (Holmcroft), Mr. Herbert Cecil (Luke Brierly), Mr. E. D. Allen (Jonas Swallow), Mr. Cecil Ravenswood (Colonel Duncan), and Miss Beryl Ravenswood (Beatrice Hetherington).

Paddington Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The greater portion of the programme here this week is occupied by the Irish sketch, The Coward's Revenge, presented by Mr. W. Lee and company. It is in eight tableaux, and well staged. Bird and Arnold have some delightful illustrated songs; and the Adderley Bros. present an interesting original speciality The Military Band.

Park Palace.—Proprietors, The Palaces, Liverpool, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Included in an attractive bill here this week are the Zouaves, with their capital show of lightning drill and wall scaling; Charles R. Whittle, a favourite comedian, has several excellent songs; Miss Lottie Bray gives a most acceptable turn as comedienne, banjoist, and dance artist; some clever juggling is done by Mlle. De Vena; a smart exhibition as an athlete and gymnast is provided by Alec Aubrey; the Hayes Bros. create a deal of merriment with their cross-talk, and are a pair of accomplished dancers; and F. S. Hulme sings several good songs.

Haymarket.—Lessee, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Heading the bill here this week are Tom White's Arabs, including Pimple, with their attractive comedy act; Percy Boucher's sketch company presents The Wolf; Harry Hunter does well with his playing on the guitar and banjo; some really smart conjuring is shown by Henri Bekker; Joe Conway gives satisfaction as a new comedian; and Miss Ida Dorrie, comedienne, also appears.

Westminster.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Mongomery.—Foremost here this week are Starr and Leslie, with their smart comedy act; the popular comedian, Will Hebden, makes a welcome reappearance with his latest successes; some laughable work is performed by Franch Bros., the eccentric acrobats; Lilian Rigby sings and dances neatly; the Bros. Mellot sing pleasing duets; and Tam Glen, Scotch comedian, and Ida Allen, comedienne, also appear.

Olympia.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. A. W. Young.—Hengler's water novelty A Village Wedding has proved so attractive that it is still kept in the programme. May Edouin and Fred Edwards have created great laughter with their sketch A Bachelor's Dream; Tom and Marie Motramo have an excellent musical act Do You Reverse?; the remarkable sand dancing of My Fancy has called forth great applause; Tina Clementa's dogs and ponies go through a clever performance; as jugglers on globes the Goltz Trio want a deal of beating; some pleasing singing and dancing are supplied by the St. Julian Sisters; Collins and Rice have a smart speciality The Survival of the Fittest; and Beaty and Blanche render popular duets and dance neatly.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—New Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is this week staging the tuneful and melodious musical comedy, A Country Girl. Miss Florence Burdette cleverly assumes the rôle of Nan, and sings with good effect; the part of Marjorie Joy is attractively presented by Miss Eileen Guilbert, her vocalism being exceedingly good; Miss Madge Campbell gives a vivacious rendering of Madame Sophie, and Miss Vera Vizard is well received as the Princess of Bhong. Barry is acted with an irrepressible buoyancy and humour by Mr. Jonnie Clegg; Mr. Bernard Vaughan's impersonation of the Rajah of Bhong is most entertaining; and Geoffrey Chaloner has an excellent exponent in Mr. J. Mansell Stringer. Mr. W. O. Billington, Mr. W. Besley Beltram, and Mr. A. Metcalfe all do well in their respective parts; and the capable chorus is under the direction of Mr. C. W. Nightingale.

LOWESTOFT.—Marina.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week The 10.30 Down Express is attracting large audiences on its initial visit here. The scenery and effects are particularly fine. Mr. Stanley is very amusing as Sam Wagstaffe, and is well supported in the lighter scenes by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy; Jack O'Malley finds a manly exponent in Mr. Chas. Burdon, and Mr. George Arthur is powerfully cast as James Inderwick; Mr. Geo. Beverley (Seth Coombes) and Miss Evelyn M. Walton (Letitia Leigh) are responsible for excellent character sketches; and Miss Elsie Capell makes a pleasing and sympathetic Bessie Leigh. The appearance of the railway engine excites great interest.

LUTON.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Business-Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—The Anglo-Russian drama Under the Czar is being presented here this week by Mr. Jarman's company. Captain Johnson is well represented by Mr. Gerald Smythe; Nicholas Yeroslaff (Chief of the Russian Police) is in the capable hands of Mr. Bertram Ross; Zakhan-Kovesky, Major of the Russian Police, is well interpreted by Mr. W. H. Riley; Paul Ignat is admirably portrayed by Mr. Louis Weston; Zara Bhura is well taken by Miss Lucy Murray; Siomka in the hands of Miss Linda Riley is all that can be desired; and Sonia Gregorovitch is pathetically represented by Miss Cathleen Cavanagh.

MACCLESFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gattey.—Miss Hettie Jeffries and company are appearing here this week in The Curate. The character of the Rev. John Audley was represented in an earnest and sincere manner by Mr. Arthur Mervyn; Mr. C. Spencer made a humorous Simon; Mr. Whitmore Ledger was frequently applauded for his clever rendering of Gilbert Westwood; Miss Hettie Jefferies was seen to advantage as Dick; Miss I. Norman as Mabel Verner revealed talent of a high order; Miss Agnes D'Aragon acted cleverly as Mrs. Muggs; the Katinka of Miss W. Stuart was good; Mr. F. Stuart as Sergeant Snipe, gave a capable portrayal; and Mr. Chas. Coventry as Gregory Verner was capital.

MAIDSTONE.—Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. T. M. Sylvester.—The following are here this week: the Two Bees, in their Indian scena; Farley, Rennie, and Farley, in Fun in a Railway Station; Miss Venie Clements, comedienne, on a return visit; Zola and Felina in a clever animal act; Theodore Jones and Co., in operatic sketch; Robert Raffin, juggler; and Miss Lily Stewart comedienne and dancer.

Corn Exchange.—Secretary, Mr. J. W. Beslee.—The C. W. Poole's Myriorama Co. is drawing large audiences here this week. The pictures are better than ever, and the programme includes Miss Kitty Woodward's canine circus; the Avandale Quartette of vocalists; Harry Stewart, quick-change artist; Miss Graham's performing cockatoos; and Leonard and Mac, comedians.

MANCHESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Edmonstone Shirra.—A visit of Mr. Huntley Wright in The Mountain-Climber drew a good house here on Monday, this being an attraction presented by Mr. Charles Frohman to take the place of the late successful pantomime. But the really satisfactory feature of the evening proved to be the opening piece, The Little Father of the Wilderness, in which the well-known comedian demonstrates his ability to act a pathetic rôle with an effect that might not easily be equalled, much less surpassed. Mr. Huntley Wright, in the part of Pere Marlotte, transcends his usual mannerisms, and becomes something infinitely greater than a comedian. The longer piece provided others beside Mr. Wright with opportunities to shine, about the most prominent being Miss Kate Mills as Mrs. Montague Sibsey. The company includes also Mr. W. R. Staveley, Mr. Eric Maturin, Mr. Montague Elphinstone, Miss Christine McGill, and Miss Dora Barton.

Royal Osborne Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead: Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Beaudyn, Livesey, and Hardy's company are the attraction here in a melodrama entitled A Soldier's Revenge. Mr. Montague Beaudyn gives a skilful rendering of Ironhand, the avenger, and Miss Irene Munroe is very good as Ruby Avondale. Mr. R. Foulis makes an effective Mardyke, and is well supported by Mr. Harry Lloyd as his villainous nephew. Mr. Howard Hardy is successful as the dashing young Royalist, Walter Clifford; Mr. Edward Carter is well suited to the part of Sir Wilfred Avondale; Miss Gloria Hill plays cleverly as Judith; and Mr. Tom Robertson imparts vigour and force to the character of the Protector. The play is very well staged.

Prince's Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Lee.—A pleasant piece called Two in a Trap precedes the performance here this week of The Freedom of Suzanne by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company. The first-named item is well played by Mr. Edward Bonfield and Miss Violet Ley, while Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox's entertaining comedy is quite effectively rendered by Miss Beatrice Lindley, Mr. Herbert J. Bentley, Mr. F. G. Thurstans, Mr. William Mallalieu, Mrs. Mallalieu, Miss Emily Patterson, and other talented members of the cast.

Gaiety Theatre.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. Leigh Lovel and company are here this week in Captain Robert Marshall's farcical romance, The Duke of Killicrankie. The well-known piece is capitally presented, the central parts being filled by Mr. Lovel, Miss Octavia Kenmore, Mr. Guy Cary, and Miss Naomi Neilson. The staging and dresses are very pleasing. The Queen's Messenger precedes.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Dr. Carl Herman, the hypnotic entertainer, heads the bill here this week, and another prominent turn is Charles Bignell, the popular London comedian. Excellent business is contributed also by the Paul Hesse Trio in an acrobatic pot-pourri act; Carney and Armstrong as "the Pro and the Baggage-man"; Gertrude Mason, an accomplished vocalist; the Cavalottis, Italian instrumentalists; Harley and Melton, in a clever act; Bert Williams, ventriloquial humorist; and the Three Bostonians, singers and dancers.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmunds's company are pleasing local audiences by a rendering of The Golden Ladder at this theatre. The long cast is throughout a very able one, those having most opportunities to distinguish themselves being Mr. Harry Cullenford, Mr. Joseph Rolands, Mr. J. Milne Taylor, Mr. Harry Belford, Mr. Eric Thomson, Miss Eva Moss, Miss Nellie Graham, Miss Janet Wakeling, Miss Jessie Gillette, and Miss Holly Hazelwood. The general effect of play and staging is excellent.

St. James's Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gus Flanagan.—Messrs Chesney, Sanderson, and Elma's company are playing here this week in The Power and the Glory, a drama which pleased a good house on Monday night. The principal parts are in the hands of Mr. A. Fitzmaurice and Miss Bessie Elma, both of whom act in highly capable style; while good work is added by Mr. Reginald Fox, Mr. Arthur Rodney, Mr. Douglas Hutchins, Miss Mary Lovett, Miss Flo Florence, and Miss Fanny Olive. The story and the staging are alike interesting and sensational.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter De Frece; Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Rhodes Parry.—Kate Carney, the well-known coster comedienne, heads the bill here this week, and presents at alternate houses each evening Our Laundry and 'Liza Johnson with success. An excellent turn is also given by Jock Whiteford, Scotch comedian, who meets with a deserved big reception; the Daunton-Shaw Troupe, the "Monarchs of the Wheel," are capital in a daring novel and humorous act; the Flying D'Osta Trio are marvellous Continental ring performers; Frank Hartley is a remarkably clever boy juggler; the Martini Brothers are clever and amusing in their bounding table act; Mamie Iris is a pleasing comedienne and neat dancer; and G. W. Foster and Charles Lilburn, comedians, also contribute to the programme. The Animated Pictures are good.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Collins.—Alf Gibson, the quaint and immobile comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is well appreciated. D'Arc's Marionettes are also high in favour for their clever imitations of a galaxy of well-known stars. Other excellent turns are contributed by Conway and Leland, the lively monopedes; Lively Lily Langtry, a very vivacious comedienne; Mlle. Olive, a skilful lady juggler; the Selbinis, in a wonderful acrobatic pot-pourri act; Herr Grais' Baboons in a highly trained performance; Lilian Lowe, an accomplished vocalist; and Harding and Ah-Sid, American eccentrics. The bioscopic pictures are sensational.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The Fishing Cormorants remain one of the attractions here this week. J. F. McArdle, fresh from his success at the Royal pantomime, presents with much success a funny sketch entitled A Nightmare; Ella's Lions are subdued to a remarkable extent, making it possible for the lady to do some really daring acts: the Five Olracs are first-rate "rag-time" acrobats; Arthur Sutcliffe is a capital comedian, who sings two songs; the Five Julians are pleasing dancers and singers; and good turns are provided by Johnny Alexander and company in a comedy sketch, and Jeannie Mackay, Scotch vocalist. Pinsuti's glee, "The Parting Kiss," is well rendered by the choir, and "Mamma, buy me a Baby," is nicely sung by pretty Miss Ida C. Morgan, assisted by the choir. The Bioscope Pictures are very enjoyable.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Some novel and graceful dancing is submitted here by Mildred Howard de Grey, who dances in bare feet, and with very picturesque effect. Tom Costello's humour, in a series of comic songs, is vastly amusing; Ida Brophy sings and dances cleverly; Harry Luck is heard in eccentric songs; the Ashers (Agnes and Mille) give their neat sketch, The Earl and the Girl; Kitty Campbell is a pleasing comedienne and dancer; Stan Aubrey is an amusing comedian; Kloof and Ramsey give a capital burlesque musical turn; and Lilian Doreen, the charming vocalist, sings several songs in really beautiful style. Raymond's Vivagraph completes the programme.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Some beautiful part singing is done here this week by the Original Celtics, who also introduce their novel silver-toned one-stringed phonoviolas in harmony with pleasing effect. Amy Anderson and company are seen to advantage in that capital coster scena, The Banana Stall; Angelina, the lady Cinquevalli, is a really excellent juggler; La Petite Voltaire is an exceedingly clever juvenile comedienne; Arthur Slater, well-known as the "White Whistler," is good; Yorkshire Tom is a capital farmyard mimic; Marie Blythe has a very sweet voice, and uses it well; George Hyam, comedian, proves very popular; and Dobito and Buxton sing some gems of old-fashioned melody in fine style.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An interesting and clever act, The Lilliputians, is given here this week by Mlle. Haydee and assistants, and the various realistic impersonations are much enjoyed. The drolleries of Little Dando are also well received; the very adroit juggling and balancing of Ernesto obtain much applause; the Brothers Herslebs are good knock-about comedians; T. E. Johnstone, light comedian, is also good; the Marconis give an interesting exhibition in "electric wonders"; the Four Jumels offer a pleasing musical act; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist, is appreciated; and Bert and Dora sing in a pleasing manner.

Hippodrome (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Percy Honri in his latest protean musical success Concordia is the attraction here this week, and meets with a well-deserved flattering reception, the sketch being considerably above the average, and excellent throughout. Henry Carlton and company in a short sketch, One Night Only, evoke much laughter; Harry Taft, comedian and whistler, and Moto, musical eccentric, are also well received; Drum and Major are smart patter-comedians; the clever juggling of Mozzetto is highly appreciated; the Franko Midgets are said to be "the smallest conjurers in the world"; McCann is a capital comedian and roller-skate dancer; and Frances Manners contributes an acceptable musical scena entitled In the Good Old Days. The bioscope this week depicts "The Poacher's Revenge," which is good.

MANSFIELD.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Morella and Jennings; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. Jennings.—Large and appreciative audiences attended this popular playhouse on Monday, when Mr. Charles Macdona's company presented the musical play The Toreador. The title-rôle was taken by Mr. J. Colcough Fagan in a capable manner; Mr. Richard Telford as Sammy Gigg caused roars of laughter; Miss Avis Grahame as Mrs. Malton Hoppings was most effective; Pettifer was well portrayed by Mr. Tom May; Mr. F. Hulme Sharp as Sir Archibald Slackett, performed his part with credit; as also did Mr. Chas. M. Heslop as Augustus Trail; the Governor of Villaya was in the capable hands of Mr. Hy. Arthur; as Dora Selby Miss Sadie Neville did well; and as Nancy Staunton Miss Alice Nixon found many admirers; Miss Florence Spurgeon played her part of Donna Teresa with intensity.

MARGATE.—The Hippodrome.—Sole proprietors, Messrs F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—This week's programme includes Lockhart's remarkably clever troupe of four performing elephants, introduced by Capt. Taylor (who, by the way, is a native of Margate), and his unique show has been drawing big houses. The other turns are the Bodina Trio of instrumentalists, who play well; Tom Leo, comedian, who is very quaint; H. A. Moore, actor mimic; Vincent, acrobatic table expert and lightning Arab tumbler; and Shawlene, sifflеur, mimic, and tramp impersonator. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope provides plenty of merriment with a variety of amusing pictures.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's A Traitor Prince company is here. In the title-rôle (Prince Kao Dalmirez) Mr. G. M. Moulanini displays marked ability; as Lieut. Frank Derrick Mr. Francis Everard acts with earnestness and force; Mr. Victor Kae gives a capital study of the half-caste Cara. Mr. Ernest Duval is amusing as Billy Bright; Mr. Jerold E. Reid is very droll as the Hon. Bobby Vavasour Dalrymple; and Mr. A. W. Norman gives a creditable performance of Richard Vane. Miss Nita Langford is excellent as Vashti, the snake charmer; Miss Kitty Thomas is entertaining as Pansy Blossom, and Miss Clara O'Grady makes a motherly Mrs. Blossom.

MEXBOROUGH.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Mr. J. F. Preston is this week presenting The Rogues of the Turf. Mr. J. F. Preston figures to distinct advantage as Joe Flaxman; Mr. Ernest R. Allen is excellent as Arthur Somerton; the Captain Clifton of Mr. Fred Emery is a vigorous rendering; Mr. Arthur Prescott does well as Sir Gerald Heathcote; Mr. H. Macro is a typical Jew as Joseph Solomon; Miss Madge Nelson scores a dramatic success in the rôle of Nellie Flaxman; Miss Hilda Shirley plays with distinction as Lady Heatchcote; and Miss Lalla Stanhope is pleasing as Phyllis Wurzel.

MIDDLESBROUGH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company, in the comedy Mr Hopkinson, is here this week. In the name-part Mr. Edward Rigby has full scope for his comedy powers, and acts with an admirable sense of humour; Mr. Charles Esdale gives a capital portrayal as the Duke of Braceborough; and Mr Cecil Burt is a decided success as the Earl of Addleton. Mr. Vaughan's conception of the character of Lord Gawthorpe is marked by distinct ability; Mr. G. Desmond is a vivacious Hon. Otho Dursingham; as Mr. Smethurst, Mr. Johnson gives a capital interpretation; Miss Blanka Stuart plays the character of the Duchess with marked skill; Miss Russell is a graceful Lady

F. Ingram as Toby Turvey and Mr. John Brooks as Luke Ramsden both proved themselves to be successful artists.

GRAND THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Appearing here this week is The Orphan Heiress, which is being presented by a capable company under the direction of Mr. W. Reuben Payne. Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle is seen to distinct advantage as Lawrence Gordon; the callous nature of Douglas Kingston is forcibly depicted by Mr. Charles Boult; Mr. Henry Willis acquits himself well as Lord Aynsley; and George Handel presents a life-like impersonation of the minister. Two pantomime favourites in this district—to wit, Mr. T. H. Solly and Miss Cora Duncan—are responsible for some excellent comedy; Miss Rosalie Heath sustains with much charm the rôle of Mabel Aynsley; Miss Constance Medwyn portrays in a successful manner the part of Edith Mowbray; Miss Edith Halford as Olive Kingston impersonates this arduous rôle in praiseworthy style, and Miss Beatrice Fitzhugh is happily placed as Lady Aynsley.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Resident Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—The position of honour in this week's programme is worthily assigned to Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant's illusions. Firstly they introduce their magic kettle act, and the fortunate habitués of the stalls have had only to "call in" their gargles, and their demands have been freely and gratuitously executed. In conclusion they submit their latest illusion "The Burmese Gong," an act that creates the utmost bewilderment; the Lukustinna Troupe in an equilibristic and balancing performance again secure a large share of applause; the Trapnell family execute all their tricks with neatness and grace; the Colede Losse Dus execute some clever and amusing balancing feats on the slack wire; and the sand dancing of Bijou Russell interspersed with some amusing comedy proves enjoyable; Virto, assisted by Irene and Venita, again submits a refined musical act; Morton and Elliott are paper-tearers of extraordinary ability, and James Fawn, comedian, Mattie Wilkes, the Creole Singer, and the Two Bostons all contribute successfully.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—The premier attraction in this week's programme is a ludicrous farce by Lew Lake and company. Austin Rudd's parody on "The Wooden Hut" is funny in the extreme; Barton and Franklin submit their speciality act, consisting of singing, dancing, and music; that popular extempore comedian F. V. St. Clair claims attention with his songs; Rowland Hill's efforts to amuse are thoroughly appreciated; as a burlesque actress Daisy Morell is popular; Lil O'Gorman is an acceptable vocalist and dancer; Leslie Race is a diverting comedian; Ailsa Douglas, vocalist, is cordially received, and the Barrascope continues to be a popular item.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—After the Ball, a new musical comedy, is being played here by Mr. Chas. Carey's company. Mr. Victor Widdicombe as Colonel Joseph Monit, displays real humour; and Mr. Walter Ringham, as Halliwell Menit is good; and Mr. Gus Danby does well; while the Martin of Mr. Buckstone Clair is an extremely clever illustration of quiet humour. Miss Nelly James (Kitty) dances prettily; and there is an element of humour in the characters of Nancy (admirably portrayed by Miss Irene Moncrief, the Nellie Mather of Miss Nellie Groves, and the Ruth Gay of Miss Nellie James.

EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. O. Stoll.—Chung Ling Soo, the famous Chinese conjurer, mystifies enthusiastic audiences here nightly with his clever tricks. Carrie Laurie's Juveniles provide a turn that is manifestly popular; Terry and Lambert win a warm reception with their finely-rendered duet; and the O'Learys, acrobats, perform some intricate gymnastic feats; while the Paxton trio provide a similar turn of great merit. The Dumond Ministrels, singers and instrumentalists, is a turn of a high order; the Mariano Sisters give a thrilling exhibition on the trapeze; and the Edgar Forrest Sketch Combination cause much laughter with their domestic scene.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Herbert Hollister and company are here this week in The Lights of London, in which Mr. Arthur Cornell gives a masterly presentation of Harold Armytage. Miss Jeanne Burgoyne is a sympathetic Bess; and Mr. Riddell Robinson a sinister Clifford Armytage. Mr. Herbert Hollister submits a commendable rendering of Seth Preene; Miss Violet Temple as Mrs. Jarvis, Miss Gladys Murray as Shakespeare Jarvis, and Mr. W. E. Passmore as Jarvis, are good in their respective parts. Miss Lily O'Dempsey is responsible for a pleasing rendering of Hetty Preene.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—A clever dramatic sketch, entitled A Daughter of Pleasure, tops the bill here; and at the other end is the comical sketch, The Butler Knows, by the Brown and Kelly combination. The Katos are again here with their pleasing show. Kate Lynd, a chic comedienne; Grace Langley, a charming serio; and the Sisters Hula, duettists and dancers, give good turns. George Martinengo introduces a performance on the 'cello, which is well received; Mark Merry, comedian; and Charles Dixon, comic; and the Palace pictures complete the programme.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A rich musical treat has been provided here this week by the engagement of the Moody Manners Opera Company, which opened on Monday with Faust. As Marguerite, Miss Ethel Cadman was in every way successful, her singing and acting being of the highest order; Miss Rosina Beynon made an excellent Siebel; and Miss M. Goodwin was a satisfactory Martha. As Faust, Mr. Charles Carter was worthy of the highest praise; Mr. George Neilson acquitted himself admirably as Mephistopheles; Mr. Frederic Erle made an effective Valentine; and Mr. L. Alexander was trusty and reliable as Wagner. The orchestra and chorus also rendered valuable aid. Lohengrin, The Bohemian Girl, The Daughter of the Regiment, Carmen, and Maritana are also in the week's programme.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—N. T. Kioto, the clever Japanese equilibrist, is having a cordial reception here; Picitt and Lizette, in A Christmas Dream, are very smart; the Lovelaces, song illustrators, are greatly appreciated; the Seymours, speciality artists, have made a great hit; Messrs. Doyle and Gibson, comedians and dancers, gain a large share of public favour; and Miss Annie Webster, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Harry Levaine, patter comedian; and the bio-photoscope meet with their usual success.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Lester Wright.—Melodrama once more occupies the boards of this theatre, Mr. Charles H. Phelps opening on Monday with One Woman's Wickedness. Mr. Phelps, who is also the author of the piece, acts powerfully in the character of Jem Craggs; as the hero, Philip Beaufort, Mr. Alfred Geo. Fry plays with dramatic force; Mr. Harry Tilbury in the rôle of Limpy Larry is full of fun, and is well backed up in his comedy scenes by Miss Arline T. George as Jenny Jiggles; in the thankless part of Janet Raymond Miss Belle Tilbury plays in an effective manner; Miss Amy Dalby is the possessor of a sweet voice, and portrays Lilian Craggs charmingly.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. George Dance's own company in The Orchid is here this week, and has been well patronised. Miss Magery Moore charmingly enacts the part of Lady Violet Anstruther; whilst Miss Phil Gumpel humorously performs as Caroline Vokins; Miss Sissie Brand is successful as Zélie Rumbert; and Miss D. West-Collins as Thisbe is excellent. Miss Maud Davis is praiseworthy as Countess Anstruther; and Miss Trilby Collier as Josephine Zaccary, Mr. Sinclair Holden as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, met with a hearty reception; and Mr. Vyvyan Wakeman is very good as Dr. Ronald Faussett. Mr. Chas. Seymour gives a dignified representation of Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. Albert Sealy as Zaccary does well; and Mr. Graham is very lively as M. Deaville. Mr. Harry Walsh as Meakin is funny, and excites much hilarity.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—Mr. and Mrs. Lucas are here this week performing Scenes from Dickens, and are much appreciated. Morris Cronin and his troupe of modern jugglers give a clever turn; Shean, Fox, and Shean are very funny in The Fighting Tramp; the Three Zaracs are successful in their burlesque triple bar act; whilst the Three Ladderites give a most daring performance. Richard Corbin and his troupe of performing dogs show some amusing tricks; and Fred Cary is a popular comedian. Harry Ray and Lilie Calden, in their comedy act, sing and dance well; and the Hippo Bio continues very interesting.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal commenced their welcome visit by a presentation of A Scrap of Paper, and on Tuesday the delightful play Dick Hope was given. In the title-rôle Mr. Kendal is admirable, his suggestion of this weak character struggling against his besetting sin being thoroughly impressive. Mrs. Kendal plays Marjorie Lyall with exquisite touch, and a tenderness and fascination that win all hearts. Mr. Bassett Roe finds a congenial part in John Hemming, acting with force and vigour; Mr. Percy Crawford gives a capital impersonation of the light-hearted Gilbert; and Mr. Ernest Hendrie imparts originality as the curate. Mrs. A. B. Tapping as the solemn, precise old lady, Henrietta Turtle, is a capital character study; and Miss Marie Lohr embodies Gwendoline Giles with natural and attractive vivaciousness. Miss Jessie Moore is altogether satisfactory as Clara Hope; and Mr. W. M. Rutherford cleverly portrays the servant Jephson. During the week were also given The Elder Miss Blossom, The Housekeeper, and The Ironmaster.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—A return to pantomime has been made this week, and the presentation of Dick Whittington, by Mr. Edward Marris's company, finds hearty favour. Owing to the indisposition of Miss Madge Merry, the part of Dick is taken by Miss Winifred Preece, a young and attractive artist, who quickly made many friends by her bright and vivacious manner and enjoyable singing. Miss Lottie Vincent essays the rôle of principal girl with marked success, her singing of "I've built a bamboo bungalow for you" being especially appreciated. The humorous work of Mr. Walter Wade as Jack Idle deserves every praise, and he wins enthusiastic plaudits for his vocal abilities. Mr. C. Kashma contrives to bring out a lot of fun as Captain Kettle; and Mr. Arthur Pearce makes a droll Emperor of Morocco. The rainbow and fire dances of Miss Effie White are well appreciated, as also are the Thalian Glee Singers; the Sisters Vincent, singers and dancers; Les Sprays, speciality dancers; and the Kashmas. The success is further helped by Misses Poppie Howard, Josephine Hylton, and Messrs. Wm. Kashma, W. H. Ball, and Walter Nugent.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—The Throne of Terror occupies the boards this week.—The fierce, dictatorial, and callous nature of Robespierre is brought out by Mr. Wm. J. Miller with a vigour and intensity that are entirely convincing; Miss Augusta Tullock gives the fullest expression to the overbearing Victorine D'Almonte; and Mr. W. Williams ably performs his part as a spy. Mr. Roy Milton combines fervour with judgment in his portraiture of Captain Eugene de Lisle; and the misfortunes of the old Comte de Roquefort are admirably depicted by Mr. A. W. Thompson. Miss Katherine Maude Davies invests Marguerite di Roquefort with sympathetic interest; and Miss Irene Vane acts with taste as Sister Lucette. The comedy element is well furnished by Mr. Bert Ellis (Joujou) and Miss Russell (Peppietta).

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The principal attraction this week is A. C. Lilly and company in their popular sketch, Drummed Out, which is proving a great attraction. The next position on the bill is occupied by that clever actor-vocalist Arthur Lennard, and the enthusiastic applause which greets his every appearance amply testifies to the esteem in which he is held by Nottingham audiences. The agility and cleverness displayed by the Marlo-Dunham Trio of acrobats leads one to suppose that they have indeed brought their performance to perfection. Terry and Bentley, very clever at cross-talking, as well as at dancing, and possessing various other minor accomplishments, are responsible for an excellent turn; Madame Alice Simmons has a remarkable soprano voice, which has evidently been well trained; and Miss Lizzie Fletcher also sings very sweetly in simple sentimental ballads. The Sisters Aindon are a couple of interesting musicians; and the Silvas, as firemen, balancing themselves on a ladder, deserve special mention. The programme is brought to a conclusion by some clever bioscope pictures.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Plenty of change is provided here this week by Mr. Ernest R. Abbott and company, who have successfully presented alternately A Wife's Triumph, Sapho, and Trilby. In A Wife's Triumph on Monday night the interest of the audience was maintained throughout. As Frank Wilson, Mr. Abbott acts in good style; Mr. W. H. Garbois supplying a meritorious Ellis Jordon. Mr. Douglas C. Phelps is a typical Yorkshire Squire; Alice Wilson finds an able exponent in Miss Kathleen Stewart; Miss Ada Abbott presents an interesting study of Bessie Dewhurst; and Miss Elsie Jones makes a commendable Little Frank.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—Mr. George Dance's company, under the management of Mr. J. Alban Newton, is paying us a visit this week with Lady Madcap. In the title rôle Miss Vera Vere throws plenty of life and go into the part; Miss Kathleen Romayne makes an interesting and fascinating Gwenny Holden; and Miss Peggy Primrose has won all hearts by her delightful performance of Susan, her graceful dancing being a never-ending source of pleasure. Mr. Alex. Chentrens is a great favourite as Count St. Hubert, his cultivated singing and melodious voice meeting with keen appreciation; Mr. Bay Russell as Bill Stratford and Mr. Fred Payne as Posh Jenkins furnish as amusing a pair of scamps as one would wish to see; Colonel Layton and Lord Framlingham find capable exponents in Messrs. Grant and L. du Cane; Mr. Vincent Erne is highly amusing as Corporal Ham; and Mr. H. B. Surrey scores a tremendous success with his quaintly humorous performance of Oroya Brown. A large and efficient chorus and the brightest of dresses and scenery add to the pleasure of this most successful play.

PENTRE. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident Manager, Mr. J. Roberts Jones.—Miss Elaine Verner's company is here this week in Saints and Sinners. A large audience greeted it on the opening night, and enthusiastically applauded the fine acting of Mr. Harding Thomas as Jacob Fletcher, the minister. His soul-stirring utterances in the vestry scene held the audience with rapt attention. The part of George Kingsmill was admirably interpreted by Mr. John J. Hooker; Mr. W. Cronie Wilson was seen to advantage as Capt. Eustace Fenshaw; and as Samuel Haggard Mr. F. Lyndon was well placed, Lydia was capably represented by Miss Ada Clarke, her every appearance being cordially received; Miss Elaine Verner fully deserved the warm approval accorded her in her charming portrayal of Letty Fletcher. The Middleman was presented on Wednesday.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—The Compton Comedy Company is delighting crowded houses this week. On Monday evening was staged Davy Garrick, in which play Mr. Edward Compton assumed the title-rôle for the 1303rd time. The Desperate Lover, a new one-act comedy, was given as a curtain-raiser. She Stoops to Conquer, Money, The School for Scandal, and New Men and Old Acres are also billed.

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Breed of the Treshams was presented at the Royal on Monday, and was enthusiastically received by a large audience. Mr. Henry Belding in the leading part of Lieutenant Reresby (The Rat) gave a rendering of the rôle that would do credit to Mr. Martin Harvey himself; while the vacillating and selfish character of the Hon. Clement Hungerford received correct interpretation at the hands of Mr. Hamilton Deane; Mr. Oswald Linguard made a noble and dignified Viscount Dorsington, and Mr. Geo. Traill as Col. Sir Henry Curwen also found favour with the audience; Mr. Cecil Klein in the character of the impetuous but chivalrous Hon. Francis Tresham was quite at home in a part more difficult to play than at first appears; lesser parts were ably filled by Messrs. C. T. Doe (Col. Bagshaw), M. Wetherell (Capt. Stanhope), W. Blake (Capt. Rasleigh), and Geo. Jackson (Lieut. Willoughby). The ladies do not play a very prominent part in the piece, but we were especially pleased with the maidenly rendering of the Hon. M. Hungerford by Miss Florence Tresillan, and the part of the camp-follower Batty by Miss Celestine Bertram.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—A now well-known domestic drama, Home, Sweet Home, occupies the boards at the Grand this week. Miss Irina Farington as Joan is a great favourite with the audience and receives material assistance from Mr. Edward Lloyd as Stephen Armitage; Sybil Fay in the hands of Miss Pattie Bella, is a well-sustained rôle; and mention must also be made of little Miss K. Saunders, who plays Dora. Mr. Green Taylor as the Hon. Percy supplies the lighter element in most acceptable fashion.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. W. H. Michell.—Mr. J. W. Morton's company is this week presenting two attractive musical comedy dramas, namely The Rajah of Rajapore and The Sporting Girl.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. S. Field.—Amongst a bevy of star artists Burke and McVoy carry off premier honours for their funny yet clever sketch entitled Fun in a Saloon; while the Revell Troupe work hard in a turn of a similar nature; the Zampas furnish one of the smartest bits of step-over dancing ever seen at the Palace, and Mr. Reg. Bolton, an old pantomime favourite, comes in for a hearty reception for his quack-doctor stump-speech; Miss Yolande Noble captivates the house by her "Won't you spoon with me?" song; Ahrensmeyer, the Cowboy hypnotist, performs some apparently wonderful feats of mesmerism; and the opening turn furnished by Carr and Rose is a vocal effort of a high order. Vernon's animated pictures have lost none of their customary attractiveness.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE.—Owners and Proprietors, Mrs. Trenchard and Miss L. Jones; Manager, Mr. Charles Trenchard.—The new romantic play The Midnight Wedding, with Mr. Alfred Paumier playing lead, is the attraction here this week. Miss Annie Saker gives a charming representation of the Princess Astrea; Capt. Rudolph Von Sarsbruck has a powerful exponent in Mr. Sidney Lynn; Mr. Frederick W. Freeman is seen to advantage as the repentant Crown Prince Leopold; Mr. Clinton Baddeley scores a great success as Lieut. Eugene Von Strelsburg; Mr. W. S. Hardy gives a refined performance as Father Gerard. The three comrades, Sergt. Max, Corporal Otto, and Private Bobo, are admirably portrayed by Messrs. Fred Constable, Reginald Payne, and Algie Spalding respectively. Miss Ada Champion is well suited as Kathie.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Bynorth.—This week we are favoured with a visit by Mr. William A. Armour's Original No. 1 Company in What a Woman Did. Mr. Edward Rawlinson does justice to the part of Conrad de L'Orme; Mr. William A. Armour acquits himself creditably as Raffaelle Duroc; Mr. Fred Rignold is amusing as Peter Pippin, and Fritz von Hoegitheim is capably played by Mr. Jim Woods. Miss Adelaide Clare makes the most of the part of La Papillon; Miss Bertha Clifton scores a success as Nannette; Mr. Ivan Lester as Verlaine and Mr. Herbert Ashton as Artois deserve mention; Miss Dora Price plays successfully Elsie de L'Orme.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—This week Claudian is the attraction here, being presented by Mr. William Maclaren and company. The exacting part of Claudian is most effectively rendered by Mr. Maclaren; Miss Lily C. Bandmann ably supports him as Almida, her impersonation being an exceedingly graceful one; Thariofalus the Tetrarch is well placed in the hands of Mr. Wilson Howard; Mr. George R. J. Austin plays the part of Agazil vigorously and well; and Belos and Edessa are amusingly acted by Mr. C. T. Chaloner and Miss Carlotta Anson.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company are located here for the week, playing Mr. Walter Melville's sensational piece The Female Swindler. Mr. H. C. Cooper gives a clever embodiment of John Coulson; Mr. H. Newburn makes a villainous Geoffrey Warden, alias Captain Stanton; Mr. Bernard Dunstan portrays capitally the receiver Abraham Mikestein; Mr. Luke Foster, in the quadruple rôles of Lord Hitchett, Billy Binks, the Scotchman, and the Washerwoman, is very successful; Mr. W. Shaw is good as Detective Dixon; Miss Florrie Kelsey plays May Andrews pleasingly; and Miss Grace E. Leslie as Lu Valroy, otherwise Miss Darwin, gives a realistic impersonation.

EMPIRE PALACE. — Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—Large audiences have been in evidence here this week, the programme being more than usually attractive. Hope and Wayho are applauded for their cleverly-rendered scenes from Dickens; Ada Parker, coon songstress, makes a favourable impression; McCann's intelligent terriers and greyhounds are a source of merriment in their amusing tricks; Dot Hardy, comedienne, meets with a flattering greeting; Andrews and Thompson are a pair of good class musicians; France and Stewart, in comedy sketch, A 100 to 1 Chance, are responsible for an exciting and humorous item; the Three De Veres, novelty acrobats, are amusing and clever with their balancing feats; and Spencer and Marks, speciality artists; Woolmer Young, vocal comedian; and some interesting pictures by Payne's bioscope fill the bill.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Oliver Twist, presented by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company, affords an excellent attraction here this week. Mr. Stanley Drewitt gives a masterly impersonation of Fagin; Bill Sikes has a realistic representative in Mr. W. H. Kemble; Mr. W. Rotherham ably sustains the parts of Mr. Grimwig and Monks; Mr. Fred Penley acquits himself well as Mr. Brownlow; Mr. Cyril Cattley is quite satisfactory as Harry Maylie; Mr. Arthur Klein cleverly depicts Barney; Mr. Charles Clark (the Artful Dodger), Mr. R. C. Hunter (Charlie Bates), and Mr. J. Johns (Tom Chitling) capably fill their parts. Miss Dorothy Marsdin in the title-rôle is natural and effective; Miss Alice Maude is a pleasing exponent of Mrs. Maylie; Rose Maylie is agreeably portrayed by Miss Helen Clement; and much praise is due to Miss Edith Anton Laing for her convincing embodiment of Nancy. The play is admirably staged.

PRINCE'S THEATRE. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Mr. Sydney Dench is presenting this week a powerful drama entitled The Rich and Poor of London. Miss Dora Dench as May Braithwaite wins the sympathies of the house; Mr. Sydney Dench as Spider Jack keeps the house amused by his droll manner; Mr. Walter Foster ably sustains the rôle of Mark Stanley; Mr. Robert Hall shows dramatic ability as Dr. Leonard Morton; Miss Lillian Burns as Polly Philpot is successful; and Miss Emily Woodleigh capably fills the rôle of Auntie Shrimp.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Tivoli.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—The programme here is headed by Frank Elliston and company in a laughable sketch, entitled Aunt Matilda; Billy Williams, comedian, renders diverting songs; Maggie Rimmer, a charming comedienne and dancer, is an old favourite here; Marie Gibson, soprano vocalist, is heard to advantage; applause is also awarded to Charlie Cranston, comedian; Sisters Volbecque, comedy vocalists; and Walter Payne's Bio-Photoscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—Cambridge Theatre.—Lessee Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Lingford Carson's company is paying a return visit this week with The Drama of Life. In the rôle of the remorse-stricken Harry Beech, Mr. George M. Newall finds ample scope to display his undoubted dramatic abilities; as Sylvia Beech Miss Kate Hallam is fully equal to all demands, and displays pathos and passion with rare discrimination; Mr. Edward M. Hamilton as the despicable Walter Beech submits a sound performance; Miss Cissie Carter is charming as Billy; and Miss Florence French as Lady Jane is acceptable. As the hag, Betty Black, Miss Nellie Birchenough gives a good account of herself. Capital comedy is supplied by Mr. Harwood Roberts as Sir Dobson Wilde; whilst Messrs. Arthur Wright, Maxwell Payne, Sydney Fiennes, and Edward Van Biene all render capable assistance.

STAFFORD.—Lyceum Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—Miss Maggie Morton's company was here for the first three nights with The Temptress. Mr. Otto Minster as Phillip Welford was well received; Mr. W. Bradford was a capable Lucas Denbeigh; Mr. Chas. V. Bern as Francis Fitz-Fluke was humorous; and Mr. F. Morton Wright as Bob Tanner and Mr. M. S. Cumming as Pedro Gonzales were successful in their parts. Miss M. Carrington was a pathetic Marion Fordyce, and Miss Roma Tremayne as Stella acted with power and ability. For Thursday Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company in The Christian was billed.

Borough Hall.—Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama and Variety Company opened here on Monday to a packed house. The company includes Mr. Felix De Marce with his performing ponies and dogs; Miss May Finch, vocalist; the Veronas, lady dancers, and Nash and Nash, comedians. The pictures, which are in every way up to date, were well received.

STALYBRIDGE.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Mundill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Eugene E. Hardie.—Mr. John Walters has renewed his acquaintance with his former patrons, and his appearance on Monday was the signal for a loud outburst of applause. His company is giving representations of the pantomime Cinderella, Miss Kitty Rafferty appearing in the title-rôle. Miss Chester is charming as the Fairy, and all the other parts are excellently sustained.

ST. HELENS. — Theatre Royal and Opera House, Limited.—Proprietors, the St. Helens Theatre, Ltd.; General Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—This week Messrs. G. M. Polini and Fewlass Llewellyn's company is occupying the boards here in The Coal King. As Tom Roberts, Mr. Lauderdale Maitland proves himself to be a talented artist; Mr. Joseph Millane is good as the villain Harford; Mr. Robin Shiells makes a capital Sir Reginald; and Mr. C. R. Stone is an excellent Jim Williams. Miss Gertrude Valentine is natural and painstaking as Grace Shirley; Mad Ann has a competent representative in Miss Joan Wellman; Miss Hetty Cornwallis is very good as Araminta Green; and the three colliers are well enacted by Messrs. A. Gradshaw, H. Nelson, and Harry Bellain.

Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, W. Sley. and F. Willmot; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Heading the programme here this week is Miss Bonnie Goodwin and her Apollo piccannies; the Campeons are clever comedy duettists; Miss Ivy Leafe is a smart comedienne; the Gladenbecks are good hand balancers; Mr. Chris. Masters is the possessor of a fine baritone voice; Burg, Hand, and Wise are successful in a comedy acrobatic act, as are Robbins and Collier in the sketch The Lady and the Porter.

STOCKPORT. — New Theatre Royal. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Revill.—The first visit of The Earl and the Girl is a genuine attraction here this week, crowded audiences having witnessed the representations by Mr. Wm. Greet's company with evident pleasure. Mr. Reginald Switz is boisterously funny as Jim Cheese, and Mr. Alec Fraser as Dick Wargrave fills the part with much ability. As the Hon. Crewe Boodle Mr. Stanley Harrison is excellent, and Mr. Frank Cane ably portrays the character of Durham, the American solicitor. Miss Mary Fraser makes a charming Elphin Haye; Miss Marie Morison is a stately Virginia Bliss; Miss Florence Wise is amusing as Liza Shoddam; and Miss Maud Adams is a most attractive Mrs. Shimmering Black.

Empire, Ltd.—Acting-Manager, Mr. William Black.—The Six Yulians in a marvellously clever acrobatic performance are the chief attraction here this week. A. J. Rebla as a comic juggler is distinctly funny; Harry Rogerson as Sleepy Sam is greeted with much favour; Onda and Leon, comedy bar performers, are amusing; and Mlle. Magna is most pleasing in her artistic poses. Del and Hal, sketch artists; the Twin Sisters Edwards, vocalists, dancers, and drummers; Maude Kaye, coon vocalist and dancer; and Rodin, in a comedy cycle act, comprise the remainder of the programme.

STOKE. — Hippodrome. — Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—A capital programme is submitted this week. The Two Lavails, in their speciality aerial performance, are excellent; Arthur Kenny contributes a wonderful cycle turn; the Four Hearns, in their acrobatic display, are much appreciated; Vernando introduces a novel ventriloquial sketch; Matt Wilkinson and company, in their sketch The Registry Office, are most diverting; the Three Temples sing admirably, and are much appreciated; Fred Villiers is an actor-vocalist of undoubted ability; Violet Beatrice is a comedienne of excellence; and the pictures are most interesting STOURBRIDGE. — Alhambra Theatre.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Mr. Roy Jackson is paying a return visit with the drama, The Hand of Iron. Mr. Jackson very cleverly undertakes no fewer than five different characters; Mr. G. Lambton as Edmund Singleton creates a good impression; and Miss Violet Lesborough is an excellent May Sutherland. Miss Kittie Douglas plays well as Marie Duroque; while Mr. Frank Haynes as Hiram Lincoln provides plenty of humour.

SUNDERLAND. — Avenue Theatre.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—A strong attraction is provided here by Mr. George Dance's company in The Cingalee. Mr. Kenneth Wynne appears as the Hon. Harry Vereker; Mr. Helier Le Maistre does justice to the rôle of Boobhamba; Mr. G. J. Williams makes the most of Sir Peter; and Mr. Roy Sydney is satisfactory as Bobby Warren. As Chambhuddy Ram Mr. Johnny Osborne is most amusing. Miss Nellie Wigley is an imposing Nanoya, singing her various numbers with charm and grace; Miss Cissie Sephton puts plenty of life into her interpretation of Peggy Sabine; Miss Emilie Mayhew is graceful and dignified as Lady Patricia; and Miss Violet Holmes is pleasing as Angy Loftus, contributing some good acrobatic dancing. The Misses E. Stahl Annie Crisp, Ger. Foster, and May Curtiss are excellent as the quartette of Tea Girls.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hemingway.—Miss Beatrice Isaacson's company is appearing here in the powerful drama, A Great Sensation. Miss Beatrice Isaacson displays strong histrionic ability in the rôle of Eva Dale; Mr. Sydney N. Hallows is fully equal to the demands of the part of Jack Damer; Mr. Roland Hope plays well as Henry Escombe; and Mr. William Ames is good in the rôle of Wiley Jones. Mr. Fred Dalton is excellent as Stephen Damer, and Mr. J. H. Firman scores as Brinko Bates. Mr. Alfred Richards ably enacts that of Robin Dale; Miss Grace Baring adequately portrays the part of Sidonie; and Miss Dot Scilby's Ria leaves nothing to be desired. Miss Vic Raymond makes the most of the Flower Girl Waif; and Miss Ruby Carlton is successful as the maid, Hortense.

Browne.—The bill this week includes Zaro and Armo, who submit some clever work on the horizontal bars; Harry Grey, comedy artist; Edwin Boyde, comedian; Olive Armidale, comedienne; the Two Neros, in a drawing-room act; Gus Gauntlett, comedian; the Great Northern Troupe of International Dancers; Eva Nelson, comedienne; the Albert and Edmund's Comedy Troupe, in an absurdity, entitled Two Up a Tree; and the now inevitable Pictures.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Captain Clayton; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company, in The Two Hussars, is making a return visit here. Mr. Wilson Benge gives a breezy and masterful performance of Harry Alford; Mr. Fred J. Webb as Paul Villiers is to be congratulated on a fine portrayal of the heavy part; the Sergeant McFinnie of Mr. G. Paradise is a perfect piece of character acting; Mr. Louis Nanton as Trooper Robert Runn infuses a large amount of excellent comedy into the part; Miss Sadie Smith as Will Gunstock plays with much feeling; and Miss Danvers Smith is good as Marie. Miss Lallah Price works hard and successfully as Mollie Cutts.

SWINDON.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Local playgoers have looked forward with keen interest to the visit of Mr. Ernest Carpenter's successful pantomime Goody Two Shoes, which has been transferred in its entirety to this town from the Theatre Royal, Bristol, opening on Monday to a crowded audience. It is an excellent "show" under the stage direction of Mr. Trueman Towers, and a word of praise must be given to Mr. Edwin Jacobs for his capital arrangement of music and the large, well-trained chorus under his baton. The company is a strong one, with an admirable leading boy in Miss Harriet Fawn, who renders her songs most tastefully; the title-rôle is charmingly undertaken by Miss May Fallowfield, whose vocal efforts are also much appreciated. As Jack and Jill, the Misses Louie and Nellie Lunelle are delightful, and make a great hit with their dances; while Miss Florence Melville as Robin Goodfellow and Miss Minnie Love as Zorah are both exceedingly winning. A strong feature of this production is the great supply of good, honest fun contributed by such clever comedians as—Mr. Dave O'Toole, an ideal Dame Durden; Messrs. Harrigan and Holt, with excellent business, as Toddy and Budge respectively; Mr. Leo Fallowfield as Sunny Jim, and Mr. Alec Kendal as Don Q., the latter clever artist gaining well-deserved applause for a particularly clever clog dance. At the conclusion of Monday's performance Mr. Ernest Carpenter was called before the footlights to receive the congratulations and cheers of his former friends and patrons.

TON-Y-PANDY. — Theatre Royal. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—Mr. Harry Starr's company is paying a return visit with Otto the Outcast, and was received with a hearty welcome. Mr. Harry Starr acts and sings in his usual artistic style as Otto; Mr. Arthur Esdail is very successful as the Marquis Marcella de Laporte; Daddy Brunean is suitably placed in the hands of Mr. D. C. Clarke; Mr. E. Firth shows great capability as Roderique d'Estalur, whose several disguises prove very effective; Cerinne Jarbeaw is admirably portrayed by Miss Madge Blundell; and an engaging Lara is found in Miss Katie Morris. Two sacred concerts were given on Sunday by the celebrated Besses o' th' Barn Band, who provided some exceptionally fine items.

TORQUAY. — Theatre Royal. — Licensee and Managing Director, Mr. R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr. Arthur Pearse.—Miss Emma Hutchinson and Mr. Percy Hutchinson's principal company presented On the Love Path to a crowded and very appreciative audience on Monday evening. In the title-rôle, Mr. Hutchinson is seen to great advantage, and plays with great naturalness and verve; as Charity Concannon, Miss Lilias Earle acts with ability and charm; Mr. George Mudie makes an excellent Uncle; Mr. Frank Hill is very clever as Peter Concannon; and Mr. T. W. Rawson plays the villain to perfection. Miss Margaret Marshall, Miss Hilda Honiss, and Mr. Frank Elliott compete a very capable cast.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—Opera House. — Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Acting-Manager, Mr. Gunnell.—Mr. Henry Swinerd's company in Dare-Devil Dorothy has been well received this week. Miss Dorothy Desmonde's song, "You're not the only rosebud," and the mirror illusion dance by the Misses Mabel Blake and Ada Carol, as well as the plantation scene in the second act, by Mr. Will Brereton and Miss Nellie Harcourt, assisted by a juvenile troupe of dancers, may be specially mentioned. Miss Desmonde gives a charming impersonation of the title-rôle, and Mr. Cecil W. Parke is admirable as the hero of the piece; Mr. Will Brereton gives a breezy sketch of the bluff circus proprietor; and Mr. H. C. Ward, as the rival for Dorothy's affections, keeps a firm grip of the audience, and is well supported by Mr. Frank Howard as Feastertone Haugh and Mr. Alf. Bretton as Hawkins. Miss Norah Caronne as the other niece who shares Dorothy's fortunes throughout the plot displayed much vivacity, and Miss Nellie Harcourt takes the part of Judith with much skill, and proves a capable vocalist. Mr. George Hearson, and Mr. Walter Boyce, who plays the General in the prologue, also deserve mention.

WAKEFIELD.—Royal Opera House.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Mr. E. C. Jazon's pantomime Aladdin is here this week. As Aladdin Miss Marie Braham is full of dash, and sings in good style; Miss Daisy Lane gives a charming rendering of the Princess; Miss Effie Morde is an attractive Pekoe; Miss Florrie White a captivating Caramel; Mr. Cyril Carle does well as the Emperor of China; and Mr. Edwin C. Jazon gives a quaint and mirthful impersonation of Abanazar. Messrs. Mantell and Oval provide merriment as Ping and Pong; and Mr. Pete Vane is able as Gin Sling. Miss Beatrice Sinclair is admirable as the Slave of the Lamp; and Miss Pattie Holden wins favour as the Gem of the Ring. Specialities are introduced by Messrs. Mantell and Oval in a comical cycling turn.

Hippodrome.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Sêlwyn; Manager, Mr. Henry Lucas.—Mr. Whit Cunliffe, comedian, pays a return visit, and is encored nightly for his catchy songs; Madge Vido and Will Vido are a pair of clever dancers; La Belle Lily and Albert contribute a smart gymnastic act; Mark Lane, comedian, sings well; and William Quinn, singing and dancing pedlar boy, wins applause. Vesta Fay, male impersonator, merits favour; and Tom Herman's military spectacle, For King and Country, is applauded.

WALSALL.—Her Majesty's Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—An enjoyable programme is being presented here this week. Selma Braatz, the lady juggler, submits some clever work; Fyne and Hurley are seen in a funny little "coster and dude" incident; Clown Barker and Miss Mozsika, with their dogs, introduce some clever tricks; Cooke and Miss Rothert, a pair of North American humorists, give an amusing turn; Gracie Moore sings ballads, which are beautifully illustrated; the Bohemians, comedy musical artists; the Sisters Urma, graceful and charming trapeze artists; and the usual animated pictures are also in the programme.

Grand Theatre, Ltd. — General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Miss Winifred Chalmers company is here this week with the new melodrama, The Master Criminal. Mr. Henry L. Osmond as Telford Lestage is successful; Mr. Albert Sember is well placed as Philip Manners; Gentleman Jim finds an admirable representative in Mr. J. W. Gallagher; Mr. Harry Cooke is funny as Tommy Dale; Miss Winifred Chalmers sustains the rôle of Cecile in a charming manner; and a capable rendering of the parts of Mabel Manners and Winifred Manners is given by Miss Kate Sumerville and Miss Ivy Rochefort.

WALTHAMSTOW.—King's Theatre.—One of the finest productions seen at this house for a considerable time is An Abandoned Woman, by Miles Wallerton and Frances Gillerton, played by a talented company under the direction of Mr. Harry Foxwell. Mr. Harry Foxwell himself gives a deliciously humorous picture of the ubiquitous and genial constable Paddy Doyle; Mr. Harry Harrop is altogether delightful as the cheeky young scamp Sammy Sharp; pleasant to look upon and full of fun. Mr. Wolston Foster gives a fine account of the hero, Captain Herbert Seaton, speaking his lines with a vigorous boldness; Mr. George Gormley is duly reserved and concentrative as the artist Robert Saunders; a fine, full-blooded villain is the Phillipe Malvoisin of Mr. W. J. Butler, whose very appearance is sufficient to strike awe into the hearts of the innocent. Miss Doris Gilham is very fine as the wicked Ninan Malvoisin, looking the part to perfection, and playing with much power; a stately and dramatic representation of Eleonor Dean is given by Mrs. Harry Foxwell. Other parts are satisfactorily played by Messrs. Harrison Tate, Fred Norburn, Harrison Forbes, and Pat Quinn. Miss Ruby Roma, Miss Lily Addison, and Little Frances Maddocks.

Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. G. Adney-Payne; Manager, Mr. Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Slatter.—The admirable programme put forward this week by the indefatigable Mr. Arthur J. Barclay is drawing crowds of interested spectators and listeners. Clark and Hamilton again cause roars of laughter with their excellent fooling as the lady and the tramp; Miss Carlotta Levey makes a first appearance here this week, and with her fine appearance, distinguished manner and good voice, immediately ingratiates herself with her new public; Miss Levey's song, "Do a good turn while you're able" appeals immensely to the popular parts of the house, but not more so perhaps than the ditty in which she advises everyone to "put a little bit by for a rainy day." Mr. Dusty Rhodes makes a hit with his humorous gags and constant flow of amusing patter, while his few snatches of song make one wish that he would use his singing voice a little more. Park's Eton Boys are as tuneful as ever, their songs and choruses being capitally rendered; Mr. Park's pianoforte accompaniment is deserving of all praise. Miss Gladys Mavius is quite an established favourite here, and her novelty this time is her appearance in full Highland costume. Her singing is as vigorous as ever, and her dancing rouses enthusiasm. Mr. Chas. Morritt once more proves himself one of the most adroit of illusionists, some of his tricks being remarkably clever and performed with a neatness of touch that is all his own; Dutch Daly is still an inimitable patterer and an accomplished concertina artist; the Five Bon-Bons appear in a clever pantomimical trap scene, some of their trick jumping being neat and clever. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope displays some beautiful pictures.

WARRINGTON.—Royal Court.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred J. Reece.—Messrs. Arthur Whittaker and Gifford Stacey's company is here this week in the stirring play The Hands of Sin. Mr. Cyril W. Mackay scores as Captain Bruce Glenister; Mr. Elliot Bull submits a careful reading of the heavy rôle Captain Stephen Glenister; and a humorous Dr. Ulysses Murphey is Mr. Arthur Willerby; Mr. Clive Ross is well placed as Major Strong; and Mr. E. H. Dobell makes the most of the Hindoo Kumar Nana. Miss Ethel Murray, as Zephan, sister of the Hindoo, displays rich histrionic abilities; and a charming Dena Strong is Miss Lilyan Last; Miss Darcy Snowden is a successful Sylvia Glenister.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. Fred Willmot.—The Elliotts and Seven Savonas are the big turn here this week; Tom Brantford is an original comedian, and his sketch of the Original One-Man Band is very amusing. Tom Hayes is a young comedian who should develop into a star; and Miss Florence sings several capital songs; Brindall and Cooper score with their witticisms and funny songs; and Senorita Elonia is a graceful gymnast. The Royal Bioscope pictures are excellent.

WEDNESBURY.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. Coleman Davies's company, in the successful comedy drama entitled No Escape, is appearing here this week for the first time. Mr. Davies sustains the rôle of Major-General Geoffrey Arlington in an effective manner, and as Sergeant Arlington Mr. G. Thorpe submits a vigorous impersonation. An artistic embodiment of Horace Hardcastle is presented by Mr. J. Wilton Richards. Excellent comedy is provided by Mr. Terry Davies in his representation of Vandyke Collodion. Miss Ada Gower is admirably suited to the part of Ethel Arlington; the rôle of Molly Muggs is ably managed by Miss E. Udall; and as Betty Guzzle, Miss Nellie Navarro comes in for a good share of applause. On Wednesday evening the drama Money Makes the Man was staged.

WEST BROMWICH.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore. The first visit of The Orchid is being heartily welcomed by all lovers of musical comedy, and played by Mr. George Dance's principal company, it is seen to the best advantage. Most of the fun is provided by Mr. Tommy Neldon, who gives a droll sketch of Meakin; Miss Dorothy Firmin, as Lady Violet, sings with taste and piquancy; Josephine finds a charming interpreter in Miss Elsa Brull; Miss Madeline Maude acts with great care the part of Caroline; and Zelie Humbert has a capable exponent in Miss Florence Wakeman. There is a smart bit of acting by Mr. E. Nainby in the character of the French Count; Mr. Gilbert Randes (Guy Scrymgeour) and Mr. W. Griffin (Dr. Ronald Faussett) play in a finished style; Mr. Arthur Helmsley gives a fine display of dancing, and acts Zaccary cleverly; the Thisbe of Miss Daisy Kersey is all that could be desired; Miss Edith Johnson is well placed as the Countess Anstruther; Mr. Gordon Beggs is especially good in his caricature of a well-known statesman.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—Grand.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. J. A. Lewis.—Mr. E. Lockwood's company, in the musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, is an agreeable change to the patrons of this house. The part of Sergeant Brue has a capital exponent in Mr. Arthur Reynolds; the numbers allotted to the character of Gerald Treherne are excellently rendered by Mr. Arthur Stroud; Miss Lilian Middleton is attractive in the rôle of Aurora Brue; Michael Brue has an able exponent in Mr. E. Percy Rogers; Crookie Scrubbs is impersonated to the life by Mr. Charles McLagan; and Lady Bickenhall is played in pleasing manner by Miss Midge Clarke.

Palace.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—Leo Tell, who is appearing here, is certainly one of the finest mimics ever seen in this district; Barton and Ashley, in Canal Boat Sal, receive a hearty welcome; Valazzi, juggler, equilibrist, and athlete, is astonishing all in his sensational performance "sloping the slope on a cannon-ball"; the Darrell Trio take exceedingly well in their banjo and pianoforte selections; and Agnes and Arthur Lynch, in illustrated songs, provide a good turn; as do Lambert and Glover, whose farcical duologue is most enjoyable. Lilian is a marvellous trick cyclist; and Ruby Bijou dances well. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are, as usual, attractive and up to date.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — Knightstone Pavilion and Opera House.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama is paying its annual visit here this week. The Carls give an extremely comical sketch, entitled Fun in a Café; Mlle. Bartenelli is a marvellous gymnast; Funny John O'Rourke is an eccentric humorous comedian; the musical dancing "dots," Eileen and Maynie, are clever; Mr. Herbert G. Berry scores as a descriptive vocalist; the Boultons, as speciality artists, are entitled to unstinted praise; and Captain Carl Howlett's marionettes gain much applause.

WIDNES. — Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Mr. Jas. Kiddie's own company is here in the pantomime Cinderella, which has been toured with much success. The production is in ten elaborate scenes, the palace and ballroom settings being particularly ornate and pleasing. Miss Adele Roze is charming in every way as Cinderella, and her entrance in the illuminated silver carriage drawn by four ponies is the signal for enthusiastic applause. Miss Zena Panz is an extremely pleasing Prince Perfect, singing and acting in finished style. Miss Susie Bevan is a good Dandini, and Miss Fanny Hartland as Lord Stiff, with Miss Pollie Kiddie as Viscount Napper are attractive dandies. Mr. Wm. Verto handles the part of Hilario in finished fashion, and Mr. J. H. Weston is thoroughly sound in his delineation of Malicio., the Spirit of Mischief. Mention should also be made of Miss Rose Parazeer, whose work as Sunbeam is notable. The comedy is very strong. Mr. Dick Thomas is much at home in the part of the Baron Shiphalotte; the antics of the Ugly Sisters (Messrs. Sydney Benson and W. G. Wesley) nightly bring down the house. Mr. Frank Dunlop is funny as Pimples. On Friday evening the popular proprietor of the company and theatre took his annual "benefit."

WIGAN.—Royal Court Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. Fred Karno's Comedians in the pantomime sketch His Majesty's Guests pay a return visit. A large audience on Tuesday evening followed the performance with evident pleasure. Mr. Dick Kitchen is exceedingly funny as Sergeant Lightning, his quick changes in the second act being skilfully managed; Mr. Frank Morton gives an interesting representation of Lord Easem, his singing being greatly appreciated; Miss L. Castelle sing effectively in the part of Lady Maud Easem; Miss May Vernon is delightfully piquant as Dolly, Miss Kitty Brunton is amusing as Miss Manly, and the part of the acrobatic Selina is well filled by Mr. Tommy Manardo. Mr. W. Simpson is smart as Fritz, and Mr. Charles Usher is well suited to the character of Mr. Miffin; Mr. Fred Rigby scores as Bunker, and Mr. Eugene Aram, as Harry, and Mr. E. C. Lilley, as Mr. Minks, are also seen to advantage

The Hippodrome.—Managing-Drector, Mr. John Worswick.—The chief item this week is the performance of John Marx, the modern Hercules, whose weight-lifting feats, &c.—including the lifting of 25 men on a platform, the whole weighing 4000lb.—are truly extraordinary. Hall and Earle are excellent acrobatic comedians, and Horace White, ventriloquist, who accompanies the songs of the mechanical dolls on the pianoforte, is also a very popular artist; the Vekeys are clever banjoists, and another good turn is furnished by Arthur Croxon, who gives a one-man village concert. The Narows submit an excellent acrobatic and knockabout act, and Lottie De Abbey is a very pleasing vocalist, who gives capital imitations of the singing of eminent lady vocalists. Tom Moore, comedian, meets with a rousing reception in his songs and patter; Merton and Rydon, vocalists, are also much applauded; and Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian, is by no means the least entertaining of a good list of performers. To celebrate the second anniversary of the opening of the Hippodrome, an afternoon performance was given on Wednesday, when George Robey, the well-known comedian, along with the other artists, was announced to appear.

WINDSOR.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Eglington.—The Prodigal Son is the attraction here this week. Miss Marion Forrester as Margaret Marsden gives a sympathetic rendering of the part; Miss Nellie Hook as the Pet of the Regiment displays distinct ability, her singing being much admired; Miss Nora Bedford is successful as Nelly Burke; Mr. Ellerslie Pyne plays powerfully as the Prodigal Son; the part of Captain Fanshaw is well sustained by Mr. W. A. Buckstone; and the part of the villain is safe in the hands of that excellent actor, Mr. John Bryce. The house is kept in roars of laughter by Mr. John Chamberlain and Miss Rosie Kearns, as Larry M'Gehan and Mary the housemaid. Others worthy of mention are Mr. H. Lowe as Bill Burke, and Mr. Frank Dudley as John Fanshaw.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — Grand Theatre.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company is this week presenting The Walls of Jericho. The part of Jack Frobisher is played in a powerful and masterly manner by Mr. Herbert Bunston; Mr. George A. Brandram makes an admirable Hankey Bannister; Mr. Laurence Hanray cleverly depicts the part of the Marquis of Steventon; and Harry Dallas has a good exponent in Mr. Sydney Hamilton. Miss Florence Jackson is responsible for the part of Lady Alethea Frobisher, which character she portrays in an excellent and charming fashion; Miss Molly Carton is smart and capable as Lady Lucy Derenham; and Miss Lydia Busch is seen to advantage as Lady Westerby.

Empire Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The Poluski Brothers, who appear in a new entertainment, entitled Wibbles and Wobbles, are the leading attraction this week. Other items of note are Kit Keen, coloured comedian; Bonnetti and Lorrie, comedy jugglers; Miss Gertie Gitana, in an up-to-date scena; Harris and Worth, comedians; Doody and Wright, Australian comiques; and Blarney and Kennard, vocalists, dancers, and patterers.

WORCESTER.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Secretary, Mr. F. le Wards.—Passion's Power is a stirring melodrama abounding in good situations. In the hands of Miss Austen and Mr. Edmond's capable company it is admirably presented. Miss Stella Carmichael is responsible for a powerful impersonation as the Countess; Miss Sheppard is a bright and piquant Zorah Varno; Mr. Wm. Clayton is a distinguished figure as Prince Kandos; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan's interpretation of the part of Michel Laski is a

AMERICAN AMUSEMENTS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Triangle, a play in four acts, by Rupert Hughes, was produced at the Manhattan Theatre on the 20th inst., under the direction of Mr. Walter N. Lawrence. The title refers to one of those tripartite affairs in which a man and his wife and another man are implicated. A conventional "society play" for three acts, The Triangle has a last act with sufficient originality and dramatic strength to lift it above the commonplace, and justify a detailed description. Persis Van Duyn, prompted by her mercenary-minded mother, refuses to marry Harvey Forbes, an impecunious young officer, whom she loves, and becomes the wife of Willie Enslee, a young "swell" with plenty of money, whom she secretly despises, he being weak in mind and body. The discarded suitor rises in the world, and when she meets him again, Mrs. Enslee, who has little heart and less principle, ignores her husband, and becomes, as far as her lover is concerned, to all intents and purposes a single woman. But that inquisitive old lady, Mrs. Grundy, begins to interest herself in their conduct, and Forbes decides that it will be best for them to part. Enslee, in the meantime, hears gossip at his club which puts him into an ugly humour. Arriving home, he broaches the subject to his wife; but as she displays an extraordinary anxiety about his dressing for dinner, he obeys, and leaves her. A few minutes later, however, when the lovers are enjoying their appointed tête-à-tete, and embracing each other for the last time, Mrs. Enslee is horrified to see the portières moving in a way which suggests that there is a listener behind them. When he drags the curtains aside, Harvey Forbes is confronted by an irate husband with a pistol in his hand. The wife faints, and Forbes stands still, throws out his chest, and tells the husband to shoot. But Enslee's nerve fails him, and Forbes edges nearer, and snatches the revolver from his hand. Then he departs with the pistol in his pocket. The butler announces dinner. "Are we going to take the servants into our confidence?" Mrs. Enslee asks when she revives. "I think you may rely on my breeding," her husband replies, bowing with punctilious politeness, as she precedes him to the dining-room. The curtain falls for two minutes, and then the drama begins. Husband and wife seat themselves opposite each other at the well-appointed table, over which a powerful light is suspended, which brings their faces into bold relief, the room itself being in comparative darkness. Course after course is brought in, only to be carried away untouched. In the presence of the butler and two uniformed flunkeys Enslee discusses the opera, his wife forcing herself to reply. But the servants go through their accustomed routine with scrupulous formality, until Enslee can stand it no longer. "Get out!" he commands. Then he begins to talk of what he has heard at the club. It was an old friend who told him that his wife was reported to be more friendly with Harvey Forbes than the law allowed. "And what did you do?" is the ready rejoinder. "I told him he was a cad." "But didn't you strike him?" And Enslee bows his head in abject shame, as he admits that he didn't strike him. The sneer on his wife's face maddens him. "I've been cursed from birth with a weak body. Fate gave me wealth, but all it has bought for me is a woman who betrays my honour. I was afraid to strike that man at the club, and I hadn't the nerve to shoot your lover just now; but I've got pluck enough to take my revenge, for all that." And, so saying, Enslee dispatches his wife with a carving-knife. Her scream of anguish summons the butler, and, as he bends over her, she gasps into his ear that she and her husband quarrelled, and she killed herself. Enslee is kneeling at her feet, and she murmurs with her last breath, "At least you must admit that I die like a thorough-bred." Mr. Ferdinand Gottschalk, who flits from play to play, creating parts which one remembers when much else is forgotten, scored once more as the weakling, Enslee. Miss Charlotte Walker was sincere and natural as the wife. Mr. William Morris played Harvey Forbes with manly earnestness; and Mr. William Bramwell distinguished himself in a prominent rôle.

"THE TITLE MART," a comedy in three acts, by Winston Churchill, is the new attraction at the Madison-square Theatre. Mr. Churchill is the author of several novels which have been dramatised with not very successful results; but he was not responsible for the stage versions of his stories, the work having been done by other hands. Now the novelist has written a play for the first time. He calls it an Anglo-American comedy, and it is said to have been written "for diversion and practice in play-writing." The purpose of the play is to depict and satirise the social machinations of a wealthy American woman, who wishes to marry her daughter to a titled Englishman. The daughter rebels, preferring to choose for herself, and, in so doing, she chooses well, and marries a title after all. Mr. John Blackwell, the father, is a simple soul, of the "self-made" sort, with an immense fortune, a contempt for social forms, and a sneaking fondness for cock-fighting. His daughter, Dorothy, has a taste for athletics, a sense of humour, and a surprising ignorance of the older English authors. The English contingent is composed of the young Marquis of Tredbury, penniless, but of excellent principles; his wealthy friend, Reginald Barking, M.P., whose fortune rests upon a well-known brand of crockery; and Lady Marjory Ticknor, who lives as a perennial guest in comfortable American houses. The scenes are laid in an Adirondack camp. Lady Marjory informs the Marquis that the girl he is going to marry is an unattractive hoyden; so the Marquis and his friend suddenly make up their minds to try the old familiar trick of exchanging identities, just to see what it will bring forth, and the misunderstanding that arise provoke much laughter, the situation being further complicated when the real Marquis mistakes the daughter of the house for an actress, and falls desperately in love with her. The young people are mystified through the first two acts, and the older ones through the last act; but truth triumphs in the end, of course, and the American mother realises her ambition without sacrificing her daughter's happiness. Mr. Frank Gilmore appears as the Marquis, Mr. Arthur Hare as his friend Barking, Mr. Murray Carson as Lawyer Pepys, a quiet man of the world; Mr. Sam Edwards as Mr. Blackwell, Miss Dorothy Revell as the daughter, and Miss Ffolliott Paget as the title-hunting mother. The play is well acted by all concerned, and has proved fairly successful.

AT the Theatre Royal, Bradford, on Saturday evening, amidst a scene of indescribable enthusiasm, the curtain was lowered for the last time on Mother Goose, which, in a long speech to the crowded audience, Mr. Hart admitted had proved the most successful pantomime that he had produced for many years. During the evening there was a veritable carnival of flowers, these and other gifts being literally showered upon the ladies of the company. A very handsome leather travelling-bag was presented to the musical director, Mr. Harry Rushworth, by the members of the company. Mr. James Richardson, the courteous acting-manager, was the recipient of a beautiful silver clock; and the genial stage-manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle, was presented, by the staff of the theatre, with a handsome gold Albert chain and locket. Other presents were distributed lavishly by Miss Daisy Jerome, and the proceedings terminated with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the company, the audience joining heartily.

DEATH OF MR. KENNEDY MILLER.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. Kennedy Miller, the acting-manager of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin. For some time he had been in failing health, and about six months ago retired from active work in connection with the theatre. A melancholy fact in connection with Mr. Miller's illness was that, with customary generosity, the proprietors of the Queen's gave him his annual benefit on the night of February 26, but for the first time since the feature was established a leading member of the company, Mr. Dane Clarke, had to come before the curtain and return thanks for the cordial support given the performance. Mr. Kennedy died at an early hour on Saturday morning last at the age of forty-five.

Mr. Andrew Kennedy Miller, who was a Scotchman by birth, began his professional career about twenty-five years ago at the Prince of Wales's, now the Grand, Theatre, Glasgow. After leaving that city he went on tour with New Babylon as acting-manager for a short period, then toured as agent-in-advance with a pantomime company, afterwards going a long tour with Mr. Fred W. Sidney's company in a farcical comedy, entitled Muddles, combining the duties of acting-manager and advance agent, being engaged then by Mr. Sidney for his season at the Royal, Glasgow, where he became acting-manager. Here he was unfortunate enough to get a chill, which finally developed into rheumatic fever, causing him to resign and take a three months' sea trip, from which he returned to find a contract awaiting him to rejoin Mr. Sidney as advance agent for a long tour of Queen's Evidence. Mr. Miller then joined Mr. Sidney Cooper's Robinson Crusoe pantomime, and next toured the principal cities of the United Kingdom with the King of Siam's band An engagement with John H. Haverley's minstrels followed, and later on Mr. Miller had a fresh experience, joining the late Dr. Lynn, the well-known conjurer. After this he again joined Mr. Fred W. Sidney for a long tour of Boucicault's last comedy, The Jilt. He then joined the late Miss Mabel Hayes as acting-manager, remaining with her over two years. During this time he met Mr. J. W. Whitbread, and an arrangement to write a new play for Miss Hayes led to a business connection, which continued up to the time of his death. After terminating his engagement, Mr Miller went into management on his own account, arranging with Mr. Whitbread to tour his play Shoulder to Shoulder, and afterwards producing the same gentleman's drama The Irishman, which has been toured in America, Canada, and Australia. The Irishman was followed by a long list of plays by the same author. In 1899 Mr. Miller accepted an engagement as manager of the Queen's Theatre, Dublin. During his tenure of management of the theatre in association with Mr. J. W. Whitbread, the respected lessee, the best traditions of the Queen's were maintained with the highest efficiency. In private life, as a friend and associate, his genial, kindly manner and unvarying disposition to aid every good work of charity made his name something of a household word. Over and over again, when amateur and other entertainments were given at the Queen's for benevolent objects, their success was due largely to his ceaseless activity, good advice, and practical knowledge of stagecraft.

MR. KENNEDY MILLER.

The deepest sympathy will be felt for his widow and daughter in the sad affliction which has befallen them.

THE FUNERAL.

The remains of the late Mr. Miller were interred in St. George's Burial Ground, Drumcondra, Dublin, on Tuesday. The funeral left deceased's late residence, 1, Belvedere-avenue, and was largely attended by members of the theatrical profession and the general public, thus testifying to the esteem in which the late Mr. Kennedy Miller was held. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. D. C. Greene, B.D. The chief mourners were Mrs. Kennedy Miller (widow) and Miss Miller (daughter).

The coffin bore the inscription—

"PARLEZ-VOUS FRANCAIS"?

Comedy, in Three Acts, by Florence Warden, Produced on Tuesday afternoon, March 6, at the Great Queen-street Theatre.

Miss Florence Warden has done some exceedingly clever work as a novelist, and it was therefore with considerable curiosity that a large audience assembled at the Great Queen-street Theatre to see a piece from her pen. Unfortunately any anticipations of a success for it were doomed to disappointment, for Parlez-vous Français? proved to be too crude, artless, and uninteresting a comedy to have the slightest chance of attracting audiences. The plot can soon be told. Sir Hilary Dax, a young English baronet who is staying at an hotel in Paris, has fallen in love with Mlle. Solange de Marennes, who is apparently staying in the hotel with her father, her aunt, Mlle. Angélique de Marennes, her English governess, Miss Turner, and her fiancé, the Baron von Salzwedel. Solange's engagement is unknown to Sir Hilary, and when he proposes for her hand in writing, his best French is so imperfect that the offer is construed as for the hand of the aunt (Angélique), a gushing lady of uncertain age. When Sir Hilary is seen to be in earnest in pressing his suit, which is favoured by Solange, the Baron is furious at the turn things have taken. Everything is done by the father of the girl, M. de Marennes, to prevent the young people seeing each other. Sir Hilary has a friend in Mr. Grier, a solicitor, who hits upon a peculiar scheme for assisting him. Grier, after some inquiries concerning the Baron, persuades both him and M. de Marennes that Sir Hilary is insane, and that their best course is to humour him by making a pretence of consenting to his engagement to Solange, at the same time recommending that they should push on the preparations for her marriage with the Baron. In the last act, which takes place on the day appointed for the wedding, after a good deal of tedious business, the Baron is arrested as a forger by a detective brought over by Grier, and the way is cleared for the marriage of the happy couple, the parental consent being easily obtained now that M. de Marennes is freed from the baneful influence of the Baron, to whom he has been indebted for a large sum of money.

Mr. W. Graham Browne, who produced the comedy as Sir Hilary Dax, worked energetically and with conscientious care to make the part interesting, and raised several laughs by Sir Hilary's absurd attempts at making love in very imperfect and badly-pronounced French. Mr. W. T. Lovell was easy and natural as the solicitor Grier; the Baron von Salzwedel was quite the conventional foreign nobleman of the stage, and on these lines Mr. E. W. Thomas played exceedingly well; and Mr. P. L. Julien made M. de Marennes the ordinary explosive Gaul of extravagant farcical comedy. Miss Aimée de Burgh was an engaging and arch representative of Mlle. Solange de Marennes, and is gifted with a sense of humour. Miss Josephine Rae was duly severe as the English governess Miss Turner; Miss Fraser was sufficiently gushing as the elderly spinster Mlle. Angélique de Marennes; and Miss Evelyn Marthèze made excellent use of her opportunities as the maid. A friendly audience called for the author at the conclusion of the comedy, and Mr. Graham Browne, coming forward to the footlights, stated that Miss Warden was not in the house, but that he would convey to her the audience's kind expressions of favour.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Play, in Five Acts, by W. G. Wills,
entitled
"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

This ever-popular play was enthusiastically received by a large audience on the opening night of its present visit, the piece being admirably acted all round, liberally staged, and capitally managed. Miss Edith Cole repeats her inimitable performance of the Empress Josephine, and when we say that she is, if possible, better than ever, we are merely voicing the opinion of the audience. Mr. Frank Lister is a powerful and convincing Napoleon, and is responsible for much of the evening's success. Mr. F. Joynsen-Powell has an excellent conception of the crafty and much-feared Talleyrand. We must congratulate this excellent artist on a very clever performance. The Marquis de Beaumont has an excellent representative in Mr. George W. Cockburn; Mr. George Howard is very good as General Augereau; Mr. T. P. Haynes is an amusing Grimaud; and the other male parts are well sustained by their respective exponents. Miss Elizabeth Watson makes a decided success as Marie Louise, and looks handsome and dignified; Miss Clara Earle, as the warm-hearted and warm-tempered Stephanie de Beauharnais, is altogether charming; Miss Loyal Frere is well placed as the Gouvernante of the King; and Master Herbert Hollum is an interesting and clever representative of the little King of Rome. The numerous smaller parts are in good hands.

CREATORE AT QUEEN'S HALL.

At Queen's Hall, on Monday evening, Creatore and his band, who have caused so great a sensation in America, made a most successful opening night. Creatore is quite a youthful conductor, being only thirty-four years of age, and formerly was celebrated as a solo performer. For some years he was a teacher in his native city Naples, and in 1900 he went to America, where his name has become a household word. The audience at Queen's Hall on Monday night seemed at first somewhat amused at the original method of the new conductor, who walks about and uses hands, arms, and even fingers in the control of his fine band. But amusement quickly gave place to admiration, and the applause after a really fine performance of Thomas's overture, "Mignon," was long and unmistakably genuine, the famous "Pollacca" in this overture being rendered in a delightfully crisp and brilliant manner. We may here mention that the conductor is unsparing in the matter of rehearsals. The band was heard also in the Tannhäuser march, although in this case hardly at their best, but the charming minuetto (for reeds only) of Boccherini was admirably played, though the absence of the stringed instruments was felt. The famous sextette, "Che mi Frena," from Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor, was another success for the band, the solos being capitally given by Signori Pierno, Gallo, Marino, Nestorini, Falcone, and Greco. Madame Barili was the solo vocalist, and revealed a soprano voice pure and fluent, although not of any great power. She was encored in Arditi's waltz song "Parla" (beautifully accompanied by the band), and might have responded, in justice to her abilities, with something more artistic than "The Mocking Bird is Singing on the Tree." Also included in the programme was the prelude to La Traviata, and a grand selection from Carmen. It is needless to say that many encores greeted the new conductor.

CHAT WITH MR. HARRY PAULTON.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

It is sometimes instructive, and always interesting, to hear the views of an actor of long experience as he contrasts the condition of things professional in his early days with those of the present time. In this respect, at least, Mr. Harry Paulton, the well-known comedian, who recently concluded an engagement in the Christmas production of Noah's Ark at the Waldorf Theatre, is well qualified to speak.

"Players nowadays," says Mr. Paulton, "are inclined to tell the public too much, although I don't know whether the public want it or are interested in it. There is a good deal of unnecessary information as to how this is done or why that is done, and a reason is given for everything, though to what purpose I fail to see. An old manager of mine, Mr. Wilde, who was interested in the Haymarket Theatre with Mr. Buckstone before I met him, used to say that he didn't like the actors going about and making themselves known at all. On one occasion he remarked that if it were possible he would have his actors locked up in a box until such time as it was necessary for them to go on the stage, so that the public should never see them privately nor get to know them."

"But at the present time, Mr. Paulton, the public want to recognise an actor off the stage."

"Yes; and personality counts for much in these days, especially in the case of a man who has been seen on the stage actually as himself. And, after all, I think that, for popularity's sake, it is a pity for an actor to disguise himself.

"Again, the eternal cry of 'No plays.' I have got dozens of good plays, but no one can get a play entertained. You needn't talk about the great unacted being unable to get a show when experienced writers are not allowed a chance. Acceptances of pieces are only confined to a select few. I invariably write in conjunction with my son. He is in America just now, presenting his own play The Princess Beggar, and he finds he can always do better there than here. Although he is intensely English, he is compelled to go to America, as there is nothing to be done here."

"Then, do you recommend America for the British playwright as well as for the British actor?"

"I do. I think that America is undoubtedly the best place for an English actor to go to. I was out there for six years, and came away ten years ago, and now wish I'd stayed in the country. America is worth a thousand of Englands for actors."

"And yet one sees big crowds outside our theatres nightly."

"Quite so; but even in that respect America stands far before us. In England you go to a small town where you absolutely play to starvation business, and yet in a place of the same size in the States you would do well. And look how many small towns there are in this country without a theatre at all."

"Is it that we are too old-fashioned?"

"Not so much that; but we are terribly handicapped by the Nonconformist people in England. If you met with their counterpart in America you would find that they have not the same prejudice that folk have here. If you enter a little town in the United Kingdom where there is a population of anything from ten to twenty thousand, not one-fourth of them can be counted theatre-goers; in fact, the large majority of the inhabitants would not go into a theatre at all."

"But, Mr. Paulton, people here seem to patronise music halls more than theatres."

"I admit that. In America more people go to theatres, and the 'legitimate' houses stand far in front of the variety. When I was in the States the music halls scarcely amounted to anything at all, although I believe they have grown considerably since. I was rather surprised at reading an article on this very subject a few days ago in a halfpenny morning journal notorious for the inaccuracy of its contents. The writer of the article argued that people wanted to be amused, therefore they did not want serious plays, and he put that forward as a reason why the music halls were doing so much better than the theatres. Did you ever come across such fatuous reasoning in your life? Cannot people be amused at witnessing a good drama or a good comedy? Are people only amused when they laugh?"

"After all, isn't it mainly a question of the fickleness of the public tastes?"

"Tastes are certainly at a very low level, and I will go further than that, and say that to my mind they show an absolute failure of the School Board education, because I am of the opinion that the amusements of the people ought to be a fair indication of their intellect. I can remember when I was a youngster seeing the working-men going off to see Shakespearean plays after leaving their works or factories. Of course, smoking may have assisted in the popularisation of the music halls."

"From the performer's point of view, do you object to smoking?"

"I should be sorry to see smoking made permissible in theatres. If men are constantly striking matches and lighting their pipes while a serious piece is in progress it is impossible for them and others to follow the story with any degree of accuracy.

"There is one very great hardship," concludes Mr. Paulton, "that the music halls inflict on theatres. You may have a very successful piece running in the provinces, and you may find that a boiled down version of it, called a sketch, is being played in a variety establishment not so very far away from where you are engaged to appear. The worst of it is that you have no remedy against the sketch-producers whatever. They do not require to have their sketches licensed by the Lord Chamberlain And, then, their sketch or their burlesque is generally such a mangled abortion of your work that your reputation is seriously injured."

NEW MUSIC.

Chappell and Co., New Bond-street, publish "Fascination," valse tzigane, by F. D. Marchetti, a graceful waltz, not wanting something of the "fascination" suggested by the pretty girl shown on the title-page. Paul Rubens has a song, "Once upon a time," which, if not reaching the highest standard of this clever musician, is singable and attractive, and his admirers will be sure to like it. "In the heather, my lads," words by Frank L. Moir, music by Hermann Löhr, has the breezy effect suggested by the title. Mr. Ernest Newton has composed to the verses of Clifton Bingham a bright and pretty song entitled "The Magic Month of May." It expresses the untiring delight all poets and enthusiasts have felt in the revival of Nature after the dreary sleep of winter. "At the Window" is a setting of Tennyson's lines by Mr. Richard Walthew, a young musician who has already made his mark as a composer of original and striking melodies. In this instance the air is pleasing, and there are some musicianly effects introduced in the accompaniment. "Marjorie," written by Samuel M. Rich, and composed by John Ansell, has an echo of the German volkslied, which will help to make it popular, and the easy compass will please the amateur. "Love's in the world" is a song by Bothwell Thomson, who is also the composer of "Is it raining, little flower?" Both are simple and melodious. "Your life and mine," by Noel Johnson, is a song in which Marie Hedderwick, the author of the words, rejoices in the fact that the lover and the lady are "blended in one at last." The sentiment and the music agree very well. "Dans le Bois," by Coralli Windeatt, is a valse lente with an illustration of a dashing young lady riding in advance of her cavalier under the shadow of the woods. "The Gibson Girl," by Maurice Depret, is a waltz adorned with a Gibson Girl of the most modern type, who we suppose to have been dancing to the rather graceful music. Liza Lehmann is always welcome. The composer of the "Persian Garden" is quite herself in this pretty song, "Tell me." "St. Agnes Eve" is a setting of the mystical verses of Tennyson by Richard Walthew. Mr. Walthew has caught with considerable felicity the spirit of the poem. "I think" is the title of a new song by the popular Guy d'Hardelot. The words of Walter E. Grogan describe how a lover hopes to find in the sweet smiles of his fair one consolation for the gloom of winter and other dreary things. A pretty waltz by Edmund Eysler has the attractive title "Kissing is no sin." "Life's Garden," by Ellen Cowdell, has some rather pleasing suggestions embodied in simple yet graceful music. "A Sea Rhapsody" will please if only for the plaintive music of Noel Johnson, who has so often charmed us in the concert-room. "Love's Last Word" is a waltz by Octave Crémieux, which displays some ingenuity in the music. "Effearante," by Ph. R. Meny, has a dashing figure for its title-page, a young lady who would find plenty of partners in the ball-room. "The Shepherd of the Sea," music by Joan Trevalsa, words by Nora Chesson, is a fanciful comparison of the sea to the life of a shepherd. Chappell and Co.'s "Dance Album" is one of the best collections for the ball-room ever published. "The Orchid" Lancers, by Ivan Caryl and Lionel Monckton, a waltz from The Country Girl, lancers by Ivan Caryll from The Girl from Kay's, a waltz from Arthur Sullivan's Gondoliers, and many other attractive dances, conclusively show the high merit of this album.

Mr. Louis Honig, an esteemed professor of music at Richmond Hill, Surrey, has found an attractive theme for a song in "Loved Richmond." Mr. Honig is a poet as well as a musician, and he sings the praises of Richmond in a thoroughly sympathetic manner. He has won the approval of the chief members of the Royal Family and a host of aristocratic and clerical admirers. The fact that he has already announced the "ninth thousand" shows how the song has caught on, and also proves that he has done justice to his theme. Sir John Denham, in his "Ode to the Thames," describes the beauteous surroundings of Richmond Hill in a similar strain. Sir John concludes his poem with the memorable lines—

"Though deep, yet clear; though gentle, yet not dull; Strong without rage; without o'erflowing, full."

Mr. Louis Honig has written other songs which have been popular, but "Loved Richmond" will probably take the lead, the subject being so universally admired.

A WARNING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—It has come to my knowledge that some individual is representing himself as agent in advance for this company who has no claim to do so. I, therefore, wish to notify to resident-managers, landladies, &c., that Mr. W. E. LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE PRINCE OF PILSEN."

On a previous visit this merry American musical comedy found many admirers in Hammersmith, and on the return appearance of the "Prince" and his amusing companions on Monday the theatre was crowded in every part. The comedy is bright and laughable, the music sparkling and melodious, the faces pretty and the costumes handsome, and success was again assured. Mr. Stuart Alexander undertakes the title-rôle with distinct ability, his singing and acting alike giving satisfaction to the audience. Hans Wagner, the Cincinnati brewer, is played by Mr. Edwin Adeler with all the necessary unctuousness, and the result is an impersonation of great comicality. Mr. G. Villiers Arnold is a pleasant Lieut. John Wagner; and Lord Shrimpton is satisfactorily enacted by Mr. Lawrence Wensley. The Hotel Concierge François is capitally rendered by Mr. Alfred Selby, whose dancing is of incalculable assistance to the piece. Cook's courier and Sergeant Brie, the gendarme, are capably fulfilled by Mr. Madison Rich and Mr. D. O. Uglas. Miss Nellie Cozens is a fascinating and vivacious Mrs. Madison Crocker, her acting and excellent singing meeting with popular approval. Miss Mildred Baker sings admirably as Edith Adams; and Nellie Wagner has an engaging personality in Miss Mabel Osborn. Miss Nell Emerald scores heavily as Sidonie, the French maid; and Jimmie, the bell boy, is smartly represented by Miss Meg Hamylton. The Heidelberg boys are all good singers, and the world-famous American girls meet with universal approval, the Gibson Girl of Miss Christine Rayniski calling forth loud applause. The chorus is particularly animated and full of energy, and the orchestra, under the guidance of Mr. J. A. Robertson, performs its duties conscientiously. The scenery by Mr. Walter B. Spong deserves every praise.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE TALK OF THE TOWN."

Mr. William Greet's company furnishes an excellent rendering of the attractive musical comedy, The Talk of the Town, and North Londoners have confirmed their reputation for great discriminative power by turning up in goodly numbers throughout the week, enthusiastic demands for encores testifying to their appreciation of the efforts of the company. The piece is full of life and melody, is prettily mounted, superbly dressed and smartly played. Well and worthily were the plaudits bestowed upon Miss Joan Keddie for her rendering of Ellalaine Lewin. She is a winsome, sprightly actress and dancer, and a pleasing vocalist. Mr. Arthur Harold, as Reggie Drummond, is especially happy; he has a fine voice, which he uses with the best effect in his musical numbers. On the night of our visit Mr. William Cromwell, who undertakes the part of Jerry Snipe was away indisposed, but his understudy, whose name we were unable to obtain, did very well in the part, his singing and dancing gaining well merited applause. Miss Louie Tinsley acts with the skill and experience of the ripe comedienne in the part of Geraldine Snipe, and brings down the house with her quaint rendering of the "Young men what whistles down the lane" and "Romeo." Miss Katherine Harrington is a dignified Lady Nightingale, and her two daughters Marjorie and Mabel, are charmingly impersonated by the Misses Helen Gordon and Jessie Winter Mr. Price Evans is suitably cast as Colonel Nightingale; and Mr. Ernest Arundle successfully undertakes the rôle of the Duke of Topford. Mr. Leslie Owen is a smart Captain Hambledon; and Mr Geoffrey Allsopp causes laughter in his impersonation of 'Arry Biff, heavy-weight champion. Miss G. Melville is very dainty and chic as Madame Modiste, and sings her numbers with effect, being especially successful in her Dutch song and dance The Brothers English, in the hands of Messrs. Tom Graves and A. Gambier Melford, who get through an incredible amount of work, are very funny. Mr. A. T. Hendon capably undertakes the part of Private Belzey; and Mr. Charles Earldon is a spirited American solicitor. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy, who possesses a charming voice and pretty manner, uses both to advantage, and she had to give an encore for her dainty rendering of "My Little Eskimo." The orchestra, specially augmented by musicians carried by Mr. William Greet under the bâton of Mr. Percy E. Fletcher, and the chorus, which is powerful and efficiently trained, render valuable aid.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Play,
"THE GIRL FROM KAY'S."

Mr. George Dance's company has been drawing good houses here with The Girl from Kay's, and on Monday night received a warm welcome from a large and enthusiastic audience. Miss Emily Taylor—who is remembered here for her good work in Mr. Sounes's pantomime two years ago—is very well suited as Norah Chalmers, acting with an air of naïveté and innocence which is quite delightful, and singing the several songs allotted to her with great success. Miss Beatrice Poole made a charming Winnie Harborough, submitting a clever portrayal of the impetuous but good-hearted "girl from Kay's," and singing with considerable expression. The maid Ellen found a vivacious and untiring representative in Miss Mabel Dent, whose coquettish manner and clever dancing soon made her a firm favourite; her rendering of "Hiawatha" secured perhaps the most determined encore of the evening. Miss Lily Beaumont acted easily and naturally as Mrs. Chalmers. A lion's share of the work fell of course on the shoulders of Mr. H. C. Barry, whose Max Hoggenheimer proved one of the funniest characters seen at this theatre for some time. Mr. Barry's humour strikes one as being entirely unforced; he is a comedian to the tips of his fingers, and kept his audience in a continual ripple of laughter, his happiest effort being perhaps the really excellent fooling with the "gollywog" in the second act. As Harry Gordon, Mr. J. S. Durant proved himself a very capable jeune premier, and sang in good style, his song, "I don't care," being loudly re-demanded. Mr. Reginald Grey was sufficiently fatuous as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle; Mr. Robert Rivers submitted an amusing portrayal of Theodore Quench, K.C.; Mr. Tom Seymour made quite a character-study of the hall porter; and Mr. Jamie Dallas did well as Mr. Chalmers. The chorus was tuneful and well up to its work, the mounting and dressing were exceptionally good, and the play "went with a bang" from start to finish.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Comedy, entitled
"THE CATCH OF THE SEASON."

Those among the patrons of the Dalston Theatre who have a fancy for musical comedy have a good opportunity this week of gratifying that particular taste, for Mr. Charles Frohman's company is appearing there in The Catch of the Season. The personage specially distinguished in this amusing society story as being "the catch of the season"—the Duke of St. Jermyns—is represented by Mr. Frank Lincoln, who gets on remarkably well with the many young ladies who are only too anxious to share his title. The Cinderella of the piece, Angela, has a charming representative in Miss Maie Ash. The songs, "I was only teasing," "I will be a good little girl," and "Molly," as sung by Miss Ash, prove as popular as ever. Miss Ida Mann, as the match-making Lady Crystal, lends realism to the piece; and the same may be said of Miss Hilda Stewart as the Duchess of St. Jermyns. Other ladies in the cast include Miss Alice Lethbridge, Miss Hettie Muret, Miss Lillian Wessen, Miss Ethel Quarry, and Miss Belle Napier. Mr. E. H. Kelly as Lord Dundreary adapts himself well to the part; and, in contrast to such a free-and-easy individual, is the over-ridden Sir John Crystal, well played by Mr. Julian Cross. Others who help materially in sustaining the interest of the representation include Mr. Alfred Lloyd as Mr. William Gibson, Mr. Augustin Symonds as Higham Montague, Mr. Powis Pinder as Lord Yatton, Mr. Richard Lawson, Mr. Harry Eversleigh, and Master Grata, the latter representing Bucket, a page.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Comedy Drama, in Three Acts,
by Richard Ganthony, entitled
"A MESSAGE FROM MARS."

The promise of prosperity given at the opening of Mr. J. Bannister Howard's administration of the Crystal Palace Theatre was plentifully borne out on Monday, when the house was well filled with an appreciative audience drawn from the immediate neighbourhood. A powerful attraction for the week is provided in A Message from Mars, the popular play which did so much to revive the fortunes of the old Avenue Theatre and has won fame in at least two continents, and entertainment of the most agreeable kind is furnished chiefly by virtue of the funny dialogue and the appealing sentiment of the piece. The company engaged in its presentation is that of Mr. Frederick Mouillot, who is travelling the play by arrangement with Mr. Frank Curzon. Mr. Cyril Austen Lee sustains the very arduous part of the selfish and conceited Horace Parker, and bears himself with a due sense of his responsibilities. He is the cause of much laughter by his delivery of the droll lines which fall to him, and his awakening to a sense of altruism is made very affecting. Though a little too emphatic in his enunciation, Mr. Lee's expression is remarkably effective, and every point in the dialogue is skilfully made. The Martian Messenger is played with notable distinction by Mr. William H. Brougham, whose fine physique lends the necessary impressiveness to the part, while his sonorous voice gives added power to his lines. A sound piece of dramatic work is done by Mr. Bruce Lindley as the tramp. Appearance and gesture are in complete accord with the part, and the worth of Mr. Lindley's acting, in which humour and pathos are furnished in due proportion, is recognised by frequent cheers. Mr. J. Edgar Stevenson makes a good appearance in the part of Arthur Dicey. He possesses an admirable speaking voice, but the American accent is assumed so irregularly in the part as to rob it of a good deal of character. An excellent exponent of the aunt, Miss Parker, is found in Mrs. Edward Saker, a veteran actress, who makes the most of the rôle; and the name, so well known in theatrical circles, is well sustained by Miss May Saker, who plays Minnie Templar with much grace and delicacy. Mr. Eustace French gives a well-defined sketch of Sir E. Vivian, the astronomer; and Mr. Leslie Tyler is a commendable exponent of the solicitor, Mr. Fergusson. Miss Joan Meredith makes a prepossessing appearance as Mrs. Clarence; and Mr. Percy Tyler is an effective Dr. Chapman. A quaint performance of Polly is given by Miss Teresa Vanbrugh, Miss Elsie Walton plays with simple pathos as a flower-girl, and Miss Peggy E. Yeoman is a vivacious and well-spoken Bella. Mr. Harry Reynolds gives an excellent impersonation of the policeman, Mr. Harold M. Davidson and Mr. Louis Cabaret are well placed as Sir Roland Wright and Mr. Shillingford, and a humorous portrayal of a manservant is given by Mr. Harold Lloyd. The eccentricities of Joe, the coster, are broadly outlined by Mr. James Mayall, the little girl is impersonated by Miss Minnie Halstan, and Master Leonard Neville as the "Emperor," Miss Kate O'Neill as a poor woman, Mr. Willie Wrench as the injured man, and Mr. Harry Brooks, Mr. F. G. Fitzgerald, and Master Teddy George all do well. The play has an elaborate and complete setting, the weird "dynamic" effects being realistically obtained, and the pleasure of the audience was testified throughout, the curtain having to be raised four times at the end of the second act.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

the Drama, in Four Acts, by Frederick Melville,
entitled
"THE BEAST AND THE BEAUTY."

The latest of the Melvillian dramas, The Beast and the Beauty, has been chosen by Mr. Norris to fill the bill here this week, and, though only produced at the Standard Theatre last autumn, its qualities are evidently known to the New Kent-road theatre-goers, for on Monday night it drew a house filled to its utmost capacity. As Jack Barrymore, the "Beast," Mr. Fred B. Davis works hard throughout. In his various scenes as the young debauchee he scores heavily, while later, when, in his misfortune, the better qualities of the character are developed, he completely wins the sympathies of the audience. As the Earl of Roman, his "prehistoric father," Mr. Bernard J. Nell enacts a character which is almost pathetic in its repulsiveness. The villainy of Henry Beuve, known as "Lord X.," is well brought out by Mr. Bernard Mervyn, who in appearance and manner is admirably suited to the rôle. Mr. Roland Adair creates a strong impression by his forcible acting as Ned Samson, a fighting man. Mr. Harry Wimpenny as Dick Soames, a "ruffian," is realistic, and when participating in the boxing-ring scene he causes roars of laughter. The characters in this scene are well sustained by Messrs. Will Coste, Will Howard, Bill Ruggles, Tom Franks, James Peerless, Walter Tempest, and Ernest Williams. As Tom Chicken, an aspiring light-weight champion, Mr. Will Corrie does well. Mr. Gilbert Heron in the small part of Father Paul, a priest, is excellent. As a solicitor Mr. William Ravenscroft is satisfactory. The other male parts are safe in the hands of Messrs. Harry Seaton and W. H. Gainsford. Miss Alice Bowes as Violet ("Beauty") acts with great feeling, and her appearance and manner charmingly realise her description. In the arduous part of Delilah Vane Miss G. Thierry shows conspicuous ability. Miss Mamie Rendle is an effective French housemaid, and Miss Jessie Danvers is successful as Minnie, a "maid of all work."

THE PAVILION.

the Farce by W. W. Jacobs and Louis N. Parker,
entitled
"BEAUTY AND THE BARGE."

This week, Mr. Cyril Maude's company, in Beauty and the Barge, is at the Pavilion, and opened on Monday evening to a large audience, who were not slow to recognise the many humorous situations in which this capital farce abounds. The piece is excellently represented, and has been staged with an amount of completeness that elicits general admiration. Mr. Harry Ashford never misses an opportunity, and provides ample fund for amusement by a clever performance of Captain James Barley, which is productive of continuous laughter and applause. A capital piece of character acting is presented by Mr. Charles Goold as Tom Codd; while a neat sketch of the old gardener, John Dibbs, is given by Mr. J. Wheatman. Lieutenant Seton Boyne is acted in a breezy and manly style by Mr. Percival Knight; and Mr. Percy Marmont is distinctly good as Herbert Manners. Mr. Walter Pemberton scores a hit and distinguishes himself as the irascible Major Smedley; and a quaint impersonation of George Porter, creating much laughter, is given by Mr. Charles Caffrey. Miss May Fairclough materially contributes towards the success of the play by her delightful reading of the vivacious Ethel Smedley; and a fascinating exposition of Lucy Dallas is seen in Miss Mary Pemberton, who looks exceedingly well, and plays with much discretion. Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite admirably sustains the part of Mrs. Porter; and Miss Mary Griffiths does all that is requisite as Mrs. Baldwin. Miss Ethel Stalman is pleasing as Mrs. Smedley; and Mr. Forrester Harvey is a suitable Augustus. The remaining characters are in the careful hands of Messrs. Fred Lake, Arthur Flinders, Fred Paul, Boothroyd Fairclough, and H. Richford. The farce is preceded by That Brute Simmons, in which Messrs. J. Wheatman, Fred Lake, and Miss Harriet Trench display conspicuous ability. The manager for Mr. Cyril Maude is Mr. Thomas Phillips.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Play, by Owen Hall and Sidney Jones,
entitled
"THE GEISHA."

Mr. Mouillot's principal company is filling the bill here this week. This is by no means its first visit to this theatre, where it has already become popular, including as it does several old favourites. Among them are Miss Florrie Saunders, Mr. Edward Carlton, and Mr. Lionel Braham. A large audience was present on Monday evening to hear The Geisha, and all the popular numbers were encored. O Mimosa San has a very charming representative in Miss Bessie Allayne, whose dainty manner and sweet voice soon made her a big favourite. Nearly all her songs were rapturously re-demanded. No more captivating and mischievous Molly Seymour than Miss Florrie Saunders could be desired. She is more vivacious than ever, and her singing of the "Monkey on the Stick" delighted the audience very much. Mr. Edward Carlton is more grotesque than ever as Wun Hi, being excellent in the part, and really funny. He keeps his gags very much up to date, and sings and dances with tireless energy. The dry humour of Mr. Lionel Braham as the Marquis Imari is greatly enjoyed. He is intensely humorous, and plays the part quite on his own lines. Mr. Cyril Thompson cuts a manly figure as Reggie Fairfax, and he was in fine voice on Monday when singing "Jack's the Boy" and other songs. Lady Constance is well depicted by Miss Aubrey Ashton; Miss Blanche Brown is very smart as the little midshipman; Miss Violet Kenyon plays Juliette in dainty fashion; Mr. Edgar Ward is good as Captain Katana; and Takamine, the Governor's factotum, is neatly played by Mr. G. D. Phillips, who also sings well. Messrs. Lockridge, Hoare, and Hull are smart as the officers of H.M.S. Turtle, and the Misses Brocklebank, Gilbert, and Ruby Latham are most fascinating as the lady visitors. There is also a bevy of pretty geishas. The orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Mr. F. G. Knowles, render excellent service. The play is prettily staged, and the dresses are exceedingly picturesque. The Greek Slave was given on Friday.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Drama, in Four Acts,
by Arthur Shirley and George Conquest, entitled
"THE WORK GIRL."

Lovers of sensational drama should certainly pay a visit to the Shakespeare Theatre this week, where an excellent company, under the direction of Mr. John M. East, is presenting The Work Girl The plot is of the simplest, but full advantage has been taken of the thrilling episodes to make each scene thoroughly realistic, and the interest of the audience is fully sustained throughout the performance. Miss Kathrine Clarke quickly wins the sympathy of the audience by the pathetic rendering of her parts, firstly as the wife of the ruined gambler, Frank Belton, and afterwards as his daughter Claire. She is to be congratulated for an excellent portrayal of a rather trying part. An earnest and convincing performance is given by Mr. Fred Victor in the rôle of the gambler, Frank Belton, who gains much applause; and a finished impersonation of the villainous Silas Sephton is presented by Mr. Alfred Harding, whose vindictiveness gains in effect by the coolness and resourcefulness of his acting. Mr. Geo. Delaforce as the rascally Loo Genesis contributes an excellent character study, and is responsible for most of the humour in the piece. The callous Evelyn Sephton is faithfully portrayed by Miss East Robertson, who achieves a great success. Mr. Harry Gribbon as Keeley Randall gives a meritorious performance, his delineation of the rôle being in every respect admirable. Mr. Talbot Holmwood as Edgar Drayton and Mr. Sidney Sherston as Tom Courtney are thoroughly efficient in their respective parts; and Mr. Harry Briston makes the most of the part of the sea captain, Richard Bracknell. Some excellent work is put in by Mr. Harry Buss in the rôle of the coster, Natty Nobbs, and he is ably assisted by Miss Nellie Sheffield, who, as Jenny Wibbles, acts with much vivacity, and contributes greatly to the success of the play. Praise should also be accorded Miss Emily Levettez for a good performance in the rôle of the hypocritical Madame Le Marshe.

GRAND THEATRE, ISLINGTON.

On Monday, March 5, the Drama in Four Acts,
by Walter Melville, entitled
"THE GIRL WHO LOST HER CHARACTER."

Islington once again has the opportunity of witnessing one of Mr. Melville's dramas, his latest effort being this time the attraction. Mr. Douglas Bruce's company, by whom the play is presented, is a very capable one, and the performance, which was witnessed by a crowded house on Monday, went admirably. Mr. Wingold Lawrence gives a rendering of Jack Hill which commends itself highly to the audience. Mr. Herne as the Rev. John Everton submits a fine impersonation, acting with much feeling and dignity. Mr. Frank Adair plays the repulsive part of Captain Caversham in a thorough style, and is very successful. Mr. Albert H. Clarke as Sutton is good. Mr. H. Asquin as Punch carries the light-comedy part through spiritedly and with the happiest results. Miss Ida Mavius as Molly is quite excellent, her performance being quite up to the high level her previous appearances here have led us to expect. Miss Marie McAulay as Marion Franklyn is also to be congratulated on an intense and effective piece of acting. Miss Ethel Bracewell is very pleasant and unaffected as Rose Seymour, and made a good impression. Miss Daisy Maynard is a capital partner in the comedy business, and causes much amusement. The large number of smaller parts are all in good hands, and the scenery and mounting are on a very elaborate scale.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, March 5, the Drama in Four Acts,
by Sutton Vane, entitled
"THE SPAN OF LIFE."

Mr. Arthur Carlton's capable company soon made their way into the good graces of Mr. William Bailey's indulgent Marylebone playgoers on Monday evening last. As Richard Blunt Mr. Sanderson Moffatt played with an energy and determination that soon made its mark, his efforts meeting with warm appreciation. Mr. R. S. Trelawney enacted Dunstan Leech in that easy, confident fashion which is always associated with an actor of resource; Mr. Edwin T. Kisby was well placed as Joshua Gurnet; and Mr. Walter Dale as Nutty Brown quickly became a warm favourite, his easy-going methods being much admired. The important rôle of Kate Heathcote was sustained by Miss Phyllis Hamilton in a sympathetic, womanly way, and nothing but praise can be given for her treatment of the part. Miss Kitty Russell was well to the fore as Shrove Tuesday; Miss Harriett Russell scored as Mrs. Jelf; Miss Phyllis Graham was pleasing as Cecil Jeff; and Miss May Moffatt played in an intelligent way as little Cecil Blunt. The piece was well staged and mounted, and the acting all round was decidedly good.

BRIXTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Play, in Four Acts, by the late Wilson Barrett,
entitled
"THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

That The Sign of the Cross has not lost any of its powers to attract was clearly proved by the crowded state of the Brixton Theatre on Monday. The drama is performed by Mr. William Greet's excellent company. A fine conception of Marcus is presented by Mr. William Grant, who acts with dignity and distinction, and is well rewarded by abundant applause. No daintier or more charming Mercia could be imagined than that of Miss Marie Leonhard, whose quiet disposition and modest manner are valuable in the part. Mr. Boyd Pearson, as Nero, gives a fine impersonation of this cowardly and nervous Emperor. The brutality of Tigellinus is brought into prominence by Mr. Charles Aldred; and Licinius is made sufficiently repulsive by Mr. J. Wetherall. A humorous portrayal of the bibulous Glabrio is given by Mr. Frank Wood. Mr. Harry Jones makes the most of his opportunities as Philodenus, the pet of the ladies. The two spies, Servillus and Strabo, are well played by Mr. H. T. Harris and Mr. B. Russell; and an excellent Vitarius, Captain of the Guard, is presented by Mr. E. Yaldwin. The Empress Poppœa is charmingly enacted by Miss Nellie Bonsor; and Dacia and Berenice are attractively impersonated by Miss Alma Bolton and Miss Cissie Carlton. Miss Ivy Millaris gives a sympathetic and touching portrait of the boy Stephanus. Favius and Titus have good representatives in Mr. William Fleet and George Stanton. During the evening Miss Lillian Dacroy introduces some sweetly sung and pretty songs; and Miss Dorothy Stafford, as Thea, executes a special dance.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5,
the Musical Play, in Two Acts, entitled
"LADY MADCAP."

Seldom is a better company seen on tour in the provinces or suburbia than Mr. George Edwardes has mustered in Lady Madcap, who, as impersonated by Miss Marie Studholme, is captivating Coronet habitués this week. The bright, lively music, pretty scenery, and clever if ingenuous plot, adorned with coruscations of wit, and magnificently mounted and costumed, will ensure a happy hearing and a hearty welcome wherever Lady Madcap ventures. Mr. Arthur Longley hits off the mannerisms of Mr. G. P. Huntley effectively, and as Trooper Smith is screamingly funny. Mr. E. Statham Staples is a miniature marvel of drollery as Corporal Ham, of the East Anglian Hussars; and Mr. Robert Hale enacts the part of Stoney Stratford with brisk incisiveness and point, and his dancing is admirable, and original as well. Miss Marie Studholme is a bewitching little madcap, and her vivacity and high spirits are quite infectious and stimulating to a degree. Her dancing is delightful, and she realises her part of Lady Betty to perfection. Miss Mabel Russell as Susan is a dainty little lady who is sure to make her mark in this kind of piece. She is very smart and chic in dress and deportment, and her acting and dancing are delightful in the extreme, being full of careless charm and abandon. Miss Vina Sevening looks pretty and graceful as Gwennie Holden, Lady Betty's friend, which is about all she is required to do. Miss Ethel Griffics is well in the picture as the flirty and fascinating Mrs. Layton, the colonel's wife. Mr. Ernest Mahar is excellent as the impulsive Comte de St. Hubert, and his rendering of French songs is most agreeable; whilst his Gallicising of such popular favourite ditties as "My Irish Molly O," "Bill Bailey," &c., constitutes one of the "hits" of the evening. Mr. Oliver J. Round is amusing as Posh Jenkins, Stoney Stratford's confederate; and the singing of Mr. J. Edward Fraser as Captain Harrington is admirable. Messrs. W. E. Richardson, B. H. Eustace, H. Parkes, and others do good service. Mr. Bert Barton stage-manages, assisted by Mr. P. Davidson; and the chorus includes an exceptionally smart set of girls and men. Mr. T. Sutton conducts the augmented orchestra; and Mr. Thos. J. Courtly acts as general-manager for Mr. George Edwardes.

PRINCE'S THEATRE, POPLAR.

On Monday, March 5, the Comedy, in Four Acts, by Brandon Thomas, entitled
"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

Mr. Brandon Thomas's ever-popular play is being given here this week, and Monday's audience must be counted one of the largest assembled in Mr. Soune's theatre since the opening night. Mr. Stanley Cooke as Lord Fancourt Babberly affords immense delight, not a dull moment intervening whilst he is on the stage, and he keeps his onlookers in a constant state of merriment. Mr. C. B. Keston is admirable as Sir Francis Chesney, and Mr. Walter Beaumont is a first-rate Stephen Spettigue. Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham are well looked after in the capable hands of Messrs. Hastings Lynn and Richard B. Mason. Mr. Sydney Compton is acceptable as Brassett, the college scout. The parts of Kitty and Amy are sustained in a bright and captivating manner by Miss Marian Ripley and Miss Dorothy Deacon respectively Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez has a graceful and polished exponent in Miss Ruth Suffield, who extracts the utmost from the character. Charley's Aunt is preceded each evening by a play in one act, entitled Fourchette and Co., in which Miss Ruth Suffield, Mr. C. B. Keston, Mr. Sydney Compton, and Mr. Ellis appear to advantage.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

On Monday, March 5, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled
"THE PRODIGAL SON."

Large crowds are frequenting the above popular South London house this week to see The Prodigal Son. The present company, which is under the supervision and direction of Mr. Arthur Collins, gives an excellent rendering of the picturesque and pathetic play, which so ably points the lesson that "men may rise on stepping-stones of their dead selves to higher things." The piece is beautifully mounted, and as far as possible all the original effects which were produced at Drury Lane have been retained. The audience were most enthusiastic throughout, there being a special call for the principal characters at the end of each act. Miss Lily Hall Caine makes a most favourable impression, first as the sweet girl wife Thora, and then as the light-hearted child Elise. Miss Caine's dual performance is of the greatest value to the success of the production. Mr. Henry Renouf gives a forcible and manly rendering of the true-hearted Magnus, and his brother Oscar is very cleverly played by Mr. Norman Partriege. The part is by no means an easy one to play, but in the last act Mr. Partriege made a great impression, and his scenes with his mother and his little daughter drew the tribute of tears from many eyes. Miss Alma Murray, who appears as Anna Magnusson, gives a sweet and pathetic performance, which recalls memories of many past noteworthy representations on the part of this accomplished actress. Mr. Howard Russell is another old favourite, and he appears to much advantage as Dr. Olssen. Miss Mima Renouf gives an amusing representation of the garrulous old aunt Margret Neilsen, and affords a welcome relief by her comedy to the more sombre portions of the play. Miss Cecil Cromwell makes a stately and handsome Helga Neilsen, earning the execration of the "gods" by the clever way in which she impersonates the evilly-disposed woman. Mr. Herbert Hewetson plays capitally the difficult part of the unscrupulous Neils Einsen, and Mr. Henry George is a dignified Governor-General of Iceland, his scene in which he first discovers the baseness of his younger son being especially well rendered. Mr. Fred Grove as the Pastor and Mr. Frank Collins as Oscar Neilsen are both excellent. Mr. Collins also undertakes with great ability the arduous duties of stage-management. Mr. Henry Temple acts as business-manager.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, March 5,
the Comic Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"PEGGY MACHREE."

Good houses have been the rule this week at the Royal County, where Mr. Charles E. Hamilton's company has been making very creditable appearances in that tuneful and amusing comic opera Peggy Machree, a form of stage play that always has a charm for residents in the riverside town. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon the artists taking part in it, or upon the manner in which it is staged. Premier honours are due to Miss Claudia Lasell, who plays the part of Lady Margaret O'Driscoll, and wins great favour both for her acting and her singing. Miss Blanche Astley also scores a success as Molly, a part that she invests with artistic attractiveness. Mr. Leslie Stiles is a great favourite in the part of Barry Trevor; and Mr. Dan FitzGerald succeeds in keeping the house well amused as the mirth-provoking Michael; Mr. Melroy Cooper also makes a very creditable appearance as the Scotchman; and Mr. John Marley is a very good Sergeant Brampton. Others who deserve particular mention are Miss Doris Kelvey, as Madame de la Cour; Miss Dorothy Garden, as the Hon. Emily Pryor; Miss Madge Avery as Moira Cafferty; Miss Marion Cecil as Alino; Mr. Ralph Lynn as Sir Lawrence Borthwick; Mr. Marc Macdermott as Captain de la Cour; and Mr. J. Herbert Willis as Lawyer Keene. It may be added that the chorus and an augmented orchestra are ably controlled by Mr. K. Ernest Irving.

CARLTON THEATRE, GREENWICH.

Monday, March 5, the Drama in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, entitled
"I DEFY THE WORLD."

Mr. Julian Malvern is appearing here this week with his clever company, which includes that admirable artist Mr. Lewis Gilbert, who repeats his powerful and highly interesting performance of Leon Darville. I Defy the World without Lewis Gilbert would be like Hamlet without Hamlet. Mr. Gilbert is excellently supported by Mr. Charles M. Julian, who is very funny as Samuel Wozzle, and must be warmly congratulated on his excellent performance. Mr. Horace Booth is a finished and clever representative of the Count de Beaulieu, Mr. Dunlop Stewart is excellent as Najac, Mr. Creagh Hunt is a manly and earnest exponent of the character of Andre, and the other male parts are all well looked after by their respective representatives. Miss Trixie St. Albans is an attractive Pauline Delaporte, Miss Maud Lilian is a bright and clever Marie Wozzle, Miss B. Coats makes little Fanchette a very interesting and lovable little person, and Miss Maud Malvern brings her skill and ripe experience to bear with excellent effect on the part of Blanche Darville (Leon's faithless wife).

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, March 5,
Loder's Opera, in Three Acts, entitled
"THE NIGHT DANCERS."

A performance of The Night Dancers was given by Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company at the Standard last Monday. This opera is a new one in Mr. Turner's répertoire, and should prove a decided attraction wherever performed. It contains all the elements of comic opera mingled with dramatic incidents of a powerful nature; it is also in parts pertaining to the original and mysterious, and was received on Monday with great enthusiasm by a large and delighted audience. Music of a high grade of excellence characterises the opera, and, with the careful handling it received, proved a source of delight to all. Mr. J. W. Turner, although suffering from the effects of a severe cold, skilfully portrayed the part of Albert, acting and singing in a manner worthy of warm praise. Mr. Sidney Clifford gave an able representation of the Duke of Silesia, and acquitted himself with great credit. Mr. John Ridding made a droll Fridohn; Mr. George Ridling did all that was required of him as Godfrey; whilst Mr. Sidney Appleby made a satisfactory Max. Miss Marie Burnett supplied a charming impersonation of Bertha, and sang well; and Miss Jessie Dennis played with decided ability as Mary. The Giselle of Miss Alice Boaden showed careful study. Her music was tastefully rendered, and her whole performance proved a decided success. The chorus and orchestra did remarkably well under the bâton of Mr. T. Lawton; and the special scenery and effects employed in this opera were all excellent examples of their kind. Other operas for the week are Martha, Carmen, Faust, Daughter of the Regiment, Lily of Killarney, The Waterman, and The Bohemian Girl.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, March 5, the Musical Comedy, by Owen Hall and Liza Lehmann, entitled
"SERGEANT BRUE."

Mr. Frank Curzon's principal company is playing at the Fulham Theatre in the Strand success, Sergeant Brue. There are some exceedingly capable artists in this company, and the piece is handsomely mounted. The bulk of the work falls to the impersonator of the title-rôle, Mr. Percy Clifton, who is a capital representative of the worthy Sergeant. He worked with untiring energy, while his dancing was excellent and his acting really admirable. Mr. George Barrett, also, as Crookie Scrubbs, was another great success. In make-up, in voice, manner, and expression, he was a perfect type of the incorrigible rogue, and whether he was prominently at the front of the stage, or modestly in the background, he was all the time worth watching, for, with his rich sense of humour and his inexhaustible supply of byplay, he was always doing something to move laughter. As Michael Brue Mr. Charles Hanbury had to be simply natural as a contrast to the eccentricities of his parent, and he gave a pleasant rendering of the part, with one or two excellent songs. Mr. A. E. E. Edwards was the magistrate, Mr. Crank, and acquitted himself well, notably in the police-court scene, where he was particularly amusing; whilst Mr. Harold Montague was impressively peremptory as Inspector Gorringe. Mr. Harry Soutar, who was responsible for the stage-management, did well all that was needful as the solicitor, Habisham. Miss Violet Dene had much to do as Lady Bickenhall, the philanthropic lady who is the object of the sergeant's adoration. She was graceful and natural throughout; but perhaps her best bit of acting was that in the Court scene. Her songs went well, specially the one concerning "Instinct." The same may be said of Miss Constance Lait as Aurora Brue. She possesses a voice of unusual compass, which was heard to great advantage. Miss Constance Berkeley was a satisfactory representative of Brue's servant, Daisy. The chorus of gilded youths and society ladies rendered more than one song and dance in good style; and Miss Mabel Weir with Mr. Ivor Harvey took part in a graceful pas de deux. The augmented orchestra was ably conducted by Mr. Ernest Hurman.

"UNITED STATES."

A Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts,
by Charles Hannan,
Produced at the Opera House, Crouch End, on Monday Evening, March 5,

Sir Pinkerton Pinkerton ....MR. HARRY HILLER
Rolf Pinkerton .....MR. A. P. KAYE
Ruth Rutland .....MISS MINNIE GREY
Violet Rutland .....MISS GWEN BURNAY
Clementina Pinkerton .....MISS HELENA RIGBY
Jack Morrison .....MR. BERT MORLEY
Colonel Dama .....MR. F. THORPE-TRACEY
Sandy Macpherson .....MR. NORMAN CLARK
Janet Macpherson .....MISS LOTTIE MOSS
Waiter .....MR. ERIC VAYNE

Mr. Charles Hannan, who will be remembered as the author of A Cigarette-Maker's Romance, in his latest dramatic work has done at least one thing, and that is to give an actor of more than mere promise an opportunity of showing us how clever he really is in a part suited to him. The actor to whom we refer is Mr. F. Thorpe-Tracey, who appeared in the rôle of Colonel Dama, and also stage-managed the new production. To Mr. Thorpe-Tracey's exceedingly delightful performance we shall refer later.

Mr. Hannan calls his play a farcical comedy, and that description prepares us for the absence of anything very serious in the way of a plot. Sir Pinkerton Pinkerton, a cantankerous old baronet, has a son Rolf and is the guardian of two young ladies. Both his wards are very attractive in appearance, one possessing the advantage of a long banking account and the other being practically penniless. He wishes to marry his son to the heiress, Ruth Rutland, who is really in love with a young surveyor, Jack Morrison; while, as is usual in such cases, the baronet's son has lost his heart to the dowerless maiden, Violet Rutland. To chaperon these two young ladies, Sir Pinkerton has engaged a distant relative, Miss Clementina Pinkerton, a middle-aged spinster of somewhat skittish propensities. By a little diplomacy on the part of the younger members of his family, Sir Pinkerton is induced to set out for Scotland with his family circle. At Euston Station, a valetudinarian soldier, Colonel Dama, home on leave from India, intrudes into their carriage, which he immediately renders unendurable by the fumes of eucalyptus, and he has to be forcibly ejected. Owing to a too-pronounced flirtation between Rolf Pinkerton and Violet Rutland, the baronet interrupts the journey at Carlisle. This just suits the young people, because Jack Morrison is engaged surveying in the district, and is residing at the Macpherson Arms, an inn kept by Sandy Macpherson and his wife Janet. Rolf Pinkerton comes upon the scene and arranges with Morrison to bring the two girls and their chaperon on a picnic to the neighbourhood. They all arrive at the Macpherson Arms, and Colonel Dama, who has been smitten by the charms of Miss Clementina Pinkerton, unexpectedly turns up, having pursued them on a bicycle. He makes advances to the heart of Clementina, a citadel whose conquest he finds quite easy. To facilitate matters, a duplicate Gretna Green marriage is arranged between the two young couples, and Jack Morrison departs to make the necessary arrangements. The irate Sir Pinkerton, taking a lonely walk, arrives at the Macpherson Arms, and is led to suspect the presence of his delinquent relatives. Then complications arise. Rolf Pinkerton and the titular Aunt Clementina are forced to declare themselves man and wife in the presence of the proprietor of the inn and his wife, who at once point out that by Scots law this is a binding marriage. It is, of course, hardly worth quarrelling with the author over this legal anachronism.

The two later scenes are at the Golden Fleece Hotel, Carlisle. Here the mercenary landlord of the Macpherson Arms comes in just after a laughable scene between Rolf and his "aunt," or wife and submits to receive hush-money from Rolf as regards the marriage. A series of highly amusing incidents ensue, culminating in the discovery by the colonel that he has been forestalled in his matrimonial intentions towards the fair Clementina. His preparations for his immediate departure for Edinburgh, in company with his inseparable supply of eucalyptus and his disappointed hopes, occasions great merriment. Finally the discovery that the consanguinity of Rolf and his pseudo aunt Clementina was more real than they had believed, leads to the straightening out of matters generally and the pairing off of the various couples in the way most desired.

As we have already indicated, Mr. F. Thorpe-Tracey's portrayal of the part of Colonel Dama was a really excellent piece of comedy acting. The manner in which he sustained the vocal difficulties of a martyr to nasal catarrh was excruciatingly funny. In fact, he was the life of the piece. It is a kind of character which has often been seen on the stage, but rarely, we should imagine, has it been presented with such persistent fidelity. Mr. Harry Hiller was an exceedingly pronounced type of irascible and suspicion-haunted parent; if anything, on the night of the production, he was a little too forcible, though no doubt he has since remedied this slight defect. On the whole, the rôle was capitally acted, and the spirit of the part well realised throughout. Rolf Pinkerton had an excellent representative in Mr. A. P. Kaye, who gave us an admirable study of an impulsive but larkish youth. Mr. Bert Morley had a good part in Jack Morrison, and did it full justice. His smart appearance fittingly coincided with the requirements of the character, and he seemed to thoroughly appreciate the humour of the various embarrassing situations. Mr. Norman Clark was scarcely convincing as the Scots land lord. We have travelled in various parts of that whisky-consuming country, but have never encountered the peculiar dialect in which Mr. Clark gave utterance to the various expressions of sententious parsimony which is supposed to be characteristic of the aborigines of that hyperborean region. And, incidentally, we might point out to the author the absurdity of the Macpherson Arms being unprovided with the national beverage, as, according to its landlord, the sole liquid refreshment which it can furnish is the beer of the Southron. But, apart from Mr. Clark's dialectic deficiencies, he displayed in his handling of the part a considerable amount of pawky humour. Among the women, Miss Helena Rigby easily led with her entertaining interpretation of the rôle of the amatory spinster, Clementina Pinkerton, whose years had rendered her only too willing to surrender her state of single-blessedness. Miss Minnie Grey and Miss Gwen Burnay played in adequate fashion the parts of two charming young ladies; and Miss Lottie Moss and Mr. Eric Vayne, as Janet Macpherson and the waiter respectively, made excellent use of their limited opportunities.

Taking the piece altogether, there is in it the elements of a really laughable farce; but we think that Mr. Hannan will see the advisability of somewhat elucidating his plot and making a more connected story. There is plenty of fun, and the situations only require emphasising to produce a really admirable comedy.

United States was preceded by a curtain-raiser, entitled The Setting of the Sun, by the same author. The story of this playlet has been fully dealt with in these columns before, and it is sufficient to say that it concerns the transference of a young soldier's affections from an elder sister to a younger. It is a pathetic and well-conceived little drama. Mr. A. P. Kaye was blunt, manly, and straightforward as Harry Lane, and Mr. Bert Morley as the old clergyman acted with quiet reserve and culture. Pretty and affectionate as the younger sister was Miss Minnie Grey; while Miss Gwen Burnay acted with feeling and delicate pathos in the part of Janet Moorfield, who sees the dream of her life brought to naught by the unwitting influence of her own loved sister.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. FRED GROVE.

Mr. Fred Grove says:—"It is difficult to know where to begin with an account of my career. I started in the professional world in a dance between the pieces in a country theatre; I was a sort of demon, and the dance was of the wild, eccentric order, popularised by Stead, 'the Cure.' I afterwards did a little of what has since been called "legmania" business—that was in the days of burlesque—which I take the liberty of saying required quite as much playing as the musical comedy of to-day, for the rhymed couplets needed intelligent study to deliver properly. Perhaps the reason for the decline of that class of entertainment is that the burlesques wanted more application on the actor's part than the later dramatic developments. I have played in tragedy, farce, comedy, musical-comedy, and pantomime. I have been by turns tearful, dignified, elocutionary, malignant, mildly humorous, and broadly comic; pantomimic (comically and tragically).

"One grievance I have against managers is that they have no belief in an actor's versatility. If I first play a comic part with a manager, he will never after entrust me with a serious one. 'I can't see you in that part,' he says; 'the low-comedy part is in your line. I cannot imagine you in the serious one.' The next manager who uses me for a serious part says exactly the same thing of a comic one. Two or three parts seem to have more in my way than others; notably Sir Geoffrey Champneys and Middlewick in Our Boys (but no manager who employs me for one believes it possible that I can play the other), Jacky (Never Too Late to Mend), and Eccles (Caste)."

Mr. Grove has played at most of the London theatres—Drury Lane, His Majesty's, Haymarket, Criterion, Vaudeville, Strand, Globe, Opéra Comique, Wyndham's, the New, Duke of York's Court, Gaiety, Adelphi, Princess's, Royalty (especially in two unfortunate but clever plays, The Frog by Alec Nelson and The Court of Honour by Lart and Dickenson), the Great Queen-street (while it was the Novelty), Terry's, and the Lyceum. He has played with—amongst the giants of the past—Charles Mathews and Barry Sullivan; with those of the present—John Hare, Henry Neville, George Alexander, Cyril Maude, Hermann Vezin, Howard Russell, Mrs. John Wood to name no others.

Since Mr. Grove was last interviewed in The Era he has played the Marquis (Don Cæsar de Bazan), Jabez Thomas (Driven from Home), Old Toddenham (My Soldier Boy), Tony (Man in the Iron Mask), Ingot (David Garrick), Mes Bottes (Drink), Carbury (The Lady of Ostend), Gregory Goldfinch (A Pair of Spectacles), Sir Alexander Shendryn and Prince Perovski (Ours), Beau Farintosh (School), Admiral Flamank (A Golden Wedding), Sergeant Tanner (Adventures of Mrs. Brown), Ah Sen (a Chinaman in Stayton's clever Dispatch Bearer), Adam Pembleton (a fine farcical comedy part, and one after his own heart, in The Little Intruder), Bob Chaffers (with Arthur Roberts in H.M.S. Irresponsible), Etienne (The Girl from Maxim's), Concierge (Sapho, with Olga Nethersole), Inspector Messiter (Magistrate),

MR. FRED GROVE.

Professor Babbitt (A Night Off), Pontifex (Brixton Burglary), Justice Hare (East Lynne), Ebenezer Savage (A Woman Tamer), Selim Pettibone (A Kiss in the Dark), M. Cauchy (Marshal Ney), Johnstone S. Grain (En Voyage), Dr. Oliver (My Sweetheart), Sampson Brass (Little Nell), Fanfaronade and De Courgement (Belphegor) Potter (Still Waters), Otto (the German waiter) and McEldon (the Scottish engineer) (The Flood Tide), Kostoloff (Lower Depths), Mr. Jessup (Lady Fortune), a French footman and a workman (The Philanthropists), Dr. Beckle (All Fletcher's Fault), Harry Collier (he had often before played Tom Dibbles) (Good for Nothing), Pat Mahony (Victim of Villainy—a very good specimen of provincial melodrama), Terence Reilly (with John Hare in Little Mary, an engagement of which Mr. Grove was naturally very proud), Samuel (one of the old gardeners in that pretty piece that deserved a better fate, Prunella); he doubled a comic sailor and a serious soldier in a play that he believes will be heard of again—it was so good and novel—From the Unseen World, by Creagh Henry, and as his name appeared in the bill under two cognomens the critics failed to detect him, and he had pretty things said of him under both—by no means an unusual occurrence with him; the Rev. Samuel Smedge (Merely Mary Ann), this following as it did Little Mary, "his heart was true to Poll." By the way, it was his good fortune to be in The Prodigal Son at Drury Lane, in which the original singer of that celebrated song, Mrs. John Wood, appeared. This was his fourth engagement at old Drury, and in Mr. Hall Caine's drama he played "the stranded derelict," as Eric Arnusson, the old ruined gambler, was called. Reverting to the strict chronological order, Mr. Grove was Professor Fluence in Arthur Shirley's comical and successful sketch A Happy Medium, at the New Theatre. At a benefit performance at His Majesty's he played Robin with George Alexander in If I Were King; this, and a reading of Gratiano in Othello, closes the list of his new parts to the end of 1905.

Mr. Grove has now rejoined The Prodigal Son for its spring tour of the suburbs. He is playing his original part and doubling it with the Pastor. His last spring tour was also a parson (Smedge), and, oddly enough, also a part originally played by Mr. George Raiemond. This brings his list of parts up to a respectable total of over four hundred.

PRESENTATION.—There was a scene of much enthusiasm on the 2nd inst. at the St. James's Theatre, Manchester, when Mr. Michael Connelly, musical director for Mr. Eade Montefiore's Cinderella company, was presented by the ladies and gentlemen of the company with a handsome silk gold-mounted umbrella, a massive silver sovereign purse and match-box, and a handsome pipe in case. All assembled on the stage at the presentation, singing "For he's a jolly good fellow."

CHAT WITH MISS NORA HASTINGS.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The many admirers of Miss Nora Hastings, the talented reciter and teacher of elocution, would like to see her take to the stage in real earnest if she could only be persuaded to relinquish the work in which she is at present engaged. It is not too much to say that Miss Hastings has earned and won a considerable measure of success on the concert platform and at amateur performances. She has played with Miss Bella Pateman, Mr. Hermann Vezin, and Mr. James Fernandez, and among the different parts in which she has been seen, heard, and admired may be mentioned Lilian, in New Men and Old Acres; Lotty, in Two Roses; Juliet, in Romeo and Juliet; Pauline, in Lady of Lyons; Beatrice, in Saved; Mrs. Harcourt, in War to the Knife; Grace in The Chimney Corner; Constance, in Won at Last; Mrs. Beaumont, in Uncle; Alice Barlow, in Hundred Thousand Pounds; Nelly, in Our Nelly; Lady Isabel, in East Lynne; Helen, in The Hunchback; Kate Garstone in The Lancashire Lass; Violet, in Grimaldi, or the Life of an Actress; Esther, in Caste; Galatea, in Pygmalion and Galatea; Cordelia; and Lady Teazle.

MISS NORA HASTINGS.

For Miss Hastings' work in her various characterisations the critics have had nothing but praise. She has the power of impressing her audiences; there is fire, feeling, and colour in her acting of the more tragic rôles, and she possesses admirable emotional qualities. Then, again, her beautiful, well-modulated voice, admirable elocution, and facility of gesture impart distinctive character to her parts, whether they be grave or gay. She makes a charming Juliet, her study of the Veronese maiden having been strongly commended. Everyone who has seen her portrayal of the ragged and heart-broken Kate Garstone, in The Lancashire Lass, is delighted with her artistic restraint in the display of emotion.

Miss Hastings has been before the public now for three years, and she has in that short period earned no small fame as a reciter at high-class concerts. She is extremely earnest, painstaking, and with her natural talent and sympathetic yet resonant, voice, and remarkable gift for explaining herself by facial expression, she has won success upon the platform. Her pupils—as we have already said, she is a teacher of elocution—have, whenever they have appeared in public, been most favourably criticised. Miss Hastings has been a hard worker all her life, and whatever position she may have gained is the outcome of plucky, strenuous endeavour. She is one of the busiest of women, and it is not infrequent for her, after travelling all night from a provincial town, to give several lessons, and then appear in the evening before a London audience. What little relaxation she allows herself from her many engagements and extensive correspondence she takes upon the river, where she may occasionally be seen skilfully handling the sculls or manipulating a punt pole. She has more than once rendered valuable aid to people in difficulties on the water.

We hope it will not be long before Miss Hastings goes a step further in her professional work, and enters upon a career in the theatres.

PLAYERS IN THE PROVINCES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I read Mr. Charles Carte's letter in your last issue with great interest. No doubt it is possible that the Royal road to fame has been opened by Mr. Tree and his colleagues.

Why waste years and tears practising one's art in the school of experience—in quite unpleasant places sometimes—when all one need do to become a West End actor is to pay a small fee, and take a course of lessons at an "academy"?

I wonder how many able, experienced provincial leading men and women would be glad to play small parts or understudy their inferiors in talent for a chance of a "show" in the West End.

I wonder if any West End manager will ever be bold enough to engage a company of provincial actors of ability, and give them a chance in the West End. Would a company consisting exclusively of such actors bear comparison with one recruited from an Academy such as I have alluded to?—Yours faithfully,

ROBERT CASTLETON.

THE mistaken idea that a sharp cold in the head is a healthy thing, and prevents the appearance of other maladies, is to be rejected. A cold is itself a malady, like any other physical indisposition, and must be energetically combated. A neglected cold frequently leads to the severest complications, and for this reason every cold should be carefully treated from the first day of its appearance. The remedy to be used is Formawn, which at the last congress of German naturalists and medical men was laid before the assembled professors and men of science, and medically described as an absolutely ideal remedy for colds. Formawn is a condensed product of Formaldehyde and Menthol. The method of use is very simple. For slight colds Formawn Nose Wool suffices, which is sold at a moderate price in small boxes. In the case of severer colds Formawn-vapour (supplied in the shape of pastils) should be inhaled by means of the Formawn Inhaler. The peculiarity of the effect of Formawn is that the remedy produces an almost instantaneous relief in the head and in the nasal passages. The effects are quite startling.

MR. HERMAN MERIVALE, the novelist and playwright, who died at Chiswick on Jan. 14, has left estate of the gross value of £2,832 9s. 6d., of which the net personalty has been sworn at £2,690 14s. 10d.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MR. JOHN BURTON.

Mr. John Burton ventures ot think that his theatrical career is unique. His father and grandfather were both actors and managers. He first appeared when an infant in arms, as Cora's child in Pizzaro, and he has played every line of business, from super to star lead, and held every position "behind" from call-boy to producer. He has also occupied every post in "front" from programme boy to manager, and acted in every type of theatre, from a portable to a first-class West-End London house. He has run his own company and paid salaries out of his own savings. Moreover, Mr. Burton has maintained himself since the age of fifteen by his own exertions in the profession without any pecuniary assistance, and up to now has been fortunate enough to avoid any monetary indebtedness. When call-boy at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, he saw the great little Robson, Mme. Celeste, and Walter Montgomery. During that season The Colleen Bawn was produced, and ran for three months—not bad for a provincial theatre in the old "stock" days. Mme. Celeste tipped him half-a-sovereign, but Robson only gave him two shillings and sixpence.

In the provinces Mr. Burton was the original Geoffrey Wynyard (Dan'l Druce), Mr. Barnes (Barnes of New York), Haldane Gully (Flying from Justice), and, on tour, Gouroc in Paul Kauvar.

He was acting-manager at the Prince's Theatre, Manchester, for twelve months, during Mr. Courtneige's control of that house, and has stage-managed three pantomimes for the Milton-Rays. With the exception of a successful and profitable season at Bombay he has never been out of these islands, though he has had offers both for America and the Cape. As a youth he played small parts for one week with G. V. Brooke, shortly before that great tragedian was lost in the "London." He considers Mr. Phelps the best actor he has ever seen, and Mr. Chippendale the finest "old man" of his time.

Stock seasons at Newcastle under E. D. Davis, Sheffield with Mrs. Pitt, Nottingham with Mrs. Saville, Belfast under J. F. Warden, Bradford under Charles Rice, and Aberdeen under Wm. Gomersal permitted him to support such famous artists as Samuel Phelps, Charles Dillon, Barry Sullivan, Wm. Creswick, J. L. Toole, and Henry Irving. His principal touring engagements commenced with nearly three years with Pitt and Hamilton, whose répertoire ultimately exceeded forty pieces. He was about the same period of time with Miss Alleyne, two consecutive years under Edward Compton, and twelve months with the Caste company (T. W. Robertson, jun.). He had three engagements with the late Osmond Tearle, at least half-a-dozen tours with Paul Kauvar, and over two years with H. J. Montague's répertoire company, playing, amongst other parts, Iago, Cassius, and Richard III. with conspicuous success, and also appearing as Touchstone and Tony Lumpkin with some degree of credit.

While very proud of his classical work, he does not wish to be considered as a legitimate actor exclusively, because fully seventy-five per cent. of his professional labours have been in drama, comedy, and pantomime. His hobbies are dabbling in self-taught French and a little bicycle riding.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The chamber concert given at the Royal College on Friday evening, March 2, commenced with a careful, and in many respects able performance by Mr. Arthur Beckwith, Miss Vera Warwick-Evans, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans, of Mendelssohn's Quartet for Strings in E minor. Mr. Edgar Macgregor's skilfully executed piano solo "Winter," a descriptive composition by Clement Harris, greatly pleased the audience, and the violoncello solo, "Elegie," by G. Fauré, admirably played by Miss Marion Harrison, aroused so much enthusiasm that the extremely youthful artist was at the close recalled no fewer than five times. The instrumental portion of the programme concluded with Brahms' Trio for Piano and Strings in C major, the students taking part in this fine work being Mr. James Friskin, Mr. Herbert Kinze, and Mr. Charles Warwick-Evans, who displayed ability in their interpretation of the first and third movements especially. The songs given were H. R. Bishop's "Should he upbraid," neatly sung by Miss Frances Ireland; "Verrath," by Brahms, sung by Mr. Edward G. Mercer, who is the fortunate possessor of a really fine bass voice. Other songs given were "Morning Hymn" (Henschel) and "Chanson de Route" (Puget), rendered with good taste and expression by Miss Agnes Coates. The accompanists were Grace de Rozario.

BEWARE OF THE IMPOSTOR!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I trouble you to put a warning note in your paper? It has come to my notice that a young man is going round London, calling on theatrical and music hall artists, and stating that he is my son, and, on the strength of this, is borrowing (or attempting to borrow) money for his "fare home." I understand his usual tale is that he has just arrived from some foreign port, and is short of his fare to Bury. I have no son, neither have I any idea who this young man is who is using my name.—Yours faithfully,

OTTO C. CULLING.

Theatre Royal, Bury, March 5, '06.

MR. F. T. STUDD, the popular ventriloquist and mimic, will hold his annual Bohemian Concert on Monday next at the King's Hall, Holborn Restaurant, at 7.30, when the élite of the concert profession will appear.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

The play deals with the adventures of the eccentric Dr. Theophilus Cody Jones, Q.D., A double S., of Pentonvilly, who takes a voyage on the good ship Hesperus, and is wrecked at Kawfeeberry Bay. Capt. Keede, a pirate, arrives, with his men, with the avowed object of carrying off King Kawfee's daughter, the Princess O-So-Ni-Cee. The shipwrecked doctor meets the Princess's cousin Fattamosa, who straightway falls in love with him. Their amorous dalliance is interrupted by King Kawfee's crafty Lord Grand Factotum, Sing-i-Sing, who learns that the newcomer is a physician, and as such is a decided acquisition, as King Kawfee has for weeks suffered from the toothache, which he himself has failed to cure, thereby losing prestige. He has also long coveted the hand of the Princess O-So-Ni-Cee, and both he and the Pirate King determine to claim the Princess as a reward for the introduction of Jones to the King; but upon his arrival His Majesty confounds them by conferring the hand of the Princess on Jones. Sing-i-Sing, however, has in his possession a drug which gives all the appearance of death, and he administers it to the Princess. By the law of the land the Royal Dead must be burnt, but only at dawn, and until then must lie in the Royal Mausoleum. This is to be an opportunity for Keede to carry off the supposed corpse. He himself will then revive her, and they will sail away. By some mischance the plan miscarries, and Sing-i-Sing scuttles the pirate ship to prevent them leaving the island. There is therefore nothing left but to fight, and the Pirates achieve an easy victory. The King gives in, being assisted thereto by a witty and topsyturvy interpretation of the law, and all ends happily.

The music is pretty and melodious, and Mr. Leon Wood on the whole has achieved success. In Act II. there is a topical duet for the King and Jones which is bright and vigorous. The play was considerably handicapped, and suffered more or less at the hands of its interpreters, who evinced great nervousness. Owing to the indistinct manner in which the lines were delivered the dialogue, generally speaking, failed to grip the attention of the audience, especially in Act I. Mr. Percy Beresford did well as King Kawfee, and Mr. Arthur E. Behan, to whose indefatigable efforts what measure of success was attained is due, achieved distinction as Dr. Theophilus Cody Jones. Mr. Owen Ford was hardly an ideal Cing-i-Cing, neither did Mr. Harry Lawn convey a pirate's robustness as Hari Keede. Miss Cissie Behan as Flie-Su-Sa and Miss Kitty Behan as Daffodil scored immensely with their clever songs and dances, and were encored. Miss Dolly Ross was fairly successful as O-So-Ni-Cee, and Miss May Trueitt will be well suited as Fattamosa when her evident nervousness has worn off. Special scenery was painted by Mr. L. Hicks.

RESULTS OF THE AVENUE ACCIDENT.

In the Court of King's Bench, on Saturday, two actions for rent for the Avenue Theatre, which was demolished through the recent disaster at Charing Cross, were decided. In the first case, Mr. Lush, K.C., said that the plaintiffs, Emily Ann Scott and another, were the lessees of the freeholder, having a long term of eighty years from 1880, and the defendant, Mr. Lennox, was the admitted assignee of a lease which the plaintiffs granted to the Theatre Syndicate, Limited. As a matter of fact, there had been a sub-lease granted to Mr. Curzon, who had, in his turn, subleased to Mr. Maude. The rent was £2,000 a year, £750 being payable in advance quarterly. The covenant in the lease upon which he relied was "If and whenever the theatre premises shall be closed by order of any superior authority, or be destroyed by fire, or so damaged by fire that the same cannot continue to be used as a theatre, the said annual rent shall, as from the date of such closure or fire, be suspended, and cease to be payable until the theatre shall have been reopened and completely rebuilt." He submitted that a physical demolition, other than by fire, did not excuse the defendants from the payment of rent. It could not be said that the South-Eastern Railway was the superior authority. He submitted there was no defence.

Mr. Roskill said he relied upon another covenant in the lease, which said: "At all times during the said terms of existence do comply with all works and requirements, other than of a structural nature, which the London County Council or its successors may hereafter order, or by notice require the owner or lessee to execute or comply with, provided always that nothing herein contained shall be corstrued as to throw on the lessees or their assignees any obligation to comply with any order of the L.C.C. to make any structural alterations or additions, but in any such case the cost and expense of structural alterations shall be borne by the lessors." On Dec. 8, at the instance of the L.C.C., a magistrate made an order requiring certain walls to be taken down because the structure was in a dangerous condition. He submitted that his client was exonerated from complying with that order, and that the obligation of executing the work was upon the plaintiffs.

Mr. Justice Lawrance said the real question was whether this theatre was closed, as a matter of fact, by the order of some superior authority, or closed by the falling of the roof of the Charing Cross Station. Under all the circumstances, the conclusion he had come to was that judgment must be given for the plaintiffs. Judgment was then given for £750, with costs, but his lordship granted a stay on the usual conditions.

In the second action, Mr. Lennox sought to recover £1,210, rent due from Mr. Curzon. Mr. Gore Brown argued that it did not matter whether the theatre had been so injured as to make it improper to use it as a theatre; it was still a theatre, provided the outside walls remained. As to the roof of the theatre, they knew perfectly well that some of the finest theatres in the world never had roofs, such as theatres in Italy and Greece, and the Paris Hippodrome.

Mr. Justice Lawrance said there was no provision in the lease for the suspension of the rent except on the closing of the theatre by a superior authority or fire, and he therefore had no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that there must be judgment for the plaintiff for £1,210 and costs.

A stay of proceedings was also granted in this case on the usual conditions.

"THE ERA" can be obtained at the principal bookstalls throughout the provinces.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Charles Wyndham has selected Wednesday, the 21st inst., for his revival of The Candidate, in which the part of Lord Oldacre gives employment to his most artistic qualities. Miss Mary Moore, who has lately enjoyed only indifferent health, will not be included in the cast, neither will Miss Marion Terry, who goes to the Lyric to play in Mr. H. B. Irving's production of Jeunesse. The company which will present The Candidate at Wyndham's Theatre will, however, be a powerful one, including Mr. Dennis Eadie, Mr. Yorke Stephens, Mr. Henry Kemble, Mr. Edmund Maurice, Miss M. Talbot, and Miss Sybil Carlisle.

Miss Ellen Terry will shortly achieve her fiftieth year of professional work, and no more popular event could be conceived than the celebration of the jubilee of the famous actress. It was on April 28, 1856, at the age of eight years, that Miss Terry made her début, sustaining the part of Mamillius in A Winter's Tale, the play in which she is very appropriately to appear a few months later at His Majesty's. Apart from her undying work in association with the late Sir Henry Irving, Miss Terry more recently gave distinction to Mr. Tree's production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, and her acting in Alice Sit-by-the-Fire, which formed the success of the last spring season at the Duke of York's, furnished a remarkable instance of her perennial freshness and vitality. Everyone, it is assured, both in and out of the profession, will be anxious to combine in testimony of love and friendship towards so fine an ornament of the stage and so estimable a lady.

Miss Lena Ashwell has secured the Savoy Theatre in which to embark on her managerial enterprise in London. By arrangement with Mr. J. H. Leigh, she begins her season at Easter in a comedy entitled The Bond of Ninon, by Miss Clotilde Graves. The change from the emotional order of rôle in which Miss Ashwell has won fame to that of comedy is a marked one, but her artistic gifts and her rapid rise in the dramatic scale would prepare one for her success in any character, however divergent. The action of the piece takes place at Paris in the year 1662, when Louis XIV., who plays a prominent part in the story, had just attained his twenty-fourth year. The heroine is Ninon de L'Enclos, for whose hand there is a keen competition among the gallants of France, and the hero a young soldier of fortune who comes to Paris in order to establish his claim to title and property, which have been unjustly taken from him. Though essentially a comedy, Miss Graves's play is well supplied with a number of thrilling incidents.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree, finding that Nero is too heavy a production to take on tour without curtailing the scenery, has decided to present himself to his provincial admirers in a double bill, consisting of Business is Business and The Man Who Was. With two such characteristic creations of the popular actor's art country playgoers will have every reason to rest content.

The students of the Academy of Dramatic Art will give their annual performance at His Majesty's on Monday afternoon, April 2, when selections from Shakespeare's works, including As You Like It and The Merchant of Venice, will alternate with excerpts from modern comedies. There will also be an exhibition of stage dancing. On the following afternoon the wordless musical play, L'Enfant Prodigue, will be included in the programme.

Mr. John Hare has fixed on A Pair of Spectacles to succeed The Alabaster Staircase, the revival taking place at the Comedy Theatre on Wednesday. As Benjamin Goldfinch, Mr. Hare will be seen in one of his most approved impersonations, and Miss Kate Rorke and Mr. Charles Groves will appear in their original characters Mr. A. E. Matthews will also be included in the cast.

Mr. Lewis Waller entertained his first-nighters to tea on Saturday afternoon, the cheering beverage being served from four to half-past five to everybody in the foyer of the Imperial Theatre. Music also contributed towards whiling away the hours of waiting until Brigadier Gerard was ready. popular ballads and musical comedy selections being rendered on a powerful gramophone. Brigadier Gerard now playing much closer, Mr. Waller announces that from Monday next the curtain will rise at 8.30, instead of 8.15.

A portrait of the late Sir Henry Irving, from a Frenchman's point of view, is one of the most interesting pictures in the exhibition now being held by the International Society of Sculptors, Painters, and Gravers at the New Gallery, Regent-street. It is a small canvas, the work of Sebastian Lepage, and lent by Miss Ellen Terry. Sir Henry is seated, against a black background, and his expression is that of Irving as his intimate friends knew him—humorous, genial, keen, and lovable.

Mr. Martin Harvey makes his first bow to a Leicester audience on Monday as Sidney Carton, in The Only Way, which play will be repeated on Tuesday and Wednesday, The Breed of the Treshams doing service on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, with a single performance of A Cigarette-makers's Romance on Saturday afternoon. The advance booking at the Opera House, which will be the scene of Mr. Harvey's artistic operations, has been among the biggest ever known. On Tuesday week Mr. Harvey will present Hamlet for the first time during the present tour, at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham. Mr. Norman O'Neill, whose incidental music to the tragedy won so much favour, has written a further "entr'acte," which will be heard at Birmingham for the first time.

Mr. E. S. Willard, whose tour in America is having the most gratifying results, was captured recently by a Baltimore interviewer, who put the hoary question, "How do American audiences compare with those of your own country?" "Generally speaking," replied the eminent actor, "it is much more satisfactory to play to American audiences. They are, for one thing, much more responsive, and that is a very great consideration, for it is impossible to get the best results from the stage unless the audience does its share towards the encouragement and animation of the actors. People who go to the theatre to be entertained should be willing and ready to contribute their part of the entertainment, for a lifeless or placid audience will get a colourless, perfunctory performance. Sympathetic cordiality and tributory enthusiasm on the part of an audience have a wonderfully stimulating effect on the actor, and that is the inspiration of success.

"With Americans," continued Mr. Willard, "the theatre is a feature of their intellectual and social life, and as a rule they go to the theatre with a definite interest in the entertainment. I am speaking of the better educated classes. I doubt if there is much difference between one country and another in what you may term the mass of theatre-goers. But even there," he added, with a twinkling eye, "I ought to admit a distinction in favour of American audiences. Cheap seats do not seem to breed impoliteness among theatre patrons in this country. America has no such institutions as a 'booing' gallery, or a jeering pit. One part of a house is as decorous as any other here, and those who do not care for a performance quietly quit the theatre, or, if they remain, do so without making any demonstration to mar the possible enjoyment of others."

Mr. Cyril Maude will play Pangloss in The Heir-at-Law at the Waldorf, where the revival will take place for a series of matinées on Tuesday, the 20th inst. The cast will also include Mr. E. W. Garden, Mr. G. M. Graham, Mr. Charles Maude, Mr. Percival Stevens, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mr. E. C. Matthews, Mr. Ralph McKie, Mr. William Calvert, Miss Mary Brough, Miss Janet Alexander, and Miss Madge Crichton.

Miss Florence Lloyd, the leading lady of the Strand Comedy Company, touring in Australia, was profoundly anxious to descend the mine of the Waihi Company, but there was a rule that ladies were not to be admitted to the underground workings of the mine, the reason being that one or two female visitors had fainted in the cage. Miss Lloyd thereupon secured at the mine office a disguise consisting of a "dungaree suit" and slouch felt hat, and, thus attired, joined the rest of the party, consisting of Messrs. H. J. Wilde, A. Mallalieu, and W. Craufurd-Brown, and proceeded to No. 1 shaft, where in due time the cage with its living freight went down to the depths below, descending to No. 8 level, the lowest in the mine.

After traversing the foot-wall of the great Martha reef the visitors came back to the cage, and ascended to No. 7 level, where they were met by a shift boss, who, after a quick glance or two at Miss Lloyd, remarked sharply to the leader of the party, "That's a woman. Women are not allowed down here, you know." "Can't you see," the leader replied, "that she's a man?" However, there was no time to argue, and in due course the party ascended again to the surface and daylight, and the "man" of the party revisited the room at the office, and from there Miss Lloyd emerged in all the glory of feminine attire.

Miss Olga Nethersole produced The Labyrinth, an adaptation by W. L. Courtney of Paul Hervieu's Le Dedale, at the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee, on Feb. 12, and created a great impression in the rôle of the heroine. The play, which is a protest against divorce, was received with general acclamation, even a German newspaper devoting a column to the discussion of the piece and the acting. The company, which is made up principally of English artists, also includes Mr. Hamilton Revelle, Mr. William Farren, jun., Miss Louise Moodie, Mr. Hubert Carter, Mr. Charles Quartermaine, Miss Rosalind Ivan, and Miss Cicely Richards.

New arrangements have been made with regard to Mr. J. M. Barrie's latest play, by which it will not now be produced at the Haymarket. Mr. Frederick Harrison has waived his right to the piece, which will be given by Mr. Charles Frohman in due course at the Comedy. The piece appointed to follow The Indecision of Mr. Kingsbury at the Haymarket is The Man from Blankney's, in which Mr. Charles Hawtrey will revive one of his most famous impersonations. Mr. Weedon Grossmith will be seen as Mr. Tidmarsh.

Mr. H. A. Jones's daughter Gertrude is to be married on Monday to Mr. Irving Albery, son of the late Mr. James Albery and Mrs. Albery, the charming actress so well esteemed under her professional name of Miss Mary Moore. The marriage will take place at St. George's, Hanover-square.

Mr. Otho Stuart's production of Measure for Measure is in an advanced stage of preparation at the Adelphi, where it is to be presented on the 20th inst. Mr. Stuart and Mr. Oscar Asche, to whom will naturaly fall the part of Angelo, are giving their own conception of the play, which will be presented in three acts, and are relying on no tradition whatever for their purpose. Mr. Asche's admiration of the comedy increases with every rehearsal. "There are scenes in Measure for Measure," he says, "that, in my eyes, are among the finest, the most dramatic, the most subtle, the most splendidly eloquent, that Shakespeare ever wrote. I mean, of course, those between Isabella, the nun, and Angelo, and between Isabella and her brother Claudio. Then comes the magnificent conflict in the prison scene between Isabella's purity and Claudio's love of life—ending with just the Duke's suggestion of the device that shall solve the whole distressful problem. Lastly, in the third act, we shall have all the Mariana part of the play—the plot within the plot—practically begun and ended."

Mr. William Pringle has added 30s., obtained by means of his autograph, to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. The contents of the Fund's collecting-box at the Grand Theatre, Southampton, have reached £5, and Mr. Sydney Paxton has forwarded that amount to the secretary. Miss Gaynor Rowlands has also sent 9s. 6d., which she has received in exchange for her autographs, and devoted to the Fund.

The Students' Representative Council of the University of Sheffield gave a reception in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manners, in the Firth Hall of the University buildings, on Tuesday afternoon, the 27th ult. There were about 600 people present, including Mr. and Mrs. Manners, Dr. Coward, Mr. T. Walter Hall (chairman of the University Opera Week Committee), Miss Lily Moody, Madame De Vere, Mr. F. G. Belton, Miss Belton, and many others. Afternoon tea having been served, a move was made to the platform, where Mr. F. G. Belton presided, and Miss Foster presented Madame Fanny Moody with a beautiful bouquet. After some speech making, during which the students cheered themselves hoarse, the guests inspected the buildings, which were much appreciated. An interesting item of the programme was the singing by all the students of their University song, "Floreamus," which was conducted by Dr. Coward, the following special verse being interpolated for the occasion—

And then to the student how blessed is the hour
When his ear is enchanted by music's sweet power,
When Moody and Manners their gifts on us rain,
We'll make the walls echo again and again.

Three more cheers were raised by the students before they sang the Latin chorus to their song, in which Mrs. Manners joined as enthusiastically as the students.

Another "Little Stranger" has arrived. At Marlborough-street Police Court on Tuesday morning a license was granted to the manager of the Criterion Theatre to allow a child to understudy the part so successfully enacted by Master Edward Garratt in The Little Stranger.

Mr. Harry Brayne concludes on Saturday next a successful pantomime engagement, playing Mrs. Twankey in Aladdin at the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, and goes to Bury on the Sunday to resume on the following evening his old part of Jim Williams in Messrs. Polini and Maitland's The Coal King company, at the Theatre Royal there.

The clash of first nights which threatened to occur this evening has been avoided by Mr. James Welch, with becoming consideration, consenting to postpone his re-opening of Terry's Theatre with A Judge's Memory until next Tuesday. Miss Millward's production of The School for Husbands at the Scala Theatre to-night remains good. A further postponement is that of The Fascinating Mr. Vanderveldt, which Mr. Bourchier, on account of the enduring attractiveness of Brother Officers, has put off to Thursday, April 26.

Mr. Fred W. Purcell being about to relinquish the management of the Marlborough Theatre, which was erected and opened by him in the autumn of 1903, a committee of local gentlemen representing a majority of North London playgoers, has been formed to organise the presentation of a complimentary souvenir to Mr. Purcell at a special matinée to be given at the Marlborough Theatre on March 19. A programme of remarkable strength will be presented, among the distinguished members of the profession and eminent artists who have kindly promised to appear being Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore, Miss Marion Terry and full company from Wyndham's Theatre in one act of Captain Drew on Leave, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. H. B. Irving, Miss Ada Reeve, Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Eugene Stratton, Miss Marie Dainton, Miss Carrie Moore, Miss Stella Gastelle, Mr. Neil Kenyon, Miss May Henderson, Mr. Johnny Schofield, Lieut. Walter Cole, Mr. Geo. Mozart, Mr. Geo. Brooks, &c. Selections will also be given from the popular musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl.

At the conclusion of the performance on Monday night, Mr. Purcell was the recipient of a testimonial, subscribed for by the staff of the theatre and a few friends and patrons in honour of his birthday. Mr. Charles Melvin, the acting-manager, in a few well-chosen words, made the presentation on behalf of the subscribers, and Mr. Purcell suitably responded.

Mr. F. R. Benson's present tour has, so far, exceeded all previous seasons, and during his fortnight at Nottingham, concluded last Saturday, he played every night to the capacity of the Grand Theatre. The business of his other companies has also been in excess of previous touring experience, which goes to prove that Shakespeare at popular prices spells success. Mr. Benson, in view of the big demands for dates made upon him, has decided to send out an additional Shakespearean company in the autumn.

"Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush" was a great success at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, last week. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland (Lord Aberdeen) and Lady Aberdeen had a command performance given last Saturday night and a large and brilliant audience attended. In all the many years that Lord and Lady Aberdeen have spent in Ireland this is the first time they have visited the Theatre, and Messrs. Durward Lely and William Mollison esteem it a great honour that their play should have been chosen for this signal favour.

The Apollo Theatre was turned to the purposes of charity on Tuesday, when a matinée, consisting of miscellaneous items, was given in aid of the German Hospital. Mr. Lionel Brough was a tower of strength to the programme, causing roar upon roar of laughter by his funny stories. Mr. Arthur Prince's fine ventriloquial entertainment was thoroughly appreciated, and Miss Mabel Love's dancing and Miss Olive Morrell's song of "Gently," from the Gaiety Spring Chicken, caused enthusiastic applause. Mr. Morris Harvey did excellent imitations of popular actors, Datas revealed his powers of memory to the wondering admiration of all, the Follies met with their usual success, and among others who swelled the long and interesting programme were Madame Blanche Marchesi (who was accorded a rapturous hearing for her three songs), Miss Alice Liebmann (who executed a violin solo by Sarasate), and Master Max Darewski, the ten-year-old virtuoso, who played the piano and conducted a composition of his own.

Mr. J. D. Newton has been re-engaged by Mr. Ernest Carpenter to stage-manage Cinderella at the Grand Theatre, Brighton, for the pantomime season in 1906-7. Miss Kitty Clinton has been engaged to play Dandini for the same production.

"Break of Day," the drama by William Bailey, Jun., will be revived at the West London on March 19. Mr. J. F. Brandon has been specially engaged as producer.

Miss Barbara Deane, a sweet-voiced young singer, who made a great success both in The Catch of the Season and the revived Blue-bell at the Aldwych Theatre, is a protégée of Miss Ellaline Terriss, who, having discovered her fine voice, had it carefully cultivated, her present tutor being the well-known composer "Guy d'Hardelot." In The Beauty of Bath, Mr. Seymour Hicks' forthcoming production at the Aldwych, Miss Deane, who is cast for Dorothy Quorn, will have far greater opportunities dramatically, and has been entrusted with several members, particularly a charming vocal waltz in the second act, which Mr. H. E. Haines has specially composed for her.

The 150th performance of Captain Drew on Leave will be celebrated at Wyndham's Theatre on Tuesday evening, but the run of this play must terminate on Saturday in order that Sir Charles Wyndham may keep his promise to revive The Candidate, which will be produced on Tuesday, March 20.

"Captain Brassbound's Conversion," Bernard Shaw's three-act play, will be produced at the Court Theatre for a series of matinées on the afternoon of March 20. Miss Ellen Terry will enact the only female character in the cast, the rest of the parts being sustained by Messrs. J. H. Barnes, F. Cremlin, Frederick Kerr, Edmund Gwenn, C. L. Delph, Edmund Gurney, Michael Sherbrooke, Lewis Casson, Trevor Lowe, Norman Page, Jules Shaw, James Carew, and F. Lloyd. For their series of matinées after Easter Messrs. Verenne and Barker will revive Prunella, or Love in a Dutch Garden.

Mr. T. Edward Ward has just arranged with Mr. Walter Howard to write him a new play, which is to be ready about Easter, 1907, and will be produced between then and August Bank Holiday. No expense will be spared on the production.

A dramatic episode, entitled Ashes, from the joint pens of John T. Stansfield and M. E. Ward, was produced last (Friday) night at the Theatre Royal, Coatbridge on the occasion of Miss Ward's complimentary benefit.

In front of Ibsen's Ghosts, which will be performed next Sunday evening by the English Drama Society at the King's Hall, Covent Garden, there will be presented a morality play entitled The Vision, written by the Hon. Eleanor Norton, the music being by Mr. Reginald Clarke. As a great-granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Miss Norton has not only inherited dramatic tastes, but her vers de société are well known in literary circles. A special feature of the performance of The Vision will be a Pagan dance executed by Miss Mabilia Dainell. What, we may ask, has become of the Peter the Great play originally announced to precede Ghosts?

Mr. James Hare, who is now enjoying a well-earned holiday at Southport, intends reviving Cyril Austin Lee's Pavilion success, A Woman's Redemption, this summer, the tour starting Whit-week at the Grand Theatre, Llandudno. From August Bank Holiday Mr. Hare will tour a new Russian drama entitled A Destroyer of Men. The success of the production last September at a suburban theatre was most gratifying, and there is no doubt a long and successful career is before the play in the provinces.

A new drama entitled Conscience and Crime, written by Alfred Stafford, will be produced at the Queen's Theatre, Fleetwood, on Monday. The piece, which is in four acts, will be presented by Messrs. Murray and Stafford's company.

Mr. Charles Frohman's Leah Kleschna company caused a flutter of excitement on Tuesday evening at the Opera House, Southport, where they are fulfilling a week's engagement. A lovely album of photographs of the players and scenes was presented to every member of the audience, and at the termination of the fourth act they found an agreeable outlet for their enthusiasm by waving aloft these souvenirs, creating a very pretty and novel effect.

The Moody-Manners' Academy of Music pupils, at present on tour, gave a reading of Twelfth Night in the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, on Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Edinburgh Branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society and the chairmanship of Dr. Marshall, vice-president. Through the kindness of Mr. Manners, the recital givers had the assistance of several members of the company presenting grand opera at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, this week, notably Madame Clementine De Vere, who sang "Come away Death," specially composed for the occasion by Mr. Cuthbert Hawley, who himself accompanied Madame de Vere, and the vocalist sang with such taste and expression that it had to be repeated. "O Mistress Mine," contributed by Joseph O'Mara, was similarly honoured. Of the Academy pupils, Miss Hilda Grundy acquitted herself creditably as Viola. In the absence of Mr. Charles Magrath, Mr. W. M. Chapman Huxton undertook the double rôle of Orsino and Malvolio every effectively.

Mr Charles Carey is scoring success everywhere with After the Ball, a musical comedy full of fun and melody. The excellent cast includes Victor Widdicombe, and Walter Ringham has also been specially engaged. Among the ladies, Miss Nellie Groves and Miss May Florance are meeting with big receptions, and Miss Nellie James gains great popularity with her dancing. As stage-manager, Mr. Carey is fortunate in having secured Mr. Buckstone Clair. A duplicate company will go out at Easter, and ere long a production in the West End may be looked for

Mr. Henry Doughty is sending on tour in the autumn the powerful drama, in five acts, entitled Geoffrey Stirling, which now bears the sub-title of Banker and Thief. The play had an enthusiastic reception when it was tentatively produced last summer at the Grand, Fulham.

"Mr. Popple," the merry career of which will be cut short at the Apollo on Saturday next, will continue blithely on its way on the following Monday at the Shaftesbury, to which theatre the production will be transferred in its entirety. A new song, entitled "The first post in the morning," sung by Miss Violet Lloyd, is now added to the attractions of the piece.

Mr. Stuart Alexander, the handsome jeune premier who plays the title-rôle in Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company with so much distinction and vocal charm, started his career under the auspices of the late Mr. Wilson Barrett exactly seven years ago, since which he has played the principal tenor parts in Les Cloches de Corneville, Madame Angot, Lady Molly, La Mascotte, and innumerable other light operas, besides doing some excellent work on the concert platform. Mr. Alexander, who is a 'Varsity man, and was originally intended for the medical profession, has achieved much fame in the world of chess.

"Cinderella," the pantomime at Drury-lane, has been an enormous success this year, and there is every indication that the second edition, with new songs, new dances, and new dresses, would have run over Easter. Unfortunately nearly all the principals have long-standing engagements elsewhere, and Mr. Collins is therefore reluctantly compelled to announce the last weeks of what has been correctly described as the success of the season.

Mr. Geo. Dance has engaged Mr. Ivan Berlyn for his old part of Loustot in Veronique, and the versatile actor will appear next week at the Crown Theatre, Peckham. Mr. Ardene Linden has been re-engaged by Mr. H. V. Neilson for his productions of Measure for Measure and An Enemy of the People at the Gaiety Theatre, Manchester.

"The Song of Liberty," the three-act romantic drama by Mary C. Rowsell and H. A. Saintsbury, will shortly be produced, in its translated form, at the Folk Theatre, Gothenberg, the management of that theatre having secured the rights of the play for Sweden. The scene is laid at Strasbourg during the height of the Terror.

Mr. Fred Locke, who was being treated medically for rheumatic gout, caught a severe chill about seven weeks ago, which completely invalided him, but he is now happily in harness again, and putting the finishing touches to a new farcical comedy (with music) shortly to see the light.

Rehearsals of The Belle of Mayfair, as the new musical play by Messrs. Basil Hood, Charles Brookfield, and Leslie Stuart, shortly to be presented at the Vaudeville, is tentatively called, are in progress, and Miss Edna May, who is expected in London on Monday, will at once take up her part. Other rôles in the new play will be taken by Misses Louie Pounds, Maude Boyd, Ruby Ray, Camille Clifford, Lillian Digges, and Messrs. Courtice Pounds, Arthur Williams, Farren Soutar, Charles Angelo, Charles Troode, Mervyn Dene, Walter Russell, William Gregory, and T. C. Shale.

Mr. Norman V. Norman and Miss Beatrice Wilson are playing at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, this week, and are arousing wonderful enthusiasm. Mr. Norman received no less than five calls on Thursday night, after the drunken scene in David Garrick. This was the 1200th performance Mr. Norman has given of the part.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Permain (Miss Florence Le Clercq) who leave to-day by the s.s. German with Mr. Frank Wheeler's comedy company, are paying their third visit to South Africa under the same management. They have recently returned from a lengthy tour in Australasia, visiting Queensland, the Western Goldfields, New Zealand, and Tasmania. Miss Le Clercq has also visited America four times, and Mr. Permain was there with Mr. Arthur Bourchier some years ago. They hope to tour in South America before returning to England.

The "Electra" of Euripides, translated by Gilbert Murray, will be produced at the Court Theatre on Monday evening, with Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison in the title-rôle. Other parts will be taken by Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Stratton Rodney, Mr. J. H. Barnes, Mr. Hubert Harben, Mr. Frederick Lloyd, Mr. Lewis Casson, Miss Edyth Olive, and Miss Gertrude Scott.

Mr. Sandon Perkins, the late acting-manager of Her Majesty's Theatre, Dundee, was the recipient of a testimonial on the 24th ult., when the senior magistrate of the city and many other gentlemen assembled to do him honour. Letters were read from Mr. Edward Compton and the Rev. H. M. Davidson, both enclosing cheques towards the gift of Mr. Perkins. Mr. Councillor High then presented Mr. Perkins with a purse of sovereigns and a gold pendant, suitably inscribed, which had been subscribed for by a few of Mr. Perkins' friends. The recipient cordially thanked all present, and all his good friends in Dundee for their great kindness. Mr. Perkins had previously received a very handsome dressing-case from the theatre staff, both before and behind the curtain.

"Measure for Measure," which will be presented by Mr. Otho Stuart at the Adelphi on Tuesday, March 20, will be acted by Messrs. Walter Hampden, Oscar Asche, Alfred Brydone, Harcourt Williams, R. Ian Penny, H. Haviland, W. Hewitt, H. R. Hignett, M. Wilson, G. Kay Souper, J. R. Gillespie, Henry Kitts, Edmund Waller, Charles Rock, Caleb Porter, Herbert Grimwood, and Thomas Sampson, and Miss Lily Brayton, Miss Frances Lillon, Miss Kathleen Maude, and Miss Blanche Catterson.

At the Grand Theatre, Stalybridge, on Monday, Mr. John Walters, whose panto. company is appearing there, took the opportunity of introducing Mr. Frank Mundill, who had that day taken over the lesseeship of the theatre to the audience. Mr. Walters was a former lessee of the theatre, and said that he had the pleasure of laying the first brick of the foundation, and also the last tile in the roof, and it was a coincidence that on the first night of the performance by his company he should introduce his old friend, Mr. Mundill, who came from the Queen's Theatre, Liverpool. He hoped that the new management would enjoy the same courtesy and patronage that was years ago extended to himself. Mr. Mundill also addressed the audience, and said that he had taken the theatre under a ten years' lease, and as he intended to devote the whole of his time to its management, the public might be assured that improvements would not only be effected, but that companies of the highest class would be engaged.

The Rev. Forbes Phillips addressing the audience before the performance of his adaptation of When it was Dark at the Theatre Royal, Hull, on Monday evening. He is well known in Hull, and he felt tempted, he said, in a city associated with some very pleasant recollections of his early youth, to touch upon theological questions, and to clear away some of the misapprehension which prevailed in regard to himself. He was one of those people who took a keen interest in what was called the union of the Church and the Stage. He did not speak of the union as he would of marriage, or of the way in which, when hydrogen and oxygen united, the result was water. He believed that there should be a better understanding between the Church and the Stage. At the present time piety looked at comedy and saw an enemy, and comedy looked at piety and saw no friend, and yet if they would only look beneath the surface they must admit that laughter lay at the heart of things just as much as did tears.

In speaking of the union of the Church and the Stage he was willing to admit that there was a great deal of stand-offishness on the part of the Church, and, he thought, on the part of the Stage too. They had been studying each other's faults a great number of years, and it was now time they came together and tried to extend each other's virtues. He was one of those people who would frankly admit that he believed God meant everyone to be happy. God never meant life to be one dull monotonous round of work or of pleasure. They must realise that the two great popular educators of the people were the Pulpit and the Stage, and he thought frequently the Church got credit that might be given to the theatre. When working in the slums he often thought that the acts of heroism, good-heartedness, and charity had been picked up in the theatre At the end of the play Mr. Phillips was recalled, and, in reply to the applause, said "Thank you; I feel you have all been very kind."

The first anniversary of Mr. George Musgrove's Prince of Pilsen company at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday, marked a red-letter night in the annals of Mr. Mulholland's handsome theatre. Society, art, literature, and the drama were well represented, and gazing round upon the brilliant audience, the casual spectator might have imagined himself assisting at some West-End première. The principal members of the company were accorded hearty receptions, encores were the order of the evening, and the enthusiasm of the vast audience, which started with the opening number and culminated in a frantic demonstration of cheers and calls at the finish, was only appeased by the curtain being raised again and again disclosing the entire strength of the company.

The first meeting of creditors was held on Thursday in the case of E. G. Saunders, theatrical agent, described as of Garrick-street, W.C. In reply to the chairman, the debtor stated that his liabilities amounted to about £13,000, and he had no assets, with the exception of a number of shares in the Waldorf Theatre Syndicate, Ltd., which were held by trustees for the benefit of creditors. He hoped to lay a scheme before the creditors. A creditor remarked that, inasmuch as the debtor executed some months ago a deed of assignment, the creditors would receive no benefit from the Waldorf Syndicate shares. The chairman reported that the debtor had acted as a director of the syndicate, to which he sold his interest in a building agreement for £19,993, payable in fully-paid shares The meeting, in the absence of a representative body of creditors, was adjourned until the 19th inst.

The juveniles who play in the pantomime at Drury-lane had their turn on Thursday afternoon, when a "strictly children's pantomime," entitled A-Lad-In and Well Out of It," was produced in the Ballet-room of the national theatre. All the characters were played by the children of the company nightly appearing in the pantomime of Cinderella, and great results were achieved and reputations made. The sand dance, given by Master Jack Frost, the callboy in the theatre, who played Widow Twankey, was a masterpiece in its way. Master Teddy Gordon was the Slave of the Lamp, and all the other parts were performed by little girls, one of whom, Miss Winnie Clark, arranged all the dances.

Royal Academy of Music competitions have resulted as follows: The Macfarren Scholarship for composition has been awarded to Montague F. Phillips, a native of London. The adjudicators were Messrs. F. Corder, F. W. Davenport, and Sir Alexander Mackenzie. The R.A.M. Club Prize, for composition, was taken by Eleanor C. Ruddall, a native of London. The adjudicators were Messrs. Myles B. Foster, Edward German, Percy Pitt, and S. Coleridge Taylor. The Battison Haynes Prize, for composition, was gained by Ralph Letts, a native of Woodstock. The adjudicators were Dr. G. J. Bennett, Dr. Walmsley Little, and Sir Geo. C. Martin. The Goldberg Prize (baritones and basses) has been awarded to Percival F. Driver, a native of Leicester, David Brazell being very highly commended. The adjudicators were Messrs. Charles Phillips, Frederick Ranalow, and Arthur Barlow (in the chair).

Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield will offer for sale by auction at the Mart, on Wednesday, the 28th inst., the freehold of the Grand Theatre, High-street, Islington. It is principally of modern construction, and is well fitted and adapted for theatrical and other entertainments; it has two main entrances, saloon and other bars, spacious stage, a fine auditorium, and four private rooms; leased for thirty years unexpired at a rent of £2,185 per annum. They will also offer for sale the leasehold, fully-licensed public-house, known as the White Swan, with shop and premises adjoining the theatre, both under-leased for over thirty years unexpired, at rents amounting to £560 per annum, and held for 67 years unexpired at rents amounting to £163 per annum. The freehold Scenic Dock and Store Room in Torrens-street, adjoining the theatre, leased for thirty years unexpired, at £58 16s. 8d. per annum, will also be offered for sale

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

Eugénie ..... MLLE. CECILE CARON
Huguette ..... MLLE. YVONNE DE BRAY
La Claudie ..... MLLE. HARLAY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, MARCH 8.—The Vaudeville, who of late have not been very fortunate with the works produced there, have at last struck oil. M. Feydeau's new venture amused the public, and seems booked for a long run. It is eminently risqué; so risqué, in fact, that we can but compliment the author on having dealt so skilfully with the dangerous situations in which the piece abounds. The plot is simple enough. Maurice de Plounidec, a young man of twenty, and the son of a widow, is destined for the priesthood. His mother is anxious about his health. His appetite is gone, he suffers from sleeplessness, and Mme. de Plounidec consults her relatives and friends to find out a remedy. Her brother, the Marquis de la Roche-Tournel, does not mince matters. "Your son," he says, "has arrived at an age—at an age—at which nature claims her rights." The family doctor, M. Vétillé, confirms this statement, and when the distracted mother finally appeals to the Abbé Bourset, an enlightened and kind-hearted priest, the latter expresses the same opinion, although in more measured terms. Whilst these consultations are going on, Maurice, an expert swimmer, has gone down to the sea shore. He is lucky enough to save a pretty woman from drowning, whom he carries to the house. Her name is Etiennette, half-actress, half-coquette, and the Countess recognises in her the damsel who, a few hours before, had called on her concerning the hire of a villa, and whom she had refused as a tenant. The mother considers this rescue as an indication from Providence, and relents towards the half-drowned lady, who, however, receives a shock when her gallant rescuer turns up in his mother's drawing-room in ecclesiastical dress. The acquaintance thus begun at the seaside is continued in Paris. Etiennette falls in love with Maurice, who visits her frequently; and, to see this young priest surrounded by charming little cocottes, looking upon him with a kind of awe, is one of the curious scenes in this curious piece. It is only when Maurice joins his regiment to do his military service that his eyes are opened to many things of which he was previously innocent. And he now grasps the situation, especially as Etiennette, the moment she sees him in uniform, throws herself into his arms. Maurice then thinks of nothing less than to make Etiennette his wife, and his mother's exhortations and his friends' advice would have availed nothing if Etiennette, a flighty but generous-hearted girl, had not shown him the folly of such a union, and counselled him to marry his cousin, who has for a long time been pining for him. M. Feydeau was fortunate in having such a splendid cast to interpret his work. Mme. Anna Judic displayed exquisite tact in the rôle of the Countess; Mlle. Rolly supplied a fascinating Etiennette; M. Joffre was remarkable as the priest; M. Brûlé impersonated Maurice with much finesse; and MM. Lérand, Dubosc, Gauthier, and Mlles. Caron, de Bray, and Harlay, were also excellent.

THE Ambigu brought out a historical drama, called Pour la Patrie, by the Marquis de Castellane. Anyone, even a nobleman, is allowed to write rubbish; but what induced M. Grisier, the manager of that playhouse, to produce it? What, indeed? Curious and amusing reasons are assigned for this, which, however, are not of my domain. Yet, in one respect, M. de Castellane has beaten the record, for it is, I think, the first time an audience roared with laughter at a melodrama. It may not have been flattering to the author; but they could not help themselves. Anything more naif cannot be imagined. As to the acting, it was on a par with the writing.

"SACHA,"
Comedy, in Three Acts, by Mme. Régine Martial, Produced at the Gymnase, on March 5.

Mania ..... MME. ANDREE MEGARD
Hélène ..... MLLE. SUZANNE MUNTE
Jeanne Duclos ..... MLLE. LICENEY
Louise ..... MLLE. DANTEZE
Ludorf ..... M. ARVEL
Alexandre de Villiers ..... M. ALERME
Maurice ..... M. RAMEIL

Mme. Régine Martial, the well-known actress, has made her début as a playwright with a sombre piece, wherein we are shown a woman whose love for her son leads her into crime. To guard herself against the reproach that Hélène, her heroine, is unnaturally cruel, the authoress has taken the precaution of presenting her to us as a Russian, because the Russians are supposed to be different from the rest of humanity. Hélène certainly has strange notions on things in general, and her maternal loves takes a peculiar form. Thus, one day her son Alexandre—surnamed Sacha—whilst a little boy, seeing the reflection of the stars in a pond, insisted on someone fetching one of them out of the water. To please the child, the mother at once ordered one of her servants to throw himself into the pond, and fish out one of these beautiful shining things. The child thought it capital fun, but the servant caught a chill and died. When the story begins, Sacha is twenty-one, and his mother wants him to marry Jeanne, a rich American girl. Unfortunately, Sacha has fallen in love with Mania, one of his mother's friends. Hélène has noticed that Mania and Sacha are on very good terms; but she does not trouble much about it, because she knows that Mania is not constant in her affections, and that, therefore, this love-idyll is not likely to last long. This time, however, Mania is seriously caught; so seriously, in fact, that when Hélène insists on her son marrying Jeanne, the two lovers decide to run away. Hélène is informed of their plan, and we assist at a violent scene between Hélène and Mania, wherein the latter declares that she will not give up the boy she loves. And the irate mother then seizes a revolver, fires, and puts an end to the love affair and to the piece. Mania, mortally wounded, generously tells Sacha, before dying, that whilst handling the pistol she accidentally shot herself. This is, therefore, the second life Hélène sacrificed for her son. Let us hope it is the last. The work was fairly well acted.

L'Irrésistible, M. Auguste Germain's four-act comedy, produced at the Nouveautés, is perhaps somewhat lacking in brightness, but the story is pleasantly told, and the last scene is really charming. Robert d'Ayrac, a handsome, middle-aged man, major in a cavalry regiment, has married a very young and pretty girl, Antoinette Martois, and their happiness would have been complete but for Mme. Martois, the mother-in-law, a terrible creature. That lady thinks her son-in-law much too old for her daughter, and she considers the couple ought not to share the same room. When she hears that she will soon become a grandmother, she becomes so indignant that she carries off her daughter to her country seat. A few weeks later Robert comes to see his wife, and, to his surprise, sees that his erratic mother-in-law has assigned him a bedroom far away from Antoinette. Among the guests at the country-house is a very pretty woman, Hedwige, married to the Prince de Tresmes, an idiotic individual. The Princess falls in love with the handsome Major, and almost tells him so. But Robert is proof against her seductions, and prefers to pay his wife secret visits in the dead of the night, with the help of a rope-ladder. Robert returns to Paris, and one evening is fortunate enough to stop a runaway horse. The lady inside the carriage happens to be the Princess; and this time poor Robert succumbs. Nine months later the Prince de Tresmes is overjoyed that his wife presents him with a son and heir. As to the Major, he leaves with his regiment for Algiers, and Antoinette, of course, follows him. And when Antoinette says good-bye to the Princess she gives her to understand that she knows all that happened between that lady and her husband. "I felt rather upset," she said, "but at the same time a little proud, for it proves my good taste in marrying him!" The piece was spiritedly acted by the capital Nouveautés company.

"THE INDECISION OF MR. KINGSBURY."

100TH PERFORMANCE.

Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox has won an enviable reputation as an adaptor from the French—a reputation quite equal to that of the late Tom Taylor—and he has much enhanced it by his skilfully-written English version of M. Georges Berr's L'Irresolu, entitled The Indecision of Mr. Kingsbury, which attained at the Haymarket its 100th representation on Saturday evening, when a large and distinguished audience laughed heartily at the freshness of its fun and the real comicality of some of its situations. The author has quite succeeded in giving the comedy an English atmosphere, and it gains strength by its occasional vein of sentiment. Its success, which is now so well established, is largely due to the company engaged by Mr. Frederick Harrison, which gives an admirable representation.

To his sketch of the incurably vacillating Mr. Arthur Kingsbury, Mr. Charles Hawtrey has added many finishing touches since the first night, and the light-hearted gaiety, the complete irresponsibility of the part, are most artistically emphasised in the earlier acts. Whatever the indecision of Mr. Kingsbury may be on many matters, there is something very decided about his affection for his wife, and in the third act, wherein her extravagance and folly reach their highest point, Mr. Hawtrey, by his fine restraint, brings out this trait of the character most effectively. Nothing could be more sincere or convincing either than Arthur Kingsbury's interview with his mother in the last act. Here, indeed, the actor touches the highest point of his greatness in the part. Some playgoers who might, with Sir Peter Teazle, be inclined to "damn sentiment" when associated with Charles Hawtrey, would be agreeably surprised at the quiet force of his acting in the scene to which we have referred.

Its success, too, is largely due to Miss Fanny Brough, who, by the delicacy, the subtlety of her art, gives rare expression to the sentimentality of the character of Lady Helena. Not less successful, either, is she in the final interview with the irrepressible Fouchard, one of the best-written episodes in the comedy. Never was woman more diplomatic than Lady Helena, and Miss Brough's high-bred manner, her air of complete sincerity, and her crisp utterance, give the utmost dramatic value to the incident.

Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox, who seems to have made a speciality of what we may term Anglo-French parts, plays Paul Le Petit Fouchard with a light and agreeable touch. The frivolous nature of the character is never lost sight of, and the accent and manner are perfect, as well as the inflexion. It is altogether a very clever study of a by no means easy part.

Miss Nina Boucicault, one of the cleverest of our actresses, may be said to practically carry the third act of the comedy upon her shoulders. Surrounded by a frivolous entourage of "smart" people, Mrs. Kingsbury gives full rein to her love of folly, and the rendering of the special song composed for her is an admirable piece of comedy. In Stella's indignant outburst at the end of the act there is a flash of tragedy, and a sincere note is sounded in the young wife's interview with her undecided husband before the parting. In the last act, the actress handles the part with remarkable tact, and contributes altogether one of the finest pieces of acting we have seen upon the London stage for a long time.

Mr. Wilfred Draycott gives genuine pleasure by the light touch he imparts to the character of the secretary, surely one of the most resourceful and complacent we have ever met on the stage. Mr. Knowsley is intensely amusing in his courtship scenes with Miss Jane Chatterleigh, and Mr. Draycott adds no little to the success of the piece by his impersonation.

Mr. E. Holman Clark as the representative of the Earl of Cardiff, who apparently possesses the Nonconformist conscience, is amusingly dour, and his behaviour when an unwilling spectator of the cake-walk is extremely funny.

His efforts to amuse are exceedingly well backed up by Miss Caroline Ewell, whose comical old ladies are always excellently sketched by this droll actress.

Mr. H. Laurent has succeeded Mr. Sydney Valentine—who now devotes himself to stage-management—in the part of Colonel Chatterleigh, and is amusingly splenetic in the old colonel's political outburst in the first act, being also genuinely comical in the last act.

Miss Maud Wynter, in the character of Jane Chatterleigh, acts with considerable tact in the scene wherein Jane proposes to Hugh Knowsley, and is both bright and engaging.

Mr. Welton Dale is responsible for a few laughs in the character of the lazy and somnolent William, the parts of Henry and James being smartly handled by Mr. Courtenay Foote and Mr. Edmund Hollick.

Miss Florence Tempest, as Nellie Tudor, plays exceedingly well, suggesting admirably the ebullient manner and the Bohemian style of the burlesque actress. Miss Gwynne Herbert gives an effective sketch of the middle-aged mother, Lady Sarah Middleton, who belongs to the smart set, and wishes to be still thought quite a girl. Miss Hilda Antony is winsome and attractive as Miss Cora Middleton, and Mr. A. T. Jetney and Miss Fanny Wise are amusing as the darkies, Washington and Anastasia Mandeville. Mr. Cecil Rose does well as Tommy Tynemouth, and Mr. Louis Goodrich, Mr. Arthur Applin, and Miss Mona Harrison are seen to advantage in small parts.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday evening last, Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson concluded a successful fortnight's engagement at the Star Theatre, Liverpool, with his two dramas, Revenge and Death or Glory Boys, on which occasion Mr. Harris Fineberg, the proprietor of the theatre, presented him with a valuable diamond ring.

PRESENTATION.—At the Queen's Theatre, Keighley last Saturday evening Mr. Fred L. Arthur, late manager of the Queen's, Liverpool, was presented with two magnificent large bronze statuettes, one being a female figure, representing Agriculture, and the other a male figure emblematic of Navigation, which had been subscribed for by many friends in Keighley, where Mr. Arthur was located before being transferred to the city on the Mersey. The ceremony took place in the presence of a crowded audience, among those present being the Mayor of Keighley and several Town Councillors, as well as Messrs. Carson and Kendall, Mr. Arthur's employers.

MISS MATTHISON AND THE "O.P's."

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison delivered a very remarkable address to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion on Sunday last. The lecture was admirably written, and was delivered with a fire and fervour which thrilled her hearers to the core, and raised them to a high pitch of enthusiasm. In the part of her lecture which was addressed to actors and actresses Miss Matthison said:—

To the player, then, first will I address myself. Is there no room, think you, for worship in dramatic art to-day? And by worship, here, I do not mean that particular form of worship whose proper object is religion, but rather that sacred sense of joy, of praise, of uplifting, of election in Art, which remained to the Greeks, even in the "atheistic" days of Euripides. Believe me, we shall never have any noble and abiding dramatic work done in England until this spirit is poured out in fullest measure upon the rising generation of actors and actresses. The older generation had it; the sacred flame has been brought down to us, even to our very doors. Many honoured examples, of course, occur to me at this moment; but the name of One suggests itself inevitably, clear-shining above all: One whom the Lord God has called to play his part upon a vaster stage than ours. But it is to the players of my own generation I particularly speak. I have no right to speak to others. We have been dull, neglectful, touched by the canker of ambitions, and the petty emulations of this world. Let us remember that we are not the creatures of this world, but God's sacred artists, sent out aflame with worship and understanding, to interpret the human heart, to discern and harmonise the tangled issues of this troubled life, to unfold destinies, to make clear the mysteries of the everlasting!

And if we awake so far to fan the fires of our waning worship, shall we not need to learn that other lesson from the ancient Greek? How else shall we be properly equipped for the mighty work that lies before us? Shall we not need poetry, the spirit of imagination, the cleanly manage of ourselves body and soul, with keen joy of movement and rhythm in the heart? It will be a toilsome task to come up to the measure of the stature of those ancient giants of the race; but it must be done, and done by the younger generation, if we wish not Art to become a mockery and a byword in the world!

And, lastly, there must be judgment, ordered judgment, as the dominating spirit manipulating passion. Perhaps this concerns us most immediately of all. The penny novelette theory of art, as a blind frenzy of the soul, compacted of hysteria and unbridled passion, is the most pestilential heresy of our day. It is as destructive in Art as it is in Life. It has never been shared by the really mighty artists of the world. Those royal souls have held their way unmoved, commanding the main-springs of their lives and work with a valorous and lofty sanity—the masters of their passion—not its slaves! And judgment has been the secret of their kingship—judgment all-forceful, because all-seeing; strong in its control of others, because the captain of itself! Without it Art is a delirium, and the baseless fabric of an evil dream!

And if these obligations rest upon the player, no less are they binding upon the public. Great Art—as great Life, great Social Order, great Religion—is impossible without a great people to love and foster it. Therefore, to those who so often complain that there is no great dramatic art in England to day, I would reply:

There will be no great art at all in England until the people of England awake to worship, to poetry, to judgment, and the things that make for life. They must cast out the devil of Pleasure from their midst, and welcome instead the fire-winged Angel of Joy, whose name is only another word for worship; for, indeed, the real alternative is not whether the stage shall minister instruction in the place of entertainment—that is a very parochial point of view; but whether creatures made in the image of God shall place joy before pleasure, whether they shall delight in the grown things of life rather than the puerilities of mental childhood—ay, or still worse, the senilities of that second childhood whose names are Cynicism and Unbelief!

And with Worship they must tune their souls to lofty harmonies: the Spirit of Poetry must arise from the dead, and men must sing again in their hearts. They must crucify the lusts of place and power, the foul savageries of war and money-getting, if they would learn the sweetness of high song. Poetry lies dead among us, and it is Commerce who has slain her—Commerce, who was ordained of old to bless the world, and make straight the paths of peace!

And Judgment! How shall there be judgment in a house divided against itself? Believe me, as we shall have no true worship in Art until men learn to cherish joy; no true poetry until they seek the things of peace; so shall there be no true judgment until peace and joy go plighted together in a nation builded in righteousness, based upon the imperishable foundations of Love and Truth.

This will require a new order, a new world—something better than the makeshift we all so complacently accept; and already, if we be not blind, we may mark the signs of its birth within the heavens; if we be not deaf, hear the distant trumpets of its coming. Perchance in that new world—it is not so far off—we shall see great work done on the stage. Then, when men shall turn them, healthful and refreshed from labour, to enjoy the fruits of their own industry—not wresting them from the weak and pitiful hands of others; and they shall learn to give honour to the makers of abundance, not to the powers of darkness and destruction, to the ravages of fierce beasts of prey!

NEW PLAYS AT THE SAVOY.

Miss Gertrude Kingston gave a special matinée at the Savoy Theatre on Thursday afternoon, when the programme consisted of a couple of new tragedies and Mr. Bernard Shaw's comedietta, How He Lied to Her Husband. The first piece to be presented was

"PARIS AND ÆNONE,"
A Tragedy in One Act, by Laurence Binyon.

Paris ..... MR. MATHESON LANG
Corythus ..... MR. DOUGLAS PAINE
Helen ..... MISS ROXY BARTON
Pyrgo ..... MISS BEATRICE BRAMAH
Melissa ..... MISS MAUD CRESSALL
Ænone ..... MISS GERTRUDE KINGSTON

The almost mythological story of the nymph of Mount Ida has been in this play enlarged upon by Mr. Binyon. Ænone, in a long speech, is heard sorrowfully declaiming the conduct of Paris, whose base abandonment of her for the beautiful Helen is pathetically told. Into her presence comes the chief subject of her thoughts. He has been mortally wounded by the arrow of Philoctetes, and he now wishes to invoke her unquestioned skill in the healing art to keep him yet a while upon this earth. But Ænone inexorably refuses, even in his sad plight, to take pity on him. She will not use her magical powers even to save him from death, and she leaves him to die. Helen appears after the body of her hero has been removed. Later she is joined by Ænone. In the distance, through the trees, they watch a mighty glow of light flare and flicker. What does it mean? Helen wonders if it can be that Troy is ablaze. Ænone knows better than that. It is the funeral pyre of Paris.

The character of the dying Paris was delineated with an appropriate spirit of mournfulness and regretfulness by Mr. Matheson Lang. Miss Gertrude Kingston furnished a pathetic figure as Ænone, and her delivery of Binyon's difficult blank verse, in parts rather too long—the fault of the author—was admirable in the poesy of her expression. Miss Roxy Barton looked transcendently beautiful as Helen of Troy, and acted in the final scene with feeling and pathos. We think that the author's lines could be with advantage cut down considerably.

The second item on the programme bore the title of

"THE FRIEND IN THE GARDEN,"
A Play in One Act, by E. F. Benson.

Lord Accrington ..... MR. DENNIS EADIE
Footman ..... MR. FLORANCE
Jack (Brother to Lady Accrington ..... MR. THALBERG-CORBETT
Lady Accrington ..... MISS IRENE ROOKE
The Friend ..... MISS ETHEL WYNNE-MATTHISON

Grim death has no fears for Lady Accrington's brother Jack. With Omar Khayyam, he believes, "I myself am heaven and hell." And yet this Jack is disgusted with life. For the past three years his has been an unhappy life—apparently it was at the beginning of that period that love and a woman left him. His sister, Lady Accrington, is fond of practical jokes, and she decides to play one upon her melancholic brother. Just before she is supposed to set forth upon a motor drive to a ball, she comes to her brother attired in a beautiful white silk dress. She is surpassingly handsome, but yet in her light snowy garment to him she symbolises death, and he tells her so. He goes so far as to say that he would welcome a visit from the Angel of Death, as he regards death as merely a very pleasant thing. She decides that she will appear to him in such a rôle that very night while he is sitting in the garden. He divines her intentions, however. After all the others have retired to bed, he remains in the open air. Very few minutes elapse before there glides up to him the figure of a woman shrouded from head to foot in white. She speaks seriously to him. She says she is Death. He regards her jokingly, believing, of course, that it is his own sister. But after a few minutes he is assured to the contrary. The face is uncovered so far as the cerements will permit—and Death—the Friend—stands before him. She pleads with him. Will he go with her or will he stay behind? She actually lures him on, until at last he exclaims that he will follow her into the great unknown, but before she accepts him as a follower she insists that he shall forgive everybody, even the wife who had abandoned him. He sits down in his chair once more. She kisses his brow. It is the kiss which signalises the severance of the silver cord and the breaking of the golden bowl. Death vanishes as silently as she came. A few seconds later another ghostly figure enters the garden and tells the sleeping man that she also is Death. But she receives no reply. Bending forward and looking keenly into the fact of her brother, Lady Accrington—for the "apparition" in the clothes of the grave is she—discovers that he is dead. With a shriek she rushes into the house and—the curtain falls.

The Friend in the Garden is ably written, but one does not fully realise the purport of its allegory. Miss Ethel Wynne-Matthison acted with rare expression and convincing sincerity the part of the moral-bearing Friend—Death. Mr. Thalberg-Corbett was dignified and thoughtful in the rôle of Jack; and Miss Irene Rooke, as a contrast to the morbidity of the lines of the other actors, was vivacious as Lady Accrington. Mr. Dennis Eadie played in good style the character of an aristocratic man of the world.

The concluding portion of the afternoon's entertainment was Mr. G. Bernard Shaw's delightful one-act comedietta, How He Lied to Her Husband. Mr. Granville Barker gave his amusingly droll portrayal of the youthful and self-confident lover, and Mr. A. J. Poulton brilliantly realised the part of the husband; while Miss Gertrude Kingston, in the rôle of the wife, showed us what an admirable actress she is in a part suited to her.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert on Wednesday evening, March 7, presented several interesting features, the programme opening with Mendelssohn's "Seventeen Variations Sérieuses," for the piano, played in an artistic manner by Miss Eva Norton. The song, "Come, Margarita, come," by Sullivan, was, on the whole, given expressively by Mr. J. H. Ironmonger, who must, however, guard against a tendency to force the voice, thereby producing faulty intonation. A very able harp solo was performed by Miss E. Coles, who chose "Autumn," by Thomas. Miss Leah Phillips has ample vocal resources, but something more than that is required in so difficult a song as Gounod's "Légère Hirondelle." A painstaking performance of a piano solo, "Concert Etude in C sharp" (Moszkowski), was given by Miss Ethel M. Spring, and a very clever pupil of Madame Waldahoff, Miss Lilian Branston, was heard to great advantage in her mandoline solo, "Fantaisie de Ballet," by De Beriot. Several other students gave examples that may be mentioned favourably, such as Miss Ethel Mitchell's singing of Blumenthal's "Life," Miss Ettie Hale, for her pianoforte solo, and the Misses Mabel, Dorothy, and Ethel Mitchell in Trios "Ave Maria" and "Chorus of Water Nymphs" (Wallace), arranged by Mr. Isidore de Solla. To give variety to the concert Miss Beatrice Roberts, a pupil of Mr. Allen Beaumont, was set down for a recitation of "A Pastoral Play," by Anstey. Miss Kate Richards performed the duties of accompanist; and Mrs. Charles Smith had, as usual, the charge of the lady students.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

BERLIN, THURSDAY, MARCH 8.—This is the first work of a young Vienna author, and it was produced simultaneously with Berlin at Jarno's Lustspiel Theatre at Vienna. At each place it met with a very cordial reception, the author—who naturally preferred to be present at the production in his native city—being called frequently before the curtain in response to hearty applause. That there are numerous faults in the play, both in conception and development, no thinking person could deny, but they are the faults of youth and inexperience. Through all the crudities the traces of genuine and individual talent are visible, and it is a safe prophecy that Herr Grossmann will do better things yet. The scene is laid in Austria, and for the greater part of the time the action passes in prison. The much-to-be-pitied hero is a young fellow of twenty-three, named Schindler, who is doing time—under extenuating circumstances—for killing his faithless sweetheart. He is cursed with a violent temper and passions, but his character—the author tells us—is not bad, and he is vastly superior to the criminals with whom he is obliged to consort. He is made wretched by their brutal taunts, and keeps himself as much aloof as possible. Hansa, the daughter of the prison governor, takes an interest in the white-faced, silent, young fellow, and gives him a blackbird in a cage, for him to tame as a solace in his misery. When he has become deeply attached to his feathered companion, one of the ruffians, who shares Schindler's cell, maliciously lets the bird fly. Once again the demon of fury overpowers the unhappy Schindler; he strikes the man down, and the warder, who comes to interpose, meets with the same fate. Neither is killed, but Schindler—whose term was just up—receives a second sentence and is led back to the prison. The overseer, who pities him, manages to get special privileges for him, among them a cell to himself, and Hansa promises him another bird; but Schindler, in a fit of despair, takes his life. There is a considerably overdrawn scene passing in the Law Courts, where the judge and jury are depicted as so inhuman that one feels inclined to think Herr Grossmann has a grudge against Austrian justice. Many of the characters, however—particularly the different types of criminals—are admirably drawn. The interpretation was exceptionally good, Fräulein Silten, Herr Iwald, Herr Holthaus, Herr Rolan, and Herr Otto giving perhaps the best renderings. The mounting was thoroughly adequate.

THE "Dramatische Gesellschaft" gave a matinée performance at the Kleines Theatre on Sunday, the programme consisting of four one-act plays or—according to the bill—"four variations upon the theme Woman." The first, Die Sirene, by Karl von der Heydt, cannot be taken seriously. It is a particularly dilettante piece of workmanship, with which it was a mistake to commence the performance. Two King's sons are shipwrecked on a desert island. One of them finds a "sea-maiden" on the beach, gives her food and drink, and falls a victim to her evil fascinations. The "syren" sets one brave Norseman against the other until one kills his friend, and she rejoices in the sight of human blood. Efficient acting could not save the piece from its inevitable fate.

"EIN ANDERER ENOCH ARDEN," a "grotesque," by MM. Arthur Morrison and Herbert Sargent, came next, meeting with a very different reception. It has been done into capital German by Herr F. W. Freund, although—personally speaking—I would have preferred another title. The piece will be remembered in England under its original title of That Brute Simmons. The little piece is brimful of broad humour, and the audience laughed from beginning to end. It was brightly acted by Herr Marr, of the Lessing, who gave the part of Ford, and Fräulein Valetti and Herr Beckmann, of the Lustspielhaus company. Enthusiastic applause resulted in recalls for the artists, and the audience was evidently disappointed at not being permitted to see the authors.

THE third piece, a drama, entitled Der Zenge, by Richard Fellinger, has enough material in it, judiciously treated, for half a dozen plays. A man commits perjury to save his guilty friend, not for the friend's sake but for that of the wife, with whom he has carried on a liaison for years. This, too, was very well acted, and the reception was a cordial one.

THE last play of the four—Die Retterin, by Alfred Nossig—contains a strongly dramatic kernel. The action passes in Paris in 1815. Count Armand has been condemned to death. His wife compasses his escape from prison, herself remaining in the cell in his place. While waiting she finds a love-letter written to her husband by another woman, and she learns too late that she has sacrificed herself for a villain. The piece would doubtless have made a better impression with a better cast, and had the audience not been tired in consequence of over-long entr'actes.

RICHARD BEER-HOFMANN'S interesting play, Der Graf von Charolais, which had such a successful run at the Neues a year or two ago, is about to be revived at the Deutsches under the management of Herr Reinhardt. The cast will be the same excellent one as at the première, Herr Reinhardt himself giving the name-part.

GLUCK'S opera, Orpheus und Euridice, is in rehearsal at the Royal Opera, and will be produced in its entirety during the Easter week. The second part was done by the Emperor's commands at two gala performances in connection with the recent wedding festivities.

THE New Royal Opera (formerly—and still popularly—known as Krolls) has been leased for the summer months by Herr Koebke, who will give the customary season of operetta and light opera. There is always a hot contest for the possession of this theatre for the summer, the beautiful and extensive grounds forming a much appreciated resort during the entr'actes.

THE enterprising Schiller having given the first part of Bjornson's mystic drama, Ueber unsere Kraft with a good deal of success, part two has now been produced. It was extremely well acted and staged, and its reception was as cordial as that of Part I., which is saying a good deal.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your issue of to-day's date your correspondent for Ashton gives another turn the premier position on the programme. We enclose a day bill to prove that it was headed by yours faithfully, CHARLES BALDWIN'S COMEDIANS, Hippodrome, Ashton-under-Lyne, March, 4, 1906.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday last Mr. Edwin C. Jazon, proprietor of the Aladdin pantomime company, presented Councillor Henry Masterman, the popular manager of the Theatre Royal, Castleford, with a beautiful silver-mounted briar pipe and case as a slight token of esteem and respect.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

SCENIC ARTISTS' ASSOCIATION.

The forty-third meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association was held at their offices, Robert-street, Adelphi-terrace, on Tuesday. There were present Mr. Walter Hann (in the chair), Messrs. E. G. Banks, Rd. Douglass, G. J. Dodson, Rd. H. Halley, Geo. R. Hemsley, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, G. Herbert Wallis, H. Warner, H. Woolls, and H. Lawrence Harris (hon. secretary). The minutes of the forty-second meeting, held on the 12th ult., were read and confirmed. On the nomination of Mr. E. G. Banks, seconded by Mr. H. Woolls, Mr. Wm. Harford was unanimously elected an honorary member. The resolution passed at the seventeenth meeting of the committee, held on Jan. 23, 1905, with respect to fines was rescinded, and it was unanimously resolved that in future members failing to pay instalments of subscription within twenty-eight days after same shall become due shall not be reinstated until they have paid arrears with a fine of 6d. for each month same shall be overdue. It was unanimously resolved to give up the offices on the 24th inst., and after that date to hold the committee meetings at the Adelphi Hotel at 7 o'clock on the last Tuesday in each month. The next committee meeting will be held at the offices at 8 o'clock on Monday, the 19th inst., and the following one at the Adelphi Hotel on Tuesday, March 27. The next monthly social dinner will be on the same evening at the Adelphi Hotel at 8 p.m., and as the number of diners is limited to fifty it is requested that early application be made to Mr. Harris, at 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, for remaining tickets. Application by post must be accompanied by remittance and stamped addressed envelope for reply.

A conference of London Scenic Artists was held at the offices of the Association on Monday evening last. The chair was taken at 8 o'clock by Mr. Walter Hann. There were also present Messrs. Geo. R. Hemsley, Geo. J. Dodson, H. Warner, Chas. E. Markham, Staines Prem, F. B. Mullen, W. Raphael, H. Woolls, H. W. Owen, E. J. Hirst, Richard Douglass, E. G. Banks, R. H. Halley, S. H. Paterman, R. C. McCleery, Ernest Hann, H. Crepin, Bruce Smith, P. Small, and H. Lawrence Harris (hon. sec. Scenic Artists' Association).

"NAUGHTY NERO; or, EPISODES IN THE HIS-TREE OF ROME."

"A Respectful per-Version of the Version played at His Majes-Tree's Theatre."
Written by Adrian Ross, Music by Augustus Barratt, Produced at the Oxford Music Hall on Thursday, March 8.

Characters:

Naughty Nero ..... Mr. Arthur Roberts
Aniseedus ..... Mr. Stanley Damerell
Rule Britannicus ..... Miss Frances Kapstowne
Acteress ..... Miss Eleanor May
Poppy ..... Miss Yates
Agrippineapple ..... Miss Ruby Celeste

Mr. Tree's production of Mr. Philip Stephens's drama Nero at His Majesty's Theatre has already been followed by two stage travesties, the latest being produced at the Oxford on Thursday night. Mr. Adrian Ross is the author of the book, a sufficient guarantee of neat and skilful workmanship, while bright and appropriate music has been composed by Mr. Augustus Barratt. The new burlesque is in four short acts, the fifth having been "hacked out." In the first scene—Palace of the Sneezers—quite an elaborate chorus precedes the entrance of Nero, who is hailed with acclamation as the new Emperor of Rome. He at once proceeds, as leader of the Labour Party, to sing a topical ditty, "I'll bring in a Bill for that," in which he announces his intention of introducing a legislative enactment according to which "at forty every man will draw a pound a week as pension." Then enters Nero's mother, Agrippineapple, who accuses her son of being too fond of playing. "It's improper! And there's that Acteress—you'll have to drop her!" After a comical duet with his mother, Nero in tragic tones exclaims:

Now I am Cæsar! All the world I rule,
And I can start a great Dramatic School!
I wink my eyes—there's thunder in the flies!
And if I frown—the wings will tumble down!
I lift a lash—there comes a lightning flash!
And if I curse—I do it in blank verse!
I shall go mad! Ha, ha! That's what it will be!
Ha! Who comes here? It's Dolly Baird as Trilby.

Acteress makes her appearance as a "Gibson Girl," exclaiming:

"Whether an actress I may be indeed,
I do not know—the jury disagreed."

Nero falls asleep, and before him pass Svengali, Hamlet, Falstaff, and Fagin—"the ghosts of all the parts that he has murdered." Nero and his mother quarrel, and the latter is told to leave Rome at once; whereupon she calls him a mountebank whose father "sang on Southend Pier as pierrot." A burlesque of the Banquet scene follows, and Britannicus, having imbibed a warm port with a dash of snow in it, dies, and a dummy figure is thrown down the steps. Nero, at his villa at Baiae, meets Poppy, and they plan the murder of Agrippineapple, who becomes the only passenger on board a County Council steamer. She is thrown overboard, but swims ashore. However, Aniseed does not fail at the second attempt, and the three trumpet calls announce the death of Agrippineapple. The last scene represents the roof of the palace, with a distant view of Rome, with the Lyceum and Aldwych in place of the Forum. The city is seen in flames while Nero plays the fiddle, and another chorus brings the burlesque to a merry conclusion.

Mr. Arthur Roberts as Naughty Nero gave a close imitation of Mr. Tree, catching exactly the tone of his voice, and also mimicking with ludicrous effect the well-known actor-manager's gestures. Only occasionally did Mr. Roberts speak in his ordinary manner. Miss Ruby Celeste as Agrippineapple made no attempt to imitate Mrs. Tree, but nevertheless played the part extremely well, speaking her lines in pointed and impressive style. Mr. Stanley Damerell was also good as Aniseedus. Miss Yates as Poppy spoke her lines with a broad North-country accent that was highly effective. Miss Eleanor May was a handsome Acteress. Miss Frances Kapstowne did well in the part of Rule Britannicus. Mr. Albert Gilmer deserves every credit for the manner in which the burlesque was produced, some of the scenes vieing with the original in the completeness of the stage pictures.

The prize ring, sparkling with diamonds, offered weekly by the proprietors of Ally Sloper's Half Holiday to the winners in the Pantomime Popularity competition, was awarded at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, to Miss Rose Moncrieff, who appeared in the pantomime there, the result being decided by public ballot. There was a crowded attendance, and the presentation, which was made by the "Friend of Man" himself, was the cause of much enthusiasm. Mr. Henry Eglington, the manager, personally attended to the arrangements in front.

Presentations.—Mr. Fred Acton, on the last night of Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's pantomime Dick Whittington, presented on behalf of the company and staff to Mr. Frank Denman-Wood, a diamond ring; and Mr. Frank Denman-Wood, on behalf of himself and wife, presented to Mr. Acton a gold fountain pen and silver sovereign purse.

MASKELYNE AND DEVANT'S MYSTERIES.

Marvels for the million are always available at the Emporium of Magic now established in St. George's Hall, and the tireless brain of Mr. Maskelyne is ever busy in the preparation of something fresh and novel. His latest creation is that of a mystery so profound that no name can be discovered for it, and it figures in the programme as "A Trick without a Title." The new illusion is quaintly introduced by Mr. Maskelyne, who declares it is founded on the old legend of witchcraft by which a person laid under a fell charm could be subjected to any sufferings inflicted on his effigy. The trick is performed with a man, an iron frame, and a small box, but the box is quite unlike that used in the trick for which the old Egyptian Hall was famous. It is brought on to the stage in pieces, and put together in full view of the audience. The iron frame used in the trick is so constructed that the man is securely fastened by bars passing over his neck, waist, arms, and legs to a long iron bar extending from the back of his head to his heels. Thus secured he is put in the box, which is then suspended in mid-air. A few seconds are allowed to elapse, during which the performer goes through a process with a doll held in his hand, and when the box is opened the man is seen to have turned himself upside down, although he is still bound as securely as before. Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant offer a prize of £50 for the best title for the new trick, and it seems it would be easier to gain the award than to elucidate the mystery, which leaves the audience gazing in speechless astonishment.

A recent addition to the diversified entertainment, which is attracting crowded audiences, is the "Alleged Humour at the Piano," submitted by Mr. Barclay Gammon, who rushes through a number of amusing stories without pausing to take breath, and the laughter of his hearers is equally continuous. Mr. Gammon, who thus makes his first appearance at a public place of amusement, has a rich fund of humour, and his "patter" is full of refined drollery. He plays a piece called "Vive L'Entente Cordiale," in which the national melodies of France and England are quaintly and cleverly mixed up. A countryman's description of an oratorio is also made very comic, and in response to an inevitable encore he tells a piquant tale of a church verger and a policeman, which is irresistibly funny.

The evening is begun by the dexterous display of M. Gintaro, the accomplished Japanese juggler, and later C. Tamamoto electrifies all by his wonderful feats on a perpendicular rope. The mystic kettle continues to pour out a generous meed of exhilarating beverages, and Shades of Shifters gives a peep behind the scenes that is just as highly relished.

Mr. David Devant is heartily welcomed when he appears with his bag of magical problems, which are so neatly done and accompanied by such deliciously droll "patter," and his séance of mental magnetism, in which he leads his sleeping sister, Miss Dora Devant, by devious paths towards the accomplishment of the actions silently suggested by the audience, gives rise to long but abortive speculation. The Burmese Gong gives the signal for some astounding changings of persons and places, and miniature dramas embellished with extraordinary illusions are still furnished in the perplexing playlet The Enchanted Hive and the new version of The Mascot Moth, which embraces in addition two of the best-known Indian tricks. The orchestra, under the direction of Mr. F. Cramer, adds subtle effects of music to the performance, and is likewise heard in some admirable selections.

THE TIVOLI, GLASGOW.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In your variety gossip last week you assert that Mr. Armstrong was in no way connected with the conduct of the Tivoli, Glasgow, whilst under my management, which is not correct. Mr. Armstrong was responsible for nearly the whole of the bookings, which failed to draw. Hence the liquidation of the company, which he directed until I took his place in November, 1904, up to which time there were no profitable weeks, but one long heavy list of losses amounting to about £10,000. This bankrupted the theatre before I joined. I improved the business, showing several hundred pounds on the profit side in a few weeks, when I introduced some novelties of my own—a beauty show, a Venus masquerade, fun on the pole, and other contests. The Queen's was on a paying basis when he took it over, for it showed a net profit of nearly six hundred pounds whilst under my control. I ran a dramatic season of nine weeks (with which Armstrong was not connected) at the Tivoli, but lost money, as the house does not hold enough in the popular parts to ever pay with drama. I sold my interests to Mr. P. Mackay Findlay, with whose variety season I had no connection of any kind.

The new system with which you are crediting Mr. Armstrong was mine, as all those who did business with me know. I sincerely hope he will do well with the Tivoli, as it means another hall open to performers and more money in circulation.—Yours faithfully,

S. KING ALEXANDER.

March 6.

It appears from the fifty-seventh annual report of the Prudential Assurance Company for the year ending Dec. 31, 1905, that in the Ordinary branch the number of policies issued during the year was 75,293, assuring the sum of £7,211,427 and producing a new annual premium income of £395,029. The premiums received during the year were £4,123,318, being an increase of £154,302 over the year 1904. The claims of the year amounted to £1,812,618. The number of deaths was 7,437, and 7,775 endowment assurances matured. The number of policies in force at the end of the year was 773,051. In the Industrial branch the premiums received during the year were £6,139,050, being an increase of £159,715. The claims of the year amounted to £2,261,748. The number of deaths was 238,220, and 3,344 endowment assurances matured. The total number of policies in force at the end of the year was 16,065,258: their average duration is eleven years. The assets of the company, in both branches, as shown in the balance-sheet, are £59,464,376, being an increase of £4,104,871 over those of 1904. Since the completion of the valuation the actuary has reported that in his opinion a general increase of two-and-a-half per cent. could, with safety, be granted under the principal Industrial branch table if provision were made for an increase in the liability of £750,000. The Board have accordingly revised the tables as from March 1, 1906, and have made provision to meet the increased liability by the transfer during the current year of £750,000 from the reserve fund to the life assurance fund in the Industrial branch, leaving this reserve fund at £1,000,000. This revision affects nearly thirteen million policies, and of this number over ten million policies receive an immediate increase in the sum assured. With the deepest regret the directors reported the death of Mr. Edgar Horne, their late respected chairman, who was one of the founders of the company, a director for fifty-eight years, and chairman for twenty-eight years. Sir Henry Harben has been elected chairman in his place.

The Theatre Royal, Margate, reopens under the management of Mr. E. Michael next week with The Duchess of Marlborough. The house has been renovated, and it is proposed to return to the old style of stock companies

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

At a meeting of stage employees, held last week in the Workmen's Hall, Stratford, Mr. William Johnson, general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, presiding, it was decided to form a branch of the National Association, and a committee was elected to carry out the necessary arrangements. A further meeting will be held next Thursday, when all employees connected with the theatres and music halls in the district are invited to be present.

Mr. F. Fox, who for many years has been master-carpenter at the Alhambra Theatre, has, we understand, been relieved of the duties of that position, and will receive a pension from the company. Mr. Fox is over seventy years of age. He has been succeeded by Mr. Williams, who lately held a similar position in one of the Liverpool theatres.

At a meeting of stage employees on Sunday in the Freemasons' Arms, Long Acre, held for the purposes of considering the arrangements for the annual theatrical regatta, Mr. George Poynton-Applebee, the electrical engineer at the Gaiety Theatre, and himself a winner of many prizes at these sports, occupied the chair. There was a good attendance. Mr. Callaghan was elected secretary, and Mr. R. Kinney assistant-secretary. The regatta will take place on Whit-Sunday, June 3, at Putney.

The financial statement for the past year of the carpenters' branch of the National Association of Theatrical Employees is excellent reading. The balance in hand on December 31, 1905, was £180, nearly £40 in advance of last year. The gross balance is allocated as follows:—To General and Management Fund, £67 6s. 9d.; Funeral Fund, £75 9s.; Benevolent Fund, £37 17s. 11½d. Total, £180 13s. 8½d.

After the performance of the successful pantomime Mother Goose at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Monday night, Mr. J. M. Chute, in accordance with his annual custom, entertained the working staff at supper, the gathering taking place at the King David Hotel. Mr. Chute was the chairman, and there was a large attendance, including several of the principal members of the pantomime company. Mr. H. Wilson proposed the toast of "The Manager," to which Mr. J. M. Chute replied. Mr. Chute then gave "The Working Staff," referring specially to the departments with which Mr. H. Owen, Mr. H. Momber, Mr. Bawn, and Miss Shapcott were concerned, and followed with the toast of the musical director (Mr. George Chapman), the stage-manager (Mr. H. Turner), the scenic artist (Mr. Jackson), and the acting-manager (Mr. F. S. Green), all of whom acknowledged in felicitous terms the chairman's laudatory remarks, and at the same time paid a tribute to Mr. Chute's many good qualities. "The Pantomime Company" was submitted by Mr. H. Turner, who cleverly played upon the names of the principal members of the company. Mr. Wilkie Bard and Mr. Griffiths, jun., replied, the latter on behalf of the ladies. Mr. Fred Griffiths gave "The Visitors," to which Mr. Fred Irwin responded. First-class musical selections were given during the night, and "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem concluded a very successful gathering.

The annual general meeting of the Heads of Departments Association took place on Thursday evening, when Mr. James Cullen, the President, presided over a good attendance. The financial statement, which appeared recently in this column, together with the auditors' report, was accepted. Mr. H. A. Horspool, electrician with the Sherlock Holmes company, and Mr. Papworth, electrician at the Tivoli, were elected members. The result of the election of officers for the ensuing year is as follows:—President, Mr. James Cullen, master-carpenter, St. James's Theatre; vice-president, Mr H. Powell, poperty master, the Prince of Wales's Theatre; treasurer, Mr. C. Porter, master carpenter, Terry's Theatre; hon. sec., Mr. G. H. Dyball, stage-manager, the Tivoli Theatre of Varieties; organising secretary, Mr. William Johnson; auditors, Mr. A. Earnshaw, electrician, the Paragon Theatre, and Mr. Philip Sheridan, electrician, the Crown Theatre. Committee: Mr. Poynton-Applebee, electrician, the Gaiety Theatre; Mr. T. Morgan, property master, the Comedy Theatre; Mr. T. J. Sheridan, electrician, the Waldorf Theatre; Mr. W. G. Wilton, property master, the Vaudeville Theatre; and Mr. R. Chantrell, property master, the Haymarket Theatre. The representatives appointed to the National Committee were Mr. J. Cullen, Mr. G. H. Dyball, Mr. C. Porter, Mr. H. Powell, Mr. Chantrell, and Mr. Wilton. The representatives appointed to the Sports Committee were Messrs. J. Cullen, G. H. Dyball, T. Morgan, Philip Sheridan, and W. G. Wilton.

Mr. A. Palmer and Mr. J. Reed attended the meeting as a deputation from the Carpenters' Branch to submit a proposal that a central employment agency be established for the benefit of all sections of the working staff and the convenience of heads of departments. The proposal led to an interesting discussion, and was warmly approved by the meeting. It was announced that Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., had accepted an invitation to be present at the fourth annual dinner of the association on April 8, when Mr. H. B. Irving will preside. It was decided that the price of tickets be the same as last year. The tickets will be issued next week, and may be obtained on application to the hon. secretary.

A meeting of the representatives appointed in connection with the Theatrical Sports Committee will be held next week. Any suggestions relating to the sports which are sent to Mr. Wm. Johnson, 29, Wellington-street, Strand, will be placed before the Sports Committee.

"The St. Louis Animated Pictures" are this week drawing crowded houses to the Corn Exchange, Colchester. The Chronophone talking and singing pictures (L. Gaumont and Co.'s patent) are proving a great attraction, and are encored nightly. Amongst the pictures being shown are Mr. Hamilton Hill singing "The fireman's song," Mr. R. G. Knowles in his latest success, "The Twin Duet," from The French Maid; "The Swing Song, from Véronique, &c. The ordinary pictures are all excellent. Amongst those being shown are "The Sailor's Wedding," "A Cruiser in a Storm," "Grandpa and Butterfly," "The Prince of Wales in India," and "Father's Holiday." The whole show goes with a swing, and the "St. Louis Pictures" and Messrs. Gaumont and Co.'s Chronophone have undoubtedly launched upon a successful career.

Cornelie Prielle, the well-known Hungarian actress, died some days ago at Budapest at the age of eighty. For fifty years she was a conspicuous figure on the Hungarian stage, and was considered one of the finest actresses of her time.

Mr. Isidore de Lara's new opera, Sanga, has been successfully produced at Nice. The interest of the story centres round a mountain, which dominates the lives of those living on its slopes, the old Greek idea of Nemesis being forcibly illustrated. The construction of the drama is novel. In the second act only one character appears, that of Sanga, and the third act ends in a cataclysm engulfing the whole of the characters. The music is said to mark a distinct advance in the composer's career, the orchestration being admirable and far beyond anything achieved in his former works.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, March 5, the Musical Play, entitled
"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

At Mr. Robert Arthur's excellent theatre one can always rely on finding something dramatic or musical, but always artistic. This week the musical play, The White Chrysanthemum, is being presented by Mr. Frank Curzon's company, which partakes of the character of all his combinations, namely, the best. Mr. F. Pope-Stamper acquits himself creditably both in acting and singing, more especially in his duets with O San. Lieut. Chippendale Belmont, his friend, familiarly known as Chippy, is rendered with a thorough sense of humour by Mr. Davy Burnaby, starring particularly in his song, "You can't please everybody always." Sin Chong, Reggie's servant, is the obsequious Oriental to the life, and Mr. O. E. Lennon does all that is possible with the part, keeping the audience continually amused. Mr. F. W. Ford imbues the part of Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage, Reggie's father, with the right amount of parental authority, singing the few songs allotted him with considerable success in spite of an evident cold, his song of the "Latest News" going splendidly. Mr. Harry Paulton is, as usual, extremely funny as Private Perks, and causes many a hearty laugh, his duet with Sin Chong being loudly encored. Of the ladies, Miss Ruth Lincoln, a great favourite in musical comedy, acts and sings charmingly as Sybil Cunningham, otherwise O San, the Chrysanthemum, her song descriptive of that favourite bloom, being delightfully rendered. Miss Isabelle Dillon is piquant and vivacious as Cornelia Vanderdecken, her chief success being "Not the only pebble on the beach." Miss Maud Harvey does all that could be done with the young Widow, Betty Kenyon, the audience thoroughly appreciating her song, "A useful hint." Sybil's Japanese maids and the Admiral's escort are excellently sustained by the remaining members of the company. A word must be said about the artistic and realistic scenery by Ernest Han, the scene of a bungalow on the seashore being perfect in detail. The chorus, under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey, acquit themselves admirably.

MR. EDWIN JACOBS, the popular conductor of the Theatre Royal, Bristol, was on Friday evening, the 2nd inst., presented by Mr. Dave O'Toole with an article of jewellery which had been subscribed for by the whole of the company behind the footlights, Mr. O'Toole at the same time remarking that he had never in the course of all his travels met a more capable and conscientious conductor than Mr. Jacobs. Mr. Jacobs had another presentation on Saturday evening, the closing night of Goody Two Shoes. Mr. Trueman Towers, stage-manager, also had a presentation on Saturday evening, in the shape of a large and handsome kit-bag, subscribed for by the whole of the company.

SORE THROAT OR HOARSENESS
CURED IN A FEW HOURS.

Sir Morell Mackenzie, M.D., the Eminent Throat Specialist, constantly recommended Condy's Remedial Fluid to be diluted and used as a Gargle for speedily curing Sore Throat or Hoarseness.

Dr. Walford Harris, in his book entitled "The Throat and its Treatment," says: "I have found the 'Condy' and cold water gargle excellent, many cases being cured immediately."

The late Mr. Sims Reeves, the world-famed Tenor Vocalist, wrote: "'Condy' used as a Gargle clears the voice and braces up the uvula."

Condy's Remedial Fluid, sold by all Chemists at 1s. 1½d. Caution.—Insist on having "Condy's."

MR. CHAS. LACEY, who has had an experience of twenty-three years as "advance," has been appointed advertising manager of both the Theatre Royal and Royal Opera House, Leicester, which places are now under the control of Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton.

THE first edition of the telephone card used by Mr. T. Harris, of the Chemical Cleaning and Dyeing Co., was so much appreciated by customers in the theatrical profession, that he has produced a revised one on a much larger scale. As it is his intention to keep this telephone card, which he has copyrighted, up to date, he will feel obliged for notification of omissions, errors, or alterations.

MR. EDITOR,—Your report for Salisbury last week says:—"The Two Dandies, coloured comedians, kept the audience in roars of laughter." It should be yours truly, THE TWO DANIELS.

IN our report of the Wallsend Theatre fire last week, it was stated that the scenery of Jeanie Deans was burnt. It was, however, the full plant of scenery, properties, and wardrobe belonging to The Voice of the People, valued at £300, that was destroyed. It had only been stored there three weeks, and was to have been removed on Monday last. Messrs. Dan F. Roe and F. B. Woulfe only purchased the piece last year, and it is most unfortunate that they should lose it so soon. The property was not insured.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual for 1906, 1s. 5, Tavistock-street, W.C. This useful little work, which brings nearly up to date the calendar of dramatic events which is so excellent a feature, is, as usual, full of stories over the signature of prominent stage lights. To those interested in the business of the theatre the work has become a necessity by reason of its valuable record of the progress of the drama.—Financial Times, Jan. 22, '06.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1906.
"The Era" Annual (1s.) is, of course, issued by our premier theatrical journal, which, under the literary supervision of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, has recently improved an already strong position. The Annual is better than ever, and includes, besides details of all plays produced in London, the provinces, Paris, and Berlin, lists of all theatres and music halls in the United Kingdom, &c., many stories and sketches by and portraits of actors and actresses. It is a remarkable shillingsworth; useful and interesting to all playgoers and members of the profession alike.—Sunday Sun, Jan. 21, '06.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).
Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.
Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1906.

CHORUS AT THE CRITERION.

It was quite a new sensation which Miss EDITH WYNNE MATTHISON gave to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion on Sunday—the spectacle of a fair and enthusiastic votary of the drama fervently proclaiming her faith in it, her devotion to it, and her high sense of the honour which accrues to the humblest servant of a noble calling. Miss MATTHISON carried her hearers up with her to a high altitude, where the air was perhaps too rarefied for the lungs of some of her audience. Yet so infectious was her enthusiasm, so powerful was the influence of her electric earnestness, that for the moment all were with her, heart and soul, in her lofty estimate of the art of which she is such a delightful exponent.

Miss MATTHISON'S theme was the Greek Chorus, which she, very naturally, somewhat idealised, in company with the Greek drama of which it was a part. "It must be remembered," said Miss MATTHISON, "that the theatre was the St. Peter's or the Westminster Abbey of ancient Athens; the drama was a religious rite; the Actors were celebrants; and Worship was an integral part of the production. Nor is this a matter for great surprise, seeing that the whole history and origin of Greek drama was worship of the god DIONYSOS, the giver of wine and enthusiasm. Our dramatic history followed very similar lines, originating in the Mysteries and Miracle plays of the mediæval Church."

This may be literally correct; but it is essentially misleading. The Greek religion was a very different thing from the Roman Catholicism of the Middle Ages. The former was a poetic expression of the Joy of Life, not an attempt at realising a condition of righteousness. It was so different from all that we conceive of a religious rite, that the "worship" to which Miss MATTHISON alludes—the sacred tipsiness of the Mænads—would seem to mediæval Christianity nothing but a scandalous debauch.

The Chorus represented the common mind of the nation, and the general sympathy of all mankind. It put the feelings of the ideal spectator into "beautiful language," and formulated his crude reflections into fine poetry. Miss MATTHISON is rather severe on modern entr'acte music. The Greek Chorus was not at all an equivalent of the modern musical orchestra. The Chorus occupied the local position held by the pit in the pre-stall period, and there it performed its dances, moving backwards and forwards during the choral songs. Opposite the middle of the stage, reached by a flight of steps, was a kind of altar called the Thymele; and the leader of the Chorus took his place on the top of this, so as to see what was passing upon the stage, and converse when necessary with the characters in the play. Can we imagine Mr. "JIMMIE" GLOVER jumping up on his conductor's stool at intervals in the performance of one of MR. HALL CAINE'S dramas, and making sententious comments on its personages and its incidents?

Miss MATTHISON was very complimentary to the Greeks in her lecture, but rather hard upon the moderns. The fact that Grecian audiences had not the bad habit of going out between the acts is easily accounted for both by the fact that the performances were "open-air" ones, and by the practice mentioned by Miss MATTHISON of "handing round wine and confectionery among the audience" instead of its having to go out to buffets. It is all very well to represent the Greeks as sacred and serious personages, wrapt in the contemplation of great tragic art; but they liked their "bit of fun" as much as any moderns, and their ginger was decidedly "hot i' the mouth." The very Chorus which Miss MATTHISON describes as so elevated in its spirit had to be "muzzled" when it came under the licentious influence of the Old Comedy; and a law had to be enacted which, as HORACE says, "put it into a disgraceful silence as soon as it was deprived of its right to injure." As for ARISTOPHANES—whose plays, be it remembered, were produced under the same system of subsidy as the most gloomy drama of ÆSCHYLUS—he was so gross and so scurrilous that very little idea of "religion" can possibly be associated with his memory; and what his contemporaries were like was proved by his boast that he was much more sparing than his rivals in the use of obscenities. "All this was lifted out of the merely personal and individual," says Miss MATTHISON, "by the State taking upon herself the control, the direction, and the support of dramatic productions"; but surely, with all allowance for national and temporal differences, the Lysistrata is not more moral or elevating than the pleasant musical plays in which Miss MATTHISON at one time took such a successful share. With all the faults that may be found with our SHAKESPEARE-worship, the nation that, however imperfectly, admires his works, and makes it possible for them to be played year after year, and again and again, need not be ashamed to compare itself with a public which in the end preferred to SOPHOCLES the sophistical EURIPIDES, who, by the way, made the Chorus an unessential ornament, with episodical songs having no reference to the action, quite in disobedience to the canon of ARISTOTLE, who said "the Chorus must be considered one of the actors, and as a part of the whole; it must co-operate with the action." We, at least, should never have allowed to continue a convention so absurd as that of actors wearing masks, even after the better way had been shown us by the bold and successful innovation of a ROSCIUS.

But all carping criticism was silenced by the sight and hearing, so keenly enjoyed by the audience at the Criterion on Sunday last, of a young and gifted actress, inspired by that noble enthusiasm which every artist should feel in her work, preaching in words of high and musical eloquence the doctrines of devotion to Art, of self-culture and self-control, of noble endeavour and great hopes. The time may come when many of Miss MATTHISON'S dreams shall become realities; and when, with our subsidised theatre and our classic drama, we shall revive the ancient glories of the Greeks—even the much-misunderstood Chorus. In the translation of a passage from Antigone which she introduced, Miss MATTHISON said:

Much is there marvellous, but naught more marvellous than man. Over the foaming sea in winter's wind he goes, moving among the waves that roar around. That greatest of the gods, the everlasting and unwearied earth, he wears away, wheeling his ploughshare through it year by year, forcing the mule to trace his furrow. The flocks of nimble birds he snares and makes his prey, the herds of savage beasts, and ocean's watery spawn, with netted coils—this ever-crafty man. He masters by his arts the creatures of the fields and of the hills. He brings the stiff-maned horse under his binding yoke, and stubborn mountain bull. Speech, too, and wind-swift thought, and social dispositions, these he learned; and how to avoid uncomfortable frosts.

If Miss MATTHISON could only tell managers this secret she would be conferring on them a priceless boon. How to avoid uncomfortable "frosts" is, indeed, what every entrepreneur would like to know.

Brigadier Gerard is a play which might easily have been misunderstood by an English audience. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's hero is a near relation of General Marbot, of the celebrated Memoirs. He has the comical vanity, the buoyant "swagger," which were traditional in the Napoleonic period, and were excused by the real valour of the soldiers of the Empire. The author calls his piece a "romantic comedy." Those who have lost their taste for tales of improbable adventure, for Dumas-like wonders and inventions, for alarms and excursions, for deeds of daring and extraordinary accidents, should avoid seeing Brigadier Gerard; but the great majority, with whom such fare is still "hot i' th' mouth," will greatly enjoy this alert, energetic, and exciting piece. And to enjoy it, one must give one's-self up to the spirit of the thing, and allow one's-self to be carried away by its bold exuberance. It is not, and it is not intended to be, analytic or intellectual; its hero is a man of action, and the play is frankly, winningly active and adventurous.

The story, in such a piece, is of prime importance. As everyone who has read "The Exploits of Brigadier Gerard" knows, the dashing hussar of Chamberont was the man whom Napoleon usually selected for any difficult duty requiring fearless courage, implicit obedience, and small subtlety. The hussars of Conflans are quartered in a farm-house near Fontainebleau, where Napoleon, whose army is retreating after the campaign of 1814, has his headquarters. These hussars are to be reinforced by the remains of the hussars of Chamberont, the captain of which, Gerard by name, is famous for his reckless audacity, and for his "tall" stories about his exploits. Olivier, the major of the Conflans hussars, a brutal bully, plans to draw Gerard out, and induce him to make himself ridiculous. When the captain discovers the trick, he challenges all the officers, beginning with Olivier, who eagerly accepts the chance of humiliating the newcomer. At this juncture, Napoleon, by the agency of a certain Colonel Guèrin, intrusts Gérard with the task of going to Paris, and obtaining certain important papers, which a faithful Napoleonist lady, the Comtesse de Roquelaure, has obtained from the archives. So the captain has to miss his duel, and appear to be a poltroon.

It happens that Gerard has already fallen in love with the charming Comtesse, whose life he once saved in a carriage accident. In Paris, Talleyrand is, as usual, sitting on the fence, prepared to throw in his lot either with the Allies or the Emperor, as policy may dictate. Gerard, in civilian attire, has a chat with the Comtesse's maid, and is directed by her to wait in the park outside till summoned by a signal. The Comtesse returns, and the precious papers are forcibly secured by Talleyrand's secretary and his agents. When, at last, Gerard is summoned, he swears to regain them at any cost.

The next act reminds one of the most audacious extravagances of Dumas, of Don César falling down the chimney, and of other inventions in old-fashioned French romantic drama. In Talleyrand's private salon stands a Russian cabinet, which the Prince of Benvenuto is about to return to the Emperor. We expect that much use will be made of this cabinet, and Sir Arthur does not disappoint us. First of all, Gérard, who is induced by a simple device to let himself be tied up à la the Davenport Brothers, is gagged and put into it, to be forwarded to Napoleon at Fontainebleau. The Comtesse comes in, hears Gérard's inarticulate cries, and releases him from his confinement. He conceals himself, and when Talleyrand, who returns, is engaged with the Comtesse, Gérard springs upon him, ties and gags him in turn, and locks him in the cabinet, going off disguised in the Prince's cloak.

There is more in this cloak than meets the eye; for, in a secret pocket in it, the artful diplomat carries the all-important documents which Gérard wants to get hold of. So, when the captain returns to Napoleon, he is in the odd position of having succeeded in his mission without knowing it. But an agent, sent by Talleyrand to make the best of matters, "lets the cat out of the bag;" and Gérard, who has been driven from the Emperor's presence with abuse, is praised by his chief, who makes him the Brigadier of the Conflans Hussars, the egregious Major Olivier—whom we should like to have seen punished by at least a thrust through the arm—having to acknowledge Gérard's supremacy as a swordsman.

Told in print, some of this tale seems quaint and childish enough; but admirably acted, and put on the stage of the Imperial Theatre with all possible care for accuracy in accessories, it sent the first night audience on Saturday into a state of demonstrative delight. We all know what Mr. Waller can do with a character of the Dumas Musketeer kind; and Gérard is only a variant on D'Artagnan. Taking the character for what it is, it could hardly have been more judiciously handled than it was by Mr. Waller on Saturday, for he infused a good deal of English solidity and strength into it which is not to be found in Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's novel. This was all for the best, for it must be confessed that the Gérard of the book is, and is meant to be, not a little absurd. Sir Arthur, in dramatising his book, has toned down the Brigadier's extravagances considerably; and Mr. Waller has caught the author's idea, and has carried it out very successfully. He plays the part in just the right vein—the dashing, swashing vein of the military hero of romance. He bears himself with fine gallantry, and his energy is always cleverly controlled. The representatives of Napoleon and Talleyrand have, as usual, to make those characters theatrically effective at all costs. There is probably no historical warrant for De Caulaincourt's moralising to Napoleon at Fontainebleau on the evils of unrestrained ambition; but it is believed that Lannes, on his death-bed, treated his master to a bitter homily on the subject, and Sir Arthur certainly has a right to imagine the aristocratic servant of the Emperor indulging in similar reflections—especially when things are going badly. Mr. A. E. George plays the part of Napoleon in a marked style, which creates a strong impression, all the famous traits of the Emperor's character—his brusque tyranny, his rudeness to women, and his rare touches of charm—being ably indicated. Mr. Edward O'Neill gives us many of the characteristics of the real Talleyrand, but of course has to sacrifice the sarcastic comedy of the epigrammatic diplomat to the necessities of melodramatic situation. He makes the compromise very adroitly, and retains—for which much thanks!—the Prince of Benvenuto's "presence," polish, and personal dignity. Mr. J. H. Irvine is excellent in every way as General de Caulaincourt; and Mr. Eric Scott is equally satisfactory as Colonel Guèrin. The rôles of the hussar officers are capitally cast and sharply distinguished. The chivalrous Colonel Bron is well represented by Mr. Owen Roughwood; and Mr. Frank Woolfe, with his stalwart figure and forcible features, makes his mark decidedly as Major Olivier. Mr. S. B. Brereton's Captain Sabattier is quaint and natural; and the rest of the Conflans men have quite competent representatives. A very incisive embodiment of the character of Mons. d'Albert is contributed by Mr. Shiel Barry, whose quick acuteness is both telling and praiseworthy; and Mr. Frank Cochrane contributes a sound and well-considered performance as Mons. Bassonpierre. Mr. Tom Heslewood hits off the callous spy, Pierre, quite intelligently; and Mr. T. Nutyon makes the most of his brief opportunity as the indignant French farmer, Lafitte. Mr. S. Marcus plays the Russian Chamberlain with easy confidence and a touch of quiet humour; and Mr. H. Ainger is bluntly characteristic as the Waggoner. Mr. John Byron enacts Trumpeter Papilette with natural and unobtrusive drollery; and Miss Helen Leyton is very pleasing as the Comtesse's attendant, Agnes. Miss Evelyn Millard has not too many chances as the Comtesse de Roquelaure, and the rôle is well within her capacity; but she employs her finished technique very valuably, looks remarkably picturesque, and makes the Comtesse as fair and feminine as can be desired. The attitude of the house was enthusiastically favourable, and the applause was so loud, and the demand for Mr. Waller's appearance so persistent, that he was obliged to briefly thank the audience for their warm reception of the play.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

Mr. Hugh J. Didcott writes:—"As it has been freely circulated in this week's daily papers that Miss Marie Lloyd is appearing shortly in Mr. Paul Rubens' successful musical comedy Mr. Pepple, which I learn is to be transferred to the Shaftesbury Theatre, will you please allow me to say that such is not a fact? It is only fair to the various managers of the variety theatres at which Miss Lloyd is engaged during this year to state that there is no foundation for such a report, and that she (in common with myself) is at a loss to understand how this inaccurate statement has originated."

An interesting turn is announced by Mr. Frank Glenister at the London Pavilion next week. Miss Jose Collins, daughter of Miss Lottie Collins, is to make her début on the stage of that popular West End house, whereat her mother scored some of her most notable successes in her earlier career, before she was snapped up for Gaiety burlesque. Miss Jose is a handsome girl, and is said to possess a large share of hereditary ability.

Miss Vesta Victoria has scored a great success upon her third visit to America. Mr. Percy Williams, with whom she is fulfilling her present engagement, says she has made the greatest success of any English artist. She will be welcome back to London at Whitsun.

Messrs. Fred and Michael Abrahams are again the proprietors of the Queen's Palace, Poplar, and can lay claim to the distinction of being the oldest music-hall managers in London. When Mr. Fred Abrahams came to the Metropolis from Nottingham, where he had been running the Polytechnic Music Hall, he took possession of the Oriental, High-street, Poplar, then a music hall, and ran it as a theatre. This was in 1867. Here the late Mr. G. H. Macdermott played heavy parts in the stock company at a salary of one guinea a week, being brought to London by Mr. Michael Abrahams. Later the establishment was enlarged, and renamed the Queen's, Poplar. Mr. Jack Woolf, of Wonderland, who is the nephew of the proprietors, will be the new manager of the Queen's, which opens at Easter on the two-houses-a-night principle.

The new tube railway from Baker-street to Waterloo, reaching as far as Kennington-road, which opens to-day, with stations at Oxford Circus, Trafalgar-square, and Piccadilly Circus, will be an immense convenience to amusement lovers, both in North-west and South London, as it "touches" some of the most important theatres and music halls in the West. His Majesty's, the Haymarket, the Comedy, the Prince of Wales's, and the Criterion Theatres, with the London Pavilion and the Empire, are served by the Piccadilly-circus station; and the Trafalgar-square station may be said to be close to the Coliseum, the Duke of York's, the New, Wyndham's, the Alhambra, the Hippodrome, and other establishments.

The Variety Artists' Federation was established on February 18 last. It is affiliated to the International Artists' Lodge. Its objects, briefly stated, are to abolish abuses detrimental to the interests of the profession, to establish an old-age pension fund, to give free legal advice and protection to all members, and in the event of the death of a member to make a levy of 3d. or 6d. on each federated variety artist to defray the funeral expenses and assist the widow or children. The entrance fee is 2s. 6d., and the weekly subscription 6d. Mr. W. H. McCarthy is the hon. treasurer pro tem., and all fees and donations should be forwarded to him at the Vaudeville Club, 98, Charing Cross-road, W.C. Donations ranging from £100 to £1 1s. have been received from the leading members of the profession.

Mr. Charles Hector has resigned his position as general manager of the London, Collins's, and the Cambridge—the L.C.C. halls, as they are called—and is succeeded in that position by Mr. Wade, late of the Metropolitan. Mr. Hector carried away with him a handsome silver cigar case, suitably inscribed, presented to him by Mr. Reynolds on behalf of the staff at Collins's.

In consequence of the previously announced title Variety Fair being vested in others, Mr. Arthur Shirley's 100th piece, to be produced at the Coliseum on Monday, has been renamed The Troubles of Tuffin. The following well-known artists will be found in the cast:—Geoffrey Tuffin, Mr. M. R. Morand; the Second Mrs. Tuffin, Miss Millicent Marsden; Connie, Miss Clarissa Talbot; Percy, Mr. Charles Trevor; Algy, "the man about town," Mr. George Lashwood; and Vincent Crummles (1906), Mr. William Morgan. The Boisset Pantomimists, the Ten Loonies, Miss Millie Hylton, Mr. Eugene Stratton, Miss Belle Davis and her piccaninnies, also share the adventures of Mr. Tuffin. Miss Decima Brooks, who until recently was appearing with Mr. Seymour Hicks at the Waldorf Theatre, has been specially engaged to sing "My Daisiest Daisy" with Miss Ella Shields.

The offer recently made by the management of the Alhambra of a grand gala performance in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relief of the prevailing destitution in Japan—an almost inevitable aftermath of our noble ally's strenuous struggle for security—has not only been accepted by our First Magistrate, but is to enjoy the patronage and presence of the Japanese Ambassador. The date will be shortly announced.

Mr. Joseph Howell, whose testimonial matinée at the Tivoli is announced for the 26th inst., has received a handsome cheque from the directors of the Alhambra, where he held the position of acting-manager and treasurer for eleven years. An influential committee, of which the chairman is Mr. G. A. Payne, assures the success of this well deserved benefit. It includes Messrs Joseph Wilson (hon. secretary and treasurer), Albert Gilmer, Charles Beecham, Jack Edgar, Frank Glenister, Fred Miller, Fred McAvoy, Edward Swanborough, Frank Weeks, Henry Tozer, Richard Warner, Count Max Hollender, Frank Allen, George Ashton, Henri Gros, Joe Lyons, J. L. Graydon, T. Ernest Polden, Oswald Stoll, Tom Barrasford, Joseph Davis, Walter de Frece, Arthur Collins, Willie Clarkson, Alfred Butt, A. J. Barclay, George Barclay, H. Woodford, George Scott, Herbert Blackmore, and a number of others.

The Oxford announces its thirteenth anniversary for Friday next, when the fine programme will include George Robey, G. H. Chirgwin, Bert Gilbert, Ernest Shand, Will Evans, Queenie Leighton, Billy Farrell, Victoria Monks, Alexandra Dagmar, Violet Elliott, Kelly and Gillette, Joe Elvin, Eugenie Fougere, Price and Revost, Dolly Harmer, Fred Russell, and Arthur Roberts in Naughty Nero. This annual is one of the most interesting events of the year in the variety theatres.

Miss Nellie Wallace, we are pleased to hear got through her rather serious operation on Monday last at Ipswich, and is now on the high road to a speedy recovery.

Since Mr. Fisher produced his now famous "Miniature Operas" at the South London, there is scarcely a hall without some operatic item on its bill, truly a great compliment to this gentleman's ingenuity. We are glad to note that he brings his "Pocket Opera Company" to the Empress, Brixton, next week.

The Prince of Wales Theatre of Varieties, Grove-street, Edinburgh, opens on Monday next, under the management of Messrs. Leckie and Hardie, with Mr. J. W. Hardie as general-manager. Everything will be done to ensure success.

Mr. T. P. Duignan, who for the last two years has been associated with Signor Pepi as manager of the Blackpool Hippodrome, has been appointed by the proprietors general-manager for the ensuing season. His numerous friends will wish him every success.

The annual meeting of Warden, Ltd., was held on Tuesday in the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Belfast, Mr. H. C. Kelly presiding. The attendance included about twenty shareholders. The report of the directors and the statement of accounts for the year were adopted. A dividend on the Preference shares for the six months ending July 31, 1905, was authorised, and Mr. Wm. M'Ildowie was appointed a director in the room of Mr. Fred Mouillot, resigned. A resolution was passed appointing a committee of shareholders, consisting of Messrs. Robert Walsh, Samuel Ross, and Neeson, to investigate the affairs of the company, and to report to a meeting to be held two months hence.

For some months work has been proceeding on the site of the old Star Theatre in Bilston-street, Wolverhampton, a building intimately associated with things theatrical in the town. The old house, with its accompanying licenses, was acquired by Messrs. Butler and Co., and no expense has been spared in constructing the new Hippodrome. Although it will not be opened until Easter Monday, an idea of the sumptuous and costly nature of the decorations and furnishings can be given. The colour scheme is carried out in crimson and white, picked out in gold, and the wall paper is the most expensive procurable, being equal in price to silk hangings. The latest thing in tip-up chairs and the most perfect arrangement in things sanitary are to be introduced.

The general idea of the house is, as already suggested, more on the lines of a theatre than a music hall, and as a theatre licence has been obtained, legitimate pieces may be staged if desirable, and the vexed question of stage plays in the music halls will not trouble the management. There are stalls, pit, dress circle, and gallery, each supplied with a cosy and comfortable bar. An attractive canopy is to be erected at the entrance to the dress circle, whilst the entrance hall itself is to be on artistic and spacious lines. There are four boxes, and the hangings to these, as well as the material for the curtain, are of gold appliqué work.

Messrs. Butler and Co. have let the hall to Mr. Walter de Frece, husband of Miss Vesta Tilley, and the manager will be a gentleman who has been engaged in a similar capacity at Cardiff. The majority of the well-known "stars" of the variety world have been booked, and we understand that Miss Vesta Tilley will top the bill on the opening night.

Dr. Walford Bodie finished last week at the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, after a two-weeks' unprecedented success. On the Saturday night both houses were packed at early-door prices. The Doctor brought on the stage a large number of his most successful cases, treated by him on his last visit to the Lyric, who had been all discharged from the leading London hospitals. Each case as it was introduced brought down the house, the audience cheering again and again. At the conclusion Dr. Bodie was presented with several cheques, which he used in paying for new boots to the new patients, and medicine, &c. Police-constable J. Chesters, No. 94, D Division, came forward and presented Dr. Bodie with an illuminated address on behalf of himself and many admirers, for the wonderful cure of his son, who had been paralysed nine years.

This week the Doctor has returned to the Tivoli, Leeds, and is beating his old record, the vast hall being packed nightly to overflowing. Mr. Barrasford on Tuesday night came from his private box during Dr. Bodie's demonstration, and complimented him, stating as a guarantee of good faith to the audience that Dr. Bodie had worked with him at various periods for the last fifteen years. Mr. Barrasford was loudly cheered. The Doctor has again captured the hearts of the Leeds community.

As the result of the great Bodie matinée given at the Lyric Theatre, Liverpool, last week, over £40 will be handed over to local charities.

The Grand Palace Theatre of Varieties, Colchester, which is now under the management of Messrs. Mouillot and De Frece, will open again on Monday. It will be run on the plan of two shows a night, and one of the leading turns in the first week's programme will be Lockhart's Elephants.

Miss Kitty Woodford proved herself very popular with her Canine Circus and Orchestra at the Opera House, Tunbridge Wells, last week, her clever and pretty performance being the talk of the town. On Thursday afternoon (by request) Miss Woodford consented to give an exhibition with a few of her pets to the juvenile inmates of the General Hospital. Needless to say the performance was much appreciated, and greatly delighted the little ones. On Saturday night, at the conclusion of her turn, she was presented with a handsome clock, artistically mounted on a dog's back, as a souvenir, the gift of Mr. Urquhart, of the Castle Hotel, a well-known prominent citizen of th town.

Mr. Gus Elen, who is playing to packed houses on a successful provincial tour, is motoring to each town in which he is engaged. Lately he has had his car re-upholstered and repainted, and it is, practically speaking, new. In it he has travelled 14,500 miles. He will commence a fortnight's holiday on the 19th at Fordingbridge and Dulverton, where he hopes to enjoy some trout fishing.

Under distinguished patronage a highly-successful matinée performance was given at the Brighton Hippodrome on Tuesday in support of the Brighton Police-aided scheme for clothing destitute children. The artists who assisted included Miss Nellie Beryl, Miss Rosalie Jacobi, Miss May Mars, Miss Haidée Wright, Mr. Charles Bertram, Mr. Ernest Carpenter, Mr. James Coward, Mr. Vivian Foster, Mr. Shandos George, Mr. Arthur Glenroy, the Lowenwith Brothers, Mr. P. Yelland Padovan, Mr. Harry Ford, Mr. Carson Hicks, Les Louberts, Elverton, the Donatos, the Musical Jees, Miss Diana Hope and Co., Mr. Harry Lawson, Tate and Tate, Hunt and Thomas, Mlle. Von-Etta, Amy Elcock, the Mackweys, the Arleys, and J. W. Rickaby; and the police band, which was under the direction of Mr. W. J. Fleet, played pleasing selections. Mr. W. B. Gentle, Chief Constable of Brighton, gave an interesting sketch of the good work done by the Borough Police in connection with the scheme. The Mayor of Brighton (Alderman Colbourne) presented Mrs. Barrasford with a beautifully illuminated address as a recognition of her kindness in granting the use of the Hippodrome gratis for the benefit of the scheme. That lady gracefully responded, and announced the receipt of a telegram from her husband, Mr. Thomas Barrasford, whose name was included in the address, expressing the hope that the matinée would prove successful.

Mrs. Bennett, who has recently been delighting her transpontine admirers at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, has been engaged by Mrs. Clement Scott to appear in Mr. Cecil Raleigh's bio-dramatic sketch, The Diamond Express.

Miss Peggy Pryde (Mrs. George Pearson) has just undergone a very severe operation at Miss Ryan's Surgical Home, Knatchbull-road, Camberwell. We are pleased to hear that she is getting on very nicely. Mr. Pearson wishes to thank the popular lady's many friends for their kind enquiries.

There was a great crowd of friends and Terriers at Liverpool-street Station, on Friday, the 2nd, to see Mr. Slade Murray off to Australia. Amongst those present were Messrs. Joe Lawrence, J. E. Dunedin, C. Cornish, W. Welsh, E. Brett, A. Dodson, P. Madden, and Harry Lester (Secretary).

Another big crowd assembled at Waterloo on Saturday to witness the departure of the Dunedin Troupe to America. The anthems of the Order were sung with gusto by Messrs. C. Gardener, W. H. Atlas, Harry Lester, B. Woodger, P. Madden, A. H. Hopter, and H. Fouraher. Also on the platform were the Creo Brothers, Minting, Mr. Potter, Mr. Elmo, Miss Alicia Maine, Miss Simmons, Miss Coombs, and Miss Shackleford.

All variety artists will regret to hear that Mr. W. Skinner, the stage-manager of the Empress, Brixton, passed away on Saturday evening at 9.20. The deceased was held in high esteem amongst the members of the profession, and was only last week presented with a purse of gold from several artists, headed by Mr. Joe Elvin. Mr. Alec Hurley also presented him with a diamond pin. Mr. Skinner opened at the Empress as stage-manager when Mr. E. V. Page directed the fortunes of the hall, and Mr. Nelson Francis, the present manager, was treasurer and secretary. He was for many years at Drury-lane, and also with Mr. Isaac Cohen. He leaves a widow, at present seriously ill, and a daughter, Mrs. John Lawson, to mourn his loss. The interment took place at Tooting on Thursday.

Mr. Charles Wilmott, the author of several Britannia pantomimes, has written, and Henry E. Pether has composed, a charming ballad, entitled "The Rose of My Heart." The morceau will shortly be issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. The verses, which enshrine a truly beautiful idea, are set to a melody which will yet further enhance the reputation of the composer of "Rainbow."

The effects of various unusual foods on the human system has ever been a subject for scientists to dwell on in treatises, but shortly Mr. Fred Earle will deal with the question in comic song. In his forthcoming ditty, "Birdseed," the comedian (who is supposed to be a dealer in domestic pets and small live-stock generally) will relate how, at different times, his absent-minded wife cooked for him by mistake the foodstuffs intended by Nature for bird, beast, or fish, and what ensued thereon. The song is by Edgar Bateman and Henry F. Greenfield. Mr. Earle is now singing, with the greatest possible success on his present provincial tour, a song written and composed by Harry Wincott, and entitled "What a Funny Place to Have One."

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received a cheque for £5 from Mr. J. Macready Chute, being part proceeds of the charity matinée at Bristol; also the sum of £1 10s. from Messrs. Fortune and Granville, and 11s. 6d. from Mr. Arthur Barclay, Walthamstow Palace; also collections by Mr. J. Rowley £1 11s., Harry Kilburn £1 0s. 6d., Dan Thomas £1 9s. 6d., Gwennie Hasto 18s., Ethel Dore 5s., and W. J. Churchill 5s. The president and committee beg to publicly thank these ladies and gentlemen for their kind efforts on behalf of the fund, which is very much in need of contributions.

Mr. Tom Brantford, the well-known comedian and mimic, should have appeared on Thursday for examination at the Wandsworth Bankruptcy Court. He attributes his failure as a jobmaster to motor-car and electric tram competition. As the debtor wrote from Manchester saying he had a professional engagement there, the case was adjourned.

Mr. Harry Mountford and Miss Maude Walsh (Mountford and Walsh) leave Waterloo Station this morning at 11.30 o'clock for South Africa. Their friends will meet at 11 o'clock to give them a "send-off" and to wish them bon voyage and success.

Mr. Charles Penrose, who recently made such a success on the London halls, has been suffering from severe throat trouble, but resumes work on Monday. Messrs. Francis and Day have secured the publishing rights of his humorous song, "Oh! Who says so?"

Miss Gipsy Wolff and her piccaninnies are still scoring a great success on the Continent. Re-engagements were offered at the Hansa Theatre, Hanover, and again at the Apollo, Berlin, where the clever little lady remains for another five weeks.

Miss Maude Courtney sailed on the 7th as a saloon passenger on board the R.M.S. Majestic. Miss Courtney will remain in America until the end of April. On May 7 she reopens in this country on the Moss and Stoll tour.

Miss Marie Kendall will have the sympathy of a wide circle of professional friends in the loss of her mother, who passed away on Saturday at the age of fifty-four.

The 453rd meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the offices of the Association. Mr. Joe O'Gorman (chairman) presided, and there were also present Messrs. Charles McConnell, Albert Le Fre (vice-president), Jeff Vendome, Wal Pink, and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. A number of letters were read and dealt with. One of these was from Mr. Frank Gerald stating that, as a member of the committee, he was strongly opposed to the return of Mr. George Gray's cheque for £1,000, as, though the committee had deemed Mr. Gray's scheme as a whole impracticable, yet several of his suggestions had been carried into the new organisation, the V.A.F., and, further, in the event of the latter becoming affiliated with the M.H.A.R.A., which had already occurred in connection with the I.A.L., the loan of £1,000 without interest might be very serviceable. If his suggestion met with the approval of any member, he would ask him to put it in the form of a motion.

The chairman said that the question of the return of Mr. Gray's cheque had been adjourned from the last meeting, and again there was only a small attendance. Mr. Le Fre said he did not see that any harm could be done by retaining the cheque. It was a good sporting offer on Mr. Gray's part. He suggested that the matter should be further postponed. Mr. Wal Pink said that some portions of Mr. Gray's scheme were excellent, but other proposals were, he thought, impossible. He believed that was the feeling of the majority of the members. It was agreed that the consideration of the question should be further postponed. The secretary reported that forty-seven new members had joined during the week, and the financial statement for the same period showed an amount of £45 11s.

The annual ball of the Grand Order of Water Rats will be held as usual at the Trocadero on Tuesday, March 20.

The numerous friends of Mr. Frank Gerald will be sorry to hear that he met with a serious accident on Thursday evening, the 1st, at Chelsea Palace. During the performance of Captain Starlight his famous mare Wiapera stumbled and fell upon him. The favourite equestrian actor is slowly recovering at Teddington.

The fourth annual benefit matinée, on the 1st inst., at the Bedford, Camden Town, in aid of the North-West London Hospital, drew a large house. Among the audience were Sir William Collins, M.P. for West St. Pancras, and the Mayor and Corporation of St. Pancras, who attended in state, a guard of honour being formed by the 17th (North) Middlesex Rifles. Mr. Alfred Craske, the secretary of the hospital, read a telegram from Mr. B. Pearce Lucas, the managing-director, who was unable to be present in consequence of the death of his mother. Mr. A. F. Lovesy, the manager, in a speech was able to announce the generous donation of two guineas from Miss Marie Lloyd.

Frank Lester and company will appear at the London next week in Fritz Zorn's new farcical sketch In the Cupboard. The little piece met with an enthusiastic reception on its production at Collins's a fortnight since, and as a consequence has promptly been booked for the Shoreditch house. Mr. Frank Lester will again portray Gulper, and will be supported as before by Miss Mary Thorne, Miss Ina Rozant, and Mr. Fred Dobell.

Mr. Will Bennet, the popular Press representative of the Coliseum, entertained a merry party on Saturday, the twenty-first (?) anniversary of his birthday. The hieroglyphical cards of invitation, full of "spirited" and graphic comedy, were designed by Louis Smythe, well known in Carmelite House. On Tuesday, Mr. Will Bishop, the well-known director of the Coliseum stage-dancing, also had a birthday—"age unknown." On the card of invitation, drawn by Mr. B. Brown, of The News of the World, Mr. Bishop, cigar in mouth, wearing a short skirt, is doing the "rocks" on a champagne bottle, the orchestra being conducted by the aforesaid Bennet.

Messrs. Chadwick and Sons will sell by auction on the 27th inst. the scenery used in the realistic panorama for the voyage on the Mediterranean at the Earl's Court Exhibition, a graphic portrayal of the Roman Forum, shown at the same exhibition, two Gatling guns, seven ship's boats, eight genuine Venetian gondolas, a valuable miniature railway, and other surplus effects belonging to the London Exhibitions, Ltd.

Mr. Charles Collette, who concludes a most successful return engagement at the London Pavilion, will appear on Monday and during the week twice a night at the Chelsea Palace in his brilliant comedy sketch Tea for Two, supported, as heretofore, by the charming young actress Miss Helen Perry.

It is with deep regret that we hear of the tragic death of Miss Marie Clifford at Boston (Lincs.), who was burned to death there on March 2. The unfortunate lady was in the habit of reading in bed, and it is supposed that she was reaching across to the candle by her bedside when her nightdress sleeve became ignited. She was taken immediately to the cottage hospital, but succumbed to her terrible injuries. Her charming disposition made her exceedingly popular with everyone in the profession, and she will be regretted by all who knew her. The deceased lady was a remarkably clever pianist, and was one of the first to introduce ladies' orchestras into this country, having toured for years with her Spanish ladies' orchestras.

The funeral took place on Monday and was attended by her husband, Dr. Seaton, her sisters Edith and Gertrude, and numerous friends. The coffin was literally covered with lovely flowers, including wreaths from her husband, her mother, her sister Edith, her sister Gertrude, George Saphrima, the members of Dr. Seaton's company, and others.

Mr. G. H. Chirgwin has sent to Miss Nellie Wilson a very kind letter and a guinea for the Music Hall Home Fund. It will be pleasantly remembered that Miss Wilson made the record collection for the Fund last year.

Mr. Dan Conroy, who has finished a four-months tour with consderable success, returns to town on Monday.

Mr. Mark Melford's fictive creation has been plagiarised in a remarkable manner by fact! On May of last year Mr. Melford invented and wrote a sketch called The Phantom Footpad, in which an absent-minded Roman Catholic priest, returning home late at night, is hustled in the darkness by a passing stranger. Immediately he misses his watch from his pocket, and recalling the rumour of a reputed footpad, hurries back, and, overtaking the retreating man, claps his pipe-case to his head and demands the watch. In evident terror the supposed robber hands out timepiece, and decamps. The Rev. Father arrives safely home, chuckling with satisfaction, only to find his own watch safe in his writing-desk.

Six months later, the following appeared in a contemporary:—"Chicago has recently experienced a remarkable number of highway robberies, with the result that many persons have taken to carrying revolvers for self-protection. One of the favourite haunts of the footpad is a long subway running under the lines of the North-Western Railway. Mr. Hobart Allen, a business man, was recently returning through the subway on his way home late at night, and had almost reached the end of the tunnel when a man suddenly pushed by him and took to his heels. Mr. Allen felt for his watch and found it was gone. He turned and gave chase to the thief, whom he succeeded in overtaking in the tunnel. Drawing his revolver he shouted, 'Hand over that watch, or I will blow your brains out.' The man made another attempt to escape, but Mr. Allen followed and forced him against the wall, saying, 'I'll give you another chance.' Without further words the fugitive handed him a watch and again ran off. Mr. Allen went home and told his wife of his adventure. She replied, 'Why, your watch is on the dressing-table. You left it there this morning.' Mr. Allen is still looking for the unfortunate man whom he robbed."

Messrs. Maskelyne and Devant's programme at St. George's Hall gives an opportunity for more than usually bright and effective dresses. Mr. David Devant's three assistants, who vanish and re-appear at the sound of his wonderful gong, are now seen in Burmese costumes—a vast improvement on the ordinary unromantic English clothes they used to wear. The two Japanese performers vie with each other in brilliant colouring and rich embroideries, Mr. M. C. Tamamoto going through his extraordinary feats on the wire in vivid poppy-red satin, and Mr. Gintaro juggling in the brightest canary-yellow silk. Even the Mascot Moth has changed the colour of her dainty drapery and fluttering wings, and looks more mysterious than ever in faint pink gauze. Miss Dora Devant gives her thought-reading experiments in a long black robe, and Miss Cassie Bruce shows, in a peach-coloured evening dress, that a strictly up-to-date fashionable frock can still be as pretty as a picture.

The monthly committee meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund will be held on Wednesday next at the York Hotel.

Mr. Lyndon Greenwood, who was recently assistant-manager under Mr. R. L. Adken, has now been made manager of the Islington Empire in succession to the latter gentleman.

Mr. Jack Woolf, the new manager of the Queen's, Poplar, will be pleased to see friends and artists at Wonderland any Sunday after 6 p.m.

The anniversary number of The New York Clipper—a fine example of the printer's art—contains a page of portraits of the principals of the American music-publishing houses, and includes likenesses of Mr. David Day and Mr. Fred Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Labola (Rose Cabani) sailed for Australia on Friday morning by the s.s. Omrah to fulfil an engagement with Mr. Harry Richards. They will be away for about six months, and send greetings to all friends. The engagement was booked by the energetic Pacey and Reeves.

Miss Jessie Albini has acquired for early production a smart and catchy number, entitled "Now She's a Goddess of Fortune," which is from the joint pens of Messrs. Bert M. Megson and Illingworth Moorwood.

Miss Daisy Dormer, aptly described by Mr. Oswald Stoll as the daintiest of coon impersonators, has been suffering from a severe cold, and has not been able to appear at the Palace or Metropolitan this week. She has now recovered, and opens at both places on Monday with her latest sucess, "I Want a Girl," by George Collins and Edgar Bateman. The song is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Barrett and Knowles were presented at the termination of their successful pantomime engagement at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, last Friday, with a full complement of golf requisites by the Glasgow Rangers F.C. and a few private friends.

Some remarkably clear and interesting pictures are being exhibited on the Palace bioscope, illustrating winter sports at Adelboden, Switzerland. Every form of out-door recreation obtainable in a Swiss mountain resort during winter is shown, including ski-ing, tobogganing, curling, and skating, the last-named sport lending itself to a very exciting game of musical chairs on the ice, in which several dozens of English girls and young men are engaged. In consequence of the great popularity of Miss Millie Legarde's song, "How'd you like to spoon with me?" she has been specially re-engaged for the coming week.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who has been suffering from a severe cold, was compelled to cancel her engagements both at the Metropolitan and at Ealing this week by the orders of her medical adviser. The popular American soprano has for some time been suffering from the strain imposed upon her by her continuous engagements, and it is probable that in the near future she will follow out the suggestion of her doctor, and take a short sea voyage to the Canary Islands in order to completely recruit her health.

Dolly and Madge McCalla, who recently made a success as the Babes at the Camden Theatre, are winning favour nightly at the Camberwell Palace with "Carrie from Camden Town," and "The Bamboo Bungalow," both published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

Mr. Tom Pacey offers his handsome motor-car for sale. It is an eleven horse-power Clement, with Tonneau body, is upholstered in white leather, with Mechlin tyres, and seats five. It has been specially built, and the only reason for selling it is that the owner has bought a four-cylinder of the same make. The price is £200.

Miss Dolly Harmer has been deputising with great success at the Tivoli both for Little Tich and Miss Jessie Preston.

We regret to announce that Mr. Walter Groves, the well-known comedian, died at Blackpool on Sunday at the age of forty-one years, after an illness which seized him shortly before Christmas. For many years Mr. Groves has played principal comedy parts in pantomime all over the Kingdom. He was engaged with Mr. Robert Courtneidge at the Grand Theatre at Glasgow last Christmas, and it was in consequence of his indisposition at the time that he visited Blackpool with the hope of benefiting by the change. But he unfortunately became worse, and hæmorrhage of the lungs setting in, he passed peacefully away on Sunday evening. At one time Mr. Groves achieved considerable success with a small sketch, Artful Jim, with which he toured the provinces, and among other comedies in which he played were The Artist's Model and A Night Out. He was also the original Sergeant Lightning in the popular music-hall sketch His Majesty's Guests. He was a native of Manchester, and leaves a widow and two children to mourn his loss. The funeral took place at Brooklands Cemetery on Thursday.

The annual Charity Carnival, now quite an institution in Sunderland, was held on the 28th ult. The venue this year was again the Avenue Theatre, kindly granted by Mr. Chas. E. Machin, who has been a warm supporter of this cause since its inception. During the morning a band paraded the principal streets of the borough, and collecting boxes added materially to the funds. At the matinée held in the theatre, the members of the companies engaged at various theatres and halls in the adjoining towns of Newcastle and South Shields, as well as those from the local "houses," brought up the number to close upon forty "turns." The audience was a large and highly-appreciative one, and the whole of the amount realised, without any deduction, goes to the fund. It is hoped that this year's total will not fall far short of that of former years, during which period the promoters have succeeded in raising no less a sum than £1700 for local and theatrical charities.

As an incentive for emulation prizes were offered to the ladies who assisted as vendors and collectors, the principal presents being awarded as follows:—Outside collectors.—First prize, a fine white fur stole, Mrs. Hemingway (wife of the manager of the Theatre Royal); second prize, silver photograph frame, Mrs. Elliott (wife of Mr. "Billy" Billy Elliott, Cinderella Co.). Inside collectors, &c.—First prize, a travelling clock, Miss M. Rees (principal boy Cinderella Co.); second prize, a gold bangle bracelet, Mrs. Hemingway. Book collectors.—First prize, a dressing case, Miss Meredith (Cinderella Co.); second prize, hand bag, Miss Mitchell (Cinderella Co.).

Mr. Bert Harrow ("That's Me"), who is playing the principal comedy part (Simple Simon) with Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth's Little Red Riding Hood, terminates a most successful run of eleven weeks to-day.—George Hyam and Nellie Rose have just concluded a successful pantomime engagement as principal comedian and Princess with the Marvellous Pardoe's Cinderella. They are re-engaged.—Owing to the success of Mr. D'Arcy Clayton's "Gipsies" last week at the Bournemouth Winter Gardens, where they drew crowded houses, Mr. Dan Godfrey has booked them for two return weeks early next year.—Mr. Syd Herman, the popular Hebrew comedian, has just secured a good number in "Casey's Wedding Night," a Hebrew song.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

After a postponement of a week or two Mr. Alfred Butt produced at the Palace on Monday the musical comedietta by Edward Ferris, entitled

"MADAME LINGERIE."

Sir Edward Broke .....MR. FRED EASTMAN
Billie .....MR. CYRIL KINGSLEY
Nathaniel Gluckenstein ....MR. HARRY GODFREY
Lady Broke .....MISS VIOLET LORAINE

It forms a bright and cheery addition to a programme of which the main feature is comedy, and in the way of mounting we have seen on the variety stage nothing more complete and up to date than Mme. Lingerie's show-room, which is tenanted by prettily-dressed customers and show-room girls. The book is from the pen of Mr. Edward Ferris, whose lyrics are neatly written. The anonymous composer is also responsible for some melodious numbers. The lady of the title, who belongs to society, has gone into business as a costumier, the reason of this step being possibly that she is separated from her husband, Sir Edward Broke, who makes his appearance at his wife's establishment as an unrecognisable motorist and in other disguises. Lady Broke, or Mme. Lingerie, is apparently quite content to accept the marked attentions of her cousin Billie without troubling herself about Sir Edward; but the advent of a broker's man promises unpleasant proceedings, from which she is saved by Sir Edward's announcement that he has been left a large fortune by a relative in America. Miss Violet Loraine, who made such a hit in the Palace revue, has in Lady Broke a part that exactly suits her capabilities. She carries herself with a distinguished air, is smart in her acting, and sings with considerable archness and expression. Miss Loraine models her style on the best lady exponents of musical comedy, and wins admiration by her charm and cleverness. She has a capital number in "Don't tell me," the lines of which are animated by sly humour, and she scores also in "The smartest girl in town." Her success in the duet, "You're just too sweet," is shared by Mr. Cyril Kingsley, who displays cultivation and a sympathetic voice in the part of Billie. The opportunities of Nathaniel Gluckenstein, the broker's man, a part that is effectively played by Mr. Harry Godfrey, might be increased. Mr. Fred Eastman, a humorous and resourceful comedian, has a topical song that should become the hit of the production, and makes the most of his chances. The dresses are as pretty as their wearers, and that is saying a great deal. Mr. Butt may be congratulated on the production, which increases in favour nightly. The choruses go extremely well under the direction of Mr. Herman Finck, whose orchestra does complete justice to the music.

Mr. Alfred Lester, who came so rapidly to the front as a humorist in "The Scene-Shifter's Lament," has returned to the Palace with a new monologue, entitled "The Labour M.P." This should work up into a great success when elaborated with a few more amusing gags. A sketch which has come to stay in London is The Would-be Actors, which was fully described in our columns last week. Miss Lilian Rosebery and Mr. Carter Livesey, the one as a melodramatic heroine and the other as a Yorkshire stage-manager, are intensely funny, and they receive excellent support from Mr. Albert Mason, who cuts a comical figure as the extremely inoffensive and mild-mannered villain. Mr. G. H. Chirgwin's engagement has been lengthened, much to the delight of Palace patrons, with whom he is an immense favourite. Mr. Johnny Fuller as the cat on the wire astonishes by his agility in the early portion of the evening; Estellita is a young and attractive Spanish dancer, who follows in the footsteps of La Tortajada, Guerrero, and other Iberian performers; Mr. Arthur Prince is still facile princeps in the technique of the ventriloquial art; and Mr. J. P. Ling is an entertainer possessing considerable comic ability, which is shown in his imitation of an inebriated amateur reciting Longfellow's "The Wreck of the Hesperus"; and Mr. Michael Braham opens the programme with his performing dog. We have recently fully commented on Miss Millie Legarde's success in the American song, "Woudn't you like to spoon with me?" Mr. Herman Finck's fine orchestra and the Biograph are other attractions in an excellent programme.

THE LYCEUM.

One of the best items in the current programme at the Lyceum is Mr. Frank Dix's new farce, entitled The Lady in Red, which has already received the favourable verdict of provincial audiences. The dialogue is very bright and telling, while the complete absence of vulgarity is a pleasing feature of the new production. Indeed The Lady in Red is quite a model of the kind of piece most likely to find favour with a variety theatre audience, the fun being briskly sustained from beginning to end. The plot turns upon the nocturnal adventures of a married man, who gives as an excuse for returning home at breakfast-time that he lost his way in the fog. He also came to the assistance of a young lady, who was his companion in a cab ride. The thick fog, however, proved too much for the driver, and he, too, lost his way. The lady was dressed in red, but the gentleman failed to get a glimpse of her features. He narrates the adventures of the night to the page boy, William, who expresses a doubt whether "the missus" will believe the story. Presently, William announces the arrival of the lady in red, much to the consternation of her late companion in the cab ride; and fearing that his wife will make her appearance at any moment, the newcomer is compelled to beat a hasty retreat for the time being. Eventually, however, the ladies meet, and Dora greets Cora, the lady in red, most affectionately, for she is no other than her sister. But before this happens William makes himself ill by swallowing a quanity of benzine which he mistakes for whisky, and also suffers considerable damage at the hands of "the missus" for attempting, at the request of his master, to keep her a prisoner in her bedroom. The part of William is played by Mr. Tom Craven, who gives an exceedingly laughable embodiment of the unfortunate youth. His catch phrase, "I don't think I shall like this place," causes a laugh every time he gives utterance to it. Mr. Craven is well supported by Mr. Picton Roxborough as the much-worried husband; while the ladies' parts are also capitally played by two artists whose names do not appear on the programme.

Lovers of good music welcome the selection from the opera of Faust. Miss Dora Barrington, as Marguerite, makes excellent use of her charming soprano voice; Mr. Scarborough, who appears as Faust, is a good tenor vocalist; and Mr. G. A. Fox, baritone, is an imposing Mephistopheles. Ford and Barris, legmania dancer and organist, are the two lads who a few weeks ago were performing in the streets of London when they attracted the attention of Mr. Thomas Barrasford, who at once booked them for the principal halls in the United Kingdom. Ford is a very smart dancer indeed, and his performance evokes loud applause. In connection with this turn a street-dancing competition is being given at the Lyceum this week, the competitors including boys and girls as well as adult aspirants for prizes. Coram, a ventriloquist who has recently come to the front, continues to afford much amusement with his single figure, which is very cleverly worked. Mr. Harold Hughman is an American mimic, who scores with his imitations of a quarrel between a bull-dog and a terrier, the sawing of wood, the rooster, pouring out liquid from a bottle, &c. The New York Comedy Four win favour both as comedians and vocalists, and they are heartily recalled. The Eight Champions are a bevy of good-looking young ladies, who excel as dancers. Miss Lily Lena, comedienne, sings with much spirit and charm "A most particular girl," and another ditty; and Mr. Tom Collins, swell comedian, is well received. The special engagement of Diabutsu, the champion ju-jitsu wrestler, has aroused a considerable amount of excitement, and the competitions have been watched with keen interest. The extra turns have included a lady ballad vocalist, and Mr. Harry Brown, a negro comedian, whose ditties, "Nobody" and "I'm satisfied," are given with much humorous expression and oddity of manner. Pictures of the crimes of Paris, reproduced by Raymond's Bio-tableaux, is another interesting feature of the current bill, which also includes the name of Mr. Martin Conway, comedian.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Comedians of the front rank are to be found in Mr. J. C. Coe's attractive bill at the Hammersmith Palace this week, a decided laughing hit being made midway in the entertainment by the popular droll, Mr. Phil Ray. His ludicrous "make-up," accompanied by the usual expansive smile provoked merriment on his first appearance, and his quaintly-rendered song, "Only Seventeen," amused greatly. Many were the jokes and stories with which he entertained, especially appealing to the gentler sex apparently being his remarks concerning connubial bliss. Mr. Ray gives his auditors no time to ponder over his jests, which is, perhaps, occasionally as well, but rattles on in his own irresistible fashion; and his numerous absurd antics also add to the drollery of his turn. A verse on Mr. Winston Churchill and some humorous references to the Member for Battersea were also included in his laughter-compelling interlude, which was of such an acceptable nature that he was enthusiastically recalled at its conclusion. A reception of an equally complimentary description was that accorded Mr. Mike Whallen, "the comet of many tales," who in a quietly humorous way retailed several amusing anecdotes concerning his friend Maloney. The versatile comedian's extempore verses on members of the audience were also immensely popular, his complimentary allusion to a lady artist seated in the stalls on Monday evening being loudly cheered.

The George Power combination worked hard and were entirely successful in their efforts to create laughter in the farcical sketch Matrimonial Bliss; and the burlesque business of the Sivronis likewise proved most entertaining. The gentleman of the duo presented a most grotesque figure as a Scotsman, and indulged in a novel and clever dance that was loudly acclaimed. Operatic selections were pleasingly rendered by his lady partner, and added greatly to the success of the turn. Mr. Bert Brantford extracted all the possible humour from his two selections, "I didn't know what to say" and "I wouldn't mind changing his place," his quietly quaint style creating amusement; and Miss Leah Laurie, a smart little comedienne, scored her greatest success in "The Duchess of Camberwell Green," in which she impersonated a "donah" who has lately acquired wealth, and apparently means to enjoy herself. Miss Laurie also won approbation for her ditty "You're the girl I'm looking for," and her reception was decidedly cordial. Miss Amy Russell, handsomely costumed, contributed a cultured rendering of "Idle Dreams," and secured abundant applause for her singing of the popular and tuneful number, "Molly, I love you"; and the Kanes (Reggie and Cis) submitted a much-appreciated musical interlude.

Especially enjoyable was the entertainment submitted by Harry Reynolds' American Minstrel Quintette, a smart troupe of "niggers" that speedily became favourites. One of the darkies gave a pleasing rendering of a pretty ballad, "When the fields are white with daisies," and the "bones" of the combination created loud laughter for a really funny rendering of the song "My Brother Joe," the laughing chorus being decidedly infectious. Numerous conundrums and humorous remarks also afforded amusement to the audience, who were especially lavish in their appreciation of the harmonious rendering by the quintette of a medley of old-time coon and other songs. Altogether a most successful interlude, and a pleasing variation from the usual music-hall turn. Dick Dare, M.P., the dramatic playlet of the bill, was admirably presented by the well-known combination headed by the accomplished actor Mr. Fred Maxwell and Miss Lois Du Cane, and gave evident pleasure to the audience; a clever troupe of dogs was introduced by Mme. Collard, who is to be warmly congratulated on the ready manner in which her canine pupils go through their performance—a novel and much-applauded one; and Mr. Fred Curran, comedian; the Garganis, comic gentlemen acrobats; Mr. Victor Travers, eccentric comedian; and the Edisonograph, showing all the latest pictures, also contributed to the enjoyment of the evening. Mr. J. H. Cleve directs an excellent orchestra; and Mr. Lewis Vincent, the courteous manager, ably assists his popular chief.

HACKNEY EMPIRE.

The Andos, who figure conspicuously in this week's programme at this popular place of entertainment, are described as "happy little Japs from the land of the chrysanthemum and the Rising Sun." The troupe consists of three male performers, and two young girls, who take only a minor part in the act. One of the men ascends a ladder, which is so constructed that one of the poles and the rungs can be easily removed. On the single pole which is left standing, the performer accomplishes a remarkable bending feat, which elicits much applause. The same artist also performs a somewhat similar feat with one of the girls linked like a human sash round his body. Then preparations are made for the sensational achievement with which the turn concludes. A stout rope stretches from the stage to the gallery, and up this incline a strong, active member of the troupe slowly makes his way. He grips the rope with his toes, and carries only a Japanese parasol. Nor is there any net placed underneath the rope-walker. His arrival safe and sound in the gallery is greeted with a loud burst of applause. After a short pause, he makes a rapid descent to the stage, where the force of the impact is broken by his companions and one of the attendants.

The well-known Boisset Troupe are appearing here this week in the farcical sketch, entitled The Bricklayers, one of those remarkably successful productions which are always regarded as a strong feature of a variety programme. These festive working-men, whose stage mission is to play rather than to work, are able to keep the audience entertained all the time they are in occupation of the stage. The rapid succession of laughable incidents, from the moment that the curtain rises until the end of the sketch, prevents any suspicion of dullness; while the doings of the comic workmen engaged on the half-finished building seem to be funnier each time we witness the piece. The art of pantomime is very cleverly employed in The Bricklayers, and every member of the company assists loyally in the task of creating merriment. Another turn which has triumphantly stood the test of time is that of Rezene and Robini, whose droll performance never fails to evoke the laughter of an audience. One of the twain receives the buffets of his companion with the most perfect equanimity, and the frequent appeal to the audience, "Shall I?" being invariably answered in the affirmative, is the prelude to further chastisement, and more merriment on the part of the onlookers.

The juggler's art has an expert exponent in Mr. Walter Bellonini, whose neatness of execution is conspicuous throughout his performance. He juggles with a variety of articles, and has the valuable assistance of a youth, who watches his doings with an astonished air that is very comical. Mr. Bellonini also possesses a clever little dog, who knows his business thoroughly. As an effective conclusion to the turn, Mr. Bellonini and his assistant engage in a brisk encounter with broadswords for the possession of the Union Jack. Flinging away their steel weapons, they close, and, after another smart contest, the younger proves the conqueror. Amongst the comedians engaged is Mr. Harry Conlin, who makes his appearance as a dame, wearing a straw hat adorned with oranges, and holding a muff made out of a hollow loaf, which the lady explains the mice have been at. Mr. Conlin's funny patter has its intended effect. Miss Rosie Coleman wins favour as a decidedly smart sand-dancer; and Mr. Ernest Heathcote scores with a comic ditty, "The sun was shining brightly at the time." Mr. Frank Darwin makes a good impression as a ballad vocalist; and the same remark applies to Miss Gertrude Bradshaw, who possesses an excellent soprano voice. The pictures shown on the American Bioscope bring the programme to a conclusion. Mr. John Christie as acting-manager, and Mr. Kennedy Johnson as his assistant, continue to give careful attention to the front of the house. Mr. Walter Johnson is the conductor of the excellent orchestra at this palatial establishment.

CHELSEA PALACE.

An unerring eye has been brought to bear in the selection of the programme this week at Chelsea, where the efforts of Mr. Henri Gros to establish the palatial hall firmly in the favour of those who dwell within the bounds of that historic borough have been crowned with complete success. Full houses have been the rule, and the bountiful array of well-selected items has aroused unlimited enthusiasm. A fine rendering of the overture by the orchestra, led by the master hand of Mr. Angelo Asher, is followed by the captivating singing of Miss Florrie Bray, the burden of whose lay is the flirtations of "Mary on the Pier at Brighton." Different methods of saying "Good-bye," including those of a coster and of a mother to her son, are also portrayed, and Miss Bray's success is undeniable. Mr. Frank Cass causes laughter with "How long will you be, love?" a refrain which is fitted to many appropriate situations, and he makes a still more effective appeal to the audience with a song about "Sons of Harmony," which begins with a reference to "Ole King Cole," and merges into well-known Scotch and Irish airs. Mr. Cass sings well, and there is a pleasing variety about the turn, which is applauded uproariously.

The sketch The Little Charwoman introduces Miss Nannie Goldman as the cleaner of a theatre, who volunteers to take the place of the "star" of the musical comedy, who has fallen ill. In that character Miss Goldman impersonates a flower-girl, a German fräulein, and an evening paper boy with rare skill, singing and dancing to perfection. Able support is given by Mr. W. Hollies as the theatre manager, who shares in the various excerpts from the piece, and the sketch causes great laughter. A fascinating style and a cultured voice are possessed by Miss Madoline Rees, who pleases all with her song of "Ida, the Circus Rider," which is set to a lilting and characteristic melody. "When love comes knocking at the door," a pretty ballad, is also sung by Miss Rees, who puts so much tenderness and expression into it that the approval of the audience becomes enthusiastic. The Bolingers still pursue their artistic occupation of painting with rags a basket of flowers, a seascape with a yacht in full sail, and a windmill scene taking rapid shape under their deft hands. An encore is insisted upon, and the result appears in a cleverly-executed picture of the hero Nelson.

No more popular duettists exist in the music halls than the Leonards, who contrive to be ever fresh in voice, style, and business. The "entente cordiale," is celebrated in a duet in which they appear as a British naval officer and a gay Parisienne, the topical references securing continuous applause. The tuneful song "My Irish Ivy" gives the talented couple an opportunity to blend their voices most agreeably, and to furnish a dance the neatness, regularity, and attractiveness of which could not be surpassed. A sensation is caused by the whistling of Mr. Charles Mildare, who is able to bring the mellifluous notes of the nightingale realistically to the ear. The thrush is also closely copied, and the imitation of a parrot is a source of great merriment. Undeniable recalls are lavished upon the clever silfleur, who in response gives a solo on the ocarina, the instrument continuing to play regardless of the fact that it is withdrawn from the lips. The Follies furnish their fanciful entertainment, which has already gained the gracious approval of the King and Queen, and now wins the applause of Chelsea. Mr. H. G. Pelissier, who heads the troupe, has some neat topical hits in the song "What a very great improvement that would be!" and a clever piece descriptive of a burlesque love tragedy is played by another of the comedians at the piano. The singing by the contralto of "I want somebody to love me" is thoroughly appreciated, and the rendering of a sentimental duet by the tenor and soprano is also well enjoyed. An effective conclusion is supplied by the travesty of a Wagnerian opera, in which the exertions of the troupe cause unrestrained mirth. Mr. Tom Edwards, who conducts a ventriloquial entertainment with his newsboy Curly, is also in the bill. All will rejoice to learn that Mr. Edward Swanborough, the esteemed manager, who has had a serious illness, is well on the road to recovery. Meanwhile the best interests of the hall are looked after by the acting-manager, Mr. J. Norman Berlin.

THE RICHMOND THEATRE.

The pretty theatre here maintains its reputation for wholesome variety fare, and is receiving quite a full share of patronage. This week special mention is due to the Mozondas, a clever couple, who indulge in songs dealing with money, golf, and other vagaries. The acrobatic feats of the male member are clever, and the combination is one calling for especial mention. A breezy comedian is Mr. Jack Heath, his ditty bearing the refrain "Send 'em along to me" being very amusing. He is received with every show of favour, and creates an excellent impression. Unique, original, and excellent are the imitations of Mr. Wilson Hallett, his stories (he is a ready raconteur) being hugely appreciated; and his "Children at Home" is, in its way, a gem. The prettiest item of his performance is his interpretation of "Daddy," as rendered by the little ones, which is vociferously re-demanded. A dashing principal boy is Miss Daisy Silcott, who sings firstly of "Love" from a humorous point, and then of "Woman"; both selections win great favour, and a word may be added on the excellent way she "dressed" both excerpts. The Eastern magician, Ariff Hemet—all the way from Turkey—amazed the audience with some sleight-of-hand tricks. Mr. Bob Dare and Miss Molly Malvern appear in a sketch, entitled May and December; or, Marrying for Money, all the fun it was possible to extract being got out of it by this clever couple, whose final dance was the hit of the piece. Another excellent and eccentric top-boot dancer—Mr. Arthur Stacey—promptly establishes himself as a favourite, and well merits the applause showered on his efforts. Casey's Court, a queer, dramatic pot-pourri, gives opportunity for a crowd of juveniles to display their talents. A typical London court, with its conglomeration of gutter children, have caught on the "professional" fever, and, led by Dame Cassidy, they play, sing, dance, conjure, and fool around generally. The little ones are very clever, and the interlude is vastly amusing. Vernon's Bioscope is a great favourite here. "The Would-be Millionaire's Dream" being distinctly funny. A really admirable orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Norfolk Megone, contribute selections, The Prince of Pilsen and With Might and Main, both nicely done. Mr. K. Draco, the new business-manager in front of the house, is making many friends by his courtesy to everyone concerned.

BRITANNIA, HOXTON.

Messrs. Fred Moule and E. D. Nicolls and company create a mild sensation with their episode entitled The Battle of the Belles. Kendal Groat is ably portrayed by Mr. Fred Moule, and Mr. C. Robinson gives an excellent account of himself as Hector Rodney. As Kendal Groat Miss Madge Trevelyan proves herself a capable actress; Miss Ada Lucelle as the heroine Lawrie Linden is successful; Mr. E. D. Nicolls and Miss Ada Frank are responsible for the comedy element; Mr. Arthur Elvey, rightly described as the up-to-date tipster, has some good songs. In his second item he is seen as a turf tipster, giving selections nightly which are supplied by special wire from Mr. R. S. Sievier, the well-known proprietor of a sporting journal. Mr. Elvey is to be complimented on the success he attains.

Miss Dorothy Veld is a dainty little comedienne, and her efforts as vocalist and danseuse are well appreciated. The Sivronis are an amusing comedy duo, the facial contortions of the male partner creating roars of laughter. The Hoxtonites are severe critics of coster character, and they do not fail to recognise the ability of Mr. Will Bacchus, whose impersonations are most natural. Miss Daisy Pearl is a pleasing serio, rendering "Molly, the jolly little lady" in great style, the gallery boys exercising their vocal powers on the chorus. The Guyons appear in their musical dramatic episode His One Great Sin, illustrating the curse and unhappiness caused by intoxication.

Fresh from his pantomime triumphs as Dame at the Alexandra Theatre, Stoke Newington, comes Mr. Will Johnson. He is indeed humorous, his song "I know why" being intensely funny, and he is recalled again and again. Leo Lester presents a good pantomime sketch entitled Sports, in which a troupe of well-trained dogs are made up as various animals, and go through some clever tricks, reflecting great credit on their trainer. Occupying a star position are Mr. Ernest Leicester and company in The V.C., by Sutton Vane. Mr. Leicester has the assistance of a first-class company, and secures several curtain calls. Some good pictures are shown by Raymond's bio-tableaux, the selected ones on the night of our visit being "Teddy Brown's Brown Hat" and "A Fox Hunt in the Midlands." "Brave Boys" is the overture given by Mr. Carl Hamlin's model orchestra, "Freedom March" making a good interval selection. Mr. J. McCarthy has made himself a popular manager among the Britannia patrons.

BARNARD'S, GREENWICH.

Mr. Bert Dent, as usual, submits a well-selected and liberal programme—made more enjoyable by the unfailing courtesy of everyone connected with this popular establishment. First on the programme come Austin and Austin, who meet with warm recognition for their skill as chair pyramidists and manipulators. Monsieur Footitt, the equilibrist, follows, with a clever performance, which evokes loud applause. Next on the list is Miss Florence Vincent, a delightful ballad vocalist, who gives a very pleasant rendering of "Bid me good-bye" and "Sing me to sleep." Morley and Percival present a capital sketch, entitled Turtledoves, which deserves and obtains much appreciation. After a brilliantly rendered selection by the band, entitled "Casino," the Arundels appear in their successful boxing sketch, entitled The Office Boy. There is some really funny business, and this turn is very popular. Keen, Henry, and Hill, in A Modern Marguerite, are received with considerable favour; Amy Elvira wins loud applause for her bright and clever rendering of "Susie Anna's motor-car," "How nice," and "My Lady Molly." Gravetta and Parr are highly popular in their impersonations of celebrities, including Lord Kitchener, Souza, Lord Roberts, General Buller, and Queen Victoria. Their clay modelling, juggling, and ventriloquism prove their versatility.

Mr. George Courtney and company make a successful appearance in a sketch entitled Texas. Haidee Lee and Wallace Kingston, who are prime favourites, are rewarded with loud laughter and prolonged applause for their clever contribution, entitled Practical Joking. An extra turn was provided on the night of our visit by Mr. Will Harvey, who was well received in "I've been looking in the pubs all day." Will Poluski, billed as "the latest London comic," is well applauded in his songs, entitled "Hi! hi! hi!" "Chinese Crackers," and "Chloe." Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, exhibiting some interesting and novel pictures, brings a capital programme to a successful close. The new musical director, Mr. W. Skerry (late of the Middlesex) is becoming a general favourite here.

MISS JULIE MACKAY AT THE EMPIRE.

With a breeziness and freshness characteristic of America, an imposing and artistic stage presence, gesture of the most dramatic style, and a series of songs notable for their effectiveness and musical charm, Miss Julie Mackay, the popular vocalist, opened a week's engagement at the Empire Theatre last evening in the presence of an extremely large audience. It is some years since Miss Mackay made her first appearance in Dublin as a "principal boy" at the Theatre Royal in a very satisfying pantomime, and the cordial reception given her last night showed that the impression she made then was not of an ephemeral character, for immediately the number opposite her name on the programme appeared on the proscenium the audience burst into applause, which was not concluded until Miss Mackay had been several minutes before the footlights. Her opening song, "Ashamed of his poor old dad," a pathetic melody, dealing with a very human topic, was given with decided taste and feeling, and then she was heard with the old-time ring in a semi-ragtime setting, bearing the title, "I am going back to Baltimore." This was received with the happiest marks of approval, and, in response, she gave another dramatic composition, "Good-bye, my lady love," with increased success. The haunting and powerful chorus of this number was taken up by the audience with vigour, and at its close the clever artist was called before the curtain with such enthusiasm that she found it necessary to prolong her performance. There were lusty calls for some of the old songs, and with the old kindly desire to please, Miss Mackay gave her charming cosmopolitan study, "A little bit of orange peel," which, it will be recalled, was one of the features of her performance at the Theatre Royal. The enthusiasm of the audience knew no bounds at the close of this song, and as the result of frequent recalls she provided a smart composition to her own accompaniment on the piano, dealing with her efforts to teach a certain young "Willie." Again she was brought to the footlights, and in reply to calls from a large number of the audience, she gave in characteristic style an exquisite rendering of her great success, "I can't tell why I love you." Even then, after a most varied and entertaining performance, Miss Mackay was unable to get away, and it was not until she had made a brief speech of thanks that it was possible to lower the curtain. The complete performance of Miss Mackay was one more demonstration of her remarkable versatility, and it proved again that she has few equals on the halls as a lady entertainer. Her deep resonant contralto voice is as satisfactory as of old, and her artistic qualities place her very far ahead of the generality of performers in the same line of business.—Dublin Evening Mail, Tuesday, March 6, 1906.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, CARLISLE.

The new Palace Theatre of Varieties was formally opened on Monday, when the first public performance was given. This handsome and imposing building occupies a convenient and important site in Botchergate, which is one of the busiest and most densely populated parts of the city. It is built on an area of 1,500 square yards at a cost of £10,000, and the proprietors are the Carlisle Palace Theatre Company, Limited. The main entrance is through an arcade of shops, with which it is connected by a covered verandah, and the gallery and pit are approached from King-street. The interior presents a remarkably handsome and imposing appearance, and is modelled on the latest and most approved style of theatrical architecture. The shape and arrangements are excellent, and the admirably raked floors allow an uninterrupted view from every part of the building. The sitting accommodation is—circle 300, stalls 100, pit 600, and gallery 400, and four exits are provided for each part of the house. The staircases are entirely fireproof, and there is a plentiful supply of hydrants. The heating and ventilating systems are excellent, and enable the patrons to sit in comfort whatever the vagaries of the weather. Electric light is used throughout, and is supplied by two separate cables, eight miles of wires were used in the fitting, and the lighting is equal to 1,500 eight-candle power lamps.

The decorations and ornamentation are rich, elegant, and tasteful. The fine proscenium, which has an opening of 30ft., is flanked by two private boxes, which are artistically decorated and in complete harmony with the ceiling, balcony, and gallery fronts. These are composed of modelled plaster, the design is chaste and pretty, and as the prevailing colours are gold, cream, and pale blue, the general effect is particularly bright and attractive.

The stalls, grand circle, and circle are provided with tip-up seats of a most comfortable character, and were supplied by Messrs. Brookfields, of Stafford, who also seated the pit. The stage is 60ft. wide and 30ft. deep, and there are eight dressing-rooms, which are situated quite close to the stage in a semi-detached two-storeyed building; they are comfortably and conveniently fitted and well lit.

The building was designed by Messrs. Owen and Ward, the well-known theatrical architects of Birmingham, and most of the contracts for the construction and equipment were placed with local firms. Signor Pepi, of the Hippodrome, Blackpool, Barrow, and the Tivoli, is the managing-director, Mr. A. E. Nicholls, of Blackpool, has been appointed acting-manager, Mr. J. D. Askew is stage-manager, and Mr. Henry Hinchcliffe, I.R.A.M., conductor of the orchestra.

The opening of the Palace created an intense amount of interest; crowds collected in the vicinity of the entrances long before the advertised time for "Early doors," and by seven o'clock every part of the house was packed by an enthusiastic and expectant audience. The beautiful curtain, which represents a Maypole dance, and is a very fine piece of work, was greatly admired. Punctually to time the curtain rose and the stage was found to be occupied by the directors and officials of the Palace. Miss Georgina Leonard advanced to the footlights and sang a verse of the National Anthem, the audience upstanding and joining heartily in the refrain. After tremendous cheering, Mr. Councillor Long, one of the directors, addressing the audience, said he wished to extend to them a hearty welcome to a building which he hoped they would consider a credit to the city. The main portion of the work had been done by Carlisle tradesmen, and the architects were highly satisfied with the result. The directors were anxious to provide the best entertainment obtainable, and in securing the services of Signor Pepi as managing-director they had every hope that his experience and business ability would enable them to secure turns which would meet with the patronage and appreciation of the playgoing public of Carlisle.

Mr. Long then introduced Signor Pepi, who thanked the audience for their patronage, and said he was pleased to see so many ladies present.

Mr. Ward, the architect, also spoke. He thanked the contractors for the able and expeditious way in which they had carried out the work, and pointed out that though he had now been concerned in the building of twenty-five theatres in different parts of the country, the Palace, Carlisle, had been built more speedily than any other he had been connected with, having been completed in less than six months.

The programme was then proceeded with. Miss Marion Scott had the honour of opening the performance, and sang "Put a little bit away for a rainy day" in charming style. The hearty applause evoked was renewed when she was presented with a handsome bouquet. Mr. Barney Vox delighted his audience with his clever and amusing ventriloquial entertainment. Ike Scott and Son followed with their amusing nautical sketch, which they supplemented with their equally funny representation of a policeman's "daily day." Mr. Tom Stuart contributed an artistic and dramatic character-sketch of Wilfred Denver and Gaspard. Miss Georgina Leonard sang a couple of songs to everyone's satisfaction. Lieut. Albini's Mysterious Lady act proved interesting and entertaining; his amusing patter with his "committee of inspection" creating roars of laughter. The Bros. Redmond, smart and thoroughly up-to-date acrobatic comedians, made a big hit. The ever-popular Bella and Bijou, who topped the bill, gave three clever sketches, in each of which they scored heavily. Vernon's Bioscope completed a most interesting and well-varied programme. The house is run on the two-houses-a-night system at popular prices, and judging by the attendance and enthusiasm during the first week seems assured of complete success.

Among those present were Messrs. Tom Shaw, Ernest De Vere, Fred Higham, Will Oliver, C. Henderson, W. Sley, W. Edelsten, J. Fioni, T. Cavill, W. Wigglesworth, Charles Chapman, C. Stevens, and many friends from Manchester, Blackpool, Barrow, Edinburgh, and Glasgow. Signor Pepi received hundreds of wires wishing him every success from friends in all parts of the country.

"SCOTTISH HOMES AND PASTIMES."

At the Park Palace, Liverpool, on the 2nd inst., a spectacle, entitled Scottish Homes and Pastimes; or, New Year's Eve in the Highlands, was produced for copyright purposes. The curtain rises upon a view of Loch Lomond by moonlight, where a party of revellers are enjoying themselves, and indulging in their time-honoured songs and dances. The proceedings start with a vigorous rendering of the Highland fling by three open championship winners of Scotland, whose efforts were deservedly applauded; then in rapid succession followed solos, a torch-light reel, choruses, Scotch sword-dancing, &c., the whole performance lasting about twenty minutes. There were twelve artists engaged, all of whom looked well in their picturesque attire, while their work was most creditably performed. Included in the vocal numbers were "Robin Adair," with voice accompaniment, "Annie Laurie" (a capital quintet), &c., the principal artists being Miss Blanche De Verne (soprano), Mr. F. W. Adlington (tenor), Mr. W. Horton (baritone), Mr. P. A. Taylor (basso), and Mr. J. Bree (basso); while the dancers were the Argyle Troupe and Miss Lillian Victoria. The spectacle is certainly something out of the ordinary, and should prove an acceptable item in any variety programme. Mr. James Marks, the manager of the Park Palace, was the producer.

CHAT WITH MISS BILLIE BARLOW.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

Miss Billie Barlow, who has just terminated a highly successful pantomime engagement at the Sheffield Theatre Royal, is, as everybody knows, an artist whose singing of light and bright songs has given her quite a position by herself. She tells us that she is now going in more particularly for patter business in her performances. "It is a little out of my ordinary work," she says, "but I find that the public like it. All the same, I have heaps of new songs in preparation."

Where has this clever lady not been to, and what has she not seen? As an actress she made her first mark at the Gaiety, in Adonis, with Mr. H. E. Dixey, and, later, in Monte Cristo, at the same house, where she also played in Dimity's Dilemma, Blue Ribbons, and other pieces. One of her first pantomimes in England was The Babes in the Wood at the Newcastle Theatre Royal, at the termination of which production she went into the halls. She secured from Mr. Rice all the British rights in his song, "English, quite English, you know," which she sang with "Bubbles" at the Alhambra, Pavilion, Tivoli, and Oxford—four halls a night. Then Miss Barlow went to Australia to play, among other parts, the title-rôle in Randolph the Reckless, remaining in the Antipodes ten months, where the company had a very delightful time. Returning to England, she opened again at the London music-halls, these engagements being followed by her appearance in a Bradford Christmas production of Aladdin.

In 1900 Miss Barlow signed to go out to South Africa under the management of Mr. Edgar Hyman, to open in Johannesburg, but, in consequence of the war, it was arranged that the contract should be postponed, and she went right on to Australia, where she showed at Sydney under the management of Mr. Harry Rickards at the Tivoli Theatre. A little later she appeared in Melbourne in Mr. G. B. Phillips's pantomime of Puss in Boots. Subsequently she paid a visit to South Africa, with the primary intention of seeing the battlefields, particularly those in the neighbourhood of Ladysmith. Then it occurred to her that she might as well sing a bit, and she accepted an offer made by Mr. Leonard Rayne to play in Pietermaritzburg for one night, and in Durban for two weeks. A series of exciting experiences followed. Miss Barlow collected together a few artists and formed a small company, with which she travelled throughout Zululand, doing variety performances and petites comédies, and visiting East London; Queenstown, where the bushmen in the exuberance of their spirits shot off the hands of the town-hall clock; to King Williamstown, where General Brabant and his famous Horse were quartered; to Grahamstown, Port Elizabeth, Uitenhage, Graaf-Reinet, where the performances were held in a feather-shed; to Middelsburg, General French's headquarters; and so on to Rosmead Junction. At the latter place the entertainment was given in a goods shed to an audience composed of officers and "Tommies," the former being so glad at the prospect of a little diversion from warlike operations that they insisted on doubling the prices. The little party next travelled to Stormburg and to Burgersdorp, which was strongly held by the Boers at the commencement of hostilities.

"Naturally enough," says Miss Barlow, "the country then being under martial law, the conditions under which we worked were certainly not of the most comfortable order, but no one made a complaint. In fact, we rather enjoyed the novelty of that state of affairs. At one place where we stayed the men of the company were ordered to shoulder rifles, while the ladies acted as nurses," —duties which suited Miss Barlow admirably.

Upon her return from the South African tour she opened in London, and then had an engagement for the whole of the Moss and Thornton ground in the provinces, where she delighted her audiences by her rendering of "The way to sing a song," illustrating the various types of vocalists, such as the coon singer, the military songster, and the pathetic ballad-singer. Back again in town, she appeared as Dandini in the pantomime of Cinderella at the Crystal Palace.

Miss Barlow in her delightful Streatham home has a remarkable collection of South African mementoes, among them being most of her permits and passes obtained during the late war. The company had to get a permit if they wanted to have anything to eat or to drink or to travel from one place to another. Her curiosities include Zulu shields, sjamboks, assegais, knob-kerries, boomerangs, snakes' skins, and a beaded mouche, or dress of a Zulu lady, such dress being but a very slight addition to the lady's natural endowments. She is an enthusiastic photographer, and while in South Africa made good use of her camera. She is also very fond of cycling, motoring, and painting, and has carried out some very pretty ideas in the way of coloured photographs. She does not believe in idling time away, and is always to be seen engaged in some useful occupation. As a conversationalist, her various experiences in different continents would make an interesting volume, should she at any time in the future contemplate appearing in a different public capacity from that with which her name is at present so popular.

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

The following is the official text of the reply from the Moss' Empires and Associated Stoll Companies, to the Artists' Memorial from the Conference of Delegates elected from the various Music Hall Societies :—

Re Paragraph 1.

In your memorial the number of artists you no doubt justly claim to represent indicates that were we to sacrifice our business in the way you suggest, and yet preserve its existence, the end you propose—namely, the general benefit of the artists—would not be much furthered. To prove this, assume that we control thirty theatres, each taking ten turns per week, the same ten turns visiting one or other of all the houses. This involves the employment of 300 different turns by all these houses over a period of thirty weeks, and a further 300 turns over a period of twenty-two weeks. Assuming those 600 turns to average three artists each, 1800 in all, this leaves a balance of 8200 of the 10,000 memorialists to work either within or without our barred area in any one year. Suppose our barring clause were relaxed, what purpose would it serve in the way of benefiting the vast number not employed by us when it would practically liberate 1800 artists to oust the 8200 out of part of the possible employment now left open to them?

Re Paragraph 2.

That the position of the artists has suffered great deterioration within recent years is surely an unintentional misrepresentation of the facts. It must be notorious that never before could so many artists find so much employment on such a high scale of remuneration. It is further an obvious fact that the vast improvement in the structures used as variety theatres—an improvement effected by the expenditure of millions of pounds capital, obtained from the public through the confidence inspired by enterprising managers, whereby performances could be presented under altogether better conditions both for performers and patrons—has been far and away the most material cause of the increased popularity of music-hall entertainments to which you refer. And now that it has become the rule on the part of the public to expect a music hall or variety theatre to be a beautiful house, the innovation has lost the novelty that constituted a large part of its attractiveness, and it is the freshness and novelty that can be preserved for carefully selected artists by exclusiveness of their services that individual houses must depend upon to maintain a degree of popularity sufficient to afford ordinary business stability. If artists would continue to encourage originality and discourage deliberate imitation of one another's acts they would do more to preserve variety theatres as a remunerative field of employment than by pleading for the services of artists selected for advance booking to be rendered more common than existing barring conditions will allow.

Re Paragraph 3.

The increased number of performances has enabled more houses to open or continue open than would otherwise have been possible, and thereby has provided more engagements for artists. There is no ground here for a relaxation of barring conditions to increase the scope of employment of some artists and to just that extent limit the scope of employment of others.

Re Paragraph 4.

The stringency of the barring conditions of individual managements has been regulated by experience, and must become more rather than less severe as competition grows keener. Managements must either not book ahead at all, or, if they do, they must protect themselves both by preserving the freshness of particular artists in a particular locality and guarding themselves against making it easy for unfair competition at impossibly low prices of admission starting against them with the very artists whom they have on their books for later dates at salaries which their own successful business at reasonable prices of admission would allow them to pay with profit, but which become altogether too onerous when (1) the prices of admission have to be reduced to meet the competition; (2) the patronage of the locality is divided up between two houses; and (3) the services of the artists have been in parts at least temporarily played out. Just as managers book ahead to obtain the advantage of the barring clause, so artists should refrain from booking ahead who consider that they suffer from it.

Re Paragraph 5.

If it be true that cases of absolute want have been directly attributable to a barring clause, and to nothing else in the circumstances of those cases, this is to be deplored. But it is certain that there would be a far greater number of cases of absolute want if relaxation of the barring clause were allowed to reduce the comparatively prosperous properties to a state of precariousness.

As to the engagements which the artists in want are said to have had to refuse, those engagements probably went to unbarred artists in equal need of them.

Re Paragraph 6.

It is clear that existing contracts cannot be relaxed, and, as to future contracts, artists are as free as managers to enter into them or not, according to whether they are in truth a hardship or the reverse.

Re Paragraph 7.

"Undue interference with the rights of free labour" is a high-sounding phrase with no application whatever to the case in point; and we regretfully contend that the granting of your request would not only not have the effect you describe, but would seriously injure the enterprises placed in our charge, do an act of injustice to the profession, managers, and investors by placing every property in a condition of instability greater than at present, and inflict greater hardship than now exists for large numbers of artists by providing more engagements for the few and fewer engagements for the many.

Appended is the rejoinder of the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation to the above reply :—

28, Wellington-street, Strand, W.
March 6, 1906.

TO THE DIRECTORS, MOSS' EMPIRES, LTD.,
23, York Place, Edinburgh.

Dear Sirs,—The members of the Conference of Music Hall Societies (who are now the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation) having carefully considered your reply to their memorial asking for a limitation of the barring clause in music hall contracts, beg to offer the following observations in answer to your criticisms of the various paragraphs of that memorial :—

Re Paragraph 1.

First of all, we take exception to your statement in criticising Paragraph 1 of our memorial that we are suggesting you should "sacrifice your business" by agreeing to a reasonable limitation of the barring clause. What we have asked does not involve any such sacrifice on your part; it is simply that you should revert to methods in dealing with your artists which have worked so successfully in the evolution of the music halls from "pot-houses to palaces," and that you should not sacrifice us in your efforts to crush your trade rivals. We are fully conversant with the fact that the barring clause is directed not so much against artists as against your rival proprietors, and that the large Syndicates, by booking years ahead and then barring seek to make it impossible for the smaller proprietors to secure sufficiently attractive items to keep their halls open. Artists strongly object to being made to suffer in this contest between trade rivals in which they have no actual concern, although their sympathies are naturally in the direction of keeping as many halls open as possible. If the barring clause is successful in what is undoubtedly its ultimate object—viz., the ousting of the smaller proprietor—the result must be that in towns where three or four halls now exist providing work for thirty or forty turns per week there will be only one hall giving work for but ten turns.

With regard to your further observations on Paragraph 1, it is difficult to follow your reasoning, which appears to have but little bearing on the statement it professes to controvert—viz., that the barring clause in music hall contracts in its recently extended form is inflicting a great amount of hardship on performers. It is not difficult to prove our contention that the barring clause does inflict a great amount of hardship; the ever-increasing demands made on the relief funds of our various societies, and the reasons given for those demands, bear eloquent testimony to this fact. For instance, the closing of the smaller halls as a direct result of the barring clause, and as set forth in the preceding paragraph, must be not only a hardship, but a calamity to the general body of the profession. Again, say, an artist signs a contract to play at your halls at a date two years ahead. Unless he is fortunate enough to book towns which are outside the area covered by your contract (and that is by no means an easy thing to do now), he must remain idle all those intervening months. A week's work is offered him at Bolton in January, 1907, but he has a contract with you for Manchester some twelve, eighteen, or twenty months ahead, and he must not accept that week at Bolton. He wants work, he is willing to work, and he can have work; but because he holds that date with you all those months ahead he is not allowed to work, and must either prey on his fellows, starve, or seek the shelter of the workhouse. We say that such a contingency to be even possible is a terrible hardship and a rank injustice, and it has yet to be demonstrated that the law of this land will sanction such a gross interference with the right of a man to earn his own living and to provide sustenance for those dependent upon him.

Then surely it is an unintentional misrepresentation of facts when you assume to take your own figures with which we are not quite in agreement, that only 1800 artists are barred by you per annum. It has evidently escaped your notice that not only artists actually working at the moment on your tour are barred, but also those artists who hold contracts with you in very many cases for eighteen months and two years ahead. You are probably barring just as many artists who are off the tour pro tem. as those who are on it at the present moment. This means between 3,000 and 4,000, and leaves 6,000 or 7,000 to be accounted for, and not, as you state, "to work either within or without our barred area in any one year." We propose to account for these by pointing out another fact—viz., that the Moss' Empires, Limited, is not by a very long way the only syndicate applying the barring clause. The Adney Payne Syndicate, the Barrasford Tour, and the MacNaughten Tour, not to speak of other smaller tours, bar you because you bar them. If the same argument is applied to these other tours as we have applied to your own the 10,000 memorialists are easily accounted for, and it becomes patent that by far the greater proportion of them are periodically thrown out of work, through being under one bar or another.

We deny that the relaxation of the barring clause would result in the ousting of one section of the profession by the other section. There is not a performer, however small his salary, who is not convinced that his position would be improved by the reduction of the barring clause to fair limits.

Re Paragraph 2.

With respect to Paragraph 2, our contention that the position of the artist has suffered deterioration during recent years is not a misrepresentation, but an absolute fact. The operation of the barring clause has reduced the average artist's earning capacity at least one-third by practically putting an end to the system of working turns, and by preventing him accepting engagements when offered. If he is barred ten to twenty miles from the large centres, it is impossible for him to fill in all his dates. Proprietors who would willingly engage him have to send abroad for turns to fill their programmes, and the English artist stands idly by. Engagements which hitherto extended to six or eight weeks in London and two weeks in the provinces are now cut down to one week, and whereas a few years ago one performance per night and an occasional matinée was all that was required, now, with few exceptions, the twice-a-night system is established in all your halls, with one, two, or three matinées in addition. This means that we do a fortnight's work—often more—in a week, and, in most cases, at the same salary as before. Not only that, our expenses are increased. Dresses and properties are worn out twice as quickly; we have railway fares and baggage-men to pay every week, instead of alternate weeks; and our "freshness" and novelty is desiccated twice as quickly as of old. A point you do not criticise in the paragraph is, "they had to give the twelve, thirteen, fourteen, or fifteen performances for the same salary they received for six or seven hitherto." When you first instituted matinées in connection with the "twice-a-night" system, you paid for them. Your next contract called for one matinée free, and we understand your latest contracts include all matinées free, which means that at your discretion the artist shall give eighteen performances per week. With regard to remuneration, it may be true that a few big stars have been able to force their salaries up on account of their enormous drawing power, although the manager would not pay it if he was not sure he would recoup himself; but with regard to the lesser lights—and it is for them we speak chiefly—the tendency has been all the other way. With the exception of a few "carefully selected artists," we deny that the performers in general, under the existing barring clause, obtain more engagements or more remuneration than they did previously, and yet they are barred exactly in the same way as the "carefully selected artists," resulting—facts prove it—in their being out of work many weeks in the year.

Your refusal by inference to give the artists credit for the increased popularity of music hall entertainments is surely a little ungenerous; and with respect to your statement that "the improvement in the structure of variety theatres has been far and away the most material cause of that increased popularity," it is hardly necessary to argue that it is the performers on the stage who attract audiences week by week, for after a person has once visited a theatre to admire its construction he is hardly likely to repeat his visit for the same reason. So whilst we are grateful to you for the vast improvement in the structures, we cannot agree that that is the main factor in increasing the popularity of the music hall. A fact worth remembering is that among the millions of pounds capital you speak of a proportion is the hard-earned savings of the artists, who stand to lose it if the result of your granting our just requests should be what you would have us believe. And yet they are quite willing to take the risk with their eyes wide open. It is, we believe, a fact that the confidence of the shareholders at a recent meeting was hardly as enthusiastic as enterprising managers might desire. As you practically admit that the novelty of a beautiful house is but attractive for a short period, we come back to the artist, whom you claim must be "preserved" by the barring process to make him what we claim him to be —viz., the real reason of the popularity of the music hall.

We have suggested a six-months bar in the provinces and a three-months bar in London, which you insinuate would mean ruin to your enterprises if granted. Why, then, may we ask, if the "freshness" and novelty of an artist must be "preserved," how comes it that the same performers are often seen again at the same hall in London formances has enabled more houses to open and keep open may be met by the argument that giving the public greater facilities to attend one theatre may have (and indeed has) had the effect of withdrawing patronage from and closing another theatre, thereby reducing the number of turns required in that particular neighbourhood. And what is the use of more houses opening, or continuing open, if the barring clause prevents artists from appearing in them?

Re Paragraph 4.

With regard to Paragraph 4, your statement that the stringency of the barring clause must become more, rather than less, severe has, we regret to see, the appearance of a threat. Booking ahead is undoubtedly the cause of the existence of the barring clause, and the fixed intention of killing competition which you term "unfair" is the cause of booking ahead. The artist would be better off if booking ahead were limited to six months, and the manager would benefit by the fact that artists would of necessity have to keep their acts fresh and up to date to secure engagements, whereas with two or three years booked ahead he may get lazy and stale, and yet the manager must pay him his salary all the same. And it is a fact that if a novelty comes along the manager has to put it on top of a heavy programme, probably leaving out some other artist who has been previously engaged, and who gets paid his salary for walking about. This fact cannot fail to interest shareholders. In Paragraph 2 we have shown the fallacy of your claim to preserving an artist's "freshness" by aid of the barring clause. Your advice to artists to refrain from booking ahead if they suffer from it is kind, but impossible so long as you and other managers insist upon booking ahead. Suppose an agent comes to you and wants an engagement for, say, Brown. Your offer him the tour for 1908. Brown refuses because it is too far ahead. He waits a year, and his agent applies to you again. You reply that he can have the tour for 1909. How, then, is Brown going to catch up with you? If he were not barred it would not matter, he could go elsewhere; but you will not let him.

Re Paragraph 5.

With reference to Paragraph 5, you state that it is certain that there would be a far greater number of cases of absolute want if relaxation of the barring clause were allowed to reduce the comparatively prosperous properties to a state of precariousness; but we would point out that if artists were afforded greater facilities for accepting work by a limitation of the barring clause there would of necessity be less distress, and we would direct your attention to the very significant fact that, when the barring clause was kept within reasonable limits, your business was better and your dividends greater than they are now the clause has been unfairly extended. If you doubt that the artist suffers through being barred, why, then, Clause 9 of your contract? which says:—

". . . and the artist's remuneration having been assessed . . . with the object of compensating the artist for any loss which the artist may suffer through being debarred from appearing during such periods in the said districts. . . ."

The pitiable part of this clause is that the remuneration, as you know, has not been assessed in 95 per cent of cases, and is the same as it has been for years; and so the artist has to sign, if he wants to work at all, what both you and he know to be absolutely untrue.

With reference to your remark that engagements which barred artists have to refuse probably go to unbarred artists in equal need of them, we would point out that it is but poor consolation to a starving man to know that the bread he so badly needs is being eaten by someone else.

Re Paragraph 6.

If, as you say, contracts cannot be relaxed, it must be remembered that there are many acts that the artists have done, and still do, for the managers which are not within the scope of their contracts. It will be only natural, then, for the artist to keep to the strict letter of the contract also. The artist is just as much a necessity to the manager as the manager is to the artist, and no manager, however enterprising, would be likely to retain the confidence of his shareholders if the artists accepted the advice tendered, and refrained from entering in future into contracts which in truth are indeed a hardship.

Re Paragraph 7.

We agree that "undue interference with the rights of free labour" is a high-sounding phrase. It was intended to be so. No doubt the sheriff in the Marie Kendall case had the same thought in his mind when he spoke of the contract as interfering with the "bread and butter" of the artist.

We contend that the granting of our request would have the effect we desire; that it would increase the prospects of the enterprise in your charge, which the shareholders would like to see; that it would mean better dividends for the shareholders of the Moss' Empires, Limited, as a tremendous amount of costly litigation would be avoided; that the injustice to the profession exists now; and that many managers are quite willing to accept our proposals.

In conclusion, we respectfully beg you to reconsider our request. Such a very important matter deserves something rather more than the casual treatment it has up to now received. At any rate, we desire to place it on record that the artists have tried by every means in their power to bring about an amelioration of their grievances by conciliatory means, and that the responsibility for any trouble that may ensue as a result of their efforts to free themselves from the incubus of the barring clause cannot with justice be laid against them.

Signed (on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Variety Artists' Federation),
W. H. MCCARTHY.

To the Directors, Moss' Empires, Limited,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—In view of the difficulty of obtaining the concessions that have been applied for by the recent Music Hall Artists' Memorial re the barring clause (especially from Moss' Empires and Associated Stoll Companies), it appears to me that a very good solution of the whole question is this. Let the barring system be imposed according to the salary named in each agreement. Salaries up to a certain amount should not be restricted. After that, a sliding scale could easily be arrived at and agreed upon. The bigger the salary, the greater the stringency. Of course, a limit would have to be made. This idea appears to me to be one that would meet the wishes of both proprietor and artist, and would not fall so heavily on the smaller-salaried artist as at present. It could also be arranged to work fairly for the "stars" as well. This suggestion will, in all probability, be condemned by some; but the only thing I see against it is that artists will be able to form a fairly accurate idea of what each is getting. That may be so, but even that will have its advantages. Some (I'll say the minority) will then not be so guilty of "terminological inexactitudes" over salaries, an item so grossly exaggerated. However, I do not think that salaries are so much increased on account of barring as we are led to believe. For instance, does an artist who is worth, say, £50 to £60 or £70, receive a contract for £100 because he is barred for two years or more, as the case may be? I maintain he is paid £100 because he can draw that amount (and more) to the pay-box. No proprietor or manager is going to pay an artist £30 or £40 per week more than he is worth, simply because he "bars" him playing at rival establishments. I do not say there has never been such an instance; but just because I have not heard of one, neither do I know anyone that has heard of one, I do not say, "There is a doubt about it."

—Faithfully yours, FRED WOELLHAF

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Your excellent leading article of the 3rd inst. is judicial and judicious. It pours oil on the waters. But is it exhaustive? Possibly it may tend towards better feeling betwixt artists and their employers; but how about the goose that lays the golden eggs? The public pays the piper, but does it call the tune? Who wants to see a sketch twice? Audiences, London audiences, remarkable as they are for good nature, endure what they can't cure. They know quite well that time costs money, that a bad sketch—good ones are so rare as to be out of the reckoning—is cheaper than two or more good turns. People won't come twice to the same sketch; and that feeling extends to the house where the sufferer has been. He keeps away, and so do his friends. For the silence of the sitter finds relief when he is among his friends. Everybody knows that multitudes of theatres and music halls are in excess of the really paying public want. But is that difficulty met by an entertainment cheap and nasty? No amount of indifferent variety from week to week will secure paying audiences. Years ago, I, for one, and many others were willing enough to take a five-shilling place, and sometimes we paid three half-crowns, more than once, to hear poor Dan Leno, especially when the other numbers had against them good names, paid for at their worth. But now, how is the competition met? Cliques of management rule the roast. The combine can do just what it cares to do. It won't pay the good artist. But it can't secure the paying audience. Well, as to artists. Those whose shows don't depend on English speaking are, the best of them, away on the Continent, where audiences appreciating art and beauty would resent the outrage of a sketch. And, now, just a word from the financial point of view. Who cares to buy music hall shares at prices low down, and on the down grade? And that's the way we look at it, for I am

A BROKER FOR MANY SHAREHOLDERS.

MR. W. F. FRAME will be the Scotch comedian at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, next season in pantomime. Mr. Frame has not been seen in pantomime for ten or eleven years.

AT the last meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund Committee, it investigated thirty-two applications for relief, and granted assistance in thirty-one instances.

MISS KATIE LAWRENCE has been scoring during the week at the Palace, Camberwell, with a very amusing "chorus" song, entitled "Arthur," written and composed by Alf. J. Lawrance and Tom Mellor.

"FIREFLY" is the title of a charming new "chorus" song just published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, and is already being extensively asked for. Band parts and permissions can now be obtained of the publishers. It is written and composed by Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford.

THE latest addition to Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter's "sixpenny pops" is G. H. Elliott's "Only Coon without a Gal," written and composed by Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford. Mr. David Day has also secured for publication two more of this popular artist's numbers, namely, "My Orange Gal" and "Caroo," by the same author-composer.

PORTSMOUTH COLISEUM.

Active preparations are now being made for the immediate erection of the Portsmouth Coliseum, in Greetham, Marylebone, and Sussex streets. The Portsmouth Corporation have approved the plans, which have been prepared by Messrs. Frank Matcham and Co., of 9, Warwick-court, Holborn, London, W.C., the well-known architects, who designed the London Coliseum, London Hippodrome, and a large number of successful theatres and music halls throughout the country. The Portsmouth Coliseum, as its name implies, is a colossal building, measuring no less than 225ft. deep by 116ft. in width, with frontages to three streets; whilst, by the formation of a private way at the back, the building will stand upon an island site. Full advantage has been taken of this almost unique situation to arrange the entrances and exits to accommodate the audiences at the two performances, which it is intended to give each evening, in such a way that the outgoing public do not clash with the incoming, which is a very important consideration, when the number of people to be dealt with is borne in mind.

The building fairly bristles with exits, there being no fewer than fifteen, giving a combined total of over 90ft. of available exit, which will enable the building to be cleared in from two to three minutes.

The theatre throughout will be fireproof, being constructed of steel and concrete. The galleries will be carried on the cantilever principle, which obviates the use of columns, and allows a clear and uninterrupted view of the stage from all parts.

The theatre will have two tiers, designed on entirely novel lines, embracing many new features, and it may be said to represent the "last word" in theatre-building.

The auditorium is 85ft. wide by 80ft. deep, and on the ground floor contains stalls and pit, the whole of these seats being of circular formation, so that each seat faces directly to the stage.

At the rear of the pit is a raised promenade, from which a full view of the stage can be obtained.

The main entrance vestibule is in Greetham-street, and is of spacious dimensions, and contains the pay offices for the stalls and circle, which are approached by wide stone staircases, richly carpeted, leading directly to the waiting-rooms, which are a special feature in the building, affording comfortable accommodation under cover, instead of the patrons having to line up in queue formation outside in cold and damp weather, creating an obstruction to the footways and thoroughfares around the theatre. These waiting-rooms, which will be most comfortably furnished and fitted with settees and chairs, are provided to every part of the house. An advance-booking office is also provided, by means of which seats can be booked and reserved at all times.

There is no doubt these innovations will go a long way to ensure the popularity of the new theatre.

The pit floor, instead of being on a general rake with the stalls floor, is to be raised, thus giving the occupants of this part of the house an improved sight, and at the same time securing the privacy of the stalls by making the division between the two more decided. This arrangement admits of a subway being formed, leading directly from the main front vestibule to the centre of the stalls, from which point all the seats can be readily reached. The seating of the theatre has received careful consideration from the architects. The stalls and circle will have richly upholstered, patent tip-up seats, which, when not in use, or are vacated, allow a free and unobstructed passage-way between the seats leading to the main gangways, which intersect the seating at regular intervals, so that any seat can be reached with ease. The pit and gallery seats will be upholstered, so that the acme of comfort is provided at reasonable prices.

The general scheme of decorations of the interior will be Oriental, of rich and elaborate design, artistically treated, and art paintings introduced into the ceilings and wall-panels. The drapery hangings and upholstering of the private boxes and the proscenium opening will be specially designed to correspond. The theatre will be illuminated by electric light, which will be worked into the decorations, so that the most brilliant effect is obtained.

Every possible precaution has been taken for the safety of the public. All the staircases, galleries, roof, floors, &c., are of concrete construction, and the walls throughout are of brick; and all the decorative work is of non-inflammable material.

The sanitary arrangements will be on the most approved principles, lavatories for both sexes being provided on all floors.

The building will be heated by means of low-pressure hot-water, through radiators, so that an equal temperature is obtained in all parts.

The ventilation has been fully considered, the foul air being carried out by extract flues and induced currents, and fresh air will be brought in by air ducts, and diffused.

Hydrant extracteurs are provided in accessible positions on all floors, both on the stage and in the auditorium.

The stage is separated from the auditorium by a double asbestos automatically-operated fireproof curtain, fitted to the proscenium opening, and arranged for lowering either from the fly, stage, or the stage-door.

The dressing-rooms form a complete and separate block at the side of the stage, from which they are cut off by a stout brick wall. All the dressing-rooms are fitted with tables, mirrors, hooks for hats and cloaks, carpeted and fitted most comfortably, and hot and cold water laid on to the lavatory-basins in each room.

The stage is 90ft. by 40ft., and will be fitted with all modern appliances for working the scenery, &c., and for obtaining the latest lighting effects.

THE PORTSMOUTH COLISEUM.

SKETCH PROSECUTION.

The vexed question of stage plays in music-halls has been revived again by the Theatrical Managers' Association, and on Saturday, at the Marylebone Police Court, Mr. Bodkin appeared on behalf of that body to prosecute the New Bedford Palace of Varieties, Limited, of 93 and 95, High-street, Camden Town, for unlawfully using their hall for the public performance of a stage play entitled Old Lamps for New on various dates, without the authority of letters patent, or the licence of either the Lord Chamberlain or the London County Council.

Mr. Bodkin referred to the strict regulations imposed on theatrical managers by the Lord Chamberlain, and said that in view of the considerable profits made by the illegal performance of stage plays in music halls, to the great detriment of theatres, his clients had determined to put a stop to it. Since November, 1903, there have been eleven prosecutions, all of which had been successful, so that it must be well known that the performances were illegal.

The play now in question was really Aladdin concealed under the name of Old Lamps for New, and only in January a conviction was secured at Hastings for the performance of the same play at the Hippodrome there. In spite of that, the play was produced at the Bedford twice each night for a week. The performance occupied an hour and five or ten minutes; there were seven scenes, and eight or nine speaking parts, and it consisted of a substantial theatrical performance in the nature of a pantomime. Mr. John Handford Ryley, an experienced actor who had been to see the piece, was present in Court, prepared to say that it was unquestionably a stage play. Counsel added that in previous prosecutions the maximum time occupied by the performance was thirty-five minutes.

Mr. Plowden said he thought the length of the piece made no difference in the offence.

Mr. Bodkin contended that it did, because in all these cases it had been pointed out that sixteen years ago a Parliamentary Committee recommended that music halls should be allowed to produce sketches not occupying more than forty minutes, and with not more than six principal performers. Yet the Music Hall Association had not taken any steps to effect a change in the law.

Mr. Plowden: I should have thought that the test was the success of the piece. Very often these long, laborious pantomimes produce ennui.

Mr. Walter Payne, for the defence, denied that the name of the play had been changed to conceal it, or that no attempt had been made to legislate. During the whole of last year, the Theatrical and Music Hall Associations were in communication, with the result that a Bill was drafted to carry out the points thought to have been agreed upon. Difficulties, however, arose, and the theatrical managers were asked for suggestions; but none were ever made, and the matter dropped. This piece, of course, formed only a part of the entertainment. As a matter of fact, if the Act were construed strictly, nine-tenths of the programme in every music hall in London would be found to offend against the law.

Mr. Plowden, in giving his decision, said the theatrical managers were perfectly justified in availing themselves of their rights under the statute if they thought they were unduly prejudiced. In this case it was a matter of aggravation that there had been eleven other prosecutions, and the defendants must have known that in putting this play on the stage, they rendered themselves liable to prosecution. He therefore fined the defendant £25 in all.

MISS ETHEL WALKER, the well-known society entertainer, now on tour with Mr. Albert Chevalier, went to Birmingham last Monday evening, and had an enthusiastic reception. Her topical verse anent Mr. Joseph Chamberlain fairly delighted the audience, and in addition to the applause evoked she was the recipient of two beautiful bouquets.

MR. F. WARDEN-REED and company have been presenting this week at the Hippodrome, Liverpool, The Right Road, for the first time in the Mersey city, and the production has met with a cordial reception. After finishing the Barrasford tour, Mr. Warden-Reed plays for one week at the London and Collins's, and then starts on the Macnaghten tour.

LATENT TALENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have read with much interest the various letters in your paper on "Latent Talent," and I should like to draw the attention of your readers to one important fact, and that is the question of "the turn" you may have the fortune or misfortune to get on a programme, and how it materially affects the discovery of latent talent. For instance, agent A goes to manager B, and says, "I've found a wonderful young comedian. His salary is very reasonable, and he is out next week; perhaps you can place him?" Manager B engages him on top of a big company, and puts him on first turn, expecting him to do well. When the rising comedian does not "pull the house down," he (manager B) writes to agent A, and says he doesn't think much of his idea of talent. Whereas, if he had given the said artist a legitimate chance, he would probably have done exceedingly well, and might from that very hour have become a star artist. You may remember some instances yourselves where the rearrangement of a programme discovered latent talent. I don't think any comedian, or even any "speaking act," can be expected to do really well, or do justice to his business, if put on as "first turn"; and that is the reason why a lot of really first-class artists remain undiscovered—because a great many turns go round week after week on the various tours, and always have the misfortune of being first or second turn. And once you get the name of being "all right for a first turn," your chance of improving your position monetarily or on the programme is very small indeed. Therefore, if managers paid a little more attention to the way they arranged their programmes, and occasionally gave the smaller turns a chance, then they would find (1) that their turns would go better, (2) their Palaces and Empires would do better, and it would very often lead to the discovery of "Latent Talent." FREDDIE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I myself am one of the younger members of the music hall profession, and have always been fairly successful in the provincial halls. Wishing to get a chance in London, I put my name down for an extra turn at a Thursday matinée at a certain variety hall in the East-end, where the Thursday matinée is worked chiefly by extra turns. I arrived there in good time, and waited and waited. During my wait the burly, pompous manager came up, and asked who I was. I told him. He said, "Oh, well, mine's a brandy-and-soda, and cigar," and away vanished my last shilling. Then I was pushed on in a front scene, and I started to warble about the woes of a family man, when judge of my surprise at seeing the curtain come down in front of me before I had a chance of showing my capabilities as a vocalist, dancer, and cod conjurer. This was my experience as an extra turn in a London music hall.—Yours faithfully, CHARLES ELTON.

March 5.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I am the daughter of Jenny Russell and the late Dick Dunn, two old performers, whom no doubt some of your readers will well remember. I have been a music-hall performer since quite a little girl. As a child artist I fulfilled with every possible success engagements at the Trocadero, the Canterbury, Collins's, and all the principal halls, having worked with all the biggest star artists, including the late Geo. Leybourne, the Two Macs, Arthur Corney, the late Dan Leno, Baby Victoria (now Vesta Victoria).

After fulfilling my London engagements I went abroad for some years with my parents, working all the best establishments on the Continent. I am now back in England again. I have been to several agents and managers, but cannot possibly get a look in anywhere, as they say they do not know my act. My present show is far better than the act I worked years ago, and yet I cannot get anyone to represent and book my turn. I am forced to be idle and out of work week after week. The late Dan Leno highly complimented me on my act on several occasions, and I have performed before some of our most critical provincial audiences.—Yours faithfully,

MARION BOSANQUET
(Low Comedy Artist and Speciality Dancer).
25, Fairfax-road, Colchester.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have read with interest the letters re "Latent Talent," and would like to call your attention to a few of my own experiences. I may say I have been connected with different branches of the profession for over twenty years, and have had an act on the halls for fifteen years.

Just over two years ago I was advised to change the same to a comedy act, which I did, and produced it with pantomime in the provinces as a trial. The manager of the pantomime, after production, complimented me on the same, and asked me to keep it in for the remained of the tour, which I did with unbounded success. Since this time we have played a considerable number of halls, including Walham Green and Standard—the two halls in one week—and at each hall have made a big hit, especially at the Standard. Yet I cannot get engagements. The act has never failed in any hall yet played. I cannot get on the syndicates, although I have offered to take a week at a small salary as a trial, but have failed to get any answers to my letters. At the same time, I occasionally go to a hall where I see acts that are a disgrace to any hall, and I hear that they are getting double the salary I ask. You can imagine how annoying this is to old performers, who have brought their act up to date and spent their money to produce something away from the ordinary old-time shows, and yet are left out in the cold. Everyone, including the Press, who sees my act says it is novel, funny, and away from others. Agents have promised to do their best, but very little has come of it. Yet a proprietor will book an act of coloured people supposed to be Africans, who do a sort of war dance and make a hideous noise on instruments of torture called tom-toms.

When will our English proprietors and managers give the Britisher a chance? I am certain the public would be better amused and shareholders' dividends go up by giving performers of ability engagements instead of the bluff Continental and other foreign acts that are invading the British Isles. Mr. Nelson's remark applies exactly to me. The better you go the less chance you have of a return date. I am not asking for a free advertisement, so I enclose my card for reference, and sign myself UNFORTUNATE.

[Some correspondence on the subject is held over.—ED.]

HARDY, the American Blondin, has been engaged at the Alexandra Palace for the Easter Holidays, and makes his appearance with new business on the high rope wire.

THE management of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, proposed to hold a hippodrome season, and an application was made in the Dublin Rolls Court on Monday by the Star Theatre of Varieties, Dublin, to restrain the Dublin Theatre Company, which owns the Theatre Royal, from presenting a performance of a dangerous nature, in which it was intended to introduce an elephant. The applicants urged that the theatre was licensed solely for dramatic and operatic purposes, and that the proposed performance would expose them to unfair competition. The Master of the Rolls held that there was no right to sue in that Court on the record as it stood, and refused the motion. The elephant was within the precincts of the Court during the hearing.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

The petition of the Showmen's Guild against the proposal of the local authority to abolish Shipdham Fair is worded as follows:—

Re SHIPDHAM FAIR.

To the Right Honourable the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Sir,—The Executive Council of the Showmen's Guild a trade society, representing the interests of travelling showpeople and fair-ground traders, respectfully submit that the proposal of the local authority to abolish the annual pleasure fair is detrimental to their business, and will prevent them using Shipdham for purposes of trade during the course of their Norfolk circuit of fairs.

We submit further that the preamble of the Act for the abolition of fairs and markets places most serious conditions upon public bodies before the provisions of the statute can be carried out.

We venture to say that not one of these most serious reasons exists at Shipdham. Local showmen and members of our Guild have written to us to assure us that the fair is well conducted, and much enjoyed as a time of necessary recreation.

We therefore, Sir, beg that the fair be not abolished without giving us a further opportunity of defending it.

Signed on behalf of the Executive,

George Sanger, President.
T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain.

To this petition the following official reply was sent:—

Home Office, Feb. 21, 1906.

Sir,—I am directed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, and to say that the same shall receive due attention.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
M. D. Chalmers.

The Rev. T. Horne.

The lodging of the petition was followed by the sending to the Home Office of a letter from a Norwich showman supporting its statements as to the good conduct of the fair; and there for the present the matter rests. We can only trust that the Home Secretary will give, as we confidently anticipate he will, all consideration to the interests of a body of traders so universally respected as the travelling showpeople, and that regard will be paid to the strong local desire for the retention of the people's fair.

Whilst dealing with Norfolk matters, it will cause regret to many of our readers to hear of the death of Mr. Henry Baxter, the highly-esteemed and well-known collector of tolls for Norwich Fair.

The following letter has been sent to the Parks and Open Spaces Committee of the London County Council:—

5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

Dear Sir,—At a largely attended meeting of London showmen, tenants at holiday times of the open spaces controlled by the London County Council, I was requested to seek an opportunity of laying before the committee dealing with the regulations recently issued to their tenants, the very serious nature of the inconvenience and hindrance to their trade and business that the regulations entail.

I refer specifically to the Rule forbidding living-vans on the open spaces. I would venture to suggest that the committee receive a small deputation of representative showmen and myself, to respectfully submit reasons against the regulations.

I have been told that a movement, hurriedly set on foot last Easter with a similar intention, ended in comparative failure, because of the extreme difficulty when once the show business has commenced of gathering together a representative number of showmen.

It is felt that the failure of that effort may have prejudiced the committee, both with regard to the importance of the question, and also as to the earnestness of the people concerned, in seeking a modification of the regulations in question.

On behalf of the Showmen's Guild, permit me to say that we heartily desire to co-operate with everything done by the Council for safeguarding the public health, and for the uplifting and betterment of the show business and the popular amusements of the people.

I visited both Hampstead Heath and Wormwood Scrubbs last Easter and Whitsuntide, and I most willingly testify to the admirable arrangements of the County Council, and the thoroughly hearty manner in which these thoughtful provisions were appreciated and enjoyed by the vast crowds of London workers seeking open-air amusement and recreation at holiday times.—Yours ever, for God and for good,

T. Horne,
(Hon. Chaplain, the Showmen's Guild.)

To G. L. Gomme, Esq., the Clerk, London County Council, Spring-gardens, S.W., Feb. 13, 1906.

The Clerk to the County Council has sent the following courteous reply:—

London County Council,
Spring-gardens, S.W.
Feb. 14, 1906.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 13th inst., and to inform you it shall receive attention.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
G. L. Gomme, Clerk to the Council.

Rev. T. Horne, The Era, London.

County Hall, Spring-gardens, S.W.,
March 6, 1906.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 13th ultimo, I am directed to inform you that the Parks and Open Spaces Committee of the Council will be pleased to receive, on Friday, the 16th inst., at 3.30 p.m., a deputation from the Showmen's Guild on the subject of the regulation prohibiting the use of dwelling-vans in connection with shows at Wormwood Scrubs, Blackheath and Hampstead Heath. I am at the same time to point out that the regulation was made after very careful deliberation, and that the Committee do not at present see sufficient reason for any departure from it.

In accordance with the Council's established practice, the deputation should not consist of more than ten members, and only one member of the deputation will be at liberty to address the Committee.

I shall be glad if you will kindly inform me whether the proposed deputation will be able to attend at the time above stated.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
G. C. GOMME,
Clerk of the Council.

The Rev. T. Horne, Hon. Chaplain of the Showmen's Guild, 5, Tavistock-street, W.C.

The President of the Guild, Lord George Sanger, will probably marshal the deputation and be its spokesman, and with him the Rev. T. Horne and F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., hon. treasurer of the Guild for London, and probably the following London showmen:—Messrs. William Biddall, Alf. Ball, William Bedford, Swales Forrest, H. Forrest, Fred Gray, and C. Wilson.

Well within this eighth-million belt of eager working life lies the old town of Bury. Here at Bury March Fair, every year on the 5th of the month of storms, the Lancashire round begins. Nine times out of ten the fair is held in a gale of wind or storms of hail and snow, yet still the showman, with a brave heart, sets up his tent and starts with optimistic zeal the season, and the good folk of Bury welcome their old servants, the itinerants of the fair ground, with never-failing heartiness.

Speaking of Bury, Leland, the quaint traveller and historian of the sixteenth century, says:—

Byri on Irwell water, iv or v miles from Manchestre, but a poore market. There is a Ruine of a Castel by the paroche Church yn the towne. It belonggid, with the towne, sumtime to the Pilkengtons, now to the Erles of Derby. Yerne sumtime made about it. [Introduced in the reign of Edward III., and had attained such importance in the reign of Elizabeth, that an Aulnager, or Measurer, was stationed here to measure the cloth produced.] Pilkengton had a place hard by, at Pilkengton Park. During the reign Elizabeth, Camden—1582-6—mentions it as "a Market Town not less considerable than Rochdale." In the reign of Charles II. Blome—1683—records, "Bury is a market town of no great account on Thursdays." The lord of the manor was anciently the chief man in all affairs of the parish; his manorial court, or court leet and view of frank-pledge, with the court baron was held, by prescription, three times a year, the steward of the manor or his deputy presiding. The old court-house stood near the Market Cross, and in it many trials were heard by the steward and the jury, whose powers were greater than those of the magistrates of this day; yet their verdicts were lenient, such as a fine, the pillory, bridle, stocks, and the cat-o'-nine-tails; but they have not been exercised for some years. By the Reform Act of 1832, Bury secured Parliamentary representation, its population then being 19,140. The figures at the last Census were 58,128. The market day is Saturday, and fairs are held under a very ancient grant on March 5, Octave of David; May 3, St. Philip and St. James-tide; Sept. 18, Holy Cross-tide. A cattle fair is also held on the second and fourth Mondays in each month.

The present market inspector, Mr. H. Cass, is an old friend of shows and showmen, and everything is done that kindly thought and forward provision can arrange for the good of the large crowd of showmen who commence their season at Bury.

It will be remembered that last Christmas and New Year considerable satisfaction was felt by North Country showmen at the enlightened policy of the Corporation of Hartlepool in allowing shows and stalls to stand in the High-street Market-place.

A correspondent of the showman world has sent us a report of a recent discussion in the Borough Council concerning this matter. We lay it before our readers with this remark only, that Councillor Sherwood has been misinformed—that no complaint or remark of the nature he refers to has appeared in our columns:—

The committee recommended:

That the market keeper be paid a commission of 10 per cent. on the takings of the market to date, and also that such be a scale for payment in future.

Councillor T. W. Watson asked if there was any need to prepare for the future? He understood that the shows did not intend to come to Hartlepool any more, as there had been difference of opinion as to what they should pay for stands.

Councillor Sherwood remarked that this was a serious question. They had to meet certain charges on the part of the working classes, both in their workshops and in the streets—he was satisfied that the suggestions were merely rumours—that certain interested persons who were members of the Council, and who traded in Northgate and other places, were using their influence with the Council to destroy the open market in High-street. These rumours had got such a hold that the time was come when they should have something to say in open Council as to how the market was conducted. They were told the charges were excessive. He had had the opportunity of going through similar charges made by other Corporations, and he found that, with the exception of Hexham, the charges for stands in the market-place were much higher than obtained in Hartlepool. At Hartlepool they resolved to raise the price from 3d. per square foot to 1d. per square foot, because they found that proprietors of shows were not content to use High-street on the day only for which they hired stands, but stayed there until they were ready to go on elsewhere, no extra charge being meanwhile made by the Corporation. This the committee considered was not fair play, and they decided to impose a charge for a stand in the street, whether the shows were open to the public or not. This resulted in the charges being increased, and the consequence was that one week a certain show proprietor went night after night on to his platform and informed the public that he was paying charges which were excessive and above any other town in the kingdom. And he (Councillor Sherwood) believed that the persons interested had inserted Press notices in The Era and other papers, alleging that the charges at Hartlepool were so excessive that they could not pay their way in Hartlepool, and thus they were helping to damage the town. He wanted it under stood that these statements were entirely incorrect. The committee's object was not to make money out of the market. His own object was to raise the rateable value of the houses in the street, and also to provide some place where people could congregate and "knock about" on Saturday nights. The Labour men, continued Councillor Sherwood, were very keen that the market should "go," and he himself had had no reason to doubt but that the whole of the committee, whether they were interested in the trade in Northgate or otherwise, were working with a view to making the market the unqualified success it undoubtedly had been.

Replying to Councillor T. W. Watson, Alderman Rowe said the increased charges had not yet come into operation.

Alderman Horsley agreed with Councillor Sherwood, and argued that if showmen used the street for the accommodation of their caravans for a whole week, they should be made to pay rental. He thought the committee had done right in making the rules and regulations they had.

Councillor Hart also averred that the committee were doing everything they could to make the open market a success, and confirmed Councillor Sherwood's statement as to the charges for stands at Hartlepool being lower than in other market towns. It was, he submitted, very wrong of people to say that the committee were trying to damage the market.

Councillor Robson said he did not like the charge to be made against the Northgate tradesmen that they were trying to injure the market without entering his protest. So far as he was concerned, there had been more money taken in the shop with which he was connected since the market was opened on a Saturday than ever there was before. (Hear, hear.)

Councillor Tate characterised the allegations as absurd and "tommy rot," and not worth talking about.

The Mayor said that the protests which had been made would, he was sure, be well ventilated through the Press.

At Turner's Fair Field, Feckenham-road, Astwood Bank, Mander's Cinematograph Exhibition has been paying a two-days' visit.

A sale of fifteen cart and nag horses takes place at Knighton, near Inkberrow, Worcestershire, on March 16, and on March 20 a sale of horses and colts will be held at Sheldon.

The Cricketers' Field, Banbury, has been occupied by Mr. A. Tiller's Mannikins and Bioscope Exhibiton. Mr. Tiller received a hearty welcome, the Bloxham brass band parading the town. There was a crowded house, and the performances were highly appreciated.

At Alcester Mander's Giant Cinematograph has given some first-class entertainments.

Mr. Waller Jeff's New Century Living Pictures have been at the Public Hall, Redditch, for three nights. Mr. Jeff's pictures are also proving very popular at Victoria Rooms, Clifton.

The public interest in the hire-purchase case which has been heard this week in the King's Bench Division, is reflected in the newest Warmack film, entitled "A Life for a Life; or, The Harshness of the Hire-purchase system." Another new film is called "A Lucky Pig," and depicts a very comical episode in the life of a porker.

Within a radius of ten miles from the heart of Manchester, "that city of cotton twists and twills," there is a population of over eight millions of people. It is this vast aggregation of teeming life that makes the great Lancashire round or circuit of fairs and wakes so great a factor in the business of the world of shows. These people work hard, and they spend freely, and right merrily do they seize upon the time of the local fair to cease work and breathe awhile and rest from the whirr and strain and machine-sped life.

"DUKE DIAMONTO."

(COPYRIGHT.)

To the outsider one of the mysteries of show life is the perfect comradeship and freedom of intercourse existing between all grades and classes of people engaged in the business; the sharp, and at most times harsh, lines of division between master and man in ordinary workaday life scarcely exists on the road. This is clearly shown in the almost invariable use of the Christian name between man and man.

Another mark of this intimate brotherhood and community of interest is the nickname, that hall-mark of universal acceptance in the hearts of the whole people with whom we claim fellowship and daily communion. These nicknames are almost invariably given to denote some conspicuous trait in the character of the individual. Is the showman of a breezy disposition—well set up in physique, hale and hearty, lusty of lung and cheery of speech — speedily he is hailed as "Captain." Has he a smart, well-groomed military way with him, then we find him commissioned with military honours, "Colonel" or "General." Is he a man with a distinguished air—then he is "Gentleman George," "Lord John," or "Sir Rupert." Does he bear the outward and visible signs of having sprung from the yeoman class—then he is hailed as "Squire William" or "Farmer John." If he be a little disputatious and given to talkee-talkee outside business hours, then he is known as the "Lawyer."

We do not here touch upon the equally interesting question of professional nomenclature, why every boxer is a Professor, every conjuror a Fakir, a Sahib, a Mahatma, Llama, or Hindoo Prince, or why the charming ladies of the circus arena are De Veres, Montgomerys, or Mollinbrooks. These are mysteries only known to the initiated and the elect; our only point is that the nickname is usually a mark of honour and acceptance in the world of shows.

Enrico Montallo, the Spanish conjuror, had a weakness for diamonds, and his rise and progress in the show business was marked by the number of diamond rings on his fingers, diamond studs and pins on his shirt-front, and diamond waistcoat buttons. Yes, they were real sparkling gems of the first water, he wore a moderate fortune on his fingers, and a duke's ransom when arrayed in his professional get-up on the show front. Small wonder, then, that he was known as the "Duke Diamonto," and, as even great men have little vanities, he rather liked it, and played up to the part.

In a friendly sort of way he had been warned of the way in which he repeatedly tempted fate by openly wearing his big diamonds at all times. "It is a good advertisement," he shrewdly replied; "they come as much to see the diamonds as to see the show. I give them a good show, and they go home and say, 'That hanky-panky man with the diamond buttons is worth seeing.' I should not mind even if someone did make a grab at them. It would be a big puff for me and the show." So the "Duke" was credited with sense and method in his diamond mania.

Montallo's show was wintering on a piece of ground in the East End, one of London's busiest thoroughfares, where the toilers most do congregate, and where good business will invariably reward a clever show. With Montallo in the performance were his wife, a Frenchwoman, and her nephew, Pierre François, both exceedingly clever at the business. The Montallos had no children of their own, and so Pierre was to them more son than nephew, he was their pride and highest hope, and fully did he justify their love and care, for a better son never blessed loving parents than Pierre François was to his doting aunt and uncle.

With all Montallo's love of display there was a certain amount of reserve about him that even his wife and nephew had never understood, a mystery and a puzzle in character and history that he sedulously kept even from them. "I am only just what you know me to be, sweet wife. You married me as a showman. Well, let it rest at that; a showman I am, and will be, please God, to the end of the chapter. Let the buried past lie in its grave. Why call back the ghosts and goblins? Let them rest."

Many a time did Madame, with pardonable pertinacity, seek to break down this wall of the past; but all to no avail. He would not say a word about his early days, his parents, or his home.

"It is not every conjuror," he gaily remarked, "who is a man of mystery to his people and to the wife of his bosom. What matters the past, sad or bad, so long as we live and glory in the happy present? So worry not your mind over that, Sweetheart."

The East-End of London is in very truth the Far East of our much mixed and strange civilisation. What deep mysteries come to baffle us, and to show our utter futility day by day in the crowded East of London town—mysteries that tax the vigilant energies of the expert investigator of crime, and baffle the criminologist in his most certain science of logical deduction.

This was abundantly manifested in the tragic death of Montallo, the conjuror. The daily Press with one consent treated the murder of the showman as a fit subject for its most cynical and sensational sermonising on the well-worn theme, "Vanity of vanities; and all is vanity"; but the vanity of the penny showman is the worst vanity of all. "To wear diamonds in the East End of London, where was the sense of it? A very child in the things of this life would know better than that," and so on and so on ad nauseam.

Poor Madame Montallo and her nephew were tormented by eager journalists to know to a penny the value of each gem. It was the diamonds, and not the sorrow of the grief-stricken wife and nephew by her side that interested these members of the public Press eager for the latest news.

Thus one of the evening papers told the tale of the crime:—"A showman, whose eccentric display of huge diamonds as studs, coat buttons, bogus foreign orders, stars, &c., and with every finger cumbered with diamond rings, has met with the inevitable consequence of his temerity. Murdered and pillaged of his diamonds, the dead showman exhibits to the whole world the oft-told lesson—but, alas, how little heeded by the lovers of vain display!—the mistake of tempting Providence (and ever-ready thieves) by lavish display of gems and jewellery. How could it be expected that such a temptation would escape its fell power in the starving and criminal East End? Whilst joining in the universal expression of sympathy with the family of the murdered man, we cannot allow the opportunity of pointing out that the moral of the sad tragedy should not be lost or forgotten."

The police were quite contented to take the surface view of the matter—"murdered for his diamonds." What an easy solution of another East End murder—the overworked guardians of the public have enough daily horror of thick darkness about them not to worry over an event that bore its own tale so openly written on its face—"murdered because in his vanity he decked himself in diamonds"—"a showman and his craze for gems"; and so in the public mind the matter was ended and done with.

Madame Montallo and her nephew Pierre knew full well, and his comrades of the fair-ground knew, that the outside show of the man was merely a part of his business equipment, and that vanity played but a small part in the character of the warm-hearted and clever showman; they knew of the deeper well-springs of life, the kind heart, the ready sympathy, the joy of life, the devotion to home and duty; it might please the world to dwell upon the outward and visible signs of supposed eccentricity; they knew better. The superficial observers of human affairs always err in this respect. The Showman World knew the real man, and so Montallo was laid to rest honoured and respected by his confrères of the road.

After the funeral, the conjuror's wife, going through the business matters of the show, found many things that cast light on the past life of her husband; these papers and memoranda she laid aside for later inspection. Her greatest discovery, and one that she wisely determined to tell only her nephew of, was the finding, stowed away at the bottom of a locker, of the case containing the real diamonds. The set he wore when foully done to death were paste, exactly like the originals, yet only paste. This discovery set Pierre thinking, and doubt took possession of him. Was his uncle killed for his diamonds?

With his aunt's full consent, we went carefully through the family papers, and she supplied, as far as she could, missing links in the chain of his reasoning. Madame Montallo knew very little of her husband's life prior to their marriage, and the only mysterious thing about the pile of letters that Pierre carefully collated and set out in order of time, was the reference to a certain Spanish town or village in the province of Castile, indicated by three stars and a cross, thus—* * * †.

Many interesting hours of labour did the youth give to the enterprise of finding the key to the evident cryptogram of his uncle's correspondence. One thing was clear—that the letters had been preserved for some important purpose, and that, disconnected and self-contained as they appeared to be, in reality they formed one complete message.

At last Pierre found the key, and the message of the letters told the romantic story of Montallo's youth and early manhood. After careful thought both wife and nephew determined to regard the secret of their dead as inviolate, and to take no steps to make it known or to rouse further curiosity. So the matter would have rested, as far as human will would determine it, but the mills of God grind surely, though at times they grind but slowly, "murder will out," and the stern arbiter of fate was bringing to deserved punishment the perpetrator of the crime that laid the showman low.

* * * * *

Another sensation had taken the popular fancy, the meteor-like rise into notoriety and a sort of flashy fame of Don Gomez de Vagarres, miner and millionaire. The smart papers revelled in recounting the prodigality and freak extravagances of the latest thing in millionaires. Among other details of the millionaire's life told by the ready pen of the industrious interviewer were stories of his poverty-stricken early life. How he and an elder brother were left as lads the joint heirs of a large estate in the mountain passes of Castile. So encumbered was their patrimony that the brothers determined to seek fortune in other lands and give the property time to redeem itself.

One of the brothers, after twenty years of hard life in the mines of Nevada, died, the surviving brother returned to his ancestral home, and there made the discovery that led to fame and fortune. The wealth that neither he nor his brother could win in foreign lands was actually beneath his feet, and stored in the barren mountains that hitherto had yielded no revenue to the Vagarres family. The land was a veritable El Dorado of the richest and most easily-worked iron ore, and various other minerals of a valuable kind.

It was Don Gomez's knowledge of mining that led to the discovery of the mineral wealth hidden beneath his ancestral lands. So rich was it that on proof of its value he had no difficulty in finding a wealthy syndicate to take over the speculative side of the matter and to float the company that made him a millionaire; and now Vagarres was spending his money and booming himself as the prodigal millionaire from Spain.

At the very height of his fame he received a visit from one who merely sent up a visiting-card with these significant words written across it: "A messenger from the dead." For a few moments he stood perplexedly turning over the strangely-worded card, then said to his man, "Show the gentleman into my study, and say I can give him but a few minutes, as my time is very much taken up to-day"; and then, with a second thought, he added, "See that we are not interrupted."

The visitor made himself known to the millionaire as Pierre François, showman, and the nephew of the murdered Don Enrico Vagarres, of Evas del Montallo, in the Castilian Mountains. Very deliberately, and keenly watching the effect of each word, did the showman thus announce himself to the astounded millionaire.

Vagarres with a tremendous effort controlled himself sufficiently to say: "You, the nephew of my brother, and a showman! What strange story is this you come to tell?"

"A far stranger story than you anticipate, murderer!" was the instant reply; then, with a quick movement Pierre placed himself between the astonished millionaire and the door, exclaiming the while: "I insist that you hear me to the end. You are not the brother of my murdered uncle, but the usurper of his heritage, and if not the actual murderer, the instigator of his death."

With a yell of rage the Spaniard flung himself upon Pierre, but the younger man very speedily mastered his assailant and forced him into a chair.

"Now, it is useless for you to attempt to add another crime to the long list already laid at your door. This is the story I have come to tell you, and you must listen to the bitter end. Thirty years ago Don Enrico Vagarres and his younger brother Don Gomez sought fortune in foreign parts, leaving their family estate to recover by time the heavy debts incurred by their father's extravagancies. At the silver mines in Western America the younger brother died, after twenty years' hard and fruitless toil. Ten years before this Don Enrico, not caring for the hardships of miner's life, returned to Europe, and after various vicissitudes became a travelling showman, taking for his professional name Montallo, the name of his birthplace.

"The brothers for ten years kept up a correspondence in cryptogram form, so that any of their letters going astray might not lead to their identity. There is evidence full and complete of every change in the fortunes of the younger brother, and the details of the time and manner of his death in the cryptographic correspondence of Don Enrico now in my possession.

"My uncle was done to death by hired assassins at the Dock side in East London. Within six months of his death you blossomed forth as his long dead and buried younger brother, and established yourself as one of London's many millionaires."

"Stop, stop!" cried the now utterly amazed and beaten Spaniard. "I confess all; I am in the toils. There is no escape, and I know that from you I shall get no mercy. Gomez was my companion for eight years before his death. In a moment of confidence he told me his true name and the story of the brothers' resolve and their quest for fortune. After his death I came into a little money by the death of a relative. This took me to my native Spain. Out of curiosity I visited Evas, and to my utter amazement was universally recognised as one of the long-absent brothers. This I allowed to pass out of a mere whim at first, but finding that it gave me great acceptance amongst the Castilian gentry I kept up the fiction.

"Then came the fatal temptation. Being an expert miner, in my wanderings over the estate I found manifest signs of great mineral wealth. This inflamed my cupidity, and I came to England confident that nothing stood between me and the assumption of the name and fortune of Vagarres. At the very moment of my triumph I discovered the existence in London itself of your uncle, a prosperous showman. I was in the grip of the demon of avarice, and the lust of wealth inspired murder. I it was who compassed your uncle's death. Now you have heard my confession, and this is the end."

Taking a tabloid from his waistcoat pocket and passing it rapidly into his mouth, he said to Pierre: "You are able enough to see that your aunt receives her just rights. From the moment that I found that the diamonds he wore were not real ones I have lived in a very hell of fear. Now it is over. I have fully prepared for this, but did not expect it so quickly. You—you will find—in the—in the—"

Here the murderer pointed with rigid, outstretched arm to the bureau. Then with a gasp he fell back into the chair dead.

All the details of the remarkable crime came out at the inquest, and of necessity the public had to modify its hasty verdict as to the vanity, real or imagined, of "Duke Diamonto."

At Astwood Bank Mr. James Mander's grand cinematograph exhibition is showing all the latest pictures, and Captain Delaware gives his daring performance in a den of lions.

Jenning's Alexandra Theatre is at the Royal Hotel Yard, Redditch, this week, and the following programme has been given: The Village Vagabond, The Ticket of Leave Man, The Woman from Prison, Jealousy, The Colleen Bawn, The Female Detective, The Ship on Fire, and The Dumb Man of Manchester.

Future fixtures in the West of England include: March 31, Stourbridge; May 1, Ludlow and Tenbury; May 12, Stow-on-the-Wold; June 21, Kidderminster; June 22, Shipston-on-Stour; June 25, Bromsgrove; June 26, Pershore; July 5 and 6, Worcester Races and pleasure fair on Pitchcroft; July 13 to 18, Headless Cross and Great Cherry Wakes; Aug. 4 to 8, Redditch; Sept. 28, Studley; Oct. 1, King's Norton; Oct. 3, Alvechurch; Oct. 5, Evesham; Oct. 9, Alcester; and Oct. 12, Stratford-on-Avon.

What would have been doubtless a most interesting item at Messrs. Hancock's Winter Gardens, Plymouth, namely, a singing competition, unfortunately fell through; but their patrons were nevertheless well rewarded by a "grand spectacle" by the whole company engaged, and some fine animated pictures, amongst which were "The Derby Day" and "Lord Sanger's Grand Circus Parade."

Mr. William V. Morris, of 34, Grand-parade, Cork, writes to inquire the names and addresses of makers of road living vans. Now that his want is here made known we feel sure he will soon receive the required information.

At Wallsend.—W. Kaye's Buff-Bill's circus, J. Hancock's gallery and shooter, T. Carter, &c.

Alnwick Hirings.—Mr. Walter Murphy's 60 h.p. motors doing good business; J. Cotterall's living pictures; G. Gray, jun.'s, fun of fair concerns; and a host of others.

Washington, co. Durham.—Richardson Bros.' last style of 60-h.p. motors; C. Robson, gallery and shooter, coker sheets; J. Jackson, Emmas, swings, coker sheets; Hartshorn, going concerns in sweetmeats, &c.

Jarrow.—Mr. W. Headley's flying motors; Chipperfield, wild beasts; Payne, living pictures; Johnson's circus; Newsome, shooting gallery, throwing games, &c.; Rosher, Shaw, T. O'Brian, Hoffman, &c.

Byker.—Wingate's bicycles; W. and B. Murphy, gondolas; G. Gray's juvenile swings, roundabouts, overboats, &c.

At Hebburn.—W. Cowie's roundabouts, gallery, coker sheet, swings, &c.; G. Halliday, with all the fun of the fair.

West Stanley.—A. Payne's roundabouts and gallery; W. J. Firman, Emmas, dollies, cokernuts; H. Stephens, shooters, &c.

At Rover's Football Ground, Eastville, Bostock and Wombwell's Menagerie continues to attract a large concourse of people at each show.

During a circus performance at Abertillery on Wednesday, a gust of wind snapped the pole of the tent, part of which fell upon some boys. One of these, named James, was found to be suffering from a fractured skull; another, named Carter, from injuries to the side and spine; and several others were less severely hurt.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Allow me a small space in your valuable paper to take up a topic that has been partly discussed through other papers, but I know not what the results have been—the question of drawing for positions.

I think it is known throughout the show world that up to the present this is the only system to stop competition. On every ground in the counties of Durham and Northumberland, every class of the show fraternity, from the large roundabouts to the small stall-holders, draw for positions and pay a uniform rent. We have this year a reduced scale of prices, the lowest that has yet been attained. If the small stall-holder, showmen, and roundabout proprietors would put petty jealousies on one side and unite this question of competition could be dispensed in less than one month. I may say that this question has been discussed in our general meetings, and in the past years people who have come to the North for our large fairs have been allowed to pay their contributions and receive the same privileges as our members; but when our members have gone into Yorkshire or Lancashire or Scotland they are treated in a very different manner, having in some instances to pay more rent, and then only get a position after everyone else is built up, so we in the North have decided that no person or persons who have not paid their contributions before March 17 will be allowed to draw with our members in the North on any grounds, and will have to take the positions after our members have drawn. But I hope in the near future that someone will step to the front and be the mediator, and so unite all classes of the show world, and adopt some system to stop the competition between lessee and lessee, showman and showman, stall-holder and stall-holder. Then the show world will benefit, and there will not be the complaints that they have not been able during the summer to pay their way, and prepare for the long winter months when trade is bad. I should like everyone who thinks that the above suggestion will meet and end part of the present troubles to speak out his views at once, so that all classes of the show world will be able to curtail the expenses in ground rents, &c., and prepare for the winter that will come. I must close this time.—Yours faithfully,

T. HARTSHORN,
Secretary to the North of England Society.

Please note this letter applies to our Easter fair on the Leazes, Newcastle, which is being let by Mr. Walter Murphy, 102, Holly-avenue, Newcastle, as well as all our grounds.
